Late the night before, other coastal command planes dumped explosives on the railroad line which the Germans were said to be using to carry supplies from Oslo to the Norwegian port of Bergen.

The Air Ministry reported that other raids were directed at oil stores and industries in western Germany, and docks at Rotterdam and Flushing, in the Netherlands, Antwerp and Ostend, Belgium, and Calais, France.

The Admiralty announced last night the apparent loss of the 640-ton overdue submarine Swordfish.

Meanwhile, one observer expressed the opinion that the increasing force of Britain's blows against Germany from the air and against Italy from the air, sea and land seemingly gave Germany only two alternatives:

1. Invasion of England before Britain's sinews of war had been strengthened fully by home and empire production and an increasing flow of materials from the United States.

2. Enforcement of a more effective blockade—at least doubling the present average shipping toll of 62,000 tons a week.

This source said Britain has been "somewhat up against it" because "she has only one navy to do three jobs; protect shipping, fight the Italians, and guard against invasion," and added:

"If Britain could dispose of the Italians without leaving herself too wide open to invasion and without losing too much shipping before the Mediterranean fleet is able to join in convoy work and submarine hunts we'd feel pretty good."

SNORERS

They are the beds of luxury you read about in the mattress advertisements, soft and immaculate and complete with elderdowns.

Dimly Lighted.

If you and your wife go to the married section, you slip into your double bed without knowing who may be already asleep in the closely adjoining beds on either side. You could reach out and touch them if you chose, but the lighting is too dim for recognition and the enforced silence, plus the need of sleep removes any curiosity.

Take it from me, if you snore at all you will be well advised to take the turning to the right. If you go to the quiet sectors, your night will be a hideous thing in spite of everything.

The moment sleep comes and its relaxation causes you to emit the first sounds of a snorer's broadcast you will find yourself suddenly awake, feel soft hands on your temple and catch, out of the corner of your eye, a disappearing shadow.

It is the shadow of a vigilant nurse who reaches you quickly and silently, deftly grasps your head and expertly turns it.

That can go on all night.

In the snoring department on the other hand, you will listen to the nightlong symphony by your neighbors until it, or your weariness, puts you to sleep.

The ever-present nurses and physicians in such places add to the feeling of security silence brings. You know that the cougher and sneezer, who might spray you with germs in a shelter of the other type, are going to get courteous but quick treatment from one of them or, if that fails to work, protective isolation.

GERMAN POSTERS RIPPED DOWN

Angry French Youths Take Exception to Wording on Them

London, Dec. 23 (CP)—German posters in Paris, inviting young Frenchmen to join the German Air Force, were ripped down by angry youths, the British Broadcasting Corporation said last night, quoting the Free French News Agency.

"The posters described Britain as the hereditary enemy of France," the BBC said.

Some days later, the BBC added, new posters were put up, including threats of reprisals against those who had torn down the earlier ones.

"These posters did not remain up two hours," the BBC said. "They were knocked down by young Frenchmen during daylight, with the approval of the crowd and even under the eyes of German police officials."

Religious Leaders Outline Basis for A Lasting Peace

London, Dec. 23 CP)—Religious leaders of Britain, in a letter to the Times published during the weekend, outlined what they called the only important basis for a lasting peace.

Among those signing the letter were the Archbishops of Canterbury and York and Arthur Cardinal Hinsley, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster.

The Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders urged five standards "by which economic situations and proposals may be tested."

They were listed as follows:-

1. Abolition of the extreme inequality of wealth and possessions.
2. Equal opportunities of education for every child.
3. The family as the social unit be safeguarded.
4. A sense of divine vocation must be restored to man's daily work.
5. The earth's resources must be used as God's gift to the whole human race.

"We are confident the principles we have enumerated would be accepted by the rulers and statesmen throughout the British Commonwealth of nations and be regarded as a true basis on which lasting peace could be established," the churchmen said.

They declared the "present evils in the world" are due to the failure of nations and peoples to carry out the laws of God.

Some of these views already have been expressed by Prime Minister Churchill. At Harrow last Wednesday, Mr. Churchill said that when the war is over the "advantages and privileges which hitherto have been enjoyed only by the few shall be fare more widely shared."

14,476 Tons Shipping Sunk by Enemy Week Ending Dec. 15

London, Dec. 23 (CP).—A total of 41,476 tons of merchant shipping was sunk by "enemy action" during the week ending Dec. 15, the Admiralty reported today.

An authoritative source said "You cannot take it from this that the danger to shipping from air, surface and undersea raiders has passed", but he added that the December weekly average of losses of merchantmen based on figures to Dec. 16 was 71,000 tons, the lowest in the last six months.

Of shipping sunk in the week ended Dec. 15, the Admiralty said five vessels totalling 30,830 tons were British and two totalling 10,646 tons were allied. No neutral ships were lost.

The total of 41,476 tons compared with German claims of having sunk 82,450 tons during the week.

German Claim Draws Chuckles From Navy Officials

"That's just a repetition of Italian claims that an Italian submarine 'sank' the destroyer Saguenay," one official said last night.

The Saguenay was damaged by an enemy torpedo during a clash with a submarine in the Eastern Atlantic early this month. She reached a British port safely and is undergoing repairs. Twenty-one ratings are missing and presumed killed in action. Eighteen wounded ratings were taken to hospital in Britain.

Belief was expressed after the Saguenay docked that the submarine which fired the torpedo may have been sunk by allied naval units accompanying the Saguenay.

OLDEST RESIDENT DIES

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP)—James Ingram, Brockville's oldest resident who claimed to be 104 years old, died today in the general hospital following illness of one week. He was a native of Clayton, Ont., and had resided here from childhood.

Plane Collision Kills Two R. C. A. F. Fliers At Malton Air Port

Toronto, Dec. 23—Two R.C.A.F. men lost their lives in the thirtieth fatal accident since inception of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, when two planes collided in mid-air at Malton Airport, Saturday afternoon. It was the ninth fatal R.C.A.F. accident in Ontario in December. L.A.C. C. R. Dickie died while being rushed to hospital, and Temporary Sergeant R. T. Jewitt of Bond Head, died of his injuries in St. Michael's Hospital Sunday night. L.A.C. Earl Freeman and Civilian Instructor C. S. Peene, occupants of the second plane, escaped injury. According to eyewitnesses the two planes were coming in for a landing when they collided. The plane piloted by Jewitt was turned over by the force of the impact and landed on its back, while the plane piloted by Peene was able to make a landing, although about four feet of its upper left wing was torn off.

"I was very lucky to be able to land safely," declared Peene. "I don't know how the accident occurred. The only think I can say is that I did not know the other plane was near."

Temporary Sergeant Jewitt was the son of Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Jewitt of Bond Head, and L.A.C. Dickie was the son of D. M. Dickie of Canning, King's County, Nova Scotia. C. S. Peene is a veteran of the last Great War, having fought with the New Zealanders. He was flying on forest fire prevention duty in the Lake of the Woods district before the war.

Churchill Speaks Over Radio Today

London, Dec. 23 (CP).—The King and his Prime Minister will broadcast to Britain and the Empire this week, within forty-eight hours of each other, delivering what observers believe will be significant Christmas messages to the British Commonwealth.

His Majesty, it was announced during the week-end, will be heard on Christmas Day, speaking to the British nation and the Empire at 3 p.m. (10 a.m. E.D.T.).

Some forty-eight hours earlier, on Monday evening, Prime Minister Churchill will speak — presumably from Downing street—on a British Broadcasting Corporation home and overseas program. His speech is scheduled for 9 p.m. (4 p.m. E.D.T.).

The King's Christmas Day message will come at the end of an hour's Christmas broadcast that will link the Empire and which, it is expected, will be heard by 300,000,000 persons.

This "Christmas Under Fire" broadcast will be divided into three parts, and will link the forces with the civilians in the British Isles and will tie up with London, heart of the Empire.

A Royal Air Force crew in the air will be heard in informal talk. From a minesweeper in the North Sea will come the voices of men on duty and from the army in Africa, where a great sweeping offensive is in its third week, will be heard the words of the fighting men.

Then will come a talk from a cathedral in the "front line" of the air siege, another from a home guard observation post, and a carol party in a village. In London the roving microphone will go to an underground shelter Christmas party, listen to a family Christmas at home and will give an "on the spot" record from firemen or home guards.

Evacuee children in Canada and the United States will talk to their parents in Britain through arrangements made by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the National Broadcasting Company.

EMPLOYEES GIVE BOMBER

Burbank, Calif., Dec. 23—(AP)—Eighteen thousand employees of the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation and the Vega Airplane Company Sunday presented the people of Great Britain with a $90,000 Hudson bomber as a Christmas gift.

Technically it was a gift to employees of the Fairey Aircraft Company of England, but British Consul Eric A. Cleuch and Air Commodore J. C. Slessor, British Air attache at Washington, D.C., expressed their appreciation.

Ogdensburg Meeting Heads Canadian News Of 1940

U.S. AND CANADA were joined in a definite defensive agreement against any possible threat from Europe or Asia as a result of a railroad siding conference between Premier King and President Roosevelt at Ogdensburg, New York.

OFF TO ENGLAND are these members of the Second Division, C.A.S.F., pictured aboard ship at an eastern Canadian port. They form part of the ever increasing aid being sent to England from Canada in the nature of arms, equipment and men.

MILITARY TRAINING was made compulsory for certain age groups of Canadian men. Under this arrangement, these draftees received a 30-day period of military training at various camps spread across the Dominion.

INTERNED was Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal who issued a public appeal for people to ignore the government's order for all persons over the age of 16 to register.

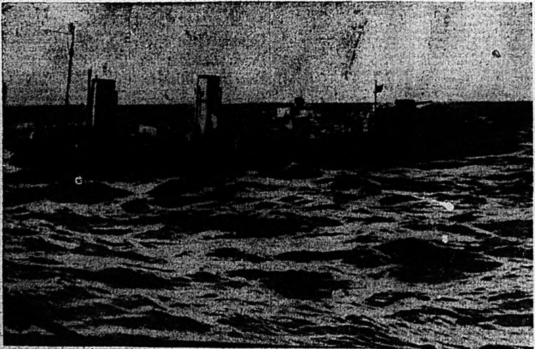
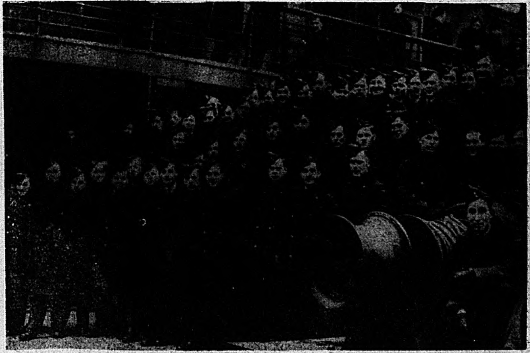
ACTIVE INTEREST in the welfare of Canada's troops is taken by Defence Minister J. L. Ralston, who succeeded in the defence post after the untimely death of Hon. N. M. Rogers.

NATIONAL REGISTRATION of all persons living in Canada over the age of 16 required some concentration in order to answer some of the questions asked by the government on the registration forms.



CANADA'S HEAVIEST WAR LOSS suffered this year was the sinkings of H.M.C.S. Fraser and H.M.C.S. Margaree. The Fraser was rammed and sunk with the loss of 45 lives, while on duty off the French coast. Replacing the Fraser, the Margaree suffered a similar fate while on convoy duty and sank with the loss of 142 lives. The Margaree is shown sinking.



FIRST R.C.A.F. UNIT to proceed overseas was the No. 110 Army Co-operation Squadron shown aboard their transport as they sailed for active service last February. Four hundred officers and men of this squadron represented every province in the Dominion, 150 cities, towns and villages. Their average age was 24.

'New World Order' Should Be Based On Moral Victories

Pope Pius Renews Plea for Peace in Speaking to College Of Cardinals

Vatican City, Dec. 24 (AP)—Pope Pius told the College of Cardinals today that any "New World Order" should be based on five "moral victories."

These victories, he said, are:—

1. Over hatred.
2. Over mistrust. Here the Pontiff called for "return to that fidelity in observance of pacts without which pure neighborliness of peoples and particularly the coexistence of powerful and weak peoples could not possibly succeed."
3. Over the idea that "might makes right."
4. Over economic maladjustment.
5. Over "the spirit of cold egoism which, fearless in its might, easily leads to violation not only of

Say Reference To 'Sword in Hand' Figure of Speech

London Dec. 24 — (CP Cable)—Prime Minister Churchill's reference in the House of Commons last Thursday to Australian cavalry in Egypt charging sword in hand was a figure of speech, the Canadian Press was assured today.

This was made clear when officials were asked to comment on a Canadian Press cable from Sydney stating that the Australian forces overseas have only mechanized cavalry and that cavalry swords are no longer issued to the troops.

Mr. Churchill, in describing fighting at Jarabub Oasis, said: "It happened as an incident that an Australian Cavalry Squadron charged in, sword in hand and captured both guns and transport as its trophy."

troops in northern Africa recently learned. There is a wind that visits Italy and Greece called the sirocco; it comes from far-away Sahara, and is, therefore, warm and filled with dust. It has been estimated that three tons of dust per acre fell in parts of Europe, brought by one of these storms. The dust percolates through the chinks of the tightest houses, settling on food and everywhere and worst of all, is inhaled with every breath. Some tribes wear mufflers over mouth and nose during the passage of the storms.

FASCISTS, NAZIS REACT TO SPEECH OF MR. CHURCHILL

Rome, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The official Italian reaction today to Prime Minister Churchill's speech directed at Italy was that it was "a puerile propaganda manoeuvre".

A seven-point official statement was issued in response to Mr. Churchill. It said:—

"1.—English solidarity with the Italian renaissance has been historically demonstrated to be false.

"2.—It is true the English and Italians fought together in the Great War but Italian sacrifices were repaid by the English in the well-known manner.

"3.—The unforgettable seriousness in the application of sanctions (economic measures against Italy in the Ethiopian war) comes from the fact that by the initiative of England they were applied for the first time against us.

"4.—It is shown indisputably that England wanted the present war. Refer to the guarantees to Poland the attempted policy of encirclement of the totalitarian states.

"5.—Italy lacks freedom of life in her own sea, all outlets being guarded by England. This fact and other vital aims for which Italy is fighting Churchill took care not to mention.

All Precautions Taken To Make Churchill's Broadcast Effective

London, Dec. 24 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill's message to the Italian people was transmitted in the Italian language by "various routes" before Mr. Churchill broadcast it at 9 p.m. (4 p.m. EDT yesterday, an authoritative source said today.

"No possible method of making the speech effective was overlooked," it was added.

The Italian government has charged that Britain is using agents to stir unrest in Italy and there were hints that these agents may have aided in circulating the speech. In addition to wide broadcasting of the address, it also was distributed in leaflets by airplanes.

POPE MAKES MENTION OF CANADA'S CO-OPERATION

Vatican City, Dec. 24 —(AP)—The Pope in his Christmas message today mentioned the co-operation of Canadian authorities in allowing the church to attend to the spiritual needs of Italian war prisoners and internees in Canada.

"We have succeeded in bringing many material and spiritual evidences of our concern . . . to Italian prisoners and internees, especially in Egypt, Australia, and Canada," the Pontiff said in the part of his message dealing with prisoners of war.

TRAFFIC ROUTES LINKING ITALY, GERMANY BOMBED

'Industrial Targets' in Rhineland Also Under Heavy Attacks

MUCH DAMAGE DONE

Unusual Activity on German-Occupied French Coast Seen by R.A.F. Pilots

London, Dec. 24.— (CP)—British warplanes bombed German invasion ports during the night and again attacked Ludwigshaven, Junction point in one of the main traffic routes linking the Industrial Saar Basin with Italy, the Air Ministry announced today.

Raids also were carried out against "industrial targets" in the Rhineland, a brief communique declared.

Listed specifically among the invasion ports bombed were Boulogne and Dunkerque in German-occupied France, and Ostend in Belgium.

One of the British raiders came down at sea and the crew are missing.

The assault coincided with reports of unusual activity along the German-occupied French coast, which led to speculation here that the Nazis might be planning a Christmas attempt to invade England.

Observers on the English shore along the Strait of Dover said unfavorable weather made it impossible to judge the effects of the bombing, but declared the attack appeared somewhat lighter than the preceding night, when the Royal Air Force pounded Calais, Dunkerque, Flushing and airports in the same area.

ARMS SPEED-UP PACE-SETTER FOR FUTURE OUTPUT

Says Arthur B. Purvis Director-General of British Purchasing Commission

Washington, Dec. 24—(AP)—Arthur B. Purvis, director-general of the British Purchasing Commission said today that accelerated production of United States war material during the next 60 to 90 days would be important for England, but only as a pace-setter for future arms output.

The principal British agent in the purchasing of billions of dollars' worth of airplanes, tanks, steel, ships and other material flew to Washington to give Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau an hour-long review of what he found in England. He arrived yesterday in New York on a trans-Atlantic clipper and left Washington this morning to spend Christmas with his family in Montreal.

Purvis said that British and American officials meant to imply no fear of military peril when they stressed the importance of accelerated production in the next few months.

When asked by newsmen whether "collapse" was implied in that period, Purvis replied heatedly:

"Collapse—the word isn't even in our dictionary."

"If you understand that the strategy of this war depends on the dominant supply of weapons, you will realize the importance of the next few weeks," he said.

Christmas 1940

Tomorrow, Christmas Day, the civilized world will arise to the joyous ringing of chimes. Tomorrow, Christendom will celebrate the most gladsome festival in its calendar. Little children will gather around brilliantly decorated Yuletide trees, gift-laden. Childish hearts will swell with joy and infant pleasure as the symbols of the gifts of the Three Wise Men of the East are given them. For them, and rightly so, it is an event of unbounded joy and celebration. "For as much as ye do unto one of them, ye have done unto Me."

But in other hearts, the occasion will be one of joy tinged with sadness, and thankfulness. In Belleville, and the entire Dominion, in fact the whole British Empire, there will be lonely hearts and vacant chairs. The sullen war clouds that hang so heavily over Britain and the stricken countries of Europe, are reflecting a shadow over Canadian homes and hearths. In other lands, the Empire's sons, with their faces to the foe, will sing their Christmas carols. Their Yuletide chimes will be the staccatos of machine-gun fire; their memories will come and recede to the thunderous symphony of big guns, or the reverberating explosions of bombs. The rumbling of tanks will provide the organ crescendo for their Christmas reminiscences.

But it is not new. There has always been war at this season of the year. History will tell us that during the past three centuries the intonations and incessant rumblings of Mars have been the resonant background of the celebration of the Birth of Christ. In 1914-1918 and the interlude, war has thrust its ugly head over a peace-striving world.

This is a struggle that is different. Christendom itself is at stake, civilization hinges on its outcome. We, in Canada, should temper Christmas with feelings of thankfulness rather than sorrow. We live in a land, far from the menace of momentary death; of horrors that strike suddenly, swiftly in the dead of night. We live in a land of plenty, sheathed in the armor of protection of the Empire's sons on the sea, the land, and in the air.

We should temper our Christmas with Remembrance. We should think of those gallant people of Britain, courageous, heroic, brave, suffering, yet who will eat their Christmas dinners, and enjoy their holiday with as much spirit, though menaced with death raining from the skies, as they did in the balmy days of peace.

We should think of those unfortunates, trodden under the heel of tyranny in the conquered countries, to whom Christmas will be but another day of suffering and oppression. To their speedy delivery we should drink a silent toast.

But in the background will be the joyous laughter of little children; the stoical heroism of the British people; the grim determination of the forces of Christendom that civilization and Christianity must and will survive. And as long as little children can laugh and be happy; as long as a free people can hurl by their very daring and in spite of tremendous odds, defiance in the faces of haughty dictators; as long as the Union Jack waves over the seven seas and the glorious British Navy patrols their mighty vastnesses, like England, there will always be a Christmas.

Eastern Canada Shaken By Earth Tremors But No Damage Reported

Montreal, Dec. 24 (CP)—Eastern Canada was shaken by slight earth tremors at 9.45 a.m. EDT—the second shock in four days—but no damage was reported immediately.

The disturbances were felt from Owen Sound, Ont., to Saint John, N.B. Other points reporting tremors were Ottawa, Sherbrooke, Que., and Fredericton.

The 'quake extended into the United States, with New Haven, Conn., and Boston reporting tremors.

Three distinct shocks were felt in Owen Sound while in Montreal many persons said they noticed two tremors.

Newspaper offices were flooded with telephone calls reporting the quake. Housewives said the dishes rattled and shook on their shelves but none reported any damage.

Lasted 15 Seconds

In Montreal the tremors lasted for 10 to 15 seconds.

The Dominion Observatory said it had received reports of the quake and made arrangements for immediate development of the seismograph record to determine the extent of the tremors.

Mild disturbances were reported from Quebec City.

A "rumbling" sound, as though caused by the passing of a heavy truck, was heard in some sections of Montreal. However, officials at the McGill University Observatory, did not feel the shocks.

Churchill's Threat to Italy Is Gravest Ever Uttered By One Nation to Another

Speech Was Portent of Smashing Events to Come in Two Theatres of War

BRITAIN READY

London, Dec. 24 (CP)—Diplomatic circles said today that Prime Minister Churchill's speech to Italy, and in particular his threat that Britain will tear "your African empire to shreds and tatters," was one of the gravest ever uttered over the radio by one nation to another.

His message was broadcast repeatedly to Italy in English and Italian in the hope that Italians might hear and heed him. Listening to enemy broadcasts is forbidden in Italy.

The speech was seen by informed circles here as a portent of smashing events to come in the two theatres of war—Africa and Albania where the Italians are playing a losing role.

The significance of the Prime Minister's bid to Italians to throw Mussolini overboard was emphasized, these circles said, by the possibility that Mr. Churchill might have taken the microphone "before the news breaks" of Britain's war effort being thrown into a faster gear.

Christmas Spirit Touches Hearts Of Canada's Legions in Khaki

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, Dec. 24—(CP—Cable)— From lonely defence outposts on the coast to sprawling inland camps and bleak airports the Christmas spirit touched the heart of Canada's legions in khaki today as they prepared cheerfully to stand ready for action even on the festive day.

A few hours will be spent in joining in the good fellowship of the day, but the symbol of Christmas for Canadians overseas on active service was the tin-hatted sentry standing with fixed bayonet by an English holly bush near headquarters.

There are touches of Christmas in every billet, hut and barracks where greeting cards and parcels from home decorate the tables and shelves. A huge batch of mail arrived from Canada two days ago and cheered the troops immensely.

Some truck drivers move around the routes with holly and mistletoe tied to the cab windows.

SIX ARE BURNED TO DEATH IN CORNWALL HOME

Fire Believed Caused by Overheated Stove Traps Victims in House

ONE SEVERELY BURNED

Cornwall, Ont., Dec. 24 (CP).—Six persons were burned to death and a seventh was severely burned when fire gutted their small frame home here early today. All but one of the victims were members of the same family.

Dead are:

Mrs. James Stein, 38, mother of the family.

Telesphore Laprade, 82, resident at the home but no relation to the other victims

Mary Stein, 10.

Alexander (Sandy) Stein, eight.

Donald Stein, five.

George Stein, three.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined but was believed to have been caused by an overheated stove.

Cancel Celebrations At Vancouver Hotel

Vancouver, Dec. 24 (CP) — All Christmas and New Year's Eve celebrations at Hotel Vancouver were cancelled today as the management declared it would "fight to a finish" the strike called by 46 waiters and bus boys seeking wage increases and union recognition.

The decision upset the plans of hundreds of Vancouver couples who planned dinners or dancing parties for the year-end season at the city's biggest hotel, opened less than two years ago.

W. J. Mylett, Hotel Manager, said the hotel was willing to sign an agreement with its employees but not with the union, which he said sought the right to control hiring and dismissal of men. However, William Stewart, Secretary of the hotel and Restaurant Employees' Union, said "it is an absolute mis-statement of fact that we want to control hiring and firing."

Both union recognition and wage increases were recommended in a report of an arbitration board which studied the complaints of employees last month.

Plenty of Christmas Merchandise Available to Shoppers in London

By MILO THOMPSON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 24 (AP).—The advertisement headline "salvage sale—you know why" in a London newspaper means somebody's store has had a bomb visit, but the censors are not yet permitting that bombing to be advertised publicly.

If you find it strange that people should be flocking toward the scene of a bombing carrying shopping bags, not running away from it carrying mattresses and the family valuables, there are ten thousand things which would surprise you in London.

And the show windows have the same "Santa's coming" look that you will find on any main street in North America.

To be sure there's this difference: Sometimes you have to move up to a little three-by-five window to get the benefit of the full display, for much of the large plate glass is gone.

On the other hand, plenty of it is left, and attention is still paid to trick moving displays and to lighting effects which do their stuff right up to blackout time.

You might expect to find inside the stores mostly the warming appliances and shelter conveniences which have been so greatly in demand during months of attack.

If so you will be amazed to see that delicately wrought Sheffield silver still glistens under the electric lights, that jewellery displays are as alluring and colorful as ever and that pottery, china and glassware in new shapes and colors spreads over whole departments.

Trapped Italian Forces in Bardia In Need of Water

Fort Pounded for Eight Days, Paving Way for Final Direct Assault

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 24 (AP)—The British Army of the Nile intensified its eight-day-old siege of beleaguered Bardia today, bringing up more troops and pounding the defence lines with an artillery preparation which indicated that the final assault on the shell-battered Italian stronghold may be at hand.

"The concentration of our troops and artillery preparation in the Bardia area are proceeding," the British command announced tersely. On other fronts in Africa it reported "no change in the situation."

A critical water shortage was reported facing the Italian defenders in Bardia and the Fascist Air Force which heretofore had not offered stiff competition, suddenly came to life in a desperate effort to save the threatened East Libyan base.

British Intelligence officers expressed belief the available water supplies in the besieged town, isolated by land and sea, would not long prove sufficient for the 20,000 or more men trapped there, and that their plight soon would grow serious.

Guns of all calibre, meanwhile, continued to pound Bardia's defences without let-up for the eighth consecutive day, paving the way for a final direct assault.

Other reports reaching Cairo indicated the Italians were hastily erecting additional defences far to the west, including Derna, Bengasi and even Tripoli.

British authorities reported the Italians were keeping a close watch on the native population at those places and have doubled their precautions against possible disorders.

Reports that the Italians were strengthening their positions in the west tended to bear out the belief here that the 10th army trapped in Bardia was fast in the role of a sacrifice to slow up the British advance and give Marshal Rodolfo Graziani time to reorganize his main forces.

Informal Pictures Taken of Royal Visit Published in London

London, Dec. 24 —(CP—Cable)—Informal pictures of the King and Queen, taken during the royal visit to Winnipeg in 1939 by a Winnipeg Tribune photographer, were published today in the Daily Sketch in a centre-page spread.

Their Majesties were unaware at the time that they were being photographed. Subsequently they saw prints of the photographs and commended them.

Thereupon the editor of the Tribune had the pictures framed and sent them to the Sketch with the request that they be forwarded to the King and Queen.

Their Majesties expressed pleasure at the gift.

STAFF IS TAKEN

Athens, Dec. 24 (AP).—Dispatches from the front said today the Greek army was advancing farther along the Adriatic coast beyond Chimara, with the main body of the retreating Italian forces attempting to form defences at Logara Pass, half way between Chimara and Valona.

The Fascist retreat, the dispatches said, was hurried and disorderly, with only a rear guard opposition being offered to the swiftly advancing Greeks.

Military quarters said Logara Pass was the only strong defendable position before Valona.

The fall of Chimara after a week of fighting was announced yesterday by Premier John Metaxas. The Greeks, military authorities said, took over the whole region, which consists of six villages as well as the town, an important Italian supply base, 30 miles south of Valona.

Whole Battalion Taken.

The extent of the victory also was indicated by the number of prisoners, believed to total about 1,500. These were said to include the 141st battalion of Black Shirts with 29 officers and 667 men. These were in addition to the 153rd Blackshirt Battalion, some 800 men strong, reported captured earlier.

An official announcement said the commanding officer of the Third Battalion, second regiment of Bersaglieri, was captured with his entire staff and many soldiers.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

ONE MAIL DELIVERY CHRISTMAS MORNING

No person in the city will be disappointed on Christmas morning owing to the late arrival of mail at the Belleville Postoffice the night before, it is announced by Postmaster Truaisch, who states that there will be one morning delivery by letter carrier while parcel post delivery will also be given in the morning.

As Christmas Day is a statutory holiday the following hours will be observed: All wickets will be open from 8:00 in the morning until 12:00 noon and the lobby will be open from 6:30 in the morning until 6:00 in the evening.

There will be one street letterbox collection in the evening and all mails will be despatched and received as usual. The usual treatment given to special delivery and air mail will also be accorded.

STEWART-WARNER-ALEMITE COMPANY DISTRIBUTES BONUS

Still another Belleville industrial plant has announced bonuses for its employees this Christmas. Yesterday employees of the Stewart-Warner-Alemite Corporation wore a smile of appreciation as bonuses for all workers, regardless of their term of service, were distributed. Employees with one year or more service with the company were presented with one full week's pay, while workers with the company less than one year were awarded according to the length of their term of service.

CHIMNEY BLAZE

A chimney blaze at the home of A. H. Mitchell, 184 Church Street, caused the Belleville Fire Brigade a short run to that address on Monday afternoon. Apparently caused by a dirty chimney, the blaze was only a minor one, however, and was extinguished without damage being reported.

CHRISTMAS SERVICES AT ST. THOMAS AND CHRIST CHURCH

The observance of the Christmas Festival will be commenced in the Church of England parishes here this Christmas Eve. The interior of the churches have been decorated in keeping with the happy festival and the musical portions of the services will be of a high order.

At the Church of St. Thomas the singing of carols will be commenced at 11 o'clock and at 11.30 o'clock there will be a fully choral celebration of the Holy Communion. On Christmas Day there will be celebrations of the Holy Communion at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m.

At Christ Church the singing of carols will be commenced at 11 o'clock and at 11.30 o'clock there will be a fully-choral celebration of the Holy Communion. On Christmas Day there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at St. George's Mission at 8.30 o'clock a.m. and also at Christ Church at 10.30 o'clock a.m.

SERVICES HELD ON CHRISTMAS DAY

Services will be held on Christmas Day at Bridge Street United Church at 10.30 o'clock a.m. and at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at 11 o'clock a.m. At the former church a collection will be taken for the Lord Mayor's Fund in aid of the sufferers from bombing in England.

ROBBERS ENTER C.N.R. STATION

Robbers entered the Canadian National Railway station offices at Stirling sometime during Monday night, but obtained nothing for their efforts, Provincial Police revealed early Tuesday.

Entrance was gained through a side window, leading into the office. The robbers then jimmied the office cash box, from which the previous day's receipts had been removed, but failed to open the company safe. D. W. Ormiston, station agent at Stirling, assured authorities nothing of value had fallen into the hands of the would-be robbers.

POULTRY PRICES MAINTAIN PREVIOUS LEVELS ON MARKET

Prices on the Christmas poultry market maintained previous levels on Tuesday with turkeys, geese, etc., being quoted at Saturday's prices. Attendance however, was down considerably from Saturday with purchasers apparently, for the most part, already having purchased their requirements with only a few last minute buyers in evidence.

Turkeys were quoted at 36c for tops and ranged downward to 30c per pound. Geese ranged from 28c to 30c per pound with ducks being quoted at the same figure. Chicken held at the usual price of 25c per pound. Eggs were quoted at 35c for Grade "A" large with other grades selling at 32c and 30c per dozen.

Apples rather predominated on the outside market with No. 1 Spys and MacIntosh selling at $1.75 per hamper. Lesser grades were $1.50 and $1.25 while cookers sold at $1.00 per bushel. Beef by the quarter sold at 12c and 14c per pound. Christmas trees for last minute purchasers were available at the usual price, ranging from 25c upwards to $1.00 each.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gregory is Telegraphist on Battleship Malaya

BROTHER IN NAVY

"Don't worry, mother, there is plenty of excitement where we are, and we are not worrying. So why should you?" Such is the unquenchable spirit of Canada's sons now serving with the Royal Navy in the battle-scarred waters of the world where the British tars keep a ceaseless patrol and are sweeping the seas clean of the enemy.

Such was the phrase of simple optimism written by a Belleville Jack Tar, Gordon Gregory, twenty-one-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gregory, 63 Cemetery Street, in a recent letter to his relatives.

Aboard the British battleship "Malaya" whose flaming guns roared out a symphony of destruction on Italian ports in the Mediterranean recently the young Canadian, is doing his duty with his shipmates from the "tight little isle". He is a telegraphist aboard the battlewagon, and learned his vocation in the Canadian Pacific Telegraph offices here.

Gordon was born in Belleville and received his education in the public and high schools here. Leaving school he joined the telegraph staff as a messenger boy, learning the mysteries of the key in his spare time.

Joined in 1939

Scion of a traditionally naval family, the sea appealed to him and in June 1939 he went to England and joined the British Navy, receiving his training at Portsmouth. He was assigned to H.M.S. Malaya and has been on duty with his ship since.

A nineteen-year-old brother, Ross, followed in his footsteps and at present is undergoing training in a British naval port.

Gordon has written graphic descriptions of life in the Mediterranean ports to his family and his letters are eagerly looked forward to by all.

Richard Mowrer, famous foreign correspondent, who was aboard the Malaya in a recent action writes vividly of his experiences in a Chicago newspaper. "I was standing in an observation turret of the Malaya", Mowrer writes, "looking through a narrow slit in front of me, when suddenly I jumped back. A forward gun had just fired a 15-inch shell toward shore. The firing shook the very life out of me".

"More 15-inch shells were fired in rapid succession. Luckily I had plugs in my ears. The shelling continued for half an hour. The gunners were directed to their targets by British planes over the town. We were about six miles offshore".

"Finally without any attempt to learn of the damage done, we sailed away. The Malaya was then attacked by a squadron of Italian planes, flying high. These were routed by British planes and our own anti-craft fire. I saw two Italian planes fall smoking into the sea".

Telegraphist Gordon Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gregory, 63 Cemetery Street, now serving with the British Mediterranean Fleet. Gordon was born in Belleville, received his education here and learned the mysterias of the telegraph key at the Canadian Pacific Telegraph offices in Belleville.

Doing Their Duty

This is probably but part of the "excitement" Telegraphist Gordon Gregory mentioned in his letter. The action speaks for itself. Quietly, modestly, the lads of the Navy from all parts of the world, are doing their duty in an efficient manner. The Gordon Gregory's of Belleville and other Canadian centres and communities are taking their places alongside the heroes in blue from Britain and acquitting themselves in the best and noblest traditions of the sea and the navy.

Followed Dad's Footsteps

It wasn't hard to believe that Gordon had joined the Navy for his "dad" before him served long and meritoriously in the senior service.

He enlisted as a stoker at the age of 17 years and served with the Royal Navy in the China Station, the East Indies and other parts of the world.

He came to Canada after the last war and at present is employed with the Canadian National Railway as a fireman. "It seems that I began life shovelling coal", he smiles, "and it looks as though I will finish that way".

Belligerent World To Hold Traditional Christmas Festival

(By The Canadian Press)

There were blackouts and debris, the roar of guns and the scream of air raid warnings but the belligerent world also had for Christmas the traditional decorations, the carol singing and exchanges of gifts.

There was no sign of a Christmas truce. Greek forces battled Italians in Albania in bitter winter weather. In Libya, British forces pushed ahead in desert sands against Mussolini's North African army.

But through it all the spirit of Christmas marches on.

From Britain the King tomorrow will broadcast a Christmas message to the Empire. Descriptions of the wartime scene in the dominions will make up part of the program.

Thousands of British children were far from home—removed from populous centres to "safer" areas. Many were in the dominions.

For those at home the usual concerts and presentation of toys and sweets had been arranged. In the larger cities, the pantomimes—Peter Pan, Puss in Boots, Cinderella and such—will be staged as usual.

British blackout regulations banned outside Yuletide decorations. Christmas trees were scarce. Toy sales had been curtailed, printing of Christmas cards had been reduced to conserve paper but as one government official put it:

"Every effort is being made to make Christmas as bright and cheery as humanly possible under the circumstances."

Harbor at Tripoli Bombed by British

London, Dec. 24 (CP)—The Admiralty announced today that British Naval Aircraft blasted the harbor of Tripoli in Italian Libya on Dec. 20-21 and on the afternoon of the 21st sank two merchant ships in a torpedo attack on a convoy.

One British plane was lost.

WINNIPEG BUTCHER IS ROBBED OF $1,000

Winnipeg, Dec. 24—(CP)—Armed bandits, active here for a week, obtained $1,000 in the robbery of William Mindell, a butcher, last night.

Mindell was slightly injured in a skirmish with the gunmen, who struck him on the head with the butt of their guns.

It was the fifth Christmas holdup in the city, bringing the total loot to $3,000.

Sled Darts Under Truck, 11-Year-Old Boy Fatally Injured

Bancroft, Dec. 24 (Special)—Sustaining fatal injuries while sleigh-riding near his home at Hermon, three miles east of this village, Richard Thomas Bruce, eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Bruce died in Belleville Hospital on Monday night.

A brother, James, 9, was also seriously injured, while an unidentified companion of the boys escaped injury.

The trio were riding on a sleigh near the Bruce home on Monday afternoon and failed to see a large truck driven by Milton Aide, Hartsmere, coming along the highway. The sled carrying the three boys sped down a hill across the road and darted beneath the body of the truck. Aide saw the sled and stopped his truck but was forced to sit helpless and watch the sleigh carry the trio beneath the vehicle.

Richard Bruce struck the rear dual wheels of the truck with his head, causing a skull fracture. The injured youths were rushed to Bancroft Hospital where they were treated by Dr. S. S. Lumb, and later Richard Bruce was rushed to Belleville Hospital where he succumbed to his injuries.

No inquest will be held, a coroner decided. Provincial Police Officer Palmateer investigated.

The dead youth leaves to mourn his passing, his parents; one sister, Thelma, 14; four brothers, John, 13, James, 9; Floyd, 5, and Wayne, 3. The body was forwarded to Hermon today.

Car-Truck Crash Near Sudbury Kills Queensboro Man

Earl Rollins, 24-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rollins, Queensboro, was killed instantly on Friday when the car in which he was riding crashed into a wood-laden truck three miles east of Sudbury. The dead youth was driving to his home in Hastings County for the holiday. Other passengers in the car were uninjured.

The information was received early today by Mr. W. H. Bailey, Belleville feed merchant, who is an uncle of the deceased youth.

GERMANS ADMIT MORE TROOPS BEING SENT INTO RUMANIA

Berlin, Dec. 24 (AP).—Nazi sources today confirmed reports that additional German troops were being sent to Rumania but claimed that it simply was a case of complementing divisions already there.

Modern warfare requires so much mechanical equipment, it was asserted, that enormous train loads are necessary for relatively small units and laymen frequently mistake regiments for divisions.

Girls' Juvenile Orange Lodge Organized Here

A girls' Juvenile Orange Lodge was instituted on Saturday in the L.O.L. Hall, Front Street, by Right Worthy Sister Navin, Director of Juveniles, assisted by Sister Andrews and Sisters Jaqueline and Pauline Navin, all of Cobourg.

The meeting was called to order by Right Worthy Sister Navin with Sister Kennedy as Deputy Mistress; Chaplain, Sister Ferguson; Pianist, Sister Bell; 1st Standard Bearer, Sister Jaqueline Navin; 2nd Standard Bearer, Sister Pauline Navin; Inner Guard, Sister Asseltine; Recording Secretary, Sister Kent. Twenty-three applications were read for initiation. There were also a number unable to be present and reported sick.

The following officers were initiated and installed: 1st Guardian, Sister M. Kent; 2nd Guardian, Sister S. Kennedy; Chair Lady, Audrey Weeks; Vice Chair Lady, Beverly Asseltine; Chaplain, Rita Nickle; Secretary, June Kent; Treasurer, Rose McCaw; 1st Standard Bearer, Doris Sullivan; 2nd Standard Bearer, May Sedore; 1st Lecturer, Selma Asseltine; 2nd Lecturer, Norma Lawson; 1st Guard, Kathryn McCaw; 2nd Guard, Orlene Juby; Committee, Barbara Meeks, Dorothy Sculthorpe, Mildred Sullivan and Doreen Ferguson.

After installation Right Worthy Director Sister Navin gave the girls a very inspiring address. Sister Kent presented Sister Navin on behalf of the J.O.L. Victory No. 233 with a lovely silver gift and thanked her for the kind and efficient manner in which the proceedings of the evening were conducted. After the meeting was closed in due form the Belleville ladies of Lydia No. 350 invited the visitors and the members of the new L.O.L. to the dining room where the tables were well and beautifully laden with delicious food and lovely orange streamers and bouquets enjoyed by which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. Miss Beverley Asseltine sang a solo very sweetly that was very appropriate and befitting the Christmas season. A draw was taken on a doll by Barbara Joan Latta and Mrs. Mumby of Cannifton Road was the winner .. .. ..

CHRISTMAS CHEER SENT TO BOYS "OVER THERE"

Tons of Food and Plenty of Cigarettes Sent From Canadian Homes

EVERYONE HELPS

Toronto, Dec. 24 (CP).—The folk at home whose thoughts are ever with Canada's soldiers, sailors and airmen abroad have rallied round in royal fashion to brighten the Christmas season for the "boys over there". Literally tons of food and hundreds of dollars worth of tobacco have been shipped overseas by individuals and groups across Canada.

The work of such national organizations as the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, Knights of Columbus and Y.M.C.A. in cheering and succoring the lads in the front lines is well known. But it is not so generally known the Canadian Legion, the Provincial Governments of British Columbia and New Brunswick, Chapters of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire and Municipal Councils have added their own individual contributions to the cause.

The Canadian Legion, a month ago, started looking for 5,000 turkeys to send to the troops in England. Brig. Gen. Alex Ross, chairman of the Legion, said members in Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba would be asked to donate one bird each. The name of the donor would be attached to each bird.

On behalf of its citizens, the British Columbia government arranged to distribute 150,000 cigarettes among soldiers, sailors and airmen from that province serving abroad. Even British Columbians serving with the Imperial forces will be remembered.

Many Apples Sent.

The New Brunswick government sent over 158,000 cigarettes for those members of the armed forces from that province.

Sixteen barrels of the choicest apples grown in the Eastern Ontario counties of Hastings and Prince Edward were forwarded by the Sir Thomas Picton Chapter, I.O.D.E. members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment are the recipients.

The town council of Timmins recently voted to send 300 cigarettes to each of the 167 Timmins men overseas.

An extra effort was made by the Navy League of Canada to give the seafaring fighters a treat. E. F. Trimble, general secretary of the league, announced recently that 10,000 pounds of plum puddings have been wrapped and will be fed sailors on the high seas and in Canadian ports Christmas day. These puddings were made from the same recipe used by the Royal Family's chef—even to the rum.

To cap these mighty contributions was one from South America. Employees of the International Petroleum Company at Talara, Peru, sent $1,000 to the Department of National Defencee. The note that accompanied the gift said: "Please buy some cigarettes for the lads overseas."

RAIDERS POUND NORTHWESTERN BRITAIN ANEW

Bomb Scores Direct Hit on Shelter and Several Are Killed

London, Dec. 24—(CP)—German air raiders concentrated on England's industrial northwest last night for the second successive night.

Wave after wave of German bombers, which began coming over after dusk, participated in the assault, and the government reported that a number of fires were started and that "considerable damage" was done in the area.

A number of persons were killed and injured in one northwest town when a bomb scored a direct hit on an air raid shelter. Several were buried in cellars when their houses collapsed.

The government said, however, that preliminary reports indicated casualties were not heavy.

The Nazi night raiders also attacked London, but the damage there was described officially as light, although there were some fatalities.

A few fatalities also were reported in a south coast town, but elsewhere, the government said, casualties and damage were limited.

Aluminum Shortage Curtails Working Hours in Factory

Los Angeles, Dec. 24 — (AP) — Northrop Aircraft Corp., which holds national defence contracts totalling $10,000,000, is curtailing working hours of 2,000 employees by 20 per cent because of an aluminum shortage.

Lamotte Cohu, general manager, announced last night that the workers' time would be reduced from ten to eight hours a day, effective immediately. The company's plant, at nearby Hawthorne, has been on a 20-hour schedule daily. It now will operate 16.

"There simply isn't enough aluminum available to meet the great demand occasioned by the national defence program," Cohu declared.

He added that orders now require from 30 to 35 weeks to fill, and that indications are it will be September before increased facilities at aluminum production plants will be able to care for the industry's demands.

NAMED GOVERNOR OF BURMA

London, Dec. 24 (CP)—Col. Sir Reginald Hugh Dormansmith, who was Minister of Agriculture at the outbreak of war, was appointed Governor of Burma today by the King.

Sir Reginald is a former president of the National Farmers' Union and has represented the Petersfield division of Hants in the House of Commons since 1935. He attended Harrow and the Royal Military College at Sandhurst.

As Minister of Agriculture he launched Britain's drive for home gardens to help offset the island's dependence on seaborne foodstuffs. He was succeeded in this post by Robert S. Hudson.

REQUEST FOR NEW VOUCHERS

Cimarron, Kas., Dec. 24 (AP)—Christmas shopping by some Gray County farmers may be delayed until after the holiday. A mail pouch tossed off a train fell under the wheels. Remnants showed $30,000 in government cheques to farmers had been destroyed. The pieces were sent to the Federal office in Kansas City with a request for new vouchers.

Production of War Material Will End War Quickly-Purvis

Director General of British Purchasing Committee Arrives From England

PRAISES U.S.

New York, Dec. 24—(CP)—Arthur Purvis, director general of the British Purchasing Commission in the United States, said upon arrival from Britain Monday that he is "more than ever confirmed" in the belief that the way to end the war quickly is for the United Kingdom and United States to "produce weapons of war rapidly and in great quantities."

Mr. Purvis, who flew the Atlantic in a clipper from Lisbon, has been conferring with the British Government on all matters relating to supplies. During his stay in Britain the King honored him with an appointment to the Privy Council.

In a brief interview as he left the flying boat Mr. Purvis said United States airplane manufacturers are turning out "excellent products."

"The increasing knowledge obtained through actual combat conditions is being incorporated in American airplane production to our advantage," Mr. Purvis said. "The American plane, always a first-class fighter, is excellent."

He was met at the airport by Mrs. Purvis and members of his family. They departed for Washington.

England Can Take It.

Concerning the repeated German bombings of British cities, Mr. Purvis, who revealed that he had not seen the inside of an air-raid shelter during his entire stay in Great Britain, said that they were proof that "not only London but all England can take it." The industrial damage had been surprisingly small, he added, even in such raids as the one on Coventry, because the Germans were unable to do precision bombing.

"The Luftwaffe has been able to disorganize certain British communities by plastering them with bombs," Mr. Purvis admitted. "But in such cases the reorganization is accomplished in three or four days, due to the fact that vital areas such as factories are damaged only incidentally. If the Germans could destroy factories and machine tools by precision bombing it would take months to recover.

"You do get occasional dips in production, of course, but by and large the damage is far more residential than industrial, and relatively little damage is done to the actual machines of production."

honor and sovereignty of a state but of righteous, wholesome, disciplined liberty of citizens as well."

The Pontiff spoke in response to Christmas greetings from the Cardinals.

He said, "The solace we derive from the riches of the Christmas greetings is the greater because of the sad times in which we live."

The Holy Father pleaded for "sincere political and economic solidarity" as part of "the so-called New Order in Europe" in order that it might not be a mere external mechanism "imposed by force."

Wished Long Life

He directed the world to hold itself ready to heal its "spiritual wounds" when the war ended.

As in preceding years, the Pontiff's speech concluded the ceremony in which the Cardinals wished him "ad moltos annos" — long life.

The Cardinals' greetings were read by the 89-year-old dean of the Sacred College, Gennaro Cardinal Granito Pignatelli Di Belmonte.

The Pope recommended the everywhere in vain."

The Pontiff declared that "not only today while the present conflict is raging but also later on nations will realize the need for the solution of social problems in the spirit of Christianity."

"The world will leave the hard school of today with an improved mind," he said.

"Mankind will listen to the voice of reasoning and of justice. Only in such a state of mind can the world proceed to the establishment of a new order based on justice."

The Pontiff spoke of "unchecked propaganda" in some countries which, he said, sets up the enemy daily and hourly in a false light.

In conclusion he said that "we pray that men will grow mature enough to establish a new and just social and economic order. We pray that mankind will be liberated from his tribulations."

Efforts Not In Vain Claimed

The Pope said he was gratified to be able to "console with moral and spiritual assistance....large numbers of refugees, expatriates and emigrants, including 'non-aryans'."

He lamented "the ever-diminishing possibility" of his bringing aid "through efficacious relief and consolation to war prisoners" where he said, "victims are most numerous and misery most pitiable."

"However, although our aim has been frustrated in some countries," he said, "our efforts were not church as a "spiritual bulwark" where men could find refuge from earthly miseries.

"The church, the common Mother of all (peoples), better understands all (peoples)," the Pontiff said.

"The church cannot be called partisan."

He declared the church wants to carry truth and moral instruction "to all peoples." The church has preached truth, he added, but now "hard realism itself preaches" it.

COL. J. L. RALSTON SENDS GREETINGS TO ALL CANADIANS

Believes 1941 Will be Year to Test Us All but it Will be Year of Great Achievement

MUST FIGHT IT OUT

London, Dec. 24 (CP).—Hon. J. L. Ralston, Canada's Minister of National Defence, has sent "the warmest Christmas greetings" to his fellow Canadians, "with the confident belief that while 1941 will be a year to test us all, it will be equally a year of great achievement."

Col. Ralston was interviewed last night on the British Broadcasting Corporation's "radio newsreel" feature.

"There is only one New Year's resolution for free men and women—and that is to fight it out," he said. "That is the spirit I see in Britain and I know that that is the spirit of Canada.

"Yes, and that's the spirit of the whole empire as the Italians heard tonight. . . ."

The minister's voice faded, and a recording of part of Prime Minister Churchill's radio address to the Italian people yesterday was run in—the section where the prime minister said:

". . . The British nation and Commonwealth of Nations across the globe and indeed I may say the English-speaking world are now aroused. They are on the march or on the move and all the forces of modern progress and of ancient culture are ranged behind them." . . .

British Government Assured.

Col. Ralston said in the interview that he had repeated to the British government "our assurance that Canada is in this war to the limit of her resources." ....

He said that "twice as many trained pilots will be sent out from the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan as were expected under the original scheme."

The minister said he had had most useful discussions with a number of British cabinet ministers, and that he had found them all "enthusiastic about Canada's contribution in men, and money and materials."

Col. Ralston said he was astonished at the "comparative insignificance" of the damage done to London by Nazi air raiders, and that as far as he could judge the attacks "haven't shaken by one iota the courage of the British people, and their determination to carry on and to win."

Diplomatic Offensive On a Grand Scale Says N. Y. Times

New York, Dec. 24 (CP).—Prime Minister Churchill's address to the Italian people is "a diplomatic offensive on the grand scale", the New York Times said today.

Commenting on Mr. Churchill's Christmas broadcast in which he asked Italy to overthrow the man who led it into war, the Times said editorially that the speech will "stand as one of the great documents of this war".

"In tone an dtext Mr. Churchill's broadcast is without precedent either in this conflict or in any conflict still in its opening phase, and he would hardly take so bold a line unless convinced that conditions in Italy are ripe for a move to overthrow the regime and withdraw from the war. Perhaps more than coincidence links this address with the publication of Marshal Graziani's frank explanation of the defeat of the Italian armies in Egypt," the newspaper said.

Of the Graziani report the Times said: "Ostensibly a soldier's defence of the bravery of his troops in fighting against overwhelming odds, the report is actually an accusation against the home government for failing to supply the tanks and mechanical equipment without which the desert fighters were helpless."

ITALY TO REPLY

London, Dec. 24 (CP)—A broadcast on the wavelength of the Rome radio heard here today asserted that a reply to Prime Minister Churchill's speech directed at Italy yesterday would be delivered over all Italian stations at 10.15 p.m. (4:15 p.m. EDT) today.

FIRST MEETING IN 56 YEARS

Kansas City, Dec. 24 (AP)—Twin sisters, 71, met for the first time in 56 years last night. A year ago Mrs. Jane Young of San Francisco, began a search for the twin she last saw at Ava, Mo., shortly after her marriage. Recently she learned the sister was Mrs. Sarah Wilson of Hopkins, Mo. Telegrams and letters were exchanged, a reunion arranged.

STRIKES LIMITED TO TEN DAYS

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 24 (AP) — All strikes will be limited during the war to not more than 10 days, Arturo Olvarria said last night upon becoming Minister of Interior. After that time disputes will be submitted to arbitration.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS

Again the salutation "Merry Christmas" is heard across the world. For the second year Christmas comes to mankind who knows war. The Christmas spirit lives. Christmas with all its precious associations has always enriched life and today on the eve of the great festival it cannot be forgotten for it has a message even for such times as these. All realize that in very truth the Empire and her Allies are fighting against destructive agencies which are at the opposite pole to the spirit of the angel song of "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

The men in action are inspired by the thought of Christmas while those at home remember and are thereby the richer by the service of those who serve in defence of country at this hallowed season. Duty calls defenders to be on guard against a crafty foe but as they watch they have the spirit of Christmas and their hearts are warmed.

Old familiar scenes of Yuletide are lived again in Old England though curtailed in some measure on account of the war. The people are tenacious of Christmas, and are grateful that British liberty endures and are confident it will endure. The festival will be everywhere marked with deep understanding because of the mood of the people at this time. So in Canada and in Britain and to the unfettered world the greeting will be heard as it has been heard for ages, "A Merry Christmas," as an expression of faith, hope, good will and cheer.

MR. CHURCHILL'S APPEAL TO THE ITALIAN PEOPLE

Mussolini is the one man who forced Italy into war against Britain and into a terrible dilemma, either to stand up to the battery of the whole British Empire on the sea, in the air, and in Africa, and in the vigorous counter-attack of the Greek nation; or, on the other hand, to call in Attila from the Brenner Pass with his hordes of ravenous soldiery and his gangs of gestapo policeman to occupy, hold down and protect the Italian people for whom he and his Nazi followers cherish most bitter and outspoken contempt that is on record between races.

So spoke Prime Minister Churchill in a broadcast to the Italian people on Monday as he appealed to them to look after Italy's future. He declared that the day will come—"as come it will—when the Italian nation will once more take a hand in shaping its own fortunes."

Mr. Churchill expressed the profound regret of the British people that those who were once their friends against the barbarous Hun were now associated with the Hun as an ally. The Prime Minister painted a graphic picture of the might of the avalanche of the British nation and Commonwealth of Nations across the globe, in fact—the English-speaking world" on the march or on the move and all the forces of modern progress and of ancient culture are ranged behind them." Mussolini has placed Italy directly in the path of that avalanche which has only just started from its base to roll forward on its predestined track.

The British Prime Minister expressed the opinion that the Italian army, whose record in battle on other times had been so great, now had not its heart in this war and he called upon it to look after the interest of Italy's life and future.

The thought that the one time friends against the Hun are now arrayed against one another was uppermost. Until recent years no one in Britain or Italy had thought that the nations would become involved in mortal combat because Italy and Britain had always been friends, he said. "Our fathers and grandfathers longed to see Italy freed from the Austrian yoke," and to see that the barriers to a united Italy were swept away so that Italy and their fair land might take their honored place as one of the leading powers upon the continent and as a brilliant member of the family of Europe and of Christendom.

The struggle is a sombre one, the statesman said and it would go on as it is only at the beginning. "Our armies are tearing and will tear your African Empire to shreds and tatters" if the war is continued.

As Mr. Churchill spoke of the Italian people he said, "you who were our friends and might have been our brothers."

It was a powerful appeal to the people of Italy (where there has been reported some discontent), to remove the one man who against the Crown and the Royal Family of Italy, against the Pope and all the authority of the Vatican and of the Roman Catholic Church, against the wishes of the Italian people who had no lust for this war had arrayed the trustees and inheritors of ancient Rome upon the side of ferocious pagan barbarians. In Mr. Churchill's graphic words Mussolini is "the criminal who has wrought a deed of folly and of shame."

These were some of the highlights of a speech which will be remembered down the ages. Mr. Churchill had made one of the most appealing addresses in his career. His words, always winged with the spirit that is in him, will fly to reach their goal, which is the men and women of Italy.

VICTORIES A CHRISTMAS BOX

"A Christmas box" for Britain, said Britishers in the Middle East on the victories in North Africa.

That reveals the lightheartedness of the men serving in the air, on land and in the Mediterranean, the confidence of victory.

The victories are a Christmas box, one of the most welcome things in the world for they signify good will.

Britain and her ally have given a true Christmas box to humanity and on these victories will the memory dwell even long after they are incorporated into the great victory which is to come with the end of the war.

Nazis and Fascists have given no Christmas boxes for theirs is the wrecker's spirit, the gangster's program. Theirs is the law of the jungle.

How different is the spirit of Britain whom other nations trust and who has sacrificed for the sake of the common good of nations and whose only effort is to bring peace, good will and security back to the world.

FOR MEN WHO SERVE

This is the season of festivity and hospitality when families reunite to celebrate and renew the ties of love and friendship. It is the time when the greatest happiness is found in bringing happiness to others.

This year thousands of Canadian homes will miss some member serving with the armed forces who is unable to return to share the warmth and happiness of the fireside at home. Thousands of Canadians will spend their Christmas away from home for the first time but they will feel the warmth of hospitality in their reception. These men will appreciate the kindness shown them at this time. In the Old Land or wherever they are these young defenders of the British Empire will be feted. In Canadian homes they will be made welcome.

The Y.M.C.A., Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army and other associations and citizens have been planning entertainment for soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Christmas Comes But Once a Year

'At Christmas play, and make good cheer,
For Christmas comes but once a year.'

That was a merry rhyme of centuries ago written by Tusser in his "Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry." Countless references in literature, countless creations of man in art, refer to this day which centres in the fact so beautifully described by the Puritan poet, John Milton,

"This is the month and this the happy morn
Wherein the Son of Heaven's
Eternal King,
Of wedded maid and virgin
mother born,
Our great redemption from above did bring."

Through the ages this central theme has drawn to it countless traditions, customs, it has created the noblest of music, the most spontaneous of carols and hymns, it has caused men to create the noblest works of art that today Christmastide is the most treasured of the festivals, the most human, the one which is most spontaneous, the festival of the family life, the festival of the fireside.

About this feast are assembled the riches of traditions and customs of the ages, Yuletide and even the ancient festival of the Roman saturnalia have yielded associations which have helped to make the modern Christmas the most beautiful and the most expansive of festivals. The early leaders of the church helped to Christianize the people by pagan ceremonies—and customs.

In the middle ages there was high merriment in the great castles of England with the bringing in of the yule-log and the use of the wassail bowl. Christmas in those days brought in a period of celebration which reached its height at "twelfth night." In those days "the misteltoe hung in the castle hall, the holly branch shone on the old oak wall."

One of the finest developments in Christmas is the carol which in its freedom and lightness of movement might well trace its origin to the angel songs sung at the birth of Jesus.

Into this festival has come also Santa, who signifies the spirit of the festival in showering gifts on children.

"Be merry all, be merry all,
With holly dress the festive hall;
Prepare the song, the feast, the ball,
To welcome merry Christmas."

So today into the houses are brought evergreens, festoons, gifts, foods, the plum pudding, the familiar goose, turkey and duck, all the cakes, and sauces, the candles for light—all that is to be enjoyed on Christmas Day. Glad shouts and laughter of children and their elders, music, the sound of toys—all ring out on that day.

BODY OF SAILOR LOST IN NOVEMBER STORM IS RECOVERED

Ludington, Mich., Dec. 23—(AP)—The body of a young sailor who lost his life in the Nov. 11 storm on Lake Michigan, recovered Saturday, was identified today as that of Irvin Galliano, 19, of Britt, Ont. who shipped aboard the steamship Anna C. Minch.

A second body found Saturday remained unidentified. Coroner George E. Dorrell said the man was a member of the crew of the William B. Davock, which, like the Minch, went down in the storm.

Fifty-six seamen died in the storm. Twenty-five bodies have been recovered.

Gift-Giving Was Once Royal or Noble Prerogative

This season which, aside from its sacred significance, is so closely associated with the giving of gifts, was not always so observed. In olden times gift-giving was a royal or at least, noble prerogative, and only the genteel class gave or received Christmas presents.

According to history the English kings kept Christmas lavishly. They gave feasts which lasted until Twelfth Night, when everyone wore costumes, usually furnished by the king. Edward III staged tournaments in imitation of King Arthur and on one occasion ordered eighty buckram tunics in different colours for the knights to wear. It is recorded that his Christmas present one year to his daughter, Isabella, was a handsome ermine-trimmed robe.

As early as 1309 Richard II kept Christmas with a feast in Westminster Hall. It was no small affair for we read that every day no less than three hundred sheep and twenty-eight oxen were consumed. On this occasion Richard made himself a present of a 3,000 mark robe of gold, covered with pearls and other jewels.

When playing-cards came to England in the fifteenth century, they promptly became the principal Christmas game and on that one day all classes of people could play. At any other time of the year, however, only persons of rank were allowed to play cards. It was customary for the squire to give decks of cards to his poor tenants so that they might enjoy the regal game at Christmas. In those days, the king's gambling money was a regular part of the Christmas budget.

Under date of January 1, 1668, Samuel Pepys wrote in his famous diary, "Presented from Captain Beckford with a noble silver warming pan."

In modern times when the Christmas festival is no universally observed in free Christian countries, it is difficult to realize that at one time in the State of Massachusetts the observance of Christmas was a punishable offence. The record of the General Court of Massachusetts dated May 11, 1659, reads: "Whosoever shall be found observing any such day as Christmas or the like . . . shall pay for every such offence five shillings as a fine . . ." A deep rooted prejudice toward any observance of this holiday existed among the colonists, who boasted openly that none of the holidays of England had survived the passage of the Atlantic. The law which forbade the keeping of Christmas was repealed in 1681. But it was not until 1789 that a holiday was ordered in Boston schools on Christmas Day. From then on, Christmas celebrations steadily increased.

Even in the early Christian church, Christmas was not observed until the beginning of the fourth century. The earliest Christmas sermon of which there is any record dates from this period. It was preached by Chrysostom in Antioch, the heathen city where "the disciples were first called Christians." — National Revenue Review.

Santa Ready to Begin His World-Girdling Journey

Santa Claus has this year had one of his busiest seasons and now he starts out on his great journey, which is nothing less than to encircle the globe for the boys and girls. Even to unchristian lands Santa comes as the missionaries and as the exponents of progress have touched these countries. In Canada Santa will distribute an amazing variety of gifts. Toys have been made in his own workshops in the Dominion besides many imported. As a sign of the times metal mechanical toys play a large part. Metal juvenile construction sets were imported almost entirely from the United Kingdom.

In one field Santa is delighted for the dolls he carries are Canadian-made. There was a time when dolls made here did not compete with the dolls of other lands but today Canada's doll industry ranks with the best in the world, exports of dolls largely exceeding imports. Australian children are receiving dolls from Santa Clause made in factories in Canada. German-made toys have disappeared from the Canadian market and refugee artisans have made their homes in the United States and Canada. Metal toys like tanks, guns, and tractors, have tended to replace the racing cars and trains, while Red Cross nurses and aviators have moved in with the doll family. Production of stamped metal toys has improved, the toys now being safer for children as rolled edges are used as against the sharp edges of the German and Japanese products. Toy makers on this continent have built up a reputation for durable toys which have replaced the demand for the cheap imported article. Nazism in Germany crushed the toy industry in that country as this domestic business centred in a few districts began to decline with the regimentation of industry.

In the year 1928 Canada produced $1,862,140 worth of toys, dolls leading, children's vehicles, second, then rubber balls, balloons, games, dolls' furnishings and miscellaneous toys.

The stores of Belleville have been this season the emposium of treasures which delight children's hearts as well as those of their elders. A very large trade has been reported in these business places which never before were so packed with suggestions for Christmas.

So children of Canada wait the coming of the ancient Saint this evening, as he comes according to his ancient schedule.

Battle of the Thames

By "Lighterman"

It was a dark night and my friend the skipper of the barge, had just remarked that it was time to turn in if we were to catch the early morning tide, when the sirens ashore began to howl. "Just like a musical swish-bag!" he commented in disgust. But, prudently knocking out his pipe, he settled back on the denhead.

If one is a dutiful citizen prepared to obey the official exhortations to take cover and is, at the same time, anxious to see the battle, I know of no better grandstand than a sailing barge anchored in one of the lower reaches; the marshland fringing the banks permits an uninterrupted view, while there is insufficient protection in wooden deck to make it worth while taking cover.

When the last wail had ripped the centre out of the night, an unnatural silence dropped over the river; even the soft licking of the young tide seemed to die away as if the stream were holding its breath; a slight creak made by the sprit sounded like the screech of an owl. Then a muffled drumming downstream drew our eyes to the leaping flash of gunfire and tiny pin-pricks of light in the sky, like fireflies wth faulty ignition. The coastal batteries were going into action.

From high in the southern sky came the snarl of distant engines and we tensed ourselves to listen. A single searchlight crept along the underside of a cloud like a spotlight looking for a missing prima ballerina. Somewhere in the neighborhood a gun spat and, as if it were a signal, a tremendous barrage broke out almost overhead. With a shriek like a lost soul a piece of shrapnel plunged into the river uncomfortably close to us. Neither the skipper nor I said anything, but the dour mate, who had gloomily perched himself on the windlass forward, came aft to join us.

Swiftly the bursting shells were relayed across the sky until the barrage disappeared to the eastward. The ensuing silence was unbroken for a moment and then we all began to fidget.

"Soon turned them back!" I ventured optimistically.

"Oh! they'll be over again," said the skipper with conviction, sucking at his dead pipe.

Almost imperceptibly the beat of engines began to creep up again from the southward like the opening bars of "The Bees' Wedding." As one man we swung round and cocked our heads. "Spitfires!" I diagnosed uncertainly. "No!" said the skipper. "Them's Jerries." The mate spat over the side. "'Urricanes!" he said obstinately. Suddenly the swelling rhythm of the engines was interrupted by a staccato rattle up in the sky as if a mischievous cherubim was running a stick along the celestial railings.

"That's right lad," said the skipper through his teeth. "Blast the keel out of him. I had a brother in the ——Light Vessel!"

A little glow appeared in the sky which grew in magnitude, falling all the time until it developed into a flaming mass plunging with a despairing wail to the marsh. Thoughtlessly I gave a cheer.

"'Ark at 'im," said the Mate impatiently. "'Course it's one o' them."

We watched the distant glare of the burning plane and the silence was charged with a fierce elemental hatred; the tide was flooding strongly now, and I seemed to sense a mighty force sweeping in from the sea; it was as if the spirit of all the sailormen, adventurers, merchant princes and Thames-side dwellers of bygone days, all the might and power of the ancient river, were pouring in from the past to rally to the defence of London.

For two hours the invaders made repeated attempts to break through: sometimes the volume of gunfire and the thud of distant bombs rose in a crescendo until it merged into one continuous explosion. The flashes, explosions, bursting shells and an occasional falling flare touched the marsh with a hellish beauty. And through it all the mate tried to trap the skipper into an argument about the merits of gunfire versus fighter planes as means of defence.

Finally the last gun barked, the last searchlight popped back into its projector and the hysterical sirens sounding "All clear" told us that another phase had been won in the Battle of the Thames.

"It's murder," I said as we stood up ready to turn in. "Just low brutal murder. But if one can only view it all in the right perspective, it's a privilege to be alive to-day. This old river is running through the most historic days of its long life! it's never known anything like this before—not even when menaced by the Spaniards, the French or the Dutch."

"I don't know nothing against the Spaniards or the French," said the Skipper relighting his pipe. "But I used to know the skipper of a Dutch schuyt, and he never carried on like this. No! Gimme the day when we've wiped out the ruddy Huns once and for all and we can settle down to our jobs again."

"'Ark at 'im," said the Mate. "Pacifist, that's what he is."—(Reproduced by courtesy of the Editor of "Lloyd's List.")

The Christmas Trees of the Dominion

The gaily-lighted and decorated Christmas tree is the centre of family observance of this season in the homes of Canada. About it the laughing children romp and it carries the gifts of remembrance, more than ever prized in these dark and troubled days, says the National Revenue Review.

Christmas remained a season of plum pudding, holly, the wassail bowl, card playing and pantomime in England until the days of Queen Victoria. She introduced into England the popular custom of lighting a tree with candles and hanging presents on it. She loved gifts herself and always had a Christmas tree at Osborne for her children and grandchildren. She also had a tree with gifts for the children of the tenants of the estate. At the top of this tree was a beautiful doll, a prize for the girl voted "the best girl in school."

While the first mention of the use of a Christmas tree in England seems to have been in 1729, this method of celebrating did not become general until about 1840. Its origin is lost in antiquity. However, one authority regards it as coming from the union of two elements; the old Roman custom of decking houses with laurels and green trees of the Kalends in January, and the popular belief that every Christmas eve apple and other trees bore fruit. Sometimes Christ Himself was regarded as the tree of Paradise. The thought of Him as both the light of the world and the tree of life may at least have given a Christian meaning to the light-bearing tree and have helped to establish its popularity.

In Canada the business of supplying Christmas trees each season is answer to a growing demand from New York State and New England, in addition to our own provinces, is becoming increasingly profitable. Last year New York City alone took about 750,000 trees, while large shipments were made to Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, and Chicago. On the Pacific coast, the large cities as far south as Los Angeles now offer an attractive market for British Columbia trees, valued at between five and six hundred thousand dollars, for export each season. In addition to this export, about one million trees are sold to Canadians. The northern Canadian-grown trees are particularly prized by American buyers because of the Canadian tree's attractive form, bushy growth and dark green lustrous foliage. The bulk of the trees from the Maritimes and Quebec are balsam, fir and Spruce, and from British Columbia, the Douglas fir. Recently there has been an increased demand for Scotch pine, especially in border cities adjoining Ontario.

Also, the supply, it seems, is unlimited. Until recently these small evergreens were cut from woodlands or old pasture lots close to towns, villages or other shipping centres. Now, however, choppers must go further afield. It has been estimated that an area of less than two hundred square miles would produce, in perpetuity, the number of Christmas trees now being harvested in Canada. This is significant is comparison with the area of farm woodlots alone, which amounts to almost 50,000 square miles. And behind this again, lie the vast Crown timber-lands with their untapped Christmas tree possibilities. Far more young evergreens are destroyed each year by fire or during logging operations than are cut for the Christmas trade.

The marketing of these young balsams has presented a problem. This marketing, however, is now being systematized. Trees are being graded as in the case of other forest products, and as the season is brief, they are handled almost like perishable commodities such as flowers and fruit. A sharp outlook is kept, also, on the exact requirements of the market; either too many or too few trees would be poor business. Today about 375,000 Canadian farmers (eight per cent of the rural population) are members of co-operative marketing associations.

Looking at the financial side of this business, about half a million dollars a year is put into the pockets of Canadian lumbermen, jobbers and farmers. Many a small farm gleans an extra hundred dollars or so from its otherwise unfruitful wood-lots. Last year Nova Scotia shipped out about 500 carloads or about one million trees, while about a million and a half trees were shipped out by both New Brunswick and Quebec.

The largest storage dam in the world is being built on the Yalu river between Chosen and Manchuria, the first of seven designed to provide a hydroelectric generating capacity of 2,000,00 kilowatts.

An automobile has been constructed by a South Dakota rural mail carrier which he can equip with 44-inch transport airplane tires when roads become impassable because of mud for the regular tires.

Patriotic Committee Of Minerva Chapter Completes Busy Year

The Patriotic Committee of Minerva Chapter, O.E.S. have had a busy year, completing many fine articles for soldiers and refugees and making donations to similar organizations. The committee composed of five members has directed the patriotic activities of the Chapter. Through funds raised by the members the material for the articles was purchased, the only articles made with Red Cross material being three quilts. Everything else was supplied by the Chapter.

The articles made during 1940 included 201 pairs of sox, 61 sweaters, 11 scarves, 4 pairs of mitts, 15 pairs of wristlets, 5 quilts, 6 pairs long stockings, 27 pairs of bloomers, 8 suits pyjamas, 3 slips, 7 sheets, 4 pairs of pillow cases, 3 blankets. The articles have been given to the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, to local boys overseas, to refugees, and to the Home Guard at Kingston. Cash donations were made to the Salvation Army and the Red Cross. Relatives overseas of Chapter members were sent 11,800 cigarettes.

French Community In Australia Favors De Gaulle

Sydney, Dec. 24 (CP Cable)—The Australian French community, which hitherto supported Gen. Charles De Gaulle in secret, has come into the open now, rallying behind the leader of the Free Frenchmen.

Reason for previous secrecy was that the leaders awaited a ruling on the French Consul-General at Canberra who favored the Vichy Government. The Australian Government has just announced it no longer recognizes the Consul-General.

The French-language weekly published here now has come out for De Gaulle and the French community is responding to an appeal to provide arms for De Gaulle's forces. There are few Frenchmen of military age left in Australia, but thousands, including natives, are enrolling in nearby New Caledonia waiting for a chance to join the De Gaulle forces overseas.

Dr. N. S. McKechnie Pastor at Port Hope

Rev. Dr. N. S. McKechnie, at one time pastor of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville, has assumed his duties at Port Hope Baptist Church. Last week he was bidden farewell at Brockville by the congregation of the first Baptist Church when a substantial purse was presented on behalf of the congregation and Mrs. McKecknie received a silver flower basket, and a travelling case from Young Women's Mission Circle and the Senior Mission Circle respectively. The Brockville Ministerial Association remembered the minister with a volume of John Buchan's "Memory Holds the Door" and the Masonic Lodge gave a pair of motor rugs.

Huffs Island

Huff's Island—Some from the Island attended the Christmas entertainment at Mountain View Wednesday evening.

Rev. E. N. Grant made several calls on the Island Wednesday and spent the dinner hour with Mr. and Mrs. J. Hatfield and family.

It was with deep regret that friends learned of the passing of Rev. T. H. H. Hall, a former well-beloved rector to the Island.

Miss Mabel Hatfield, Toronto, and Miss Frances Wallbridge, Kemptville Agricultural School, are spending their Christmas holidays at their homes here.

On Saturday afternoon an interesting event took place at the home of Mr. Holden, Frankford, when his daughter, Margaret Jean, was married to Mr. J. Esping Motley. Miss Rita Holden, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Kenneth Motley, brother of the groom, was best man. The Islanders extend best wishes to the newlyweds.

Christmas Communion was celebrated Sunday morning at the Church of the Good Shepherd, with a good attendance.

YOUR FAVORITE CHRISTMAS CAROL

It Came Upon the Midnight Clear

It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth,
To touch their harps of gold;
"Peace on the earth, good-will to men
From heav'n's all-gracious King";
The world in solemn stillness lay
To hear the angels sing.

Still thro' the cloven skies they come,
With peaceful wings unfurled;
And still their heav'nly music floats
O'er all the weary world:
Above its sad and lowly plains
They bend on hov'ring wing,
And ever o'er its Babel sounds
The blessed angels sing.

For lo! the days are hast'ning on,
By prophets seen of old,
When with the ever circling years
Shall come the time foretold,
When the new heav'n and earth shall own
The Prince of Peace their King,
And the whole world send back the song
Which now the angels sing.

Edmund H. Sears, a minister and poet in Massachusetts, is credited with the writing of the words for this song in 1849. In 1850 Richard S. Willis first set it to music. Another setting has been written for it, but the most familiar is that of Willis'.

Leave is Granted To Make Appeal

Ottawa, Dec. 23 (CP)—Word was received here today that the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London had granted leave of appeal in the patent case between the Coca-Cola Company and the Pepsi-Cola Company which was the subject of argument and judgments in both the Exchequer Court of Canada and the Supreme Court of Canada.

The Coca-Cola Company was granted leave to appeal a judgment of the Supreme Court which denied the company's claim that sale of the drink called "Pepsi-Cola" was an infringement of the name and trademark of the Coca-Cola Company.

At the same time the Pepsi-Cola Company was granted leave to cross-appeal and seek a declaration that certain trademarks claimed by the other company were invalid.

The Coca-Cola Company claims the name "Pepsi-Cola" and the way in which it is written is so similar to the name of their own product as to constitute an infringement. It has taken legal action to restrain the other company from using the name in several states.

The action in Canada was tried first in the Exchequer Court which gave judgment in favor of Coca-Cola. On appeal to the Supreme Court the judgment went in favor of Pepsi-Cola and from this Coca-Cola appealed to the Judicial Committee while Pepsi-Cola responded with a cross appeal.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 24—(AP)—Freight shipments through the Soo locks in 1940 were the greatest since the big shipping year of 1929.

The annual lock report of the United States army engineers office, issued Saturday, showed that 89,858,519 tons of freight were shipped.

This total was a 29-per cent increase over 1939, when 69,850,262 tons were shipped and compared to the aggregate of 92,622,017 for 1929.

The 1940 season produced a record for iron ore shipments with a tonnage of 66,177,996. The previous record was 65,616,328 in 1937. Last year the tonnage was 46,803,691.

N. Y. Herald Tribune Praises Appointment Of Viscount Halifax

New York, Dec. 24 (CP)—The New York Herald Tribune today welcomed the appointment of Viscount Halifax as British Ambassador to Washington, describing him as a man of "ability, integrity and deeply religious sincerity."

"Considering the type of representation in London with which Mr. Roosevelt was for so long content, this is indeed a distinguished return," the Herald Tribune said in its leading editorial.

"And to say that Lord Halifax is not the ideal choice is by no means to say that he will not prove to be a very good one," it added. "He has one essential qualification which another man might have lacked; he can speak with unquestioned authority in Whitehall. Though he was Mr. Chamberlain's apologist in the 'appeasement' era, the completeness of his conversion is as undoubted as was that of Lord Lothian."

The Herald Tribune, speaking of Prime Minister Churchill's appointment of Anthony Eden as Foreign Secretary to succeed Lord Halifax, said that not the least valuable of Mr. Churchill's qualities is his skill "in so managing personal and party divisions within Britain as to keep a wholly united country behind him while at the same time freeing his administration for its great tasks."

It went on:

"By appointing Lord Halifax to Washington he has not only removed another memory of Chamberlain conservatism from his own government, and done so without invidious implications, but has been able to bring Mr. Eden back to the Foreign Office. This is a powerful move in the moral offensive upon the Mussolini regime which he opened yesterday with his great speech to the Italians; even more important, perhaps, it will tend to reopen real communications with the Russians. It will bring to the Foreign Office something of the boldness and imagination which it has lacked and win for it a confidence abroad, which under Lord Halifax it could never quite command. The surprise appointment of Capt. Margesson to the War Office (where an able administrator can do no harm, whatever his politics) may indeed have been intended in part to pacify the more reactionary Conservatives over the implications of the other changes. The advantages obtained by all these shifts constituted a factor which Mr. Churchill could not ignore."

Dionne Quintuplets To Hang Up Stockings On Christmas Eve

Callander, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP).—Like six-year-olds in every other part of the world where Christmas is celebrated, the Dionne quintuplets will hang up their stockings Christmas Eve and tumble into bed with visions of the candies and toys that Santa Claus will leave them.

According to their regular schedule they should not rise until 7:30 a.m., but it's a safe bet that they'll be up at least an hour before then to open some of their presents.

A long-established French-Canadian custom makes New Year's Day the outstanding day of the Yuletide season, so many of the presents for Marie, Cecile, Annette, Emilie and Yvonne will be held over until the first day of 1941 for opening.

At eight o'clock Christmas morning there will be Mass in the nursery chapel at which the quintuplets will sing Christmas Carols and Hymns. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, and other members of the family are expected to attend.

The big Christmas dinner at the nursery ~~will be~~ at five o'clock with Turkey, cranberry sauce, ice cream and not-too-rich cake on the menu. Bed-time for the quintuplets is usually 7:15 but Christmas night they may be allowed to stay up a little later.

Little Benny's Note Book

I stayed at Cousin Artie's house all night last night, and we were in bed waiting to fall asleep and talking and arguing about different subjects such as whether it would be better to get shot in an airoplane or on the way down after you bailed out with a parashoot, and I said, Well as far as I'm concerned I wouldn't get shot at all, because I'd be such a darn good dodger and stunt flyer that nothing would ever hit me.

That's what you say, but who are you? Artie said, and I said, I'm a hundred per cent more than you multiplied by a thousand, if you want the exact figures, and Artie said, Oh yes, like heck. If you want to know what you are, you're a zero with the rim rubbed off multiplied by a minus sine, he said.

Well you ought to know because you're the very minus sine you're talking about, and minus you is the same thing as minus nothing, and that's the lowest that comes no matter what elts you say, so you might as well save the rest of your breath, I said.

Being the best answer yet, and Artie didn't say anything and I could hear him breething in and out hard like somebody that thought they were asleep, and I said, Aw, you heard what I said all right, you're awake all right, and just to prove it I'm going to hide one of your shoes out the window on a string, so when you look out the window for it in the morning that'll prove it.

And this morning Artie could only find one shoe and he started to look all over for the other one, saying, Where the dooce is that other shoe, that's funny, and I said, Dont ask me, how do I know? and he said, Who said you did?

And he stuck his head out the window and I said, There, that proves it here's your shoe under my pillow but you stuck your head out the window, so that proves it, and proves what?

Me not even giving him the satisfaction of telling him so he wouldn't have the privilige of lying out of it.

INTERNED IN EIRE

Dublin, Dec. 24 — (CP) — Four British airmen—two of three who bailed out of a plane that later crashed and two occupants of a training plane which made a forced landing—have been interned by Eirean authorities, it was announced officially Sunday.

The third man from the plane which crashed was found Sunday morning after an all-night search. He was suffering from exposure and was given medical attention.

PERSONALS

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lickfold wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Addie, to William Bernard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Lamoire, Trenton. The marriage will take place the latter part of January.

Mrs. Hugh Keon, Detroit, is spending Christmas in Belleville.

Mrs. Reg. Henderson, Tavistock, is spending Christmas with relatives in this city.

Miss Marjorie Doolittle, Reg. N., at Shriners' Hospital, Montreal, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Doolittle, Everett Street.

Mrs. Harry McMartin of Campbellford was a visitor in the city over the week-end and attended the celebration of the 60th wedding anniversary of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Charlton.

Corp. J. Beaumont of Valcartier, his wife and two children of Victoria, B.C., are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Beaumont, Cedar Street.

Miss Mary Goodfellow, Georgetown, Ont., is spending the Christmas holidays with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Goldsby and son, Danny, and Miss Evelyn France, Toronto, are spending Christmas with Mrs. Goldsby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cather.

Mrs. D. Cleland entertained at a delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower and bridge on Thursday evening, in honor of Miss Margaret Redfern, bride-to-be. The prize for bridge was won by Mrs. Mark Vanner. Miss Redfern received many lovely gifts for which she graciously thanked her friends. Dainty refreshments were served, the tea table being most attractive with a white bell from which were hung white streamers. A miniature bride and groom and pink tapers centred the table, at which Mrs. I. Goodmurphy poured tea.

Mrs. Wm. Hughes and Mr. Ted Hughes are spending Christmas in Toronto with Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hughes and family.

Miss Mary Louise Kinnear, who is attending MacDonald Hall, Guelph, is spending the Christmas holidays with her parents here.

Mr. Lorne McDougall is spending Christmas at his home in North Bay.

Miss Lois E. Gorman, nurse-in-training at the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, will be home to spend Christmas Day.

Mr. James Johnson, Boston, Mass., and Mr. W. H. Johnson, Toronto, visited relatives in the city yesterday.

Mrs. H. R. Moorman, Olive St., entertained at a Sunday afternoon tea in honor of Miss Margaret Redfern, bride-to-be. The tea table was charming with chrysanthemums and pastel tapers. Mrs. William Fairbairn poured tea and the tea assistants were Misses Dorothy and Lois Moorman, and Miss Mary Moult.

Miss Kathleen O'Neill of Ottawa, is spending the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O'Neill of this city.

Mrs. B. Slettebo of Kemptville, and her nephew, Mr. Tron Harsvik of the Royal Norwegian Naval Air Force, Toronto, are spending the holidays in the city.

Mr. James Moher, St. Louis, Mo., is spending Christmas with his brother, Mr. R. J. Moher and Mrs. Moher, Victoria Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Beaumont, 76 Cedar Street, are quietly celebrating the 50th anniversary of their wedding on December 27.

The annual Christmas party which is a happy feature of the Yuletide season at the McCarthy Theatre took place last evening when Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCarthy entertained the staff of the theatre and a number of guests following the afternoon matinee. The party took place in the rotunda, whose gay Christmas decorations made a fitting background for the interesting event. Following a delicious supper an understudy for Santa Claus distributed gifts and favors to all, the guests finding their presents highly original. The party which is part of the Christmas remembrance of Mr. McCarthy to his staff was thoroughly enjoyed. The sentiments of those present were appropriately expressed in a brief address of appreciation to the host and hostess by Mr. Vincent Freeman. Mr. McCarthy in reply expressed the hope that all would be present again for next year's party.

Introductions

I would also appreciate some pointers on introductions. For example: when a lady and her husband come in together, and the room is already full of guests, what form of introduction is really correct?

Subscriber.

The first thing to keep in mind concerning group introductions is that individual introductions should be made. That is, a woman and her husband are not introduced as Mr. and Mrs. Jones. We introduce Mrs. Jones separately, to the other women guests, and then we introduce the men guests to Mrs. Jones. Then we introduce Mr. Jones, first to the women guests, and then to the men.

Another thing to keep in mind concerning group introductions is that it is not necessary or in good taste to take a guest around the room and introduce her or him to everyone. The simplest and most convenient way is to introduce the arriving guests to a few guests, those who are standing near us. Then, in a few minutes, it is natural for the introduction to spread. The guest may make a self-introduction to a guest she or he may be joining.

Remember to introduce a man to a woman: "Miss Graham, may I present Mr. Masters", or "Miss Graham, Mr. Masters". Introduce a younger woman to an older woman . . . "Mrs. Jones, may I introduce Miss Williams", or "Mrs. Jones, this is Miss Williams." Introduce a younger man to an older man. When you are introducing two women of approximately the same age, and one is married and the other is unmarried, introduce the unmarried woman to the married woman; that is, say the married woman's name first. The same is true when you introduce two men.

Remember that the gracious hostess finds something appropriate to say to two people whom she is introducing that will easily and delightfully give them a cue to the beginning of their conversation.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

What Are "Bread-and-Butter" Letters

Dead Miss Fairfax:

Regard me as a savage if you will, but I never heard about a bread-and-butter letter until my fiancee's mother got very pouty because I didn't write her a note after going to her home for a week-end. Inquiring what was the matter with the old lady, I learned I fell down in not writing a bread-and-butter note. What are they anyhow?

Country Boy.

After one has visited in a home, even for so short a stay as a week-end, a note is written to the hostess saying that you enjoyed the visit—whether you did or not. Old-fashioned people call this "making your manners." As long as the lady is your future mother-in-law, better write a note with some good reason why it was omitted at the time of the visit.

Interested in Sister's Ex-Suitor

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Before my sister married, she used to go out with a young man who, I think, was also in love with her. I happened to meet him a few weeks ago, and as he lives out of town, we've been corresponding ever since. I happened to be visiting a girl friend in his home city, and he called on me, saying he was taking a short vacation in a month or two. I invited him to spend a few days in our home town and he promised he would.

Do you think I should write him a letter as a confirmation of my verbal invitation, and a reminder of his promise? I wouldn't want him to get the idea I'm crazy about him, although I do like him a great deal. Our mothers have been friends for a long time.

Priscilla.

Next time you write, I think it would be nice to suggest that he come down for his vacation, about which he told you when you saw him. This should be easy to manage in an agreeable way, as your mother and the young man's mother have been friends.

CHRISTMAS 1940

We cannot hear with the Shepherds
The song that the angels sang,
As over the hills of Judah
Their glorious message rang,
Of a Christ that was born in a manger,
A Saviour meek and mild,
Who left His Home in glory
And become a Little Child.

Our ears cannot catch the music
Nor the words of that sweet refrain,
That came from celestial choirs—
A sweet and solemn strain,
Of "Glory to God in the Highest,
On earth peace, to men good will"
That floated to earth from Heaven
That night in the midnight still.

We cannot go with the Wise Men
And follow the blessed gleam
Of the silver star that beckoned
To the Hope of a nation's dream;
Not ours to give to Him treasures
Of frankincense, myrrh and gold,
Not ours to gaze on the graces
Of the Christ-Child manifold.

But hark! The air is pulsing
With the vibrant angel song,
In our hearts we catch the message
As the gladsome notes prolong!
As they ring down the long-past ages
"Peace on earth, good will to men",
And the Star leads ever onward
To the Babe of Bethlehem.

—Helen B. Anderson.

WEDDINGS

REID—KOTCHAPAW

Picton, Dec. 24—(Special)—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Kotchapaw was the scene of a lovely wedding at high noon on Saturday, when their daughter, Nora Bernice, became the bride of Carl Philip Reid, son of Clayton Reid, and the late Mrs. Reid. Christmas decorations formed a colorful setting and 'mums were used in the dining room. Rev. Linstead officiated. Miss Eleanor Kotchapaw, niece of the bride, was flower girl, Miss Mary Wager, bridesmaid, and Mr. Thompson, best man. Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Reid left for Montreal. On their return they will reside at Bethesda.

STEWARD—IRWIN

At Bridge Street Church on Saturday, December 21st., at eight o'clock the marriage took place of Miss Ruth Irwin, Peterborough, and Sergt. John Allan Steward, 3/47th Battery, Kingston. Rev. Dr. Semple officiated. They were attended by Lance-Corporal Lawrence Steward and June Steward.

CONLEY—STAPLEY

The wedding took place on December 20, at Bridge Street Church Parsonage of Lavenia Stapley and Percy Conley both of Belleville. Dr. James Semple officiated.

W.C.T.U. Notes

On account of the icy condition of the streets the December meeting was not so largely attended as usual.

Mrs. J. Arbuckle gave a very fine address founded on the Christmas story, Luke 2-14. "Peace on earth good will to men". She dwelt to some length upon "God's love gift to us in providing a Saviour who would make possible the forgiveness of our past mistakes and attainment of success against sin and human weakness".

"The Golden Rule" she said "will be a reality when Christ is enthroned in our national, social and business life as well as in our homes."

"We should make a grave for all our unkind thoughts and a garden for our kindly feelings with the gate wide open. If we are willing to believe that love is the greatest thing in the world and that the Blessed Life that began over 1900 years ago in Bethlehem is the image and brightness of that Eternal love then we are Keeping Chirstmas", were her closing words and added the quotation:

"We need Thee Peaceful Jesus,
In all our strife we need Thee:
Let peace descend upon our troubled world
Make war to cease in all the earth
That brotherhood and faith may came to birth".

Miss Reeves gave a report of the banquet tendered to the Temperance Federation and their friends December 4.

The ladies wish to thank all those who contributed to the banquet especially those outside the Union who gave donations of food or money or in any way assisted in making the banquet a success.

By ANNE ADAMS

A word to the wives is sufficient—with a dress like Pattern 4631 to back it up! For every family likes "Mother" to look her cheery best at all times—from across the breakfast table in the morning to across the sewing table in the evening—and here's the style to do it! This Anne Adams dress seems to add slim height and subtract from your width, with its front bodice panels that meet the skirt panel to create long, flowing lines. Curving yokes look decorative and are useful for holding-in the gathered fullness of the side bodice sections. You might make them in contrast with matching tabs on the sleeves; and an edging of ruffling or ric-rac would be gay and feminine. Order this becoming style today—you'll receive your pattern by return mail!

Pattern 4631 is available in misses' and women's sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3 1-4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

VITAMIN C

A short time ago we discussed Vitamin C with particular reference to a lack of it causing scurvy. There is a great deal more to be said for it.

Oranges, lemons, limes, grapefruit and pineapples all have it in substantial quantities; so have cabbages, tomatoes and potatoes, eaten with their skins on. This vitamin has one characteristic which we should always remember—it is easily driven off by cooking. Hence the need of eating some of the food containing it raw or simply steamed.

There is another thing to remember about Vitamin C also. It is that in order to get the vitamin in orange juice the juice must be freshly pressed. Many people today find the morning pretty crowded, what with rising, eating and catching the bus down town for the office. Mothers may also have children to get ready for school, so to save time they begin squeezing the juice at night, and let it stand in the refrigerator until morning.

This is a time saver, but it's not so good as far as Vitamin C is concerned. It is a very volatile vitamin, and when it sits all night in an open glass a lot of the precious substance is lost.

These details are important, as I pointed out in a previous column, your body doesn't store vitamin C. It doesn't lay up a store of it for the day when your diet may not contain any. That means our bodies must get a fresh supply of it every day.

In recent years some scientists have come forward with the claim that Vitamin C prevents decay of the teeth. I don't know whether this has been adequately proven, but whether it has, the vitamin is certainly a necessary part of the complete diet and as such it plays its role in keeping the teeth strong and healthy.

Mothers do well to keep in mind that although milk is a marvelous food, just about the best there is, in fact, that it doesn't contain much Vitamin C. When milk is boiled pasteurized, as it most certainly should be for children, most of the Vitamin C is destroyed. So you must provide some other source of this very important element of food in the diet, and we have found that fruit juice or tomato juice does the trick.

The Quintuplets were early started on fruit juice, July 9, 1934, was their first dose and they've had it daily ever since. We tried them on tomato juice in the early months, but it didn't agree with them. Now, however, they get tomato juice as a change from orange and grape fruit.

For a normal baby, a teaspoonful of orange or grape fruit juice twice daily is the way to start. If you are giving tomato juice, then this amount should be doubled.

The tomato juice can be obtained, either by pressing the juice out of ripe uncooked tomatoes, or by straining the juice off a can of tomatoes. The beauty of the latter method is that in poor homes, the baby can get the juice, which is what he needs, and the rest of the family get the solid part. There is no waste.

THEN HE SMILED GAILY "MERRY CHRISTMAS," HE SAID. AND TURNING AROUND UP THE CHIMNEY HE SPED.

Pupils of Wooler Continuation School Present Concert

Wooler — On Thursday afternoon December 19, the Junior room pupils of the Continuation School held their annual Christmas concert at the school house. Parents and other relatives of the children were at the performance, making a good attendance. Much credit is due these children for the splendid program which they presented, all acted their parts well. Afterwards, Santa made his appearance and presented each with candy and nuts from the Xmas tree, he gathered and gave gifts to each pupil and visiting children.

Mrs. Lorne Terrill of Whitby spent a day with Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ellis and Esther. She also motored to Belleville and paid a visit to Mrs. Everett Ellis at the General Hospital.

Mrs. Bruce Nichol is ill and under the attendance of Dr. McMullen.

Wooler students of the Continuation School are doing without "extras" this term, to help air raid victims in England.

Miss Hazel McMaster, the treasurer has been authorized to forward to the Telegram British War Victims' Fund almost the entire receipts from the school's recent commencement exercises.

In November, these students presented a comedy drama, two successive nights. It is well known that the town hall was packed to capacity, bringing in a handsome sum of door receipts. A part $141. went to the Wooler Women's Institute, members being busily engaged knitting socks and filling Christmas boxes for local boys overseas. There were more than enough for the Institute's needs and members of the commencement committee voted the remainder to the War Victims' Fund.

The regular monthly meeting sponsored by the Ladies' Aid was held in the United Church parlors on Thursday with a large attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Nesbitt Haggarty motored to St. David's on Thursday and were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Ruttan. They returned home on Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Ruttan accompanying them, and are remaining here for the festivities of Xmas and holidays with relatives.

Private Donald Way of Camp Borden arrived here on Friday to spend the Xmas holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Way.

Messrs. Carman Ruttan and Harold Smith (son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith), were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Fennell of Norwood recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Sills of East Lake were tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bell on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Hugh McAuley and her mother, Mrs. Cummings of Pleasant Valley were guests of Father Black on Wednesday.

Mr. Edward McMaster of Trenton spent a few days during the week end with friends.

Mr. Fred McAuley of Pleasant Valley spent Wednesday with his father, Mr. J. P. McAuley.

Shannonvil'e

Shannonville.—Mr. and Mrs. D. Waddingham, Bobby and Marilyn of Empey Hill were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Robertson.

The many friends of Mr. C. Boultstridge, Second Line, are pleased to hear that he is recovering from a serious operation at Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Clara Jeffery has returned to her home after a visit with her son, Mr. Fred Jeffery and Mrs. Jeffery, Melrose.

The Sunday School children and teachers of Trinity Church held a social evening and Christmas Tree at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kent on Monday evening. There was a large number of children present to enjoy the lunch served by the hostess and to receive presents from the tree.

Rev. Mr. Sterling expressed thanks and appreciation at the Sunday evening service of the United Church for the new hymn board presented to the congregation by the Women's Association. The W. A. also donated $35.00 to the Missionary and Maintenance Funds of the United Church.

Santa Claus Visits Sunday School Gatherings, Marmora

Marmora — Santa Claus favored two youthful gatherings with his presence on Friday evening to prove that his popularity is unfailing. At St. Andrew's United Church he dropped in upon the teachers, scholars and parents after the children had regaled themselves with a supper which they pronounced to be just as good as mother would serve it. These same scholars also received their usual treat of Christmas dainties.

St. Paul's Sunday School entertainment was next visited where Santa was up to some new antics and also assisted the Rector, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell in the presentation of gifts from the Christmas tree. The program was as follows:—

Carol by School Acrostic Drill, Miss L. Mumby's class; Duet, "Away in a Manger", Anne and Ivan Lavender; Skit, W. J. Cottrell's class; Solo, "Once in Royal David's City", Gwendolyn Rundle; Guitar solo, Sam Gifford; Recitation, John McLaughlin; Violin solo, George Rice; Recitation, Paul Lumsden; Lantern Slides, Gulliver's Travels and Dick Whittington and his cat, Rural Dean Caldwell and W. APPOINTMENT WELCOMED

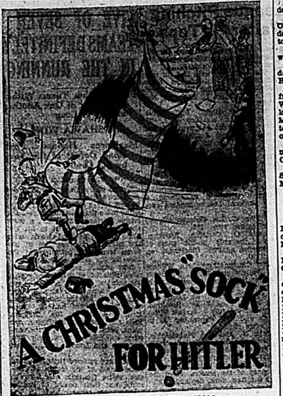
Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—State Secretary Hull said today that the appointment of Viscount Halifax as British Ambassador was highly welcomed by the United States government.

The Secretary added that the record of accomplishments of Lord Halifax was such as to commend him to the country. He looked forward with pleasure to working with the new Ambassador.



A CHRISTMAS "SOCK" FOR HITLER

"SOCK" HITLER FOR CHRISTMAS

Employees of the Robert Mitchell Company Limited of Montreal, collectively took 9,083 "socks" at Hitler and Mussolini, and presented the evidence valued at $2,270.75 in the form of War Savings Stamps to the Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance as a Christmas present to the Dominion of Canada. Faces of Hitler and Mussolini were blueprinted in squares on large sheets and the Robert Mitchell employees covered these with War Savings Stamps, winning a theoretical "sock" at the enemy villains by each stamp. S. C. Holland, President of the Robert Mitchell Company, made the presentation to the Minister of Finance in a bound volume with the frontispiece which is reproduced, in the hope that it would focus attention on the need of individual participation in the war effort by means of the regular purchase of War Savings Stamps or Certificates.

Carmel

Carmel.—Many people are held from the city on account of the icy roads.

The order of the day is practicing for Christmas and School Concerts. The school teachers are surely kept busy this time of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dafoe visited their son, Mr. Carman Dafoe and Mrs. Dafoe, of Frankford, last week.

A Red Cross quilting was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Guay on December 11th. A large number was present. A jolly afternoon was spent. The newly appointed president, Mrs. Patterson, stressed the continued work to be done in the new year to the ladies, and received the articles brought in by the members.

Mrs. Jones and Mrs Horton are the conveners of the sewing and knitting for the coming year. After the quilt was finished, Mrs. Guay served refreshments.

TENNIS STAR BEGINS COMEBACK

Bobby Riggs Enters Sugar Bowl Competition to Regain High Ranking

New Orleans, Dec. 24 — (AP)—Bobby Riggs, who started slipping from his No. 1 tennis ranking in the Sugar Bowl competition last year, will begin his comeback in the same Sugar Bowl event this week.

It was a cocksure Riggs who went into the tournament in 1939. He loafed through the early rounds, found himself in the finals with Don McNeill and got his first big shock. McNeill surprised the tennis world by bouncing him 8-6, 4-6, 8-6, 6-3.

Don then went on during the season to prove that rude jolt was not a fluke. He dethroned Riggs later in the National Championships.

Riggs not only will be seeking to regain his national prestige here in the competition starting Saturday but he will be trying to break the Sugar Bowl jinx — that no champion ever has repeated.

New York, Dec. 24. — (AP) — When the Brooklyns report next Spring, Larry MacPhail will tell them they'll train in California in 1942—if they win the pennant . . Cleveland has canned the scout who reported Sid Hudson would never make a big league pitcher.

Today's guest star.

Al Buck, New York Post: "Mike Jacobs is trying to get Lew Jenkins to change his mind about retiring and Lew is trying just as hard to get Mrs. Jenkins to change her's".

Short, short stories.

Jimmy Braddock dressed up like Santa yesterday and passed out hundreds of baskets of food to needy families . . . . Cleveland already has sent Catcher Gene Desautels a contract offering him more dough than the Red Sox paid him. Incidentally, Boston scribes are panning the Desautels-Frankie Pytlak swap.

BUCKY WALTERS LEADING HURLER OF NATIONAL LOOP

Cincinnati Pitcher Has Lowest Earned-Run Average and Most Triumphs

SEWELL THIRD

Fitzsimmons Leading Percentage Pitcher With Sixteen Won and Two Lost

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—Dispelling any doubt about the identity of the leading pitcher in the National League, the official averages for 1940 were announced today and thrust the laurels right back on the shoulders of William Henry Walters, Jr., of Cincinnati Reds.

For the second successive year he had the lowest earned-run average, 2.48, and the most triumphs, most complete games, most innings pitched and most batters faced.

He started 36 games for the champions and finished 29 of them, winning 22 and losing 10. He pitched 305 innings and worked against 1,207 batters.

The leading percentage pitcher was Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons, the 39-year-old player-coach of Brooklyn Dodgers, who won 16 games and lost only two.

His winning percentage of .889 was a new high for the National League and he rated fourth in earned runs with 2.82 per nine inning game.

The next best hurling, considered from all angles, was turned in by Truett (Rip) Sewell of Pittsburgh Pirates. He rated third in earned runs with 2.79 and second in winning percentage with 16 victories and five defeats. He started 23 games and worked in relief on 10 other occasions.

Big Paul Derringer, the lion-hearted dean of the Reds' mound staff, slipped from the supremacy he shared with Walters in 1939 and finished sixth in the league both in earned runs and victories with a record of 20 and 12. He proved in the World Series, though, that he still had his stuff in the "clutch."

There was one no-hit, no-run game—a stunning spectacle by Tex Carleton of the Dodgers against the Reds April 30 to climax Brooklyn's nine-game winning streak at the start of the season.

Hugh (losing pitcher) Mulcahy of the Phillies again was the season's goat, losing the most games, 22; allowing the most hits, 283; giving up the most runs, 141; and suffering the longest losing streak, 12 games.

DOROTHY WALTON IS BEST WOMAN ATHLETE OF YEAR

Battle of Ballots as Close as Any Match Mrs. Walton Fought on Courts

By SYDNEY GRUSON

Toronto, Dec. 23 —(CP)— In a battle of ballots as close as any match she fought on the badminton courts, Mrs. W. R. (Dorothy) Walton has been chosen the Canadian woman athlete of the year, succeeding Mary Rose Thacker of Winnipeg.

The young Toronto matron, champion of everything she surveyed in her specialty, was chosen in the annual poll of sports writers conducted by The Canadian Press. She was given 27 points to 25 for Eleanor Young of Vancouver, tennis champion, and 23 for 17-year-old Norah McCarthy of Toronto and North Bay, Ont. Miss Thacker's successor as Canadian figure-skating champion this year.

It was strictly between these three for the honor. Thirteen others were named in the balloting with each writer naming three choices and points being awarded on a 3-2-1 basis, but the unanimity for Mrs. Walton, Miss Young and Miss McCarthy was so great that Irene Barr, Hamilton, Ont., swimming star, got only eight votes in fourth place.

Mrs. Walton, the former Dorothy McKenzie of Swift Current, Sask., has put aside her badminton racquet for competition because of her war work. But even if she doesn't win another title she leaves behind a record that probably will stand a long time. She has been the dominant figure among the women players for three straight years.

In 1940, for the second year in three, she swept the Toronto, Ontario and Dominion singles championships and she has won the Toronto and Ontario crowns every season since 1935.

At the University of Saskatchewan she starred in a half-dozen sports, including basketball, swimming, hockey, track and tennis.

Miss McCarthy, who paired with Ralph McCreath of Toronto to win the mixed pairs skating title as well as the women's singles, got the most first-place votes, seven. Mrs. Walton and Miss Young each got five and Mrs. Walton took the honor on the strength of three votes for second place and six for third.

Miss Young, 24, easily was Canada's best woman tennis player this year. She won the national singles and paired with Jean Milne of Vancouver for the doubles championship, and cleaned up besides in the Quebec Provincial and Western Canada tournaments.

She has been playing for 12 years and has received almost all her coaching from her father.

Left Wing Spot On All-Star Team Hard One to Fill

In another three months or so, when the time comes to start picking a National Hochey League all-star team, the experts are going to have their work cut out for them to decide on which man is to get the call for the left wing spot.

Toronto Maple Leafs, beside leading the league, have two top left wing performers in Dave (Sweeney) Schriner and Henry (Hank) Goldup. Schriner is leading all marksmen in actual goals, with 11, while Goldup is only two behind.

But going on to Boston Bruins, one finds that Roy Conacher is tied with Goldup for goals and Woody (Porky) Dumart, after being out of action for nearly a month at the start of the season, has now scored seven goals. The way Dumart is travelling at present it's going to be pretty hard to keep him off the all-star team that he just failed to make last year, being nudged out by Hector (Toe) Blake of Canadiens, who hasn't fared so well so far this season.

Dumart, Conacher, Schriner and Goldup will be in action tomorrow night when three games are up for decision. The Bruins play host to New York Americans; the Leafs play at Detroit against the second-place Red Wings; and Chicago Black Hawks take on the Rangers at New York.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

New York—Abe Simon, 256 1-2, New York, outpointed Al Delaney, 183 3-4, Oshawa, Ont., (10).

Providence, R. I.—Everett Rightmire, 127 3-4, Sioux City, Ia., outpointed Larry Bolvin, 125 1-2, Providence, (10).

TWO PLAYERS RECALLED

Detroit, Dec. 24—(AP) — Detroit Red Wings, who have lost three and tied one of their last four games, today moved to strengthen the club by recalling Arthur Herchenratter, utility centre, and Bob Whitelaw, defenceman, from their Indianapolis farm club.

In arranging the National League pitchers of 1940 in the order of their effectiveness, it was found expedient to classify them into three groups, the same arrangement that has been followed for the last twenty-six years. The first group embraces those who bore the brunt of the campaign and pitched at least ten complete games; the second, those who participated to some extent in a minimum of ten games; the third, all others who took part in a championship contest.

The percentage of games won and lost is given, with notation of the relative position of each pitcher, this special record being supplied in order that a comparison may be made with the official earned run rating.

For the second consecutive year, William H. Walters, Cincinnati, leads in the following departments: Earned run percentage, 2.48; facing most batsmen, 1207; pitching most complete games, 29; most innings, 305, and winning most games, 22.

Clyde M. Shoun, St. Louis, for the second consecutive year, pitched in most games, 54.

Paul Derringer, Cincinnati, started most games, 37.

Joseph N. Beggs, Cincinnati, finished most games, 27.

Hugh N. Mulcahy, Philadelphia, lost most games, 22; allowed most hits, 283, and for the second consecutive year gave up most runs, 141.

Three pitchers were tied for most shutouts, with 5 — Manuel Salvo, Boston; J. Whitlow Wyatt, Brooklyn and William L. Lehrman, New York.

W. Kirby Higbe, Philadelphia, allowed most sacrifice hits, 25; struck out most batsmen, 137, and for the second consecutive year gave most bases on balls, 121. Higbe also tied with William H. McGee, St. Louis, for making most wild pitches, 9.

W. Carl Doyle, Brooklyn-St. Louis hit most batsmen, 10. While with Brooklyn Doyle hit four Cincinnati batsmen on June 8 to establish a new National League modern record.

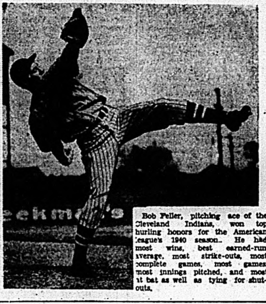
James O. Carleton, Brooklyn, pitched the only no-hit game of the season against Cincinnati on April 30.

Two Cincinnati pitchers, William H. Walters and Joseph N. Beggs tied for the longest winning streak, 9 games. Walters began his run on April 22, against St. Louis, and was beaten June 7 by Brooklyn. Beggs started July 5, against Pittsburgh and lost September 23 to the same club.

Hugh N. Mulcahy, Philadelphia, suffered the longest losing streak, 12 games. He began the string August 4, against Pittsburgh, and did not win again until his last appearance of the season, when he shut out New York, September 27.

TOP PITCHER OF AMERICAN LEAGUE



Bob Feller, pitching ace of the Cleveland Indians, won top hurling honors for the American League's 1940 season. He had most wins, best earned-run average, most strike-outs, most complete games, most games, most innings pitched, and most at bat as well as tying for shutouts.

KINGSTON DOWNS SIGNALS 13 TO 1

Kingston, Dec. 24 (Special) — Kingston crushed the Signal men from Barriefield and Vimy Barracks in a George Van Horne senior hockey game here last night by a 13-to-1 score. The Kingston Citizens, aided by players from the Kingston Junior Lions, swept the Signal men aside with ease, ruining any faint hope of the soldiers reaching the playoffs. It was a parade for the Kingston team from the first few minutes of play. Only one more game remains on the program, with the Signal men playing Perth next Friday night. The playoffs will not start until January.

Kingston—Goal, Udal; defense Nicholson and Roberts; centre, Topping; wings, Rowntree and Scrutton; subs, Radley, Dixon, Stoness, Smith, Aitkens, Gray, Bearance, St. Remy.

Referee—D. Dougall.

FIVE OF SEVEN TEAMS DEFINITELY IN THE RUNNING

OSHAWA WINS

Marlboros Handed First Road Defeat of the Year by 5-2 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

Teams of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior "A" series won't be able to ask Santa Claus for anything more than a general let-up in league warfare. There isn't a team they could single out to hit the skids and hope that would solve the situation, because five of the seven teams are definitely in the race for the series championship.

Last night's games created the novel situation of four teams within one point of one another at the top of the league, with another only three points off the leading clubs. Toronto Marlboros and St. Catharines are tied for top. Niagara Falls and Hamilton deadlocked one point back. Oshawa is fifth, another two points behind. Only Port Colborne and London trail, in that order.

Marlboros suffered their first road game defeat of the season at Oshawa, where Generals won 3-2 to round out their record of having beaten every other team in the league on Oshawa ice. St. Catharines stopped Port Colborne 4-3 at Port Colborne and Niagara Falls scored a 3-1 home ice victory over London.

The low-scoring contests precluded any individual scoring outbursts, but Rudy Pilous, St. Catharines winger, got two of his team's counters against Port Colborne. Rossini and Heximer scored the others. Runions, Leitch and Paroche netted the Port Colborne goals.

Rip Radcliffe was sensational in goal for London against Niagara Falls, but he couldn't win all by himself.

McQuade beat him in the first period, Hal Cooper in the second and Joe Catlin in the third before Galbraith got London's only goal.

GREENBERG LEADS AMERICAN LEAGUE RUNS BATTED IN

Team-Mate Rudy York of Tigers is Runner-Up With 134

The lineup shift that sent Hank Greenberg of the pennant-winning Detroit Tigers from first-base to left field may have been the conclusive factor in the 1940 American League flag race, judging from the runs-batted-in record of the circuit for the season. Free to concentrate on his hitting, Greenberg led the league in batting in runs with a total of 150 in 148 games, which represented a set-up of 38 over his 1939 total for 138 games. Furthermore, the runner-up position in driving in markers in 1940 went to Rudy York, who took Greenberg's first-base assignment, and promptly proceeded to bang home 134 valuable tallies in 155 games. Without this extra run-making it is doubtful if the Tigers could have come through with the championship, since they were fourth in pitching and sixth in fielding.

Third in driving in runs in 1940 was Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees, the leading hitter of the league, with 133 runs propelled home in 132 games. DiMaggio was second on the list in 1939 as he drove in 126 runs in 120 games—which is ample consistency. DiMaggio drove in 8 runs in one game in the afterpiece of a twin bill on August 13.

Ted Williams of Boston, who set the pace in 1939 in this highly-valued honor among ball players with 145 counters hustled homeward in 149 games, dropped to fifth in the standing in 1940 with 113 in 144 games. Jimmy Foxx of the same team drove in his usual quota in 1940 with 119 in 140 games—an improvement over his 1939 record of 105 in 124 games. This made the twelfth year in a row in which Foxx has driven in 100 or more runs.

Charlie Keller of the Yankees supplanted Harlond Clift of the Browns as the best waiter in the league with 106 passes, to 104 for Clift, who was high in 1939 with 111 free tickets. Both Jimmy Foxx of Boston and Charlie Gehringer of Detroit drew 101 strolls. Luke Appling of Chicago, who walked 105 times in 1939, was more impatient in 1940, with only 69 gratis transportations. George Selkirk of New York also fell off from 103 in 1939 to 84 in 1940.

For the fifth consecutive year, Frank Crosetti of the Yankees was the leading target in the circuit with ten hits registered on his body, thus adding another year to his own major league record.

Sam Chapman of the Athletics was fanned the most times, going down on strikes on 96 occasions. Greenberg had this high in 1939 with 95 whiffs. Greenberg's strike-out total in 1940 was down a total of 20 to 75. York fanned 88 times, trailed by Jimmy Foxx with 87. The year before Foxx struck out 72 times.

MERRY CHRISTMAS ALL.

On this happiest of seasonal holidays may all enjoy volumes of good fortune and a Happy Christmas.

Reviewing the 1940 Canadian sport parade, Sydney Gruson, Canadian Press writer, points out that its customary lustre was partially dimmed through wartime handicaps, but the peak of a wobbly year was reached in December with the football tangle of the Dominion more confusing than ever and a wider schism existing between the Western Conference and the C.R.U.

There were other major sport developments during the year, such as Gerard Cote's rise to the pinnacle of marathon running and New York Rangers' sweep of the hockey titles, to mention only a couple, but none provided as much controversy or as serious repercussions as the West's break with the C.R.U.

The storm subsided, finally, but not until the Western Interprovincial Football Union withdrew its affiliation from the C.R.U., charging the C.R.U.'s domination prevented a war-charities football final between the east and west, the first time in 13 years that an inter-sectional clash was not played.

In these circumstances, Ottawa Rough Riders retained their eastern football championship and gained C.R.U. recognition as Dominion titlists. They won it in a snow-swept two-game series against Toronto Balmy Beach, whose fine challenge was lost 20-7 on the round. Meanwhile, the 1939 Dominion champions, Winnipeg Blue Bombers, sat home after winning the western title, barred from a national final because of the western union's decision to play its own rules during its season.

Honors to Runner

Cote brought new honors to Canada with two smashing triumphs against international fields. The slight, St. Hyacinthe, Que., runner broke the record in the famous Boston marathon, leading home Ellison (Tarzan) Brown in two hours, 28 minutes and 28 3-5 seconds. Then after bowing to Robert (Scotty) Rankine in the Canadian championship at Toronto, Cote won the American championship at Yonkers, N.Y.

At the year's end, the little French-Canadian was being hailed as one of the greatest long-distance runners in the world, barred from meeting Europe's best because of the war.

In hockey, Rangers overshadowed everybody. They raced in their streamline fashion to the National League championship over Boston Bruins, whom they dethroned in a six-game series, and went on to take the Stanley Cup in six games from Toronto Maple Leafs. On the way they smashed a 12-year record of Montreal Canadiens by going 19 games without defeat.

They took individual championships as well. Kilby MacDonald was voted the outstanding rookie and Dave Kerr won the Vezina Trophy as the outstanding goalie of the season. The scoring championship eluded them, Milt Schmidt of Boston Bruins succeeding Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens as the leader with 52 points.

The all-star team, picked for The Canadian Press, was: Goal, Kerr; Defence, Dit Clapper, Boston, and Eddie Goodfellow Detroit; Centre, Schmidt; Right Wing, Bryan Hextall, Rangers; Left Wing, Blake.

It was an eastern year in amateur hockey and lacrosse, but the west maintained its long-time superiority on the basketball courts.

Amateur Hockey

Kirkland Lake Blue Devils, small and terribly fast, raced rings around Calgary Stampeders to take the Allan Cup and the senior hockey championship, in three straight, convincing triumphs. Oshawa Generals retained the Memorial Cup and the junior title, by beating Kenora Thistles three games to one in a best-of-five series.

St. Catharines Athletics, one of the best lacrosse teams raised in Ontario, dropped the first game of the senior lacrosse final to Vancouver Burrards, then roared back to recover the championship they lost in 1939 with three straight victories. In the junior final on the coast, an Ontario all-star team built around Orillia Baby Terriers fought back to win three straight and the title, after dropping the first two games to the British Columbia all-stars.

Vancouver Maple Leafs won the west its 13th national senior basketball championship in 16 finals by defeating Montreal Y.M.H.A. for the eastern title. Edmonton Grads, the unconquerable women's club, swept all their spring games with ease and then disbanded, no further fields to conquer.

It was a bad year for tennis, the national championships drawing a slim entry, minus the usual American stars and some of the Dominion's best. Don McDiarmid of Ottawa won the men's singles and Eleanor Young, of Vancouver the women's singles, but young Bob Watt Jr., of the famous Montreal tennis family, was drawing more attention as a coming great. He won the eastern junior and gave the seniors a terrific fight before bowing out.

The amateur golf championship was called off because of the war, as was all inter-collegiate competition, and the open title again went to an American. Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, Va., beat Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., in a playoff. The Canadian Professional Golfers' Association title was won by Stan Leonard, former Vancouver amateur and now a Calgary pro.

These were the champions in the Dominion major sports. There have been better years for Canadian sport, but a country at war was satisfied to relegate its games and amusements to a secondary place in the sterner task of winning a tougher match.

Do you remember when Lester Patrick, the "Silver Fox" of hockey, was named president of New York Rangers National Hockey League entry, and president of the Madison Square Garden, eight years ago today. A product of Western Canada's Pacific League, he is known as the game's greatest strategist.

Galento Wants Grudge Fight With Louis

Orange, N.J., Dec. 24 — (AP)—Tony Galento, apologizing for his showing against Max Baer, today dared Joe Louis to give him another crack at the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

Two-ton Tony, who has been the forgotten fistic man since Baer stopped him in eight rounds on July 2, complains that Louis is meeting a "lot of setups" and dodging "real competition."

"They call Joe a 'great champion,'" Galento continued. "Then why is he meeting McCoys, Burmans, Simons and Dorazios?"

Quickly answering his own question, Tony said: "Louis is afraid of a puncher and I'll bet him $10,000 I'll knock him out if I meet him again."

"I looked like a bum against Baer but don't forget I'm the only guy to floor Louis since he became champion and the only one to knock out Lou Nova."

Far from the boastful, wisecracking Galento of other days, the battle-scarred veteran was all business as he paced the floor of his new night club and pleaded for a chance to "redeem myself."

"No one ruled Baer, Louis or many others out after knockout defeats, so why am I refused another chance?" he asked.

"I am sorry for what happened in the Baer fight. I realize I have no one to blame but myself. I took Max cheaply and didn't train. I let my friends down. I'm sorry, but I'll guarantee it'll never happen again."

Tony had high praise for Billy Conn, but asked "What's Billy gonna lick Louis with? He can't break an egg."

He dismissed Al McCoy, a recent Louis victim; Red Burman, Abe Simon and Gus Dorazio, all signed to meet the champion soon, as "just a bunch of bums who can't fight a lick."

AT THE BELLE

"LOVE THY NEIGHBOR"

Well, here it is at last! The picture you've been waiting for, the battle of the century between those feuding radio comedians, Jack Benny and Fred Allen! Paramount captured them on film in a furious, fast and funny musical farce titled "Love Thy Neighbor", which comes to the Belle Theatre Christmas Day, Thursday and Friday, matinee daily. Between the gags that keep the audience in hysterics there are songs you'll sing again and again and dances that are beautiful to watch.

And there's Mary Martin, that charming and talented Broadway musical comedy star. She sings the song that she made famous and that made her famous in turn, "My Heart Belongs to Daddy", as only Mary can sing it. It's the finale to a swell picture in which she's accompanied by the cast and the Merriel Abbott dancers. And does she put it over with a bang! And while we're speaking of songs it might as well be told here that there are three other numbers that are equally colorful. They are "Do You Know Why", "Isn't That Just Like Love" and "Dearest, Dearest I". The Merry Macs, that famous radio quartette, also carry off honors in several numbers. Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Jack's raspberry voiced valet on the air, is in the picture in all his glory. His girl friend is Theresa Harris and they make a swell team.

Verree Teasdale, who isn't in enough pictures to suit us since she became Mrs. Adolph Menjou upholds the tradition of the house of Menjou in a stunning array of new dresses. Virginia Dale, as the blonde and beauteous showgirl, is enough to stop any show.

It all starts on New Year's Eve. Jack is preparing for a radio broadcast, and on the way takes Rochester to meet his girl friend who is getting in on a cruise ship. Fred takes his sister, Verree Teasdale, to meet Mary Martin, returning on the same boat. He meets Benny head on the reduces the good old Maxwell to junk—which lands them in jail. Mary loses her dress in an accident on the pier and Jack gets arrested for trying to get her another.

Benny hires the Marry Macs away from Allen to star in his new show. Mary joins the show under an assumed name. Fred goes to Miami for a rest and Jack decides to open his show there. They meet again and are thrown in jail for another brawl. Peace almost comes to the two after a motor-boat accident in which both are knocked unconscious. Mary makes Fred believe that Jack saved his life. They have dinner together at Fred's apartment and Rochester, whom Fred has lured away from Benny appears, and the feud starts all over again.

Three Happy Short Treats.

Three happy holiday junior features have been assembled for exhibition on the same program including a funny all-star comedy, "South of the Boudoir", a clever screen oddity in color "Unusual Occupations" and with "Poopdeck Pappy", a funny color cartoon comedy completes the program. On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday (matinee only) three funny cartoon comedies will be shown in addition to the regular program. Performances start daily at 2:30, 7:10 and 9:10 p.m. Regular 25c prices will prevail at the Belle on Christmas Day matinee.

Smart Show Tonight.

In the story of three gallant galoots with a leaning to larceny, "Rangers of Fortune" at the Belle tonight only, Paramount has delivered an action epic that is a humdinger for adventure, romance and lusty laughs. Fred MacMurray and Patricia Morison are the romantic leads in the film. Feast of beauty, song and laughter is revealed in "A Night At Earl Carroll's" which is the companion attraction. The Belle news of the day will also be exhibited.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Melody Ranch"

Not since the tragic death of the well-beloved Will Rogers has Hollywood produced a personality of sufficient admiration to merit the title "Good Will Ambassador" until Gene Autry came galloping across the cinema firmament with his ready smile and his engaging personality, to cement deep-rooted good will for the industry throughout the country.

Autry becomes a veritable living example to the youth of America when he visits any community. He doesn't drink and he doesn't smoke. All his available free time is spent on unselfish missions to brighten the lot of the underprivileged. He is a familiar figure in local hospitals, orphanages and charitable homes, squeezing in these appearances between four and often five stage shows daily at local theatres.

Song Fest

The Capitol Theatre patrons who see "Melody Ranch," Republic's Gene Autry starring super special, will hear the newest of Gene's songs, "The Same Dream Twice," which he wrote in conjunction with Fred Rose.

Other songs featured in the production include "Melody Ranch," "Rodeo Rose," "What Are Cowboys Made Of?" "Welcome To You," "Torpedo Joe" and "Corney, That Well Dressed Man," all a product of the musical pens of Jule Styne and Eddie Cherkose.

Ann Miller, Mary Lee, Barton MacLane, Vera Vague, George Gabby Hayes and Jimmy Durante are prominent in the cast of the new $500,000 super film production.

"No Time For Comedy"

An all-comedy cast, headed by James Stewart and Rosalind Russell, is presented in the new film "No Time For Comedy" which is now showing today and Christmas Day with daily matinees. Featured with the stars are Charlie Ruggles, Genevieve Tobin, Allyn Joslyn, Clarence Kolb and Louise Beavers. Bill Keighley directed.

VICTORIA LADIES AID

Victoria Ladies' Aid held their annual meeting and election of officers on Wednesday, Dec. 11th, at the home of Mrs. W. Hubbs.

Following a short program of Christmas readings and hymns, business matters were dealt with. The collection was $1.10 with 35c for the Flower Fund. The 1940 reports were then given. The secretary reported a membership of 34 and that 14 meetings had been held throughout the year.

The treasurer reported a balance of $36.33 from 1939 and that $314.76 had been raised during the year. Miss Audra Brickman, corresponding secretary, reported having sent 10 cards of sympathy to bereaved ones. The flower committee has remembered several sick during the year.

Mrs. L. R. Brickman then conducted the election of officers for 1941. The result was as follows:—

President, Mrs. Clarence Vancleaf; 1st vice president, Mrs. Morley Wood; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Roy Brickman; 3rd vice president, Mrs. Gordon Waterhouse; Secretary, Mrs. Melvin Pulver; Treasurer, Mrs. Horace Calnan; Pianist, Mrs. Phillips; Assistant, Mrs. Roy Brickman; Corresponding secretary, Miss A. Brickman; Buying Committee, Mrs. L. R. Brickman, Mrs. A. Cunningham; Programme Committee, Mrs. M. Wood, Miss Werden, Mrs. Eldon Adams, Mrs. Roy Brickman, Mrs. H. Cunningham; Flower Convener, Miss A. Brickman.

Mrs. M. B. Weese expressed the appreciation of the Aid for the work of the 1940 executive.

FIFTY YEARS HAPPILY WED

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Grose, Cedar Street, Quietly Celebrate Anniversary

Congratulations are in order today for Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Grose, 88 Cedar Street, upon the attainment of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. The happy occasion is being celebrated today, Tuesday, by a quiet reception at their home, where the couple are "At Home" to their many friends and acquaintances of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Grose have resided in Belleville for the past 32 years, coming here from Bell Ewart, near Barrie, in Simcoe County, where they were married, and which is Mr. Grose's birthplace. Prior to her marriage Mrs. Grose was Miss Annie Eden. They were married on the 24th of December, 1890, by the Rev. N. Wellwood, Methodist minister. Prior to coming to Belleville, Mr. Grose was engaged in farming in his home county and until his retirement a few years ago was employed by the Canada Cement Company at Point Anne as a millwright.

Two children were born to bless the union, Vivienne and Arthur, both at home. Following the reception this afternoon and evening, Mr. and Mrs. Grose will continue the celebration of their golden wedding with a family reunion at their home on Christmas Day, when other members of their respective families from Western Ontario will be their guests.

Police Blotter

An appeal to the motoring public was made today by members of the Ontario Motorcycle Patrol to drive with caution during the current festive season.

"In an effort to minimize motor accidents we appeal to the motoring public to refrain from drinking if you are driving a motor car. In other words please don't drive if you drink and don't drink if you are in charge of a motor vehicle. It is safer and saner to walk if the festive season leans towards drinking," pleaded members of the Motorcycle Patrol early today in an appeal to help minimise motor accidents.

While entering the driveway leading into the Provincial Tire building on East Dundas Street early Monday, an automobile driven by Sergt. J. Hutchinson, of the R.C.A.F. struck the corner of the building and shifted it slightly from the foundation, police learned late yesterday. Strangely the motor vehicle was not damaged to any extent and the driver escaped injuries. Sergt. Hutchinson was entering the primises to procure gasoline when the collision occurred.

Police have received complaints relative to local bread and milk wagons being driven on city streets during the dark and not being equipped with the proper lights, as required under the Highway Traffic laws. A check-up of such possible offenders was promised by the authorities.

City police arrested a transient who gave his name as Clifford Colquhoun, last evening alleging he was intoxicated and panhandling. Today Colquhoun appeared before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace, charged with intoxication and was remanded in custody until Friday. Colquhoun will enjoy his Christmas dinner in the local bastille in the meantime.

Ann Miller as she appears in one of the big scenes from Gene Autry's $500,000 special premiere production "Melody Ranch," starting Thursday Boxing Day at the Capitol Theatre with daily matinee, direct from Shea's Theatre, Toronto.

The management and staff of J. A. McNabb Ltd. extend hearty greetings to patrons and friends. To all citizens of Belleville and vicinity a very Merry Christmas and Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Dec. 24. — Transients and unfortunates who stop in Trenton tomorrow will not have to go hungry but will find that they will enjoy a sumptuous repast. Yesterday, a manager of a local manufacturing concern, made a large donation to the police in order to provide the meals for the unfortunate.

The Trenton branch of the Canadian Institute for the Blind have delivered gifts to every blind person in Trenton and district. The gifts are made each year to the blind by the chartered members who make a special effort to look after those persons who have lost their sight.

Trenton merchants report today that business has never been as good as it has been this Christmas season. During the past week, practically every store has had to employ many assistants in order to serve the crowds of customers.

Late Henry Johnson

The funeral of the late Henry Johnson of Murray Township took place this afternoon from his late residence in Murray Township.

The late Mr. Johnson died on Sunday, December 22, following a long illness. He was born in Peterborough, 71 years ago. Surviving him are his wife, one son Frank, and one daughter, Audrey, both at home, two sisters in Western Canada, and one sister in Chicago.

Service was conducted by Rev Harrison. Entombment will take place in the vault at Mount Carmel Cemetery.

Geo. W. Cainrite

Following a short illness, George Walter Cainrite died at his home in Ameliasburg Township, Prince Edward County, yesterday afternoon.

He was born 70 years ago, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cainrite. He has been a lifelong resident of Ameliasburg Township.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon from his late residence. Rev. Earl Whitmore will conduct the service and entombment will take place in the vault at the Mount Evergreen Cemetery.

Surviving him are his wife and one son at home.

LONDON CROWDS ARE LIKE NORMAL SEASON'S THRONG

Lack of Traditional Roast Beef and Yorkshire Pudding Tough Blow to Englishman

NO PEAL OF BELLS

By D. E. BURRITT
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Dec. 24 (CP Cable)—Britons went home with armfuls of unwrapped packages tonight to celebrate Christmas eve behind the gloomy curtain of the nightly blackout.

Despite the scars of war, the people put on a brave front and went about their last-minute shopping as usual. In London they looked like the normal Christmas crowd to be found anywhere.

But they had to tread through piles of debris and peek into show windows half their normal size, for German bombs long ago shattered most of the downtown windows.

Most Packages Unwrapped

Most of the packages they carried were not wrapped, because of a paper shortage, and the gifts they contained were picked from depleted stocks. Expensive silks and perfumes were foregone in favor of more vital necessities.

Thousands crowded the railway stations, most of them mothers and fathers on the way to the country to visit children removed from the danger of London's bombs.

Vendors stood in the streets selling apples at a shilling (22 cents) a pound for their best. There were no bananas or oranges to be had.

Onions Lacking For Turkey Dressing

Onions for the turkey dressing also were lacking. Those who could afford turkey had to pay "two and ten," about 60 cents a pound for it.

The government made the people a "Christmas gift" by relaxing slightly the rationing of sugar and tea during the holiday period.

Roast Beef Missing

One of the toughest blows to Englishmen was the lack of the traditional roast beef and Yorkshire pudding. Beef, of course, is rationed and it can't be had at all in most districts.

Another thing which made Christmas unreal was the silence of church bells. They are allowed to ring only in case of invasion.

Pantomine was being staged here and there—but only in the afternoon. No theatre leaves its doors open these nights.

"Y" ACTIVITIES

The steady pat, pat of the ping pong ball against the bat, the sharp click of the crokinole men on the board, the dull thud of the indoor horseshoes as they dropped to the floor, the heavy silence of the checker players, "I won, I won . . . who do I play next?" "Hey, you guys, don't take all day, we want to play there." "Gee, I'm champeen, oh boy." This medley of sounds, as well as anything, describes the morning of "Prep Day" of the Christmas holiday program at the local Y.M.C.A. Under the guidance of Program Secretary Ed Shortt, a gang of preps spent the entire day away from home. The morning was spent at the Y building in deciding club champions in ping pong, crokinole, checkers and indoor horse shoes. The champions were as follows: Ping Pong, Bill Goyer, Crokinole, Jack Campbell, Checkers, John Adams, Horse Shoes, not completed.

The boys brought their lunches with them and ate them at the Y, after which they played parlor games until their meal was fully digested. Then, down to the harbor in the glorious winter sunshine for an afternoon of hockey, followed by a swim at the Y.

Then came the crowning of the big day. The losers in the Prep Christmas Card selling competition put on a supper for the other members of the club, followed by bowling in the Y. alleys. Harry Abbott's team won the bowling contest, with Alvin Armstrong being high single. And then, about 9 o'clock, quiet from the sharp sound of young voices again came over the building as the boys headed for home, the first day of the holidays completed.

The War Today

By DON GILBERT,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Italian people, many of whom heard Italian translations on their radios last night of Prime Minister Churchill's exhortation to them to get rid of Mussolini before the Italian Empire is torn to shreds today joined the rest of Christendom in receiving a Christmas messafe from the Pope.

Speaking of the future the Pontiff said that from the war will come "an improved mind" and a world in which "mankind will listen to the voice of reasoning and of justice." He spoke against hatred, against "cold selfishness," and against the idea that "might makes right."

While the Pope, as head of the Universal Church, stands aloof from the day to day happenings of the secular world, and addresses the faithful in terms of eternal truth, many Italians who heard the Holy Father must have recalled Mr. Churchill's words. He said Mussolini had plunged Italy into the conflict against the wishes of the church and that "the time has come when the Italian monarchy and people who guard the sacred centre of Christendom, should have a word to say."

As individualists, who after 17 years of Fascist rule still find many ways to assert their distate of regimentation, the Italian people will have words to say in increasing quantities as the folly of Mussolini's policy unfolds itself. That is unless, as Mr. Churchill warned, the Fascist dictator calls in "attila over the Brenner Pass with his hordes of ravenous soldiery and his gangs of gestapo policemen."

Less Fear of Authority

Already, following the Italian reverses in Albania and Egypt, a campaign against "defeatists" and "pessimists" is in full cry, but the Italian' fear of the authorities is hardly comparable with that of the average German's fear of Himmler's Gestapo. There have been a few jail sentences for indiscreet talk, but with the Italians grumbling is a time-honored indulgence and when war means less spaghetti there is little chance of the authorities checking it.

There has been a campaign against listening to foreign broadcasts, but it has been intensified only since Italy entered the war and, with the Italian police organization inclined to laxity, the campaign has lacked the effectiveness of the similar drive in Nazi Germany which was started soon after Hitler rose to power.

Thus it is a good bet that many thousands of Italians, vigilant for authentic news, heard Mr. Churchill's message, and from them it would be spread by word of mouth. And those elements in the Italian political and social structure who are said to be hostile to the war, the Royal Family, the nobility, the army, and the clergy, who undoubtedly have more privacy and better facilities for listening to foreign broadcasts would hear it.

It was perhaps more to these influential sections of Italian life, than to the common people, that the Prime Minister's words were addressed, because any move to overthrow Mussolini to be successful would need the support of the Royal Family as well as of the army.

Although King Victor Emmanuel sent a message of encouragement to the army today, it may be recalled that before the war he was reliably reported to have opposed Italy's entry. At the time of the Munich crisis in 1938 it was said he was ready to abdicate had Italy marched.

The Italian people have a high respect and affectionate regard for their King and are proud of the Crown Prince, Umberto, who is regarded by many Italians as the coming man in Italy.

COUNCIL PASSES BY-LAWS TO GRANT HALF HOLIDAY

Stores in City to Have Wednesday Afternoon Holiday for Ten Months of Year

GRANT TURNED BACK

"You have done your work exceedingly well and it has been a pleasure to work with the council of 1940," said Mayor Glencoe Thompson before the conclusion of the last regular meeting of the City Council. "The business has been speedily done and very thorough and although we have not at all times agreed, the proceedings have been on the whole harmonious and I believe the Council this year has accomplished a great deal. Ald. Harry Clarke in moving appreciation for the service of Mayor Thompson, stated the council appreciated the association with the Mayor, which has always been of a friendly nature. Mayor Thompson was thanked for his leadership and fine qualities. The motion was seconded by Alderman Armstrong and the vote was unanimous after being put by City Clerk Wilfred Holmes.

Alderman Harvey regretted the leaving of the council by Aldermen Graham, Cooper, Haig and Logan. "We have enjoyed their association very much," said Ald. Harvey. "It is realized that three of the retiring aldermen have been in military service and will continue in that life while Alderman Logan is retiring from purely business reasons. Their loss is regretted and I am sure I am expressing the voice of the whole council when I wish them God speed and many years of services in their chosen professions. Alderman Graham was the only retiring member present and thanked the members for their fine expression of appreciation.

Half-Holiday Granted

At the request of the majority of the merchants some weeks ago for a Wednesday half-holiday for ten months, a petition was circulated and presented to the council. The lists were thoroughly checked by the City Clerk and passed on to the City Solicitor to prepare the necessary by-laws covering every type of business in the city. Last night the Council passed the by-laws through the various stages, giving a half-holiday every Wednesday afternoon for ten months of the year, the holiday to start at 12.30 p.m. and continue until 5 a.m. of the following day. The following categories will enjoy this mid-week holiday, ladies' wear stores, chain stores, hardware stores, gent's furnishing stores, jewellers, china and optometrists, furniture and home appliance stores and shoe stores. Each of the petitions presented were signed by three-quarters of the groups to have the holiday.

A penalty of a fine not exceeding $50 can be imposed exclusive of costs and in default of payment a term of not exceeding six months in the County Jail can also be given. Other by-laws were the completion of a lease with Raymond Arnott for the leasing of the Market for 1941, completion of a deed of conveyance with the Canadian National Railway and a deed of Conveyance with S. H. Wanamaker for the purchase of property. The by-laws respecting the holiday will take effect on January 1st.

Aldermen Harvey, Clarke, Butler and Armstrong were appointed as a committee to investigate the Corporation Liability Insurance relative to coverage and the committee to have authority to act on the matter relative to placing this insurance. The Red Cross committee reported to the council stating that the house chosen by the committee for use as a Red Cross headquarters in the city was not suitable for its need and the matter was left over for the 1941 Council to complete. On the grant of $150 to the Belleville Yacht and Athletic Association, Alderman Kennedy moved that it be referred back to the committee as he had heard certain accusations. "I am in favor of the grant," said the Alderman, "but I think in view of the accusations made there should be more investigation."

Ald. Rollins: "I think if I had any accusations to make I would appear personally before the council and make them."

Ald. Butler: "I was called in the matter and I don't know whether the accusations are true or not. It was stated that the Association is a money making proposition."

Ald. Rollins: "I am glad that Ald. Butler is not making the accusations himself. I know the situation and they are rendering a real service and I think the grant should be made."

Ald. Jeffery: "I think the association is being paid for its service."

Ald. Pringle: "We have spent a lot of time on this matter but I am going to vote for the grant."

Ald. Kennedy: "I do not object to the grant being made but I do not think the public should be hoodwinked by saying this is a grant when the money will be used to pay back taxes.

A motion was introduced to have the Mayor name a committee to investigate the matter further and he appointed Aldermen Harvey, Kennedy, Jeffery and Armstrong.

Under the heading of enquiries Alderman Kennedy asked Mayor Thompson if any of the undertakers or owners of ambulances had an agreement or contract with the police with respect to who should be called in case of accident? The Mayor stated he would enquire into the matter at the next meeting of the police commission. Mayor Thompson wishing all the members and the citizens of Belleville a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year, the 1940 Council concluded their final session of the year.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 24—(AP) — The Stock Market tried for a pre-Christmas rally today with a fair amount of success.

The list jogged along a slightly irregular trail until fresh support arrived for the steels. Other selected industrials were given a lift but many leaders were neglected. While gains of fractions to a point or so were to be seen near the fourth hour, losers were plentiful.

Among better acting stocks were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Steel, Crucible Steel, International Harvester, Du Pont and Goodyear.

Inclined to drift lower were Chrysler and Glen Martin. Numerous issues were unchanged.

Dome Mines, Distillers Seagram, Hiram Walker and McIntyre, in the Canadian list, dipped fractions. Canadian Pacific and Lake Shore mines steadied. Canada 4s, in the Bond Market, gained 1-4 point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 24 (CP)—The tone of the stock market turned strong in the four-hour today and narrow gains were recorded in all groups. A few new highs for the year were registered in the junior gold list. Turnover for the four-hour session was around 250,000 shares. Christmas day holiday was extended by closing the exchange today at 2 p.m.

Broulan advanced to a new record high at 96, trading actively and gains of 5 to 10 cents were posted for San Antonio, Kerr-Addison, Teck-Hughes, Wright-Hargreaves, East Malartic, Upper Canada and Malartic Gold Fields and Pickle Crow firmed 13 cents to 2.93. Dome and Lake Shore advanced 3-8 to 1-2. In the penny group the strong and active issues were Slave Lake, Morris-Kirkland, Bidgood-Kirkland, Naybob and Halcrow.

Base metals improved generally. Hudson Bay and Nickey gained fractions, Ventures improved 10 cents to 3.10 and gains of 6 to 9 cents were posted by Sudbury Basin and Falconbridge. Noranda and Steep Rock weakened slightly.

Fanny Farmer improved 3-4 to 27 3-4, Laura Secord added 1-4 and the Canada Steamship stocks firmed 1-4 to 1-2.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Dec. 24—(CP)—Prices on all classes of livestock were unchanged today on the Montreal Livestock Markets, according to a report by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The few cattle offered were mostly common to just fair quality cows and bulls. Common butcher cows were $3.75 to $4.25, canners and cutters $2.75 to $3.50 and common bulls $3.75 to $4.50.

Veal calves ranged from $9 to $12, good veals $11.50 to $12, drinkers $5.50 to $8.50 and grassers $4.60 to $5.

Hogs were firm at $11.35 for B-1 dressed, $8.50 for B-1 alive, fed and watered and up to $8.75 off trucks. Grade A drew $1 premium with discounts on off grades. Sows were $5.50 to $6.

When graded, good ewes and wethers brought $10, culls and bucks $8. A few small lots of lambs were sold on flat basis at $9. Sheep brought $3.50 to $5.50.

Toronto, Dec. 24—(CP)—A small supply of cattle sold at steady prices on the Toronto Livestock Market today. The calf, hog and lamb sections held steady. No sheep were offered and no cattle were held over from Monday.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 200, calves 40, hogs 570, lambs 40.

Weighty steers sold at $8.50 to $9.25 and a few butcher steers and heifers brought $6 to $8.50. The few butcher cows offered, ranged from $4.25 to $6.

Choice veal calves traded at $11 to $11.50 with common lights selling downward to $6.

Hogs sold at $11 dressedweight and $8.25 liveweight. Sows brought $4.75 to $5.50 dressedweight.

A few medium to good lambs ranged from $7.50 to $10.75.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Dec. 24 (CP)—Dressedweight were 10 to 15 cents higher on an unsteady market at Stratford and prices were unchanged at Hull in bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Stratford $10.25-$10.40, Hull $10.60.

Little Change In Produce Prices

Toronto, Dec. 24. — A-large egg prices in the wholesale-to-retail section of trading registered the only price change on Toronto's open produce market yesterday, firming slightly to 33c. Butter was quietly steady, while cheese stayed inactive. Poultry was firm.

The egg market was steady. Supplies were liberal and demand remained fairly good. Dealers reported that poultry receipts were unusually light for this time of year and that prices were holding firm at high levels. Supplies appeared to be ample for demand, which was exceptionally strong for Grade A turkeys. This line moved well over the week-end.

Demand for butter was rather slow. With offerings light, the market was quiet and steady. Buyers seemed to have filled their holiday requirements earlier. First-grade Ontario solids were unchanged at 37c.

Montreal Produce.

5 Clubs Enter Rural League

Stirling, Dec. 24.— Hastings County can boast only one genuine rural hockey league and that is the Central Hastings Rural Loop, which hold their winter sessions two nights a week in the Stirling Arena. This loop started several years ago by several hockey enthusiasts to give the farm boys a break, gradually lost it's rural quality until a couple of years ago, its personnel included the "not-so-good town and city lads, who couldn't catch in bigger leagues. Interest faded and no one knew why. . . . Two years ago Lynn Fair, became President and under his guidance the loop went really rural again and now has a set of rules barring the city and town boys out, and last year it enjoyed great success. 1941 looks even better. Five clubs have entered in the race and will line up at the starting wire for the first double header on Friday night, Dec. 27th. at the Stirling Arena (if Acey Reid still has ice there).

The final organization meeting was held in Stirling on Saturday night with President Fair presiding. Evidence of the keen interest was the presentation of players lists by the five clubs totally 125 in number from which shall be drawn the teams, all these names were sanctioned by the Committee and all are "proven rural boys". It was hoped, that a County Rural playoffs series could be arranged but since the Central League is the only one that shuts out imports, such a play-off is somewhat in the distant. The adoption of the same playing rules in Frankford, Tweed, and Stirling would make it possible.

Hard and Fast Rules Still Go

There was plenty of squawk last season when through President Fair the executive submitted a set of rules, which they felt would save the league. But this year the same rules were adopted and to them is credited the rise in interest. But the town lads are out of luck.

1.—Playing rules of O.H.A. to stand.

2.—Residence—no player residing in city or incorporated village except for school attendance shall be admitted.

3.—No O.H.A. player shall be eligible.

4.—Any player having played three or more games in any other league except high school or shop is ineligible to play in C.H.R.H.L.

5.—List bearing names addresses and occupation of prospective players to be submitted to executive for the sanction with no names to be added after acceptance by the executive.

7.—Play-offs. Second and third teams play home and home series goals to count on the round, winners to meet League leaders in best two out of three games for Championship.

8—Violation of any rule means loss of game by default.

While the above set of rules may seem rather strict they have served their purpose of restoring the pure rural quality the league enjoyed at its beginning. All clubs associated now are convinced of their value to its being.

Clubs that will this year compete for the Central Hastings Rural Hockey Championship include — Glen Ross, Centenary, Evergreen, Zion Hill and Foxboro. Play will start next Friday night for the sum of 10 pence (20 cents). John Public will be treated to two games each playing night. The players themselves display interest by paying 10c for the privilege to play.

Schedule for 1940-41

Dec. 27—Glen Ross vs Evergreen; Zion Hill vs Foxboro; Dec. 31—Zion Hill vs Glen Ross; Centenary vs Evergreen; Jan. 3—Foxboro vs Glen Ross; Centenary vs Zion Hill; Jan. 7—Evergreen vs Foxboro; Glen Ross vs Centenary; Jan. 10—Zion Hill vs Evergreen; Centenary vs Foxboro; Jan. 14.—Foxboro vs Zion Hill; Evergreen vs Glen Ross; Jan. 17—Evergreen vs Centenary; Glen Ross vs Zion Hill; Jan. 21—Zion Hill vs Centenary; Glen Ross vs Foxboro; Jan. 24.—Centenary vs Glen Ross; Foxboro vs Evergreen; Jan. 28— Foxboro vs Centenary; Evergreen vs Zion Hill; Jan. 31—Glen Ross vs Evergreen; Zion Hill vs Foxboro; Feb. 4—Zion Hill vs Glen Ross; Centenary vs Evergreen; Feb. 7—Foxboro vs Glen Ross; Centenary vs Zion Hill; Feb. 11—Evergreen vs Foxboro; Glen Ross vs Centenary; Feb 14.—Zion Hill vs Evergreen; Centenary vs Foxboro.

German Sources Claim Sinking

Berlin, Dec. 24 (AP)—Nazi sources claimed today the sinking of a 10,000-ton British tanker and a 6,000-ton British freighter during an attack by German speedboats.

It was claimed that six British destroyers tried to prevent the attack, and that after a brief skirmish the German units escaped without harm.

SPECIAL SERVICES FOR CHRISTMAS HELD IN STIRLING

OTHER ITEMS

Stirling, Dec. 24—Christmas season was fittingly observed in all Stirling churches on Sunday with specially prepared music by the choirs and Christmas messages by the ministers in charge. Previous to the morning worship at St. Paul's United Church a carol service rang from the amplifying system placed in the tower. The fine music of familiar carols could be heard distinctly in all parts of the village. At the morning service Rev. A. M. Laverty spoke on the subject "The Significance of Christmas" and his subject for the evening was "The Story Hour", special music by the full choir under the direction of G. L. Clute director included two anthems "Glory to God" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and solos by Mrs. Frank Jeffrey "The First Christmas Morn" and William Reynolds "The Birthday of a King." Large congregations attended both inspiring services and Mr. Clute presided at the organ."

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Rev. W. H. V. Walker also delivered special message in morning and evening worship in the morning his subject was entitled "No Room in the Inn" and in the evening "The Birth of Jesus Christ in Narrative and Song." A large choir under the direction of Miss Grace Pitman led in the singing of fine carols and offered two anthems, Mr. Clayton Tummon sang a solo in the morning "No Room" and duets and sextettes featured the evening worship in song.

St. John's Church of England

In the special Christmas service held in St. John's Anglican Church special music included the rendition of several old English carols under the direction of Mrs. Morrow, organist and choirleader and Rev. Leslie Harding, rector, delivered an appropriate message on "Teaching the True Meaning of Christmas." "Often the true significance of the day is lost under the spell of the festive celebration especially is this true in the case of children who are showered with gifts of candy, toys, etc." We older ones have a responsibility to fulfil in teaching the children that on this day we celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ, the Saviour of Mankind."-Here also the church was well filled with worshippers.

No Trent Valley Hockey League

After calling two meetings for the purpose of re-organizing the Trent Valley Hockey League, officials are of the opinion that there isn't sufficient interest to warrant the effort. The war situation and the enlistment of many of the hockey players is thought by many to be a factor in slowing up interest. Campbellford, last year's champions of the loop will enter a team in the Intermediate "B" group and as yet there is no sign of hockey activity in Stirling, Madoc, Marmora or Tweed.

St. Andrew's Christmas Concert

One of the most interesting programs in the history of the school was presented at the annual Christmas concert of St. Andrew's S.S. held on Wednesday evening, Dec. 18th. A large audience really enjoyed the efforts of the youthful artists taking part and much credit is due Mr. Harper Rollins, Supt., and his staff of teachers for the fine manner in which the entire evening was planned. The program was as follows—Opening Chorus by the entire school; address of Welcome by Jimmy Gay; recitation Christmas Wish by Elinor Fox; Chairman's remarks; piano solo, Jean McIntosh; chorus by the Senior Girls; recitation by Caroline Rollins; recitation, Doreen Fox; Rhythm band a group of talented tots directed by Miss Grace Pitman; recitation by Ruth Tullough; recitation by Jimmie McIntosh; recitation Elleene Gibson; chorus, Boys do not Want to go to S.S.; recitations by Dora Rodgers; Barbara Sarles; Isobelle Fox; selection by the Rhythm Band; recitations by Mary Agnes Fox; and Marion Mitts "Story of Christmas" by Roy Juby; vocal duet Arlene Tummon and Marilyn Eggleton; recitation by Margaret McIntosh; short play, Mrs. Santa Claus; The arrival of St. Nicholas; Mrs. Clayton Tummon acted as accompanist for the evening.

Personal Items of Interest

Mr. Harold Alcombrack of Malton Airport is spending the Christmas holiday with his aunt, Mrs. G. Hockey.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Martin left on Monday to spend Christmas with their son, Ivan and family in London, Ontario.

Frank S. Moffitt, whose appointment to the new position of Supervisor of Investments, is announced by The Royal Bank of Canada. Mr. Moffitt has been in the service of The Royal Bank of Canada since 1916.

F. S. Moffitt Named Investments Supervisor Of Royal Bank

Appointment of Frank S. Moffitt to the new position of Supervisor of Investments for The Royal Bank of Canada is announced by the bank's Head Office today. The creation of this new post is made necessary by the steady increase of employment of bank funds in investments during recent years.

Since he joined the Royal Bank in 1916 Mr. Moffitt has specialized in the field of foreign exchange and investment. After gaining general banking experience in Montreal and Winnipeg he was moved to Head Office in 1921 and three years later was transferred to Vancouver to take charge of the Foreign Exchange Department of Vancouver Branch.

In 1925 Mr. Moffitt was transferred to the Foreign Exchange Department of the bank's New York Agency and his appointment as Manager of the Foreign Exchange Department of the Montreal Branch followed four years later. In 1931 he was appointed Assistant Manager of Winnipeg Branch and since February 1934 has been working on the bank's investments in Head Office.

SIX ARE BURNED

Noticed Early Tuesday

The fire was noticed first about 2.30 a.m. by Pte. Nelson Laprade, grandson of the octogenarian victim, when he was returning to his residence which neighbors the Stein home. Pte. Laprade said he saw flames issuing from the lower windows of the small two-storey structure and ran into the yard shouting to waken the family.

Laprade tried to get in one of the lower windows but was driven back by flames and smoke. Hurrying around to the front door of the house he kicked in the door but was met by a sheet of flame and stifling heat.

During this time he continued shouting to the family to throw the children out of the windows saying that he would catch them.

Shortly afterwards the father, James Stein, jumped out of an upstairs window and landed near Laprade. He was dazed and badly burned and was wearing only a suit of underwear.

Alarm is Sounded

Barefooted and disregarding freezing temperatures, Stein raised Laprade on his shoulders so that he was just able to reach the sill of an upstairs window. Flames and smoke prevented the soldier from entering and he fell to the ground.

Meanwhile an alarm was sounded and firemen rushed to the scene and soon had the blaze under control.

The bodies of Mrs. Stein and her son, Alexander, were found at the foot of the stairs, where they apparently collapsed while attempting to escape.

The bodies of the other children and the older Mr. Laprade were found on the floors of upstairs rooms where they appeared to have collapsed while attempting to get out of the House. Their bodies were not badly burned.

No decision has been reached regarding an inquest.

The interior of the frame dwelling was gutted by the blaze but the shell of the building remained standing.

Member of H. & P. E. Regt.

Pte. Laprade is a member of the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment and is visiting his home here on Christmas leave.

Citizens from houses in the neighborhood of the Stein residence, which stands in a sparsely-settled part of Cornwall, hastened to the scene of the fire when the alarm was sounded.

They took Stein to a nearby house where he was treated for his burns and later removed to hospital.

FASCISTS, NAZIS

Claim Regime And People Are One

"6.—In Italy the Regime and the people are one. Regarding the classic English attempt, therefore, to separate the chiefs from the people and place various authorities of the state in antithesis, this is a puerile propaganda manoeuvre of the fourth order. It may be noted that this indirect reply to Mr. Churchill was given by the Princess of Piedmont (Crown Princess) in asking for membership in the Fascist Party at this time.

"7.—The two messages exchanged between Churchill and Mussolini documents that Italy like all peoples who respect themselves has a sense of honor. Mussolini moreover already has declared several times that the epoch of 'waltz turns' was finished.

"Churchill's speech will be made known through the press and radio with considerable publicity since it is considered 'profitable' for its compactness and conciseness to the Italian people which continues and will continue the war on all fronts until victory.

"The fact that Churchill, at the height of the struggle, felt the necessity of coming out with this slanderous attempt and with this substantial appeal for a compromise peace shows that beyond some brilliant appearances and propagandistic exaggerations England is aware of the tragedy of her own situation".

Nazi Spokesmen's Remarks

Berlin, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Nazi spokesmen said today that they regarded Prime Minister Churchill's address to the Italian people yesterday as "a foolish, insolent attempt to sow discord between the Italian people and the Duce".

These sources said they considered the speech "renewed proof" of "the British inability to understand the psychology of other peoples and especially of totalitarian states".

"This inability of the British to understand other nations will in the last analysis spell the death blow for the British Empire", the spokesmen said. "Churchill's attempt is so silly and laughable that one can pass over it with a shrug of the shoulders. The Italian people undoubtedly remember what the Duce made of their nation".

PLENTY

No Scarcity of Piece Goods.

There is no outward appearance of scarcity in the piece goods and ready-to-wear departments. It is only when you seek a particular pattern or run into clothing materials cheapened by the rationing of wool and silk at the factories that you feel the effect of war.

But there are plenty of alternate weaves and patterns and there is still a lot of Prewar fabric on the market.

Perhaps it should be noted here that the production of cheapened fabrics does not extend to the export trade. The home folks are accepting less wool to the yard so that quality can be kept up for sale abroad to win the dollars and other foreign currencies which in turn will help win the war.

Good Choice in Sport Goods

One thing which interests me greatly is the way the sports goods department keep going. Whether you want a set of golf clubs, a billiard table a soccer football, shiny new cricket wickets, a tournament croquet set of selected woods, an archery target or a canvas canoe for the Thames, it is all spread out before you.

You might think the recurrent rain of fragments out of doors would discourage the sale of garden furniture, but you would be mistaken. You can get teakwood benches and tables made from old ship's wood as you always could along with bird baths, stone gnomes, fountains and prefabricated rose arbors.

All of England is not in the bombtorn areas and gardens are as much loved as ever, even in London. The rose which withstands months of bombing is valued more than ever.

The departments devoted to knitting wools are larger than usual and just as colorful, though prices are higher. Yarn supplies are distributed among the stores only after enough is laid aside for the service departments.

All Women Knitting

Knitting goes on everywhere and Sister Susie still sews socks for soldiers notwithstanding she may live in the front-line trenches of this war while the soldiers are in peaceful rural areas. She also knits shelterwear for herself, in between the socks, scarves and balaclava helmets.

I suppose it seems shocking to some that a London woman should be in a pet shop seeking a showy toy for her Pekinese while several blocks away, in a rubbish pile that was yesterday a sturdy building, grim A.R.P. workers and army engineers seek for bodies of the dead.

But it is all part of the stubborn determination to carry on as usual and let Hitlerian terrorism upset no more of the usual procedures than is necessary. No good would be served by the woman with the Peke getting in the way of the methodical workers, wringing her hands and becoming a nervous wreck. And she'll probably be doing her stint in a canteen, driving an official car or reporting to her First Aid post or ambulance station by night.

Britain, Alone

Oh, let them blush for very shame,
Who lift vile hands to cast a stone
When England stands mid deadly flame
And bears the brunt of war alone.

Then let our prayers with ardour rise,
To call the Hosts of Heaven down,
That God, attention to our cries
May Britain's cause with triumph crown.

(The above was sent to Mr. Fred Hart, local Inspector of Weights and Measures, by E. C. Way, Director of Weights and Measures, Ottawa. It personifies the true spirit of Britain and in itself is worthy of passing on to the general public.)

CHURCHILL'S

Some sources expressed belief that the speech, coupled with broad hints in London that Britain has been "pulling punches" recently against the Italians, was an unmistakable indication that Britain is ready to crush Italy with the vast weight of her military force if Italians fail to take advantage of Mr. Churchill's dramatically-timed invitation to quit following Mussolini.

Italians in Mood to Listen

Other circles pointed out that the deeply religious Italian people might be in mood to listen to Mr. Churchill at the Christmas season.

It has been reported in London that the Italian people do not have their hearts in the war and are saddened by war losses and severe economic conditions.

Further, since the Italian reverses in Albania and Africa, both official and unofficial reports have quoted Italian prisoners as saying they did not want to go to war.

It was pointed out authoritatively in this connection, that Mr. Churchill attacked Mussolini alone at an hour when the German raiders are increasing their threat to Britain, Nazi submarines are intensifying their campaign, and an invasion is stated still to be possible.

Some circles borrowed an American phrase and said the speech was an "or else" warning uttered in confidence that Britain would be able to implement it to the full.

Mr. Churchill couched his three-fold appeal in these terms:

"One man and one man alone ordered Italian soldiers to ravage their neighbor's vineyard. The time has come when the Italian monarchy and people who guard the sacred centre of Christendom should have a word to say upon these awe-inspiring issues.

"Surely the Italian army, which has fought so bravely on many occasions in the past but now evidently has no heart for the job, should take some care of the life and future of Italy."

EASTERN CANADA

Four days ago a similar earthquake rumbled through Eastern Canada and the United States without causing damage. The disturbances occurred about 3.30 a.m.

New England Jarred

Slight earth shocks also were felt throughout the New York Metropolitan area at 9.46 a.m. EDT. The tremors were felt from Brooklyn to the Bronx.

Reports flooding into newspaper offices throughout the region indicated the trembling first was felt between 9.43 and 9.44 a.m. EDT.

No damage was indicated in any section although the tremors were felt over many hundreds of miles inland from the coast.

In Brockton, Mass., the 'quake was described as worse than last week's distinctly rattling dishes and shaking furniture.

Toronto, Dec. 24 (CP)—The seismograph at University of Toronto was out of order and failed to record the earth tremor that shook Eastern Canada and United States today, but Toronto residents reported the shock was more distinct than last week's tremor.

Newspapers reported a number of telephone calls from all over the city. One man, Frank Davis, said he heard a loud explosion and thought his house was coming down. Apparently the earth tremor was most severe in York Township northwest of the city, where windows rattled and furniture swayed. One woman said she was awakened by the shock.

Felt at Owen Sound

Owen Sound, Ont., Dec. 24 (CP)—Three distinct shocks were felt here today when a tremor shook the city at approximately 9.45 a.m. (EDT).

The shocks occurred within a few seconds of each other but were not sufficiently severe to cause any damage.

Newspapers Called

Ottawa, Dec. 24 (CP)—What appeared to be an earth tremor was felt in Ottawa today about 9.45 a.m. EDT.

Residents from various sections of the city called newspapers to say that dishes rattled and shook on shelves in their homes.

At the Dominion Observatory it was said similar reports had been received and arrangements were made for immediate development of th seismograph record to determine the extent of earth tremors.

Only last week a quake was felt in Ottawa.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 24 (AP)—Slight earth tremors were felt at 9.46 a.m. EDT today in Connecticut.

Local Surface 'Quake

New York, Dec. 24 —(AP)—Father Joseph J. Lynch, seismologist at Fordham University, described today's earthquake in the Eastern States as "more of a local surface quake, but rather more severe than usual."

He said the shock was first recorded here at 9:44:35 a.m. EDT with the centre being "about 320 miles distance" from New York.

He said it was "a little bit heavier" than the tremors which shook the northeastern seaboard five days ago, and added he would "not rate it as a regular, deep earthquake."

LOST SUNRISE

INSTALMENT 17

"Well, anyway, Tryrena and Aunt Sis and Mother simply fight for her," Gwen said, at random, her heart beating fast. Should she —no, she couldn't tell Sheila!

Gwen sat by the sitting-room stove in the late afternoon, with little Fanny in her lap, and tried to think it all out.

Suppose she just put Van off until after election? No, she couldn't do that. He was much too smart; he'd see through that. It wouldn't be honest, anyway. Suppose she told Link? Was he strong enough, did he love Sheila enough to hide from her the fact that he knew—but what earthly good would that do? Link's knowing wouldn't alter the plans of the Miller forces.

Detestable, despicable, for a man to hold a threat like this over a woman! How much love and trust could she conceivably give Van if she married him under such circumstances! She had begged him to be merciful, and he had refused. Was any wife likely to forget that?

Well, and he had begged her to marry him, and she had refused too. But that was different. What he proposed to do was cruel and low. She had merely been begging for her sister's happiness and honor. Gwen began to tremble again as she thought of the balance in which that happiness and honor were held now. They would stop Link by any means that came into their power, and Van Bellamy held those means in the palm of his hand. And he was unbalanced, nervous, passionate, the kind of man who could make with a woman, even if he loved her, the bargain he had tried to make with Gwen last night.

Dark came and suppertime and Fanny was put to bed, and presently little Fanny's parents, flushed and jaded and triumphant after new successes, came home, and there was cribbage again in the parlor, and a crazy game of bridge, and still Gwen was no nearer to a solution to her problem.

But after wakeful hours, when she lay watching the autumn moonlight move in squares and angles across her bedroom floor, quite suddenly and simply she knew what she must do, and after that she slept.

Next morning Gwen and Peter started for Sacramento with Sheila and Link, an expedition that promised excitement all the way along. They were to lunch at a men's club, go on to two afternoon meetings, have rooms in the luxurious hotel on the park for rest and supper, and then attend the big mass meeting, when Link was to make his real speech. Her companions were in such spirits that Gwen felt her own horror of oppression all the more.

When after the afternoon round they reached the hotel. They were given a beautiful suite of large rooms where various enthusiastic men were already gathered awaiting them: reporters were there, photographers, policticians. The governor came in. Presently, without announcement, Van Bellamy was one of the group. He knew some of the men; Gwen saw that there was no particular enthusiasm evinced at the sight of this representative of the enemy camp, and felt a chill in her soul. But Van was magnetic; he carried his own welcome. And he lost no time in explaining that he was not after secrets; he wanted to speak to Mrs. Baker's sister.

"You're going to have a tremendous crowd tonight, Mr. Baker. The hall opens at half past seven and they're lining up already. Looks like a big night!" he said, cordially. Immediately he drew Gwen aside.

"It's after six now. Will you come to dinner with me down-stairs? I have to see you."

"If you'll wait," Gwen said after a moment. "I'll be down. I'll freshen up a little—there's no one in my room. Peter's going off with Link and a lot of men. Sheila and I begged off."

"I'll wait for you at the entrance to the dining room," Van went away, and Gwen went in to explain to Sheila.

"I'm going downstairs to have some supper with Mr. Bellamy. Want me to order for you first?"

"Oh, Gwen, why? You don't like him, and he belongs to that Miller crowd that's saying such awful things about Link."

"Well, I think I ought to. He wants me to."

"Has he got some hold over you?" Sheila asked, really disturbed. "I don't see why you don't tell him you're engaged to someone else, and not interested."

"Well, I may. Tonight. "Gwen brushed her hair and powdered her face, and met Van a few minutes later. He led her to a sheltered corner of the dining-room.

His voice, his eyes, his vibrant and dominating personality roused her from her feeling of despair as he said, "You've thought this over, Gwen, and talked it over with your sister. What does she say?"

"No." Gwen paused, spoke slowly with an effort. "I didn't speak to Sheila about it. I couldn't. This is —my affair. She couldn't do anything. I can. And you can. You — could. I know—I've been thinking all day that you will."

"I've been hoping all day, Gwen. Hardly daring to hope—"

Her heavy eyes were raised to his. "Suppose," she began, still speaking with the same difficulty and slowness, "suppose I said to you that I would marry you. What happiness could possibly come of that? If I didn't want to. If I loved another man's—as I do. If I despised you."

"You wouldn't despise me. You'd find your real happiness in marrying me. Marriage is different from what you think it is, Gwen," he urged eagerly. "After a few months the real values begin to show themselves. You'd be secure. You'd have a position, an income. Marrying poverty, in a strange place, isn't what it sounds like! You've got to come down to common sense, sooner or later. You've got to see the realities. And then it may be too late to change a romantic dream for a solid, comfort?able—"

"I don't htink that's the question," Gwen interrupted coldly and wearily. "The question concerns—my sister. I can't—I can't let you do anything that will wreck her life. I can't understand—I can't understand your being willing to do it, or to consider it! It's not—it's not right that one human being should have such power over another. And you're mistaken if you think I could ever forget or forgive it!"

"If you married me you would."

"You don't believe that yourself! I wish I had the courage to call your bluff," Gwen said. "You wouldn't blackmail her. Why, the world despises blackmailers! You couldn't ever hold up your head in the presence of decent people again. You'd never dare do it."

"I'm not running her life, nor proposing to," Van answered. "A man doesn't have to be sent to Congress to live a successful life! Baker has a dozen chances for fame and fortune if he drops out now. They don't call it blackmail in politics, Gwen.

"I could go to your sister now," he went on, as Gwen remained silent, staring fixedly at him, "and persuade her to get her husband to withdraw. It wouldn't mean poverty for him, or anything for her except an attack of nerves. She could say it was not wanting to leave her mother, wanting to be in San Francisco. And then I could go to that room I've just left where those fellows have been smoking cigars all day, racking their brains to get something to stop this Baker landslide, and say to these gentlemen, just a word. I have every reason to believe that James G. Baker will withdraw his candidacy before this time tomorrow.'

"You don't know what that would mean to me. They've thrown me a lot of business, they're throwing me business all the time. I'd get so much that in a few years I wouldn't need them; I'd have built up all I wanted. I'd be the biggest political power in this state. After all, Gwen, there was an affair, and there was a love nest; there's no getting away from that!"

"Hush!" she said. And then, after a pause: "What I've been thinking all day, what I've come down to say to you, is that I have to accept your terms whatever they are. I've no choice. If it wasn't my sister, it would be her baby, and if it wasn't for either of them it would be for Link, what he stands for, what he's done already."

There was a silence. Gwen did not look up. "You mean," Van asked in a whisper, after a long time, "That you will marry me?"

"I will do my very best, Van."

"You give me your word?"

"Oh yes. It's hard for me to think how I will do it, or if I can do it," Gwen said simply; "but if I can I will."

"You will marry me, Gwen?"

"If you want me to. But I want that letter and every bit of evidence you've got that incriminates my sister!" Gwen added the last phrase almost savagely.

"You make me the happiest man in the world, my darling," Van said; "don't look so sober about it! I'll make you happy, Gwen. In a few years, dearest, on our fourth or fifth anniversary, you'll laugh at all this. You're promising me, aren't you?" he broke off to ask anxiously. "You're solemly promising me, Gwen?"

"I do solemnly promise. Yes," she was speaking lifelessly, looking away with a little frown as she spoke, as if her head-ached.

"It will be the object of my life to see that you are never sorry, Gwen!"

"There's one thing," she said, laying her unresponsive hand in the hand he stretched eagerly across the table. "There isn't any other evidence, anything else like this note anywhere, is there?" Nobody else knows anything?"

"Nobody. And you and I'll be married next Wednesday, the day after election, Gwen. Promise!"

Her honest blue eyes, heavy with fatigue and despair, were raised to his. "I promise," she said, very low.

Instantly he took from his pocketbook a folded slip of paper. Gwen felt a sensation of weakness and sickness as she opened it and smoothed it on the table. Sheila's handwriting, no mistake. For a moment she could not read it. The price of her life. The price of her happiness. The end to that dream of the Edinburgh rooms, the coke fire, the toasting muffins, and Dick putting the kettle on the hob. The end of love.

"Read it," Van said quietly. "I want you to know what it says."

SCOTT'S Y.P.U.

The regular meeting of the LUD.G. class of Scott's Church was held at the home of Miss Jean Badgley on Wednesday, Dec. 18. The meeting was opened in the usual manner. A hymn was then sung. The roll call was answered by something pertaining to Christmas. Scripture lesson was read by Nina Sine after which a hymn was sung.

Readings were given by Lottie Scea, Joyce Sine, and Edison Sine. We were then favoured by a duet by Mr. Godwin and Jean Badgley. Mrs. Badgley then gave a very fine quizz contest, prizes were given to the best girl Lottie Scea and the best boy Edison Sine. Rev. Mr. Scott then conducted the election of officers for a young people's union.

President: Jean Badgley; Secretary, Edison Sine; Treasurer, Carl Sine; Conveners, 1 Christian Fellowship, Geraldine Sine; 2 Citizenship, Mr. Godwin; 3 Mission, Nina Sine; 4 Christian Culture, Lottie Scea.

Man's

Heating engineers state that the "double standard" of temperature for men and women complicates the problem of the engineer and increases the expence of heating and cooling office buildings.

When a man and women engage in a game of bridge at home or at the home of a friend, either the woman is comfortable and the man uncomfortably hot, or the woman feels "chilly" and throws something over her shoulders and the man is quite comfortable. It is this difference in what men and women call comfort that has led many to believe that women are not so warm blooded as men.

Is this true? An editorial in the American Medical Association Journal states that women prefer higher temperatures than men not so much because of any difference in constitution as for the clothing they wear. Thus experiments showed that the temperature of the skin of women under ordinary circumstances in room of 71.5 F. and 30% humidity, with the movement of the air in the room 20 feet per minute was 2 degrees lower than that of men. The feet and hands of women averaged 5 degrees cooler than the men's while the trunk was only half a degree cooler than men's. When most of the men in a room were comfortable, the women generally were cold. To make the women comfortable the room temperature had to be raised to 76 F. then the men began to complain. When the men and women were dressed alike they were comfortable at about the same temperature.

"Men were dressed in women's summer clothing; then they demanded a temperature of 80 degrees,, which was the same as that preferred by women similarly dressed. Women were dressed in men's winter clothes then the comfortable air temperature for them went down to 70.5 or a degree lower than that preferred by the men wearing the same clothes. In almost all instances both men and women were comfortable when the temperature of their skin was from 91.5 to 93 F., regardless of the temperature of the room, the amount of clothing, and the season of the year."

The lesson from the above, pointed out by the editorial, is that if women would dress in winter in clothes similar in warmth to those of men, they would be comfortable in a temperature of 70 degrees instead of 76 degrees. If men would take off their coats, vests, and collars in summer, buildings would not have to be cooled below 85 degrees instead of 76 to 80.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, Well Willyum, Chrissmas is almost due to make its annual pilgrimage, whether we like it or whether we dislike it, and I don't want you to think for a moment that I've forgotten our hidebound unwritten rule that I'm never under the slightest circumstances to buy you cigars for Chrissmas.

I haven't forgotten it and I'm slightly alarmed to hear you remembering it, pop said, and ma said, Oh, dont worry, I haven't committed myself. But I just thought I'd tell you about Blanten Hipple's oldest son, she said.

How's he doing, I never heard of him, pop said, and ma said, It seems he's in the wholesale cigar business, including importing and all that sort of thing, and if I just give him the word he'll get me 200 positively Havanna cigars at a really laughable price. Of course it's not the money I'm thinking of, it's just the chance to get you 200 wonderful cigars imagine, Willyum, 2 hundred, she said.

I'm trying to let the idea sink in, pop said. Okay, it's a marvellous idea. It's more blessed to give than to receeve, and sometimes it's a lot wiser, he said, and ma said, Now just where does that enter in?

If I only give away one cigar a day I can feel like a philanthropist for 200 days, pop said. I was going to say 199 days, but on 2nd thoughts I realize it wont even be necesserry to smoke one myself to find out how terrible they are, I'll know by their shape and color and their peculiar lack of aroma, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum that doesn't even make sense, because if the cigars were as bad as you make out, how would you be such a public bennyfactor by giving them away?

Because my deer a cigar that's unexpectedly handed out always tastes good independent of its quality, pop said, and ma said, Well, dont raise your hopes, I'm not going to get you cigars.

Being the end of the subject.

CENTENARY Y.P.U.

The regular Centenary Y.P.U. meeting was held at the church with an attendance of 23. The worship service opened with a hymn, followed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Mercer. The Scripture was given by Aileen Radford. The topic "Good Samaritan" was given by the convener June Hall and a hymn was sung. It was decided to give $8.00 to Missionary Maintenance. The election of officers took place as follows: President, Ray Hall; Secretary Verna Keene; Treasurer, Coza Colvert; Christian Fellowship Convener, Aneta Calvert; Recreation, June Hall; Citizenship Convener, Hazel Keene; Missionary, Arthur Calvert; Pianist, Elinor Roblin; Assistant Pianist, June Hall; Press Reporter, Verna Keene; Representative to Red Cross, Mrs. Mercer; Representative on Official Board, Ray Hall.

Picton and District

Picton, Dec. 24—Post Office has been swamped by a flood of mail for the past several days. The entire staff worked all day Sunday and succeeded in catching up with deliveries.

The mail is a record one this year. The presence of five hundred R.C.A.F. men here, many with families, results in several extra bags of letters and cards a day being received at the Post Office, as well as many parcels.

Work of handling letters and cards would be much easier if they were tied in bunches when dropped into the boxes, since when they are loose they must be gathered up and put through the machine to cancel the stamps.

The Post Office staff has done fine work but are handicapped by the fact that no extra help was made available, though this was requested of the Postal Department it was understood.

Christmas Concert

With Willis Sills, S.S. superintendent, presiding, the following program was given at Cherry Valley hall; orchestra, musical number, Mission Band, dialogue, "The Sick Doll"; song, Mrs. Sam Dodds' class; solo, Carol Beckwith; chorus, junior room; dialogues, junior room; song and guitar, Arlie Pounder; drill by senior room; Rhythm Band; reading, Olive Sills; dialogue Mrs. A. Beckwith's class; dialogue "Buying Eggs"; dialogue, "Bungtown Lyceum," senior room; play, Mrs. G. Bell's class; quartette, Merle Wood, Olga Balutansky, Mary Bell, Mary Welsh. The final number was "There'll Always be an England," each child carrying a Union Jack.

Presentations were made to Mrs. Helen Lauder who is leaving the school, by the school and the S.S., the latter in appreciation of her assistance at the concerts. Mrs. Lauder and Owen Smith, P. S. teachers, combined with the S. S. in arranging the fine program. Santa Claus (A. B. Fennell) distributed gifts from the tree.

Mrs. Arthur Heffer, Belleville, is a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Crawford. Mr. Heffer will join her for Christmas.

Cpl. Morte Shannon of Kingston is with his family for Christmas.

Mrs. Jesse Cole of Huntingdon, Quebec, spent the week-end with her daughter, Mrs. Tom Lewis, Belleville and is now a guest of her daughter, Mrs. Brian Dodds.

Sgt. and Mrs. Clifford Crawford are up from Kingston for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Case of Napanee who were guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Case here this week, will go to Campbellford for Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barnum.

Ted Burley of Albert College is spending holidays with his grandmother here.

Miss Clara Croft will spend the holiday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Grant of Three Rivers, Quebec, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. McCaw.

Aircraftsman Gordon Nourse, Toronto, is a guest of his mother, Mrs. Sidna Nourse.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johns of Montreal are with Mrs. A. E. Calnan for Christmas.

Many of the airmen are leaving tonight to spend Christmas at their homes. Others are being entertained in local homes and all will be guests at a Christmas party given by the I.O.D.E. on Christmas night.

Mrs. Mervyn Rogers is ill at the home of her mother, Mrs. George Cooper.

Mrs. Davison and children and Dr. and Mrs. Hedley Welbanks, Belleville, will be Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Palmatier.

SNOW FALLS IN ENGLAND

Comedy clash of the century pits Fred Allen, seconded by lovely Mary Martin, against his radio enemy, Jack Benny, abetted by charming Veree Teasdale, in the uproarious fun and melody film, "Love Thy Neighbor," featuring Rochester, coming to the Belle Theatre Christmas day.

Bancroft

Bancroft, Dec. 24.—The pupils of Bancroft Public School held their annual Christmas Concert in Community Hall, Thursday evening, under the supervision of their teachers. The lengthy programme which consisted of choruses, drills, monologues, dialogues, plays was well appreciated by the audience which packed the hall and the pupils' parents were delighted with the way their respective children performed.

The Sunday School of St. John's Anglican Church held its annual Christmas tree and treat in the Orange Hall Friday evening under the leadership of the Rev. G. A. Gordier. A short programme was held after supper was served and each child was presented with a gift, fruit and candies from the tree.

Many of the teachers from Bancroft and surrounding district left for their various homes Friday for the Christmas holiday which this year is quite a lengthy vacation.

Mr. Jack McAlpine, Miss Marie McAlpine and Miss Gladys Kennedy of Elmira motored into town Saturday and will spend a few days with relatives.

Mr. C. Stringer, local representative for Dodge and DeSoto, sponsored a show entitled "Wheels Across Africa" in the community hall, Bancroft, Friday evening, which show was made possible by the Chrysler Corporation.

County Constable G. P. Wells was about to leave on a trip with Provincial Constable S. W. Palmateer and two officers of the R.C.M.P. on Friday when the former was stricken suddenly with an attack of plural pneumonia. He was removed to the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital where his condition is now quite favorable.

Mrs. James Colling and Miss L. Vance motored to Belleville on Friday and on their return home they were accompanied by the former's daughter, Mrs. Douglas Cornell and her daughter, who will spend the Christmas holiday with the family in Bancroft.

Many of the town's residents are confined to their various homes through an epidemic of influenza which has become quite prevalent in the village.

Mr. Charles Gray has returned to his home in Bancroft to spend the Christmas holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Marston of Sault Ste. Marie arrived in Bancroft by motor on Sunday and will spend the holiday at the home of the latter's parent, Mrs. E. Hagerman.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Gorman of Toronto are spending the Christmas holiday with relatives in town.

Many of the boys in the several training centres returned home Saturday to spent the Christmas holiday with their parents.

FEEDS EVERY NEEDY PERSON

Boise, Idaho, Dec. 24 (AP)—Twenty-five years ago this Christmas George Cordes went hungry. Five years later he was able for the first time to keep a vow, made that day. He's kept it annually since—by feeding every needy person entering his restaurant on Christmas. Last year there were 265. He's ready for 350 tomorrow.

Look into the eyes of a child and capture, even for a day, the pleasure and peace that is the heritage of this day of days

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

To our friends and customers, our warmest appreciation for the happy relations we have enjoyed with you, and for your generous patronage during the past year.

To our staff, on my own behalf and on that of the Directors, our hearty thanks for your loyalty and co-operation throughout 1940.

To one and all our Best Wishes for Christmas—and for Happiness in the New Year.

Strategic Mountain Height at Chimara Held by the Greeks

Italian Officers Taken Prisoners Estimate 45,000 Italians Wounded in Campaign

Athens, Dec. 27 (AP).—One of the fiercest battles of the Greek-Italian war was reported raging today in the Klisura sector of Albania, where the Italians were said to have concentrated huge reinforcements in an effort to defend a vital mountain pass gateway to the north and west.

A heavy snowstorm and bitter cold weather severely handicapped military operations but reports from the front said fighting was developing on an increasingly broad scale both before the pass itself and to the north of Klisura, where the Greeks were threatening to cut a highway to Berat, farther north.

Despite the determined Italian resistance, the Greeks were said to have captured new positions along with Italian prisoners and war materials.

In the central sector, Greek military advices said bitter fighting continued throughout yesterday.

"Greek forces continued to advance and undertook a new offensive against the enemy, who tried to resist in his defence line," one dispatch said.

Enemy Suffers Heavy Losses.

"The aims of our troops were accomplished without sacrifice, whereas the enemy suffered losses in his effort to defend his ground inch by inch.

"Fresh Italian reinforcements lost morale as soon as they realized the Greek determination."

Another report described the battle in the Klisura sector as "of exceptional importance".

"Realizing the great importance of Klisura pass, the Italians concentrated as many forces as they could in their determination to frustrate at any cost the plans of the general staff," this account went on.

"With each passing day, however, the battle is turning to the advantage of Greek troops."

In the coastal area, where the Greeks are fighting toward the vital Albanian port of Valona, the Greeks reported a continuing advance but acknowledged that there, too, the Italians were putting up stiffer resistance. They said there were indications the Fascist forces were preparing an elaborate defence of Valona.

Fighting on the snow-carpeted northern front was said to be progressing with Greek infantry attacks "on a fairly large scale" and with heavy artillery duels.

Captured Italian officers, talking with correspondents at the front, said strong Italian defences lay in the path of Greek forces battling up the coast toward Valona. They estimated that the Greek campaign

HEAVY GERMAN TROOP MOVEMENT THROUGH HUNGARY

40 Military Trains Daily Being Sent to Rumania Along With Equipment

SHIFT 30,000 MEN

Budapest, Dec. 27.— (AP)—All passenger train service between Hungary and Rumania will be suspended December 29, until January 16 ,it was reported reliably today.

This was interpreted here as connected with the curtailment of Hungarian domestic service to permit nearly forty German military trains to pass daily through Hungary en route to Rumania.

Germany is shifting nearly 300,000 soldiers along with considerable quantities of equipment to Rumania before January 31, diplomatic sources reported here previously.

Brave Dutch People Wonderfully Helping Cause of Britain

London, Dec. 27 — (CP) — The British Broadcasting Corporation last night broadcast an "impressive summary" of the war effort of The Netherlands, and said the setting up of a new Anglo - Netherlands committee on economic affairs "provides further evidence of the magnificent co-operation which the brave Dutch people are giving Great Britain in the fight against the common enemy."

"Dutch cruisers and destroyers are helping in convoy duty in the Atlantic, their submarines hunt for enemy craft, and gunboats and other small naval units guard river entrances," the BBC said. "In addition no fewer than 3,000,000 tons of merchant shipping are under charter to Great Britain.

"On land, a Dutch legion has been formed consisting partly of trained troops from Holland, partly of new recruits called up in Great Britain."

Up to last week, The Netherlands had handed over £745,000 (about $3,315,250) to Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, while another fund had reached a total of £810,000, the BBC said.

"Next year, the Dutch will spend about $178,000,000 on their defence forces alone," the BBC added.

'Didn't Like to Shoot Wounded Man' That is Why Hitler is Alive Today

Coventry, Dec. 27—(CP)—Hitler is alive today because a British soldier on the western front in the First Great War "didn't like to shoot a wounded man."

The wounded man was Corporal Adolf Hitler who ran away when the "Tommy," Corporal Henry Tandey, led nine men in a successful attack against German machine-gun positions at Menin Sept. 28, 1918.

Tandey was awarded the Victoria Cross for his outstanding bravery and leadership. He settled down here after the war and during the last sixteen years has worked as a commissionaire in a Coventry factory. Recently his home was bombed in the ferocious German air attacks against the Midlands city and it was there he related the Menin exploit.

"For several days I and my platoon had held up a large German contingent with our two small Lewis guns," said Tandey, who is the only living N.C.O. with the right to wear the V.C., the Distinguished Conduct Medal, the Military Medal and the Mons Star.

"The Germans had 16 machine guns, but one by one we picked off the members of the gun crews.

"Eventually we decided to polish these Jerries off, so I rigged up a plank bridge for the others to get across and charge them."

This "rigging up the plank bridge" meant 15 minutes' cool work under a hail of machine gun fire from the enemy.

Only Nine Made Other Side

"Then we dashed across," Tandey said. "Only nine of us made it. We were hopelessly outnumbered. So I told the boys to fix bayonets and charge. The Germans fled and we took about 37 prisoners.

"The fleeing Jerries were led by a corporal. I was going to pick him off but he was wounded and I didn't like to shoot at a wounded man. But if I'd known who he'd turn out to be, I'm damned if he'd have got off — I'd give ten years now to have had five minutes of clairvoyance then."

SECOND DIVISION AT FULL STRENGTH IN GREAT BRITAIN

Eighth Large Contingent of Canadians Arrived Safely After Rough Voyage

TROOPS WELCOMED

Maj.-Gen. Odlum, Commander of Division, Delighted at Progress Made

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadian Army Somewhere in England, Dec. 27 —(CP—Cable)— Canada's 2nd Division was brought to full strength today following arrival of the eighth large contingent of Canadian troops for the newly-formed Canadian Army Corps under the command of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton.

Arriving at the same time was the third group of Canadians trained under the Empire Air Training scheme, and with them from Canada came the first contingent of Australian air graduates.

They arrived as Hon. J. L. Ralston, Canadian Minister of National Defence, paid his first visit to the encampments of the Dominion's men overseas, and expressed himself as more than satisfied with the progress they have made.

TEN AXIS SHIPS UNDER SCRUTINY

Possibly One German and Nine Italian Ships May Make Dash for Open Sea

Mexico City, Dec. 27 (AP). — Sources in the Navy Department here said one German and nine Italian ships now at refuge in Tampico harbor were under close watch of port authorities in the belief that they would soon attempt to dash into the Atlantic.

These sources reported that swift new development of anti-axis sentiment in the United States had given rise to fears in Rome and Berlin that Washington might ask the Mexican government to seize or intern the vessels.

The German ship is the 9,660-ton Orinoco, only survivor of four Nazi vessels which sought vainly on two occasions during the last three months to escape.

Raider Sailing Under Japanese Name, Colors Says Premier Menzies

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 27 (CP).—A sea raider sailing under a Japanese name and flying Japanese colors heavily shelled the British-mandated island of Nauru shortly after daybreak today, it was announced by Prime Minister R. G. Menzies.

Why a raider should single out this 5,400-acre Pacific atoll near the equator for a bombardment was unexplained. However, as a Guano island, Nauru is valuable for its phosphates.

(As for the attack itself, official sources in London could go no further than Mr. Menzies' announcement but they said a German raider is known to have been operating in that part of the Pacific in recent months.)

Buildings Damaged.

Buildings and a plant on the island were said to have been damaged heavily. (The type of plant was not specified but Nauru is known to have a radio station.)

"Nauru is entirely undefended

ROUND-ROBIN TELEGRAM FAVORS PLAN FOR AID

169 Prominent Americans Urge Roosevelt to "Do Everything Necessary to Insure Defeat of Axis Powers"

OPPOSITION REPORTED

Washington, Dec. 27 (CP).—Upon the heels of Thursday's announcement that a group of prominent citizens had urged President Roosevelt to "do everything . . . necessary to insure defeat of the axis powers" came efforts today to organize opposition in Congress to Mr. Roosevelt's aid-to-Britain policy.

Senator Patrick McCarran (Dem.-Nevada) declared that "there will be a decided move in the senate for restitution of real neutrality".

"Real neutrality does not result from furnishing the implements of war," he told reporters. "It will be possible to organize a sufficient group which, working independently, will support a positive policy against war."

Some senators argued that the administration should seek to bring peace in Europe by negotiation.

Ask Clear Bold Statement.

A round-robin telegram signed by 169 prominent Americans pledged to the President "complete approval" of the plan to lend arms to Britain and urged the President to tell the country "clearly and boldly" of the chances of British defeat and the consequences to the United States of such an eventuality.

The telegram was made public at the White House without comment. Lewis W. Douglas, former budget director and formerly principal of McGill University, said at New York that he was one of the originators of the round robin.

Senator Vandenburg's View.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep., Michigan) said in a statement that if the time has come for "unlimited American underwriting of British war objectives, then certainly the time has come for these objectives to be authentically declared."

He said:

"It is not appeasement, it is simply enlightened self interest, to inquire at any time whether a rational basis may not be found upon which to terminate this destruction."

Vandenberg said he favored aid to Britain "within the present limits— (1) that we do not become a co-belligerent unless we are directly challenged and (2) that we do not dissipate the essential nucleus of our own defence."

Senator Rush Holt (Dem.-West Virginia), who will retire at the end of the present session, asked Mr. Roosevelt in a broadcast to "use your powerful office" to get the warring nations to settle their difficulties around a peace table.

TWO WERE HELD

Toronto, Dec. 27—(CP)—Donald Borden, 32, and Franklin Perkins, 23, both colored, were arrested on charges of assault and robbery early today after two men reported they were knocked down by two colored men. Steve Molnar, one of the men, told police he was robbed of $7.

Australia Stands Ever With Empire

Singapore, Dec. 27 (CP). — Percy Spender, Australian army minister, on a flying visit to Singapore with the chief of the Australian general staff, Lt.-Gen. V. A. H. Sturdee, said in an interview today that "our desire is that the three great nations facing the Pacific — the United States, Japan and Australia—live in amity."

He said Australia considers Singapore "vital as a link in Empire communications".

"Let there be no apprehension about where Australia stands—with the empire at all times," he declared. "There never has been, and never will be, any basis of misunderstanding on this point."

He said the war has brought the United States and Australia closer, as shown by their exchange of ministers, and that Australia has sent Sir John Latham as her new minister to Japan as a sign of her desire for peace in the Pacific.

Mr. Spender expressed the view that Australia has contributed greatly to British Empire defence by assuring her own defence and placing herself on a full war footing with minimum disturbance, "thanks to scientific planning and the willingness of our people".

Besides enlisting 130,000 men for overseas service and providing 30,000 for the empire air scheme, he said, Australia has laid the foundation for a home army of 200,000. By spring, he added, 150,000 Australians will be engaged in munitions production.

November Index Four Per Cent Higher Than Level of Year Ago

Ottawa, Dec. 27 (CP)—Rising prices of fuel, food and home furnishings lifted the cost of living index maintained by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics to 107.8 in November compared with 107.0 in October the Bureau reported today.

The November index is almost four per cent higher than the level a year ago and approximately seven per cent higher than in September, 1939, first month of the war, the report said.

With prices of dairy products, eggs, groceries and fruits increasing, the index for 46 food items rose to 108.7 in November, against 106.1 in October. Meat and vegetable prices dropped slightly.

The fuel and lighting index increased from 108.0 to 108.5 as a result of a moderate rise in coal and coke prices. Index of home furnishings was 110.0 compared with 109.7.

BYRD'S POLAR SHIP TO BRING MEN HOME

Dunedin, New Zealand, Dec. 27 (CP).—Rear-Admiral Richard Byrd's polar ship, the Bear, will sail for "Little America" tomorrow to bring home the men of the United States Antarctic expedition, recalled when the United States Congress refused funds for another year's work.

The coastguard cutter North Star, which sailed from Seattle, Wash., early this month, is due here Jan. 12 and will join the Bear at the Antarctic base to help in the removal. The ships are expected to call first at the west base and then at the east, on the South American side of the polar area.

BRITISH BOMBERS HAMMER TARGETS AT BORDEAUX

Several Airdromes Also Attacked in Daylight in Revival of Air War

HAZE OVER CHANNEL

On Defensive Side of Air War There Was a Night-long Lull in London

London, Dec. 27—(CP) — Small forces of British bombers hammered at targets in the invasion port of Bordeaux, German - occupied France, last night and attacked several airdromes in daylight yesterday, it was announced today.

The revival of the air war after a Christmas truce which was marred yesterday by a one-plane German bombing of the Island of Sheppey was followed by a burst of activity by German long-range guns.

Nazi big guns fired for 2 1-2 hours at the Dover area but no damage was reported.

U. S. May Assist In Strengthening British Convoys

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)— There was speculation in Washington today on a suggestion that the United States Administration soon might take another step to strengthen the British convoys now striving to protect shipments of food and war materials from Nazi submarine and plane attacks.

Official estimates of the number of additional destroyers needed by the British Admiralty ranged from 100 to 400. The United States Government already has traded 50 over-age destroyers for the right to lease naval and air base sites.

Some naval officers are opposed to the transfer of additional destroyers unless the United States gets in exchange something which possesses a military value comparable to the base sites.

Other quarters suggested that the British might acquire light, speedy submarine chasers from the United States.

The Navy now has three newly-completed submarine chasers and two others nearing completion. They have a smaller operating range than destroyers, but can be built in much less time.

Meanwhile, some sort of action by the Roosevelt Administration to bolster Britain's merchant fleet was reported imminent.

WAR ON RATS

Chicago, Dec. 27—(AP) — Public Works Commissioner Oscar E. Hewitt estimates casualties of more than 50 per cent in the city's 4 1-2 months' old rat war. He said about 870,000 rats have died since a poison bait project was launched last Aug. 10, against an estimated 830,000 survivors.

Recognition of Albania by U. S. Withheld Until Charges Disproved

By LLOYD LEHRBAS,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 27—(AP)—After fifteen years of secrecy, the State Department today disclosed the United States had withheld recognition of Albania in 1925 until satisfied that King Zog — now an exile in Britain—was not implicated in the slaying of two Americans.

The King—then known as Ahmet Zogu ("The Bird")—was the hereditary chieftain of 13 Albanian tribes whose ancestors had fought the Turks for 500 years.

The hitherto unpublished State Department dispatches disclosed that Ulysses Grant-Smith, the American Minister at Tirana, reported Zogu once had been sentenced by an Albanian court "as one of those responsible" for the slaying of the Americans.

Zogu was exonerated only after Charles Evans Hughes—then Secretary of State, and now Chief Justice of the United States—reviewed the trial records, found "political reasons" for the verdict and received assurances the actual slayers would be punished.

Ahmet Zogu changed his name to Zog, was elected president and later proclaimed King of Albania during a colorful and dangerous career in which he escaped assassination many times. When Italy invaded Albania in April, 1939, he fled with his wife and two-day-old son.

The Americans, Robert L. Coleman and George B. De Long, United States citizens, had been slain by bandits in the wilds of Albania on April 6, 1924.

British Planes, Guns Continue Bombardment

Go-Ahead Signal for Final Assault Expected Shortly

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 27 (AP).—Fall of the beleaguered Libyan port of Bardia awaits only the go-ahead signal of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, military circles declared today as British planes and big guns continued their steady bombardment of the estimated 20,000 Italian troops encircled there.

These sources expressed belief that the town could have been taken at any time within the past few days by direct assault but said the British commander was unwilling to sacrifice more troops than necessary.

Sir Archibald has been conducting his entire campaign in North Africa, during which the Italians were cleared out of Egypt in a lightning thrust that yielded more than 35,000 prisoners, on the policy of achieving the greatest gains with the least possible loss.

Re-export to Eire Of Several Commodities Restricted by Britain

London, Dec. 27 (AP). — Britain placed restrictions today upon the re-export to Eire of several commodities brought across the Atlantic in ships guarded by British guns.

The Board of Trade issued an order prohibiting exportation to Eire without licence of cattle feed, fertilizer, unmanufactured tobacco, oranges, lemons and several classes of tools.

Eire is a big cattle exporter, but depends upon imports for feed and fertilizer. She normally imports about £2,000,000 ($8,900,000) worth of corn annually, and a smaller amount of fertilizer.

Under the new order, effective Jan. 1, the Board of Trade can start or stop the flow of these commodities at will. Eire has no other source of supply except Britain.

Many Britons argue that Eire, because of her refusal to furnish bases from which the Admiralty could protect British convoys, should be deprived of the products the convoys bring from abroad.

(Eire has declared her neutrality and refused Britain the right to establish naval bases on her territory. In the last war Britain used several important Eire bases in the hunt for submarines.)

R.A.F. RECONNAISSANCE

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 27.—(AP)— The Royal Air Force Middle East command announced today that British planes made a reconnaissance flight over Naples on Christmas Day during which an Italian bomber was shot down.

Press Wants to Know What Kind of Peace Senators Would Like

New York, Dec. 27.—(CP)—New York's leading morning newspapers, dealing editorially with proposals advanced by Senators Burton Wheeler of Montana and Millard Tydings of Maryland that the United States take action with a view to ending the war, agreed today that no just peace is possible with Hitler .

"To talk of peace with Hitler is to talk of something which he has ruled from his consciousness except as an instrument of treachery, and to approach him on the subject is to play into his hands", said the Herald Tribune. "Peace in any guise other than that suffered by the German-occupied countries on the continent can only come with his elimination and that of the political philosophy he personifies. The British know this".

The Times declared Americans have no right to tell Britain whether she should or should not accept a negotiated peace and said the duty of the United States is to give British arms the full aid of the material resources of the country and to avoid injuring Britain's cause "by talking of a 'just' peace with Hitler". It said further:—

"These gentlemen like Senator Wheeler, who talk about using American influence to achieve a 'just' peace, what kind of peace have they to offer? Do they mean

RAINS HELP IN BREAKING UP ICE

Consistent rains of the past two days, causing a heavy flow of tributary water into the Moira River, are with the prevailing mild weather, causing a methodical disintegration of the ice-fields in the various stretches of the river.

Ever-widening channels of swiftly flowing water are gradually wearing away the ice. At that part of river near the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge the stream is practically clear.

In the bay, however, are many solid fields to the thickness of from six to eight inches.

SEVERAL CALLS MADE FOR HELP

Aftermath of Christmas brought a number of calls to Employment Bureau officials here. Although the office was closed a number of telephone calls were received at officials' homes, requesting the services of women to assist in clearing up the after-holiday "debris".

CONVICTED MAN DINES IN SOLITUDE

A lone man sat in the death-cell of Hastings County Jail and ate his Christmas dinner in solitude. He was Frederick Thain, convicted Rawdon Township slayer who goes to the gallows on January 14th. During the day he was visited by Salvation Army officials from Trenton.

Thain enjoyed a hearty meal of roast ham and dressing, vegetables and dessert, the same fare as other inmates of the jail.

OLD FOLKS ENJOY FINE CHRISTMAS AT COUNTY HOME

Upwards of ninety-five inmates of the Hastings County Home celebrated a real old-fashioned Christmas, with a treat, presents and a dinner that left nothing to be desired.

Roast goose and chicken plentifully garnished with vegetables and topped off with delicious dessert rounded out a meal that was enjoyed to the utmost by the aged people. In the morning, a brilliantly illuminated Christmas tree, heavily loaded with gifts, was the centre of attraction and many a heart was gladdened with a timely present.

An entertainment and light refreshments in the evening completed a most enjoyable holiday.

COLLISION ON HIGHWAY NARROWLY AVERTED

Some quick thinking and prompt action on the part of the driver of the Picton-Trenton passenger bus averted what might have been a serious accident on Thursday evening.

The bus had approached a culvert a few miles west of Wellington, when the lights of a car gleamed directly ahead.

A split second before the vehicles met, a piece of icy road caused the heavy bus to jerk momentarily out of control and careen toward the oncoming car. The driver sensed quickly what had happened and righted his bus in the nick of time, with only an inch to spare as the motor vehicles passed one another. The bus was loaded with passengers, but only the driver and the passengers occupying the immediate front seats of the vehicle sensed what had happened.

CORNER GROCERY STORE ENTERED

Forcing the front door by the use of a jimmy, robbers entered William Dennis' corner grocery on Pine St. some time Christmas eve and stole a quantity of cigarettes and small sundries. The break-in was discovered by P. C. Wright as he patrolled the outskirts of the city early Christmas day. The door was secure when examined by police some three hours prior to the discovery of the robbery. At least 35 packets of cigarettes were accounted as missing by Mr. Dennis after a check-up. A small amount of candies and other incidentals were also believed to have been stolen. Chief Kidd and Detective Fred Izard questioned several persons relative to their presence in the vicinity of the Dennis grocery during the early hours of Christmas Day but no arrests had been made at noon today.

11 MUNICIPALITIES HOLD NOMINATIONS NEXT MONDAY

Eleven Hastings County municipalities will select their reeves and councillors on Monday, December 30th., which has been officially designated as Nomination Day. The remainder of the county communities held elections or gave acclamations in early December. Included are the Townships of Sidney, Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Hungerford, Rawdon, Mayo, Carlow, Herschel and Monteagle, and Bangor, Wicklow and McLure, and the villages of Frankford and Stirling.

Rumblings of elections on the various fronts have been conspicuous by their absence, and according to county officials a large number of the municipalities will select their reeves and councillors by acclamation. However, it is rumored that an election fight is brewing in Tyendinaga where Reeve Stewart Dies will contest his seat with Deputy-Reeve W. H. White.

Four of the municipalities, Tyendinaga, Stirling, Carlow and Herschel and Monteagle will vote on the two-year term for their reeves and aldermen. Other municipality fathers will sit for two years automaticly.

REEVE W. J. DAVIS MAY BE NEW WARDEN

Although the first 1941 session of the Hastings County Council does not convene until January 21 when the warden for the coming year will be selected by his council colleagues, the name of Reeve. W. J. Davis, of Bangor, Wicklow and McLure Townships, is being prominently mentioned in municipal government circles, for the office.

Reeve Davis, however, may have to race an election when nomination day rolls around on Monday, December 30th. He has represented his township for a number of years, and is very popular with members of the council. He has occupied the chairmanship of various council committees during his tenure of office.

TRANSIENTS ENJOY CHRISTMAS DINNER

Thanks to the philanthropic gesture of a local citizen, who wishes to remain anonymous, nine transients enjoyed the healthy repast of a delightful Christmas dinner with all of the conventional trimmings.

Annually this same citizen, with a thought for those not as fortunate as the majority at Christmastide, leaves instructions at the police station to provide all transients appearing there on Christmas morning with a full course Christmas turkey dinner. This practice has been carried out for a number of years with the same man desiring to remain anonymous.

Sergeant Arthur Harman escorted nine transients to the Paragon Cafe on Christmas morning where they enjoyed their fill of turkey.

PUREBRED HOLSTEIN BULL PURCHASED

With the joint purchase by Mr. Herb Watt and Mr. Murney Reynolds of Foxboro, of Inka Supreme Imperial, three-year-old pure-bred Holstein bull, from Wm. A. Scott and Son of Quinte View Farm at Amherst Island recently, a herd sire with a proven record has come to the Foxboro district. Inka Supreme Imperial is the son of Spring Farm Inka Jewell and his dam, at the age of two years, had a production record of over 10,000 pounds of four per cent. milk in ten months. The newly acquired sire should prove a great benefit to herds in the Foxboro district.

OBITUARY

EARL ROLLINS

Queensboro —(Special)— A deep gloom was cast over this entire community on Monday afternoon when word was received of the sudden death of Earl Rollins. The deceased, who was twenty-four years of age, had been working for some time at Sudbury. He was returning home to spend the Christmas season with his parents when three miles out of Sudbury a car accident occurred in which Earl met his death. A number of friends with him escaped serious injury.

Surviving to mourn his sudden passing are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rollins, Queensboro, three brothers, Keith of Cordova and Roy and Allan at home. A sister predeceased him having been killed by a train when a small child about twenty years ago.

The sympathy of the whole community will be extended to the family in their sudden bereavement.

Criminal Proceedings To Be Started Against Parties in Dispute

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP).—Music and radio interests, locked for months in conflict over a new broadcasting contract, face prosecution by the United States government early in January under the anti-trust laws.

Holding that the music-loving public would be the loser if the controversy over song copyrights continued, Attorney-General Robert Jackson announced last night that he had ordered a criminal proceeding started at Milwaukee against four parties to the dispute.

These are: The American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, the National Broadcasting Company, the Columbia Broadcasting System, and Broadcast Music, Inc., an organization set up by the radio industry, through the National Association of Broadcasters' to parallel ASCAP.

Through copyrights, a large proportion of modern music is controlled by ASCAP. A five-year agreement with the broadcasters expires Dec. 31, and both N.B.C. and C.B.S. have eliminated ASCAP-controlled music from their programs.

Based On Charges.

A Justice Department statement said that the proceeding would be based on these charges:

Illegal pooling of most of the desirable copyright music available for broadcasting to create a monopoly; discrimination against users of copyright music and against composers who are not members of either ASCAP or BMI; withholding of music from publication to exact fees illegally price fixing; restraining composers in their right to bargain for sale of their own music; requiring music users to pay for tunes when no music is used; mutual boycotts by ASCAP and the radio chains in an effort by each to gain control of the music supply.

Thurman Arnold, assistant Attorney General, declared in a statement that ASCAP had gone far beyond its original purpose of protecting its members in their copyright privileges and had engaged in practices "designed solely for the purpose of eliminating competition".

Restrictive Practices Claimed.

He asserted that N.B.C. and C.B.S. through the creation of BMI, also had engaged in "restrictive practices similar to those which the department charges were illegally instituted by ASCAP".

Arnold said the justice department was not concerned with which side was the aggressor, but with the prospect that the boycotts would obstruct broadcasting of much popular music and "deprive the public of hearing that music except on terms dictated by the victor in the contest."

Some Arrangements Banned.

Toronto, Dec. 27 (CP).—Henry T. Jamieson, president of the Canadian Performing Rights Association said in an interview here last night that certain orchestral arrangements of "God Save the King" are banned from the air in the United States as a result of a current dispute between the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and United States broadcasting systems.

He said the simple air of the National Anthem is in the public domain and is not protected. "The song belongs to the people." The ban applies only to certain arrangements by composers.

Record Christmas Mail Delivered Promptly

The rush of Christmas mail at the Belleville Post Office is over again for another year with business having now returned to normalcy after having established an all-time high record for volume during the hectic Yuletide season just past.

Everyone at the office worked at high speed from the Saturday before Christmas until Wednesday with the result that every Christmas parcel or letter delivered at the office up until a late hour on Tuesday night was delivered on Christmas morning. Excellent street conditions and perfect weather were responsible in no small measure for the delivery of mail as promised, stated Mr. Truaisch. The temporary help employed at the office for the rush proved to be very efficient despite the fact that the majority of the workers had never worked inside a post office before. To make the sorting and delivery of mail just a little more difficult, several of the clerks and carriers worked while suffering from colds, but valiantly stuck to their jobs until after the rush was over. Today, however, two employees are in bed, due to an attack of the 'flu.

The only mail now in the post office which arrived during the Christmas rush is a stack of letters bearing insufficient address to be delivered to their destinations. The great majority of these letters and cards are addressed to parties in Belleville and district, but without street addresses or numbers. Several of the letters are for places in the United States. As an indication of what postal officials have to contend with in the matter of insufficiently addressed mail, it was revealed by Mr. Truaisch that in the United States there are 32 places named Belleville.

City Returns to Normal After 2-Day Holiday

A holiday-glutted city resumed normalcy today and settled down to the more serious business of "business" and getting on with the things at hand.

According to reports after two days of festive holidaying the Christmas season was celebrated with the usual traditions tempered with the shadow of war clouds and memories of loved ones unable to return to the parental homes.

Institutions of the city were the scenes of holiday gayety, and inmates enjoyed the generosity of officials and the public. The Hastings County Home was the scene of a gay party with its 95 inmates enjoying a real old-fashioned holiday with a Christmas Tree entertainment and all the "trimmin's".

Jail Governor G. H. French's charges also enjoyed a hearty dinner with candies, cigars, etc. The Salvation Army Band visited the city institutions and played Christmas Carols and other appropriate music.

Fine weather and good driving conditions on Christmas Eve, however, were productive of a large influx of relatives and friends to city homes. A steady stream of vehicular traffic poured into and through the city bringing faraway people, and many joyful reunions added a touch of further happiness to brilliantly illuminated homes.

Nor were the troops forgotten. Many city homes and those of the district entertained one or more members of the military and the Royal Canadian Air Force. Of the large number of men stationed at the Picton Airport, only a few with the exception of those on duty had their fare at the barracks.

Hotels and restaurants of the city catered to their usual Christmas clientele, although it was reported that the after-dinner business was brisker than usual.

NEWFOUNDLAND KEY DEFENCE POST

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—The dispatch of the first garrison to the new United States base on Newfoundland will swell to 50,000 or more men the forces in place to safeguard the Panama Canal and the new hemisphere defence line in the Atlantic.

The recent announcement that the Newfoundland base vanguard would depart early in January was accepted in military quarters today as evidence of intent to man with a minimum of delay the string of offshore bases leased from Great Britain.

The force will be the first sent to any of those bases. In Puerto Rico, and Guantnamo, Cuba, however, and at the Panama Canal itself, garrisons have been built up steadily by the Army and Marine Corps, and are scheduled soon to be further reinforced.

Along the 4,000 mile, irregular line between Newfoundland, British Guiana on the South American continent, and Panama, possibly 100,000 United States soldiers, sailors and marines soon will be stationed, on the basis of available estimates.

Substantial reinforcements are expected to follow the first expedition to Newfoundland. The island's strategic situation on the shortest great circle route between Europe and America makes it a key to the defence of the industrial northeast United States.

Police Blotter

Everybody was exceedingly law-abiding over the Christmas festive season, that is judging from the minimum of reports received by Belleville police over the holiday period. The only charges preferred were two counts of intoxication and one charge of careless driving, none being of a serious nature.

"It was the quietest Christmas eve we have experienced in Belleville in many years. Every person seemed to be enjoying themselves and directing towards a happy Christmastide. And incidentally I might compliment the motorists of the community upon their safe and sane driving within the city limits on Christmas eve and the following two days. There wasn't a single serious accident on our street since the holiday season was inaugurated stated Chief Kidd today as he urged motorists to continue their safe and sane operation of motor vehicles during the New Year's season also.

Shortly after 2.00 a.m. Christmas Day a motor car driven by William Donovan, 319 Charles St., was in collision with another motor car, driven by Joseph Barnhardt, Shannonville, on Front St. Both vehicles were badly damaged along the fenders and left wheels, necessitating tow trucks to remove them. Charges are pending, police announced after Constables Arnott and Taylor investigated the collision.

Cars Reported Stolen

Several automobiles were reported stolen in other sections of the district, Sergeant Arthur Booth's motor car being reported stolen in Napanee on Christmas Day. Police investigations in Napanee proved would-be-robbers had pushed Sergeant Booth's parked car down a slight incline in an effort to start the locked vehicle. Their efforts were fruitless and the vehicle was later found abandoned.

Bowmanville reported the theft of a 1935 Plymouth sedan bearing Ontario licence plates number 90-B-53. while Oshawa police asked assistance in the recovery of a 1938 Dodge sedan, stolen there yesterday. This vehicle carried plates number 957-B-2.

GIVEN A REMAND

London, Dec. 27—(CP Cable)—Corporal James C. Forbes McCallum, 20, of Verdun, Que., a member of the Canadian Army Provost Corps, was remanded today when he appeared in court on a charge of murdering Morris Scholman, 41, Covent Garden barman.

It was McCallum's second court appearance on the charge. A week ago testimony was offered that the alleged crime occurred at 5.30 a.m. at the "Coach and Horses" Public House.

Old Pre-War England Remains Unchanged in Rural Shires

Correspondent Who Carried His Rations From London Finds Food Aplenty in Rural Parts Where People Dress for Dinner and Make Merriment in Gala Attire Round the Evening Fire — Contrast With London

(Hitler's bombers have changed formal life in London, but not so in the Provinces, as Milo M. Thompson and wife learned when they took only slacks, sweaters and tweeds on a country visit.)

By MILO M. THOMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 27 AP).—There was a time when one would no more take a week's holiday in England without packing along the "soup and fish" clothes and party frocks than wear a bathing suit in Westminster Abbey.

But when my wife, Patience, and I, after weeks of wearing duty in London's front line bombproofs and pockmarked streets, decided to seek a few days of recuperative respite in some distant shire, Patience packed up sturdy slacks and sweaters and I took my oldest, most comfortable tweeds.

The London Habit.

We also took along our rations for the current week as a gesture of helpfulness: a joint of mutton, a small package of bacon, a little sack of sugar, six ounces of butter, even a full dozen of eggs to show our pleasure at the invitation we had received.

Ours was the war complex and the London habit.

London, except in the night club zone which caters to the city-locked hotel crowd, has put aside most evening entertainments which involve dress.

And, in London, when you do accept the hospitality of a friend, you take along your rations as a matter of course. Your host and hostess may have all the money and influence of an Indian rajah, but they'll still have only the ounces of rationed commodities allotted to two, three or four persons, whatever the number in their family.

Rural England Ever the Same.

But, in rural shires, you find England again—the England which always dresses for dinner, makes something like a religious rite of tea and shines resplendently in gala attire when the glasses clink round the evening fire

"Look!" exclaimed our hostess with a gesture of her hands as she viewed our eatables. "They've brought a dozen eggs! And there, beyond the garden hedge, are all those laying hens!"

"You'll never know," said another guest from London, "how much those dozen eggs mean."

Dress For Dinner.

It was while we were chatting in the sitting room before dinner that I began to suspect all was not well with our equipment. I noticed people dropping out of the party to begin to dress. When we, too, retired I suggested to Patience, who was in wool skirt and sweater, that, perhaps, she'd better put on the one dress-up dress she had packed.

"Surely that won't be necessary," she said. "You don't suppose they'd really dress, do you?"

"I'm afraid they will," said I, reaching for the darker of my suits and the only white shirt.

And they did.

The slacks were never worn. We saw no women in trousers in those parts. We had a feeling that, somehow, they frowned upon it.

Evening Festivities Amazing.

The evening festivities were amazing to us. Glasses were filled and music played until long past midnight. There was great singing, too, for we were on the borders of Wales among a singing people.

We took to dropping out of the daytime activities and taking long walks in the gorgeous autumn forest, filling ourselves with blackberries cold from the season's first frost which offered themselves all along the hedges bordering the lanes. We drank in the fresh rural air with never a taint of the smoke and dust of London. And we stopped gaily at wayside inns.

It was all the old England, the pre-war England, the England of the song: "There's Always Be An England".

Free of Stomach Pains, Dizzy Spells; Acidity, Gas; Praises "Syntona"

This Man Says, "It is Wonderful and Justifies Every Claim Made for it. My Whole System Feels Toned Up."

MR. ALBERT RALPH

Here is another good example of the way Syntona is daily bringing better health to hundreds of local men and women. This interesting account is told by Mr. Albert Ralph, 53 Crosthwaite Ave., Hamilton, in his own words:

"For two years I was so troubled with indigestion that my stomach pained and felt uncomfortable most of the time. Gas accumulations caused pains in my side and chest. I could feel sort of a lump in my throat and then a burning sour liquid would rise from my stomach. At first it used to help when I took baking soda, but after a while that wouldn't help me any more. Often I had spells when everything seemed blurred before my eyes and I would become terribly dizzy. For several months I don't think I was able to get one good hour's sleep at a time. I had rheumatic pains in my arms and in the joints of my knees.

"A few weeks ago I began taking Syntona and I have found it a wonderful medicine. It has helped me just like you said it would. The stomach pains and indigestion have left me. No more sour, acid risings or lump in my throat. My appetite is restored. I enjoy my meals and I don't get those dizzy bilious spells like I used to. I got relief from the pains in my knees and arms. I am sleeping well now—hardly wake up once during the whole night, and I feel rested and refreshed when I get up.

"You may publish this statement so other sufferers can read it. I am only too pleased to be able to say that my whole system feels so toned up and improved."

If you live in Belleville or vicinity go to Dolan's Drug Store and find out for yourself about this new combination of herbs, roots and barks that is doing so much good here. Remember the name, Syntona, and avoid disappointment.

'DIDN'T LIKE TO

Tandey had no idea the corporal was Hitler, and it was Hitler himself who was the first to admit his identity, to Neville Chamberlain, the late Prime Minister.

When Mr. Chamberlain paid his historic visit to Hitler he was shown a painting by Fortunino Matania of a 1918 battle scene at the Menin cross road. Tandey was in the centre of the painting.

"That man came so near to killing me that I thought I should never see Germany again," Hitler told Mr. Chamberlain. "Providence saved me from such devilishly accurate fire as those English boys were aiming at us."

When the Prime Minister returned to England he related the story to a colonel in the Green Howards, Tandey's late regiment, and he passed it on to Tandey.

Concert to Aid Argyll Chapter

The gay sparkling rhythms of seasonal music, interspersed with the majesty of the classics, and lilting melodies of popular airs, as played only by the Belleville Municipal Band, will be in store for music lovers of the city and district at the Capitol theatre on Sunday night, when the musical organization will offer another of its popular concerts in aid of the war work of the Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E.

Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater has consented to act as chairman for the occasion, and a program that fairly scintillates with melody has been selected by Lieut. Fred Jobson, conductor of the band.

It is expected that well-known guest artists will assist the band. The concert will start at 8.30 p.m.

Mrs. N. A. Bonisteel Is Honored at Christmas Party

An interesting Christmas party was held on Christmas day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Sharpe, 66 Highland Ave. The central figure of this party was Mrs. N. A. Bonisteel, Mrs. Mrs. Sharpe's mother.

On this occasion Mrs. Bonisteel had her five children with her, also six grandchildren were able to be present and three great grand children.

At one o'clock the guests were invited to partake of a delicious Christmas dinner in the dining room, which presented a very festive appearance with all the Yuletide decorations. Following the dinner, a distribution of Christmas gifts took place in which old and young seemed to share. The excitement and pleasure of the young children was much enjoyed by the older guests.

Just at this time Joyce Hawkins, a young granddaughter appeared in the wedding costume which Mrs. Bonisteel had worn on her wedding day, December 26, 1870. The very attractive dress was of grey taffeta with small tan design, and regardless of the long period of time since it was made, the material was in perfect condition. The dress was designed with tight fitting waist, long flowing gored skirt with train sloping shoulders and long puffed sleeves. With this was worn a small flat hat of ivory velvet with tabs hanging at the back. In fact this whole oufit was not unlike many of the styles of the present year. An interesting fact is: this costume was designed and made by the Thos. Ritchie store in 1870.

Following this surprise, the late afternoon was spent in singing old time songs. Miss Helen Hawkins, a granddaughter contributed several solos in her beautiful soprano voice. Many gay games were played and in the late evening a buffet supper was served, when all the party decided it was the best Christmas spent in many years and Mrs. Bonisteel who is in her ninety-third year was one of the liveliest persons present.

After expressing to Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe the great appreciation of their hospitality to the family the party broke up.

The out of town visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Bonisteel, Mr. and Mrs. Ford Hawkins, Miss Helen, Marion and Joyce Hawkins, and Mr. Carman Hawkins of Ingersoll, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Bonisteel, Mr. and Mrs. Charles and Mr. and Mrs. Harder Bonisteel of Frankford. Three small great grand children, Barbara, Gay and Beth Bonisteel, all of Frankford.

Mr. Geo. Bonisteel of Belleville, another son, with Mrs. Bonisteel made up the party.

Sixty-First Wedding Anniversary Celebrated

Mr .and Mrs. James H. Grills, 158 Church Street, celebrated their sixty-first wedding anniversary on Sunday, December 22nd., with an enjoyable family party at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Grills had all members of their family present on this delightful occasion. Several grandchildren also attended. A dainty lunch was served.

NORHAM STUDENT FINISHES FIRST

William Newman, Norham junior farmer finished first in the fall term examinations in the Senior Class at the Kemptville Agricultural School, according to statistics released on Thursday by Principal M. C. McPhail. Howard Evans, Warkworth finished in fifth place.

In the Junior Examinations W. J. Pigden, Madoc stood in fifth place with L. Ketcheson, Holloway and Clare Shannon, Plainfield, finishing in 9th and 13th places respectively.

Midnight Mass At St. Michael's

The annual Midnight Mass was celebrated in St. Michael's Church on Christmas Eve. The sacred edifice was filled to overflowing with a devout congregation. Preceding Mass there was a procession of children to the crib where the scene of the Nativity was beautifully depicted. The music by the children was very beautiful. A choir of fifty girls in the sanctuary sang "Silent Night" and "O Dear Little Shepherd," the responses being taken by twenty-five boys in the choir. The boys also sang "On Judea's Hillside."

Solemn High Mass was celebrated by Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., assisted by Rev. C. E. Baker as deacon and Rev. J. J. Collins as sub-deacon. The sermon was delivered by Monsignor Nicholson.

The music by St. Michael's Choir was very beautifully rendered, under the direction of Mrs. James Grant and Miss Dorothy Grant presiding at the organ. The Mass in honor of St. Florian was sung.

During the Offertory the choir sang "Adeste Fidelis," the solo parts being taken by Mrs. J. M. Truaisch and Mr. Edward Brown. At Holy Communion solos were sung by Mrs. G. Clapp and Messrs. Jack Fahey, Marchand, Harold Barrett, Edward Brown and Lester Shiels. At the conclusion of Mass, Miss Grant played a group of Christmas carols.

The church was especially decorated for the occasion. The recent changes, particularly the beautiful tile floor, enhanced the magnificence of the interior.

Masses on Christmas Day were celebrated at seven, eight-thirty and ten-thirty. The last was a High Mass at which the children's choir sang. At the Offertory they sang "Adeste Fidelis" and during Communion they were heard in Christmas carols "Snow Lay on the Ground," (Grieg); "When Flowers Blossom," (Yon) and "The First Noel." The soloists were Joan McCabe, Sheila Doyle and Joan Hunter.

36,000 Local Phone Calls Made Dec. 24

The holiday spirit buzzed across the lines of the Bell Telephone Company as well as over the wires of the local telegraph and cable companies on Wednesday as Christmas greetings were extended to relatives and friends out of town.

Telegraph and cable companies report that cable greetings from persons in Belleville to soldiers and others across the Atlantic showed an increase of 300 per cent over last year, while the largest domestic traffic in the memory of local employees passed over the wires. Domestic traffic was up fifty per cent over last year, it was stated.

Bell Telephone officials report that on December 24, there were 36,000 local calls and 991 calls for out-of-town at the Belleville office, as compared with 12,000 local calls and 362 toll calls for last year. On Dec. 24, 1939, 18 operators were on duty as compared with 37 this year.

On Christmas Day there were 20,000 local calls and 917 toll calls as compared with 13,000 local calls and 624 toll calls last year. Thirty-seven operators were required to handle the calls on Christmas Day this year. On the average December day there are 700 toll calls and 2,700 local calls, with 30 operators working.

MR. CHURCHILL'S CONTRIBUTIONS TO BRITISH EFFORT

Two great gifts Britain's Prime Minister possesses which have always played a great role in the history of nations, the ability to guide the destinies of a people and an age and the gift of oratory and prophecy or the use of the spoken language to stir men's hearts. As an administrator Mr. Churchill directs the greatest organization of nations in history, Great Britain and the British Empire, in one of the most momentous periods of all time. He is the champion of the forces of liberty and freedom and he fights against the revival of the barbaric forces which have emerged as from the slime of the primeval world to try to crush the spirit of progress and democracy. Like Saint George the British Premier gives battle to the dragon of selfishness, lust for power and hate. He has proven his great executive gifts, he possesses the ability to get work done, he is untiring in energy, with his great mind and intellect he encompasses the problems which press upon this age and he does it with a cheerful mien and yet with the evidence of strength quiet in its power.

In an age which utilizes the broadcast, Mr. Churchill has opportunity to display his extraordinary power in the flow of words which stand for the most powerful ideas. He is the great master of the tongue he speaks and if ever man was blessed with the gift of utterance it is he. No one, who has read Greek and Roman history, no one who knows the Bible of the Prophets, no one who has read the great orations of all time, delivered at times when the issues involved in statecraft are of the greatest significance to nations, will fail to see that Mr. Churchill is gifted with the power of speech and thought which ranks him with the great prophets of ancient and modern times. His reference to the Italian dictator who against the Crown and the Royal Family, the Pope, the Vatican and the Roman Catholic Church, the army and the people, has arrayed the trustees and inheritors of ancient Rome upon the side of the voracious pagan barbarians was clear-cut and graphic with the highest oratory.

What Mr. Churchill's words have done to encourage and inspire the people of Britain and to create confidence in the non-belligerent democratic nations must be left to the imagination to realize, so potent have they been, and potency is the very essence of oratory. What the effect of his address to the Italians will be, must be seen in developments. That the Fascists recognize the power of his words and his appeal is shown by their carefully prepared statement issued by the headquarters of the Fascists at Rome. The Fascists realize that the speech has been heard by the people of Italy or would reach them by word of mouth and that it was up to them to answer it and try to offset its effect and influence upon the people.

Not every leader possesses the power of swaying by words and thoughts. Mr. Churchill is doubly blessed as leader and as orator and prophet. He carries conviction for his utterances are the expression of the British ideal of international morality and the rule of life of nations as well as of individuals. What he speaks is words of power and beauty which light up the great tasks of statecraft with the fire of poetry. His utterances will serve as history, documents which are more worth reading, because he is a practical and successful statesman as well as orator and prophet, than Machiavelli's 'Prince,' which has been studied by dictators and never yet succeeded in producing a tyrant who could endure the whips of fate and the lash of justice. Mr. Churchill and his people will down the enemy. Machiavelli, the public man, who believed in use of power to gain his will in statecraft ended his life in banishment. Mr. Churchill will be the modest successful champion when the triumph over Mussolini and Hitler comes.

Mr. Churchill's achievements as prime minister are very great and his words are treasured.

AFTER CHRISTMAS

Christmas, long expected and greatly enjoyed, has passed, the new year has not yet come, and the coming days will seem like a lull or intermission. It is well that Christmas, which has taken so much attention leaves unmistakable marks and influences which even the approach of the opening of another year cannot remove. This is still the holiday season. These post-Christmas days are days of relaxing from the thrill of arrangements for the coming of Yuletide and it is a time as it were of enjoyment in retrospect of the great festival and all which it has brought in happiness and good will. Toys absorb the attention of the child for he has been ushered into a world which at Christmas time is ever new and cannot be dismissed even when December 25th is gone. Like the child, the adult too must have had new things come into his or her life, new thoughts, new revelations of good will. It is well that there should be these reverberations of Christmas.

For the Christmas spirit should be the spirit which influences the days ahead. Good will is not the attribute of one day alone in the three hundred and sixty-five days of the year. What is good in spirit for Christmas is good for the days of leaner fare. Christmas throws into highlights the impulses which should rule. The tempo of life is speeded up at Christmas as it is at every celebration. It is the high water level of good will and should be the guide for the coming twelve months until another Christmas exhilarates to a new high level of spiritual and social influence.

New Year's will give the turn of course to a new twelvemonth. It turns the gaze towards the increasing strength of the sun as it begins its climb up the heavens. But New Year's does not mark a complete break in human lives. Years are not unconnected links of a chain. The years together make life. So 1940 is linked to 1941 as each link in a chain helps to make the chain. Christmas spirit can pass beyond New Year's. It does shed its influence upon the years.

Allied Victories Weaken Morale Italian People

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, Dec. 26—On-rushing Greek troops in Albania gave striking point to Prime Minister Churchill's radio appeal to the Italian Army and people to cast off the Mussolini yoke before it is too late.

They surged on to capture Chimara, coastal bastion of the reeling Fascist right flank. With Valona, communications hub of the whole Italian line in Southern Albania, as their objective they were reported pressing forward in an encircling movement that could bring the greatest disaster of the war to Italian arms. As Mr. Churchill spoke they were less than a score of miles from a victory that could crumble the whole Italian Army in Albania and force it to flight or surrender.

Coupled with Italian disasters in Egypt and Libya that have already gone far to make good Mr. Churchill's threat to tear Italy's African Empire "to shreads and tatters" if she stays in the war, the developments in Albania illustrate graphically Mussolini's plight. Marshal Graziani, explaining the defeat that hurled his shattered army back into Libya, acknowledged that the British Mediterranean blockade was air tight. It throttled his forces, exposed them to the disaster that has befallen them.

"No Heart For Job"

That blockade has now been carried virtually into Italy's own waters, into the Ionian and even the Adriatic Seas. There was a broad implication in Mr. Churchill's plea to the Italians to overthrow Mussolini that British experts fresh from contact with Italian war prisoners trace Fascist disasters to just one major circumstance: Low morale in the armies on all fronts.

"Surely the Italian Army which has fought so bravely on so many occasions past, but now evidently has no heart for the job, should take some of the life and future of Italy," Mr. Churchill said.

British hopes of precipatating an internal crisis in Italy to knock her quickly out of the war may be premature. There can be little doubt, however, that impending British assault on Bardia in Libya and the fall of Chimara to the Greeks in Albania make Il Duce's situation grave on both fronts.

Chimara's fall opens the coastal route to Valona. Aside from its prime function, already lost, as an Italian debarkation bridgehead, that port is the road hub for the whole southern end of the Italian defense line in Albania. The only primary roads for supplying and reinforcing Fascist troops on a 50-mile front centre there.

May Invade Italy

They are also the only route for a Fascist retreat from the strong, mountainous positions running from Chimara through the Tepelini-Klisura bastion a score of miles further inland. The Greeks are already within big-gun range of those roads far in the rear of forces holding the Tepelini-Klisura ten-mile strong point, itself tottering under Greek thrusts.

With the Chimara flank turned, the whole southern sector of the Italian defensive line is up in the air. If Mr. Churchill's estimate of Italian army morale is sound, a complete Italian collapse in Albania resulting in a desperate attempt at evacuation by sea or wholesale surrenders could develop.

Mr. Churchill gave no definite intimation as to where Britain would strike next in Africa. There are many indications, however, that once Bardia is taken, as seemingly it soon must be, East Africa will witness an effort to smash critically isolated and far extended Fascist forces in co-operation with revolting Ethiopian tribesmen. Nor is it impossible that a British counter-invasion of Southern Italy may be blueprinted in London as an ultimate step to drive Italy out of the war.

Battle of Egypt Approaches

(By JOHN GORDON)

The pot begins to boil. Round it dance the Nazi spellbinders.

"Double, double toil and trouble Fire burn and cauldron bubble," they sing, just like Macbeth's witches.

Look out for trouble—lots of it, and soon. But meet it with the confidence of men who know that what might well have overwhelmed us a year ago cannot overwhelm us now. Remember it is Hitler, not us, who is seeing his plans go awry. It is Hitler, not us, who is seeking eagerly, and even perhaps anxiously, for a new way to victory. Certainly the old plan has come to grief, and he knows it. The tiger is moving on to the caging stage. It may take quite a time yet, and quite a bit of effort to slam the door on him, but into that cage he is going.

The British people have made up their mind about that, and when they make up their mind — which sometimes takes rather a long time — they are a people with a habit of being successful. Can you picture the fury and rage that must now fill Hitler's heart? So near to victory at Dunkirk, so far from it now.

Two problems face us: One, the night bomber; two, the Mediterranean.

Let us begin with the lesser first. We have demonstrated to the world, in one of the most tremendous months in all history, that the night bomber cannot break the morale of our people sufficiently to open the gates either to a German invasion or to a demand for peace. Nevertheless, we cannot allow the night bomber to get away with it for too long. We must find the answer and find it quickly. We can do it. We are the greatest inventive nation in the world.

It is not by any means an insoluble problem. But the urgent need is speed. Are we pressing forward research, experiments, and the examination of ideas which keep pouring in, with ceaseless energy, twenty-four hours a day? Or are we tackling the job in the same lackadaisical spirit as we are filling up the bomb holes in the London streets?

If the way we are filling up the bomb holes, as demonstrated before our eyes every hour of the day, is an example of the slow march that is in progress behind the scenes of the war effort in places we cannot see, then God help us.

There, in our streets for all to see, we are having a pretty good example of why wars with us last so long and are so difficult to win.

I hope rather better people are handling the night bomber problem. And while they are seeking the answer, some other experts might consider another problem which is causing considerable acid discussion among people in the south and east of England. It is this: Every night the German bombers come over by exactly the same routes at exactly the same time. They run to schedule so promptly that you could set your clocks by them. They keep to the same routes so closely that they might be running on railway lines.

People from the coast of London stand out in the open watching them, and listening to them. They know almost to the second when and where the planes will reach the barrage and when the first gun will roar out. What mystifies them is why nothing ever happens between the coast and the barrage.

Do we ever try to surprise the raiders? Do we ever think of a new trick? Do we ever plan to throw them out of their stride? Surely we have mobile guns, mobile balloons, and mobile fighters that can meet them night after night in unexpected places.

It seems to me so much like the whole old story of the war. We wait for the Germans to come, but never, never, never go out to meet them, and surprise them. It looks as if we had a book of rules from which everybody was afraid to deviate. Yet it is usually the men who break the rules who win wars.

That point may be rammed home on us very forcibly in the Mediterranean in the next few weeks. All round the lifeline to our Eastern Empire, the enemy is moving into position for the attack. The men are massing, the air fleets are gathering, and Hitler, with his usual shrewd genius for the telling diplomatic stroke, is gambling for a navy as well.

I think we may assume from the evidence available that things are not going exactly as he wishes them to go. The unexpectedly stubborn defence of Britain has nonplussed him.

Hitler wishes obviously to change the French situation. There his treacherous toady Laval may help him. Laval hates Britain. He is as twisty as a pig's tail, and he would sell his soul for power and money. But whether even with Laval's help Hitler can make France a very active and helpful associate is doubtful. The French have a habit of thinking first, last and all the time about France. It will, I think, take even Hitler, with all his mesmerism, a good many years to make them think of Germany first.

The Spanish situation is even more intriguing. It is significant, I think, that Hitler went to see Franco. Usually, you may have observed when Hitler is about to devour a country the representatives of the country about to be devoured goes to see Hitler. When the reverse process is operating I think we may assume that Hitler is coaxing, not ordering. And maybe Franco is not quite willing even to be coaxed. Spain is a worn-out country. It was bled white in the civil war. A few weeks of new war would rip it in pieces, and that I am sure would not suit Franco and his party, who might get lost with the pieces.

Hitler, of course, may decide to go into Spain whether Franco likes it or not. And Franco being a wise man, would offer no opposition. But I would not care very much to be a German soldier in Spain when the Spanish dynasty got busy. They have many scores to pay off, and they have long memories and very ungentle habits when it comes to guerilla warfare.

Much more danger for us lies at the other end of the Mediterranean. We must hold Egypt. We can afford no more retreats. No more defeats. We cannot even really afford a half victory. It must be a resounding victory, the importance of which even Hitler with all his genius for propaganda cannot minimize to the most deluded of his dupes. It must ring round the world like the joy bells of a new era.

What can we expect? I hope our military, naval and air force leaders there are the type of men who can face surprises and cope with something away from the normal kind of war, for that is what we shall get.

I repeat again what I have said so often—Hitler does not attack a country with armed forces with the intention of fighting. He always sends his army forward merely to occupy a country already wrecked from the inside.

Our army in Egypt may be all right. Its lines and defences may be as strong to look at as the Maginot line. But are we certain that we are all right behind the lines? And are we prepared to deal with a sudden coup?

I hear experts say that Hitler can never send an army across the Mediterranean so long as the navy holds that sea. I think we shall make a big mistake if we harbour such a delusion. Hitler will certainly never send his army by ship across the sea. He is not the man to risk disaster quite so obviously.

What he will do, I venture to prophesy, is to send his army by air. Perhaps the slackening of the raids on London is the first sign of preparation for such a move. Large numbers of troops could be sent by air suddenly and comparatively easily to descend in the Nile valley and seize all the important key points controlling road, rail and water communication. This would cause chaos behind our lines and when that chaos was at its height Mussolini's army could with more hope of success strike a blow for Alexandria, the loss of which would be a first-class catastrophe.

Are we prepared for a coup of that sort? Remember that defending Egypt behind the lines is not like defending Britain. There are no Home Guards in Egypt to protect every vital point from a sudden air invasion.

Is there a sure answer to the threat to Egypt? Yes, there is, but it is not to be made in Egypt. It should be delivered in Germany. Heed the wise advice of old Lord Trenchard who, in his day, was a dandy fighter —"A German killed in Germany is more effective to us than a hundred Germans killed outside Germany."

If we had based our strategy on that truth a year ago, we might never have been in our present predicament.

In this last phase of the war our chief need is not men or money or machines. It is merely that we should make up our minds that the war can only be won in Germany, that it is much more easy to win it there than try to win it elsewhere, and that the way to kill a snake is to hit it hard on the head.

Germany is the place in which to solve the whole problem of Egypt, Spain and the French fleet. So put the bombers on Germany. Take her town by town and obliterate her. Give her not ten times what she has given London but a hundred times as much.

Men of the Air Force tell me that if they had orders to take a town a week and hit it with full strength, they could guarantee to make it a rubble heap fit only for dogs and cats. Why not let them?

I agree with the correspondent who, in a letter to me last week, said "I want to see Berlin at the end of the war with no building standing higher than ten feet."

That is the only lesson Germans understand. That is the easier road to peace than trailing through the sands of the desert.

I would not do it as a reprisal, because reprisals are useless. I would not do it for revenge, because revenge is a waste of time. I would do it simply as a lesson to Germans that they cannot be permitted to launch out on murder crusades every few years, and as a method of ensuring that when the old urge rises in them again they do not have the power to move. — Hamilton Spectator.

One Day Britain Will Strike

(By Morley Richards, Military Reporter of the London Express)

When will Britain attack? To win this war we must turn from defence to the offensive. Hitler has to be struck down, and probably on his own soil, before the tyranny which he has spread over Europe is broken once and for all. How are we going to do it? And when The Prime Minister spoke recently of "our offensive campaigns of 1941 and 1942." It can be taken that the Empire will not be strong enough to attack before then — the spring of next year at the earliest. Even though we may strike at Hitler through his ally, the deciding battle must be against the Nazi war machine itself. The official view is that the real enemy is Hitler, not Mussolini. By that I mean we should not have won the war even if the Duce were brought down. It would weaken Germany, but not defeat her. I cannot tell you what offensive plans are being worked on by the War Cabinet and the Services chiefs. All I can say is that the plans are formulated and the preparations for them are being put in hand. But I can tell you the ways that Britain can strike at the enemy. Two have begun with conspicuous success — by the Royal Air Force and the Navy. The hammer blows dealt by our bombers over Germany and Italy and the shelling of Graziani's concentrations in Libya by warships are only the first step. When the third offensive arm — the army—can be co-ordinated with sailors and airmen, then the real attack will begin.

Hitler's invasion plans probably include a series of feinting thrusts at different points of our coastline. With the diversions created by them — the drawing off of large military and naval forces — he hopes to cover his main attack through a lane protected by aircraft and light naval ships. Two can play that game. Hitler holds a 2,000-mile coastline from the Arctic to Spain. We can make endless thrusts at it to cover our real drive. Landings have, in fact, been tried on a small scale. Do you remember just after the collapse of France it was revealed how British units had landed on the French coast? There is still need for secrecy about that, but it was a successful miniature operation. For all the immense effectiveness of the German army, they cannot effectively police 2,000 miles of coastline. Nor can they mine it adequately. The advantage we should enjoy over Hitler in these tactics is that wherever he made a thrust he would meet a bitterly as well as actively hostile population. We have reason to expect that friends in Holland, Belgium and France will welcome us — and aid us. The building up of a gigantic British fifth column is one of the preliminary tasks to the new European battle.

The thrusts from the sea may even begin before next spring. If our striking strength has grown sufficiently we could use the cover of dark winter days to keep the Germans on the move. Every time we struck it would mean new problems for the Nazi railway system which Goering has said was obsolete in 1934, and has now been made chaotic by the pressure of war and the attentions of the R. A. F. Throughout next year Britain could continue these tactics — like a Jimmy Wilde getting under the guard of a heavier opponent by dodging in and out with bewildering speed. The great little boxer tired out many a stronger man that way. So can we in this different kind of match. When Hitler has danced around his coastal ring long enough to be thoroughly giddy the attack for the knockout must start. It may be through the Low Countries, traditional battlefield for the breaking of dictators.

Of all the people in bondage the Dutch are the least likely to be down under the heel of Hitler. Fifteen hours after their country was invaded on May 10 they saw a unit of British soldiers step out of the railway station at Amsterdam. They said then—I was there to hear them: "The British are coming. We are saved!"

They will say it again when we come in strength. These are many harbours big and small which could be forced along the Dutch coast. The flat bedyked Netherlands fields are difficult to defend, as the Dutch found in five tragic days before they were forced to capitulate. They are an ideal attacking ground.

From the sea across Holland to Germany—to Hamburg and Emden and the industrial north — is 150 miles. The distance across Belgium is not so great. Britain, with its sea power and a comparatively small air force, successfully evacuated 330,000 men from Dunkirk. With the immensely increased sea power we shall possess in a year's time it may be possible to land that number several times over at different points along the Belgian and Dutch coasts. And keep them reinforced and supplied. Operations like these can only be carried out with losses. That is inevitable. We are not going to win the war by keeping a huge army in a state of boredom along our home shores.

Then Italy. The great offensive against Mussolini may never be fought—that is, the engagement the British fleet wishes to keep with the Italian navy. While the Duce's ships skulk behind the safety line of his mined Adriatic and bottle neck they cannot be reached. Invasion of Italy is next to impossible, while we still face great difficulty in Northern Africa due to the defection of the French. The coming offensive against Italy may be threefold.

1. A big increase of bombing raids as the longer nights give cover of darkness to our long-range aircraft. R. A. F. bombers are now able to reach any part of Mussolini's domains with comparative safety.

2. Intensified naval action against the Libyan coast with the object of cutting it off from the homeland altogether. As I said, the shelling of Bombay and Bardia is but a beginning. Every drop of water that Graziani's legions drink has to be brought by tank-ship across the Mediterranean.

3. The seizure of Italian islands as air and sea bases. Malta we have — and hold securely from all the Italian raids. There are other spots capable of being consolidated —Sardinia, Pantellaria and Sicily. With bases firmly established at these points and with Italian forces isolated in Africa — in Abyssinia and Libya and Tripoli — Mussolini might have to throw the whole of his sea power into the balance. And that would be decisive one way or the other for Mussolini.

For all these coming campaigns we need newer weapons, new methods. We must have troop-carrying-planes, paratroops to man them, more and more attacking aircraft to screen our advances on land, ships capable of speedy landings in difficult waters. I believe these things are coming. Most of all, perhaps, we need the help of those oppressed people whom we mean to liberate. While our Air Force, with new, longer-distance bombers, is breaking the enemy economic machine during these coming winter months, our fifth columnists must be organized and financed to undermine German rule in all the conquered territories. The building up of the potentially enormous underground army is possibly our biggest offensive of all.

SEAWEED RAYON

Manchester Guardian

We shall be able to sing "Rule Britainia" a little more loudly than ever when the new type of rayon fabric the basis of which is seaweed comes into general use; Britain's traditional mastery of the seas will have been demonstrated in a new direction.

The basis of the fabric and some of its uses were explained recently by the head of the Leeds University textile department at a meeting in Bradford; apparently it can be blended with wood or cotton, it dyes and washes well, and it is also non-inflammable.

The mighty ocean is singularly prolific of seaweed and, apart from some varieties spread on the land as fertilizer, not much use has hitherto been made of it. It sounds a more convenient source of "ersatz" textiles than wood-pulp or milk, both of which are in high demand for other purposes.

There will still be room, of course, for the inevitable jokes. German textiles on a wood-pulp basis are reported to be liable to death-watch beetle in the trouser pants. Seaweed stockings may be immune from fire but may develop barnacles instead of ladders.

CHANNEL PORTS DEVASTATED SAYS MALCOLM GIBSON

Royal Air Force Seems to be Over France "All the Time"

FRANCE HARD HIT

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 27—(CP)—The Royal Air Force seems to be over France "all the time" and has devastated the Channel ports, Bordeaux and other ports, Malcolm Gibson, Worcester violinist who has returned to his home here after 12 years in Europe, said Thursday.

"The last night I spent in Paris in November, I spent in a cellar", he said. "The R.A.F. was over Paris again. Everyone is amazed at the consistency and effectiveness of the English Air Force.

Gibson added that a popular story current in France is that as soon as a hen lays an egg there's a German waiting to seize it and send it off to Germany.

Here are a few of his impressions he related:—

France places all its hope in the Vichy government, and practically every Frenchman "worships" Marshal Petain.

France has no milk, no butter, no coffee, and little of other foods because of German commandeering.

The thoroughness of the invader in everything is "astonishing".

Paris Overrun With Germans

Spain is occupied by thousands of Germans, in civilian clothes, and is Europe's saddest country.

Paris is overrun by German officers, but German privates are rarely seen on the streets.

The Gestapo and hundreds of reported "Fifth Columnists", young girls who wear a gray uniform, are everywhere in Paris.

There is no such thing as "unoccupied" France, for the Germans are on the Riviera and other "unoccupied" parts in great numbers, but always in mufti.

"There is no gasoline in France for civilian use", he said. "Any travelling by civilians is on bicycles or in the subway. But contrary to the impression in this country, every French railroad is operating and what is amazing to us all, is that the trains are actually on schedule".

Southern British Dominion Broadens Social Security in Wartime

Aukland, N.Z.—(CP)—In spite of the ward New Zealand government is proceeding with the introduction of a free medical service under the social security scheme inaugurated two years ago.

Hitherto New Zealanders have not enjoyed the full benefits envisaged when the act was passed. Free hospital treatment, free maternity benefits and unemployment benefits have been introduced and a start has been made wit huniversal superannuation payments, on a scale which will increase each year up to a fixed rate.

However, the full tax of a shilling (18 cents) in the pound ($3.60) on all income has been levied ever since the act was passed, and there have been many complaints that the most important benefit proposed, the universal free medical service, together with free pharmaceutical supplies, has not been introduced.

Now, however, the government has announced that from January 1, 1941, a scheme will be inaugurated whereby doctors and patients may enter into contracts under which payments will be made from the Socila Security funds.

The New Zealand branch of the British Medical Association has all along strenuously opposed the scheme as proposed by the government and it remains to be seen whether the present plan can be introduced against its will The Association is willing to provide a service under the act to all persons earning £5 ($18) a week or less, but this plan does not meet with the government's approval.

CANADA CAN HELP DAUGHTER CHURCH

Former Mission Bishop Looks for Return of Missionaries to Japan

Toronto, (CP)—Bishop W. C. White, formerly Bishop of Honan, writing of present missionary conditions in Japan, points out that though missionaries are forced to leave that country there will still be ways in which the Church of England in Canada may help its daughter Church.

"One method which must apply to both the Far Eastern dioceses is to develop a strong policy and program of training in Canada carefully selected Christian Chinese and Japanese leaders, who will return to their respective dioceses to take the place of the Canadian missionaries we may not be able to send," says the bishop. The two dioceses referred to are those of Honan, China, and Mid-Japan.

Bishop White denies that money and work already devoted to these missions are to be regarded as a loss. In both China and Japan the Anglican Church has trained an ardent native Christian leaders who are qualified to carry on the work begun by the missionaries.

SLIPPERY ROADS, DENSE FOG CAUSE OF MANY CRASHES

Three Admitted to Hospital Early Christmas Morning When Two Cars Sideswipe

FIVE-CAR CRASH

Dense fog, rain and slippery pavements were the primary cause of numerous motor accidents reported over the extended Christmas holiday season throughout the Belleville area. South of Marysville on Highway No. 2 at what is commonly known as "Avis' curve" no less than a dozen motor vehicles were reported to have skidded on the slippery pavement and either crashed into the highway guard rail or continued into the ditch. Motorcycle Patrolman C. E. Siple reported that 24 of 40 guard rail posts had been broken off as the result of the increased accidents due to the wet slippery condition of the highway.

A heavy "pea-soup" fog settled over the district shortly after midnight Tuesday slowing traffic down during the night. The fog continued and resulted in several accidents. Early Christmas morning three persons were injured in a crash near Chatterton on Highway No. 14, all being admitted to the Belleville General Hospital. Floyd Lovelace, the driver of a north bound car and who resides at Deldro, sustained a fractured knee while Miss Rita Johnson, Marmora, and Miss Gladys Gehan, Trenton, both passengers with Lovelace sustained scalp wounds and facial lacerations. Miss Marjorie Lovelace, a sister of the driver, escaped unscathed.

Jack Fitzpatrick, Stirling was proceeding southerly as the two vehicles came over a knoll. The cars sideswiped in the dense fog. Motorcycle Patrolman C. E. Siple ascertained upon investigation. Fitzpatrick also sustained nasty cuts.

Backs Into Traffic.

While backing his motor car out from his private driveway on the Foxboro Road early Christmas Day an automobile driven by Nelson Dainard backed onto the highway into the path of a motor car driven by Reginald Skinner of Foxboro. There was a heavy fog settling over the district at the time and neither driver saw the other vehicle. Motorcycle Patrolman Siple reported in this case also.

Three members of the R.C.A.F. stationed at Toronto escaped injuries when the automobile they were driving crashed into the guard rail at Avis' curve early Thursday morning. Damage to fully $250.00 resulted to the vehicle which was driven by N. C. Cornwall, R. B. Phillips and J. Davidson were the airmen passengers. The vehicle skidded on the wet slippery pavement, police were told.

Five-car Crash.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown of Brockville miraculously escaped serious injury when hurled from its parents' motor car during a five-car crash which occurred three miles west of the city on Highway No. 2 in the only Christmas Eve accident reported in the district. Mrs. Brown sustained a fractured bone in her foot, while Cpl. Boutin, a passenger in another vehicle suffered lacerations and concussion. He was treated at the Trenton R.C.A.F. hospital.

The accident, which culminated with five vehicles implicated, resulted when an automobile driven by E. M. Lucas, Belleville, collided with the rear of an east bound motor car driven by Arthur Orr, also of Belleville, about 8 p.m. Tuesday evening three miles west of Belleville. Following in the wake of Lucas' car was another motor car driven by Sergt. LaFlamme of the R.C.A.F. LaFlamme applied his brakes to avoid a rear end collision and his auto skidded into the path of the vehicle driven by George Brown of Brockville. The force of the impact forced the door of the Brown car open and hurled an infant on Mrs. Brown's lap out onto the pavement with no serious results. Brown's car was also struck by a truck driven by Kenneth Fiegehen of Toronto.

The LaFlamme car was totally wrecked, Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch reported after untangling the quintette wreck. Damage to the Brown vehicle amounted to some $250 and $100 damage to the truck.

City streets were devoid of serious motor accidents over the festive season. Two crashes resulting in fender damage being all that was reported.

J. BIRTWISTLE KILLED IN CAR ON TRENT ROAD

Allegedly Interfered With Driver, Vehicle Swerving Into Tree on North Side of Highway

DRIVER NOT HELD

When he allegedly interfered with the driver of an automobile in which he had been given a lift to the Trenton Air Base, where he was employed early Christmas night, 39-year-old James Birtwistle, 2 Wickett street, Belleville, sustained fatal injuries when the motor car left Highway No. 2 at the entrance to the Ontario School for the Deaf. The vehicle struck a tree on the right side, where Bertwhistle was sitting, and sheared the side off, Birtwistle sustaining a broken neck and internal injuries. He died enroute to the Belleville General Hospital. A preliminary inquest was held before Dr. G. S. Cronk at the T. C. Thompson Funeral Home here on Thursday and following identification, the inquest was adjourned until Jan. 3, 1941, and the body released for burial.

According to a statement given police by Roy Ashmore, of 8 Ponton street, Belleville, Birtwistle hailed Ashmore for a ride on Highland Ave. shortly before 8 p.m. Wednesday evening. Knowing that Birtwistle was employed as a civilian at the Trenton R.C.A.F. Ashmore halted and gave the deceased man a lift. Near the O.S.D. Bertwhistle leaned over towards the driver, Ashmore told Motorcycle Patrolman C. E. Siple, and physically interfered with the steering of the vehicle, causing it to veer towards the north ditch where the car sideswiped a large tree. The entire right side of the car was demolished, the full force of the impact being absorbed by the passenger who was seated on the righthand side of the vehicle.

A passing motorist, T. R. Jordison, of the C.A.S.F. stationed at Kingston, stopped and placed Birtwistle in his automobile and rushed him to the hospital. Birtwistle was bleeding profusely and died before being accepted to the hospital.

The coroner's jury impannelled by Sergeant Arthur Harman included H. G. Woodley, foreman, Thos. Colden, Chas. Walters, Chas. Mason and Jos. Cruji.

The late James Birtwistle was born 39 years ago in England, being a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Birtwistle; his father died some years ago. For the past fourteen years he resided in Belleville and for some time he was employed at the Trenton Airport. In religion he was a member of Christ Church. To his friends his sudden death has brought much regret.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Bessie Hibbard; one son, Robert, age 12 years; his mother and two brothers in England. He served with the Imperial Army during the First Great War. Fraternally he was associated with the Sons of England.

Resting at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

HIDE-AND-SEEK WITH CAPTORS BRINGS ESCAPE

Young British Gunner Has Months of Adventure in Getting Clear of Germans on Continent.

By HAROLD FAIR

London — (CP)— For more than a week the young British artillery officer posed as caretaker of a vacant farm in occupied France. Before he "acquired" a bicycle and rode away on the tortuous trail that wound up in England he did a land-office business trading eggs to German soldiers for tobacco. He gained a reputation among French peasants for sharp dealing.

It was just one of the examples of resourcefulness between his capture in May and his escape and hide-and-seek game with the Nazis until he finally reached England in a boat a month later. Authorities who told the story refused to identify him by anything more than "X".

Accompanied by a gunner he found himself detached from his unit on a beach near Calais the last week of May. Men from the Queen Victoria Rifles and the Rifle Brigade joined them and capture seemed imminent because the Germans were on three sides. On the fourth side was the Channel where British warships cruised some miles away. The British soldiers signalled vainly but "X" decided to swim to the ships. When he was out a mile the tide turned against him and he had to strike for shore.

Joined by two other officers and a private, he decided to break through the encircling Germans. They avoided capture for two days but finally a German patrol captured two. Another officer and "X" however, escaped to a small wood. They spent the night in a hut and awoke to find Germans standing over them. Their captors said they had been traced by their footprints across the fields. With other prisoners, they were herded into a column guarded by machine-gun-carrying trucks. Even this failed to daunt "X". He saw his chance on the fourth day of the march and slipped down a passage between two houses, raced across fields to a barn and then reached the farmhouse where he posed as caretaker.

He started for Britanny June 14 and thought capture imminent again. But he was only required to help bury a pig. For this, the Germans rewarded him with a meal and a cup of coffee.

Later other Germans stopped him but in voluble French he was able to convince them he was a refugee. Eventually he reached the coast and found a boat. At midnight June 28 he started rowing and in three days sighted land. But it was the Channel Islands, then occupied by the Germans. The tide forced him back to the French coast when he beat a hurried retreat from the islands and he started looking for another boat.

After a week-long search he found a motor launch and a supply of gasoline. Late in July he started once more across the Channel and sighted the Needles, a collection of rocks in the Solent. A patrol boat picked him up the next morning.

INDIANS ASSIST ALGOMA CHURCH

Toronto (CP)—Indians resident in the Church of Englan ddiocese of Algoma are themselves helping to make up the $4,000 deficit in the funds of the Algoma Mission, caused by the voluntary surrender of grants formerly received from England, Church headquarters here disclosed.

The people responded generously to a suggestion of the Rt. Rev. G. F. Kingston, bishop of the diocese, that heads of families and unmarried wage earners contribute.

Daily News Urges Seizing of Martinique Until After War

New York, Dec. 27—(CP) — The New York Daily News today urged the United States to quit "stalling" an dseize whatever naval and military bases it needs on the French island of Martinique in the Caribbean Sea.

The News said editorially: "Why not just take over Martinique now, hold it under an arrangement called a lease or anything else we want to call it, build ourselves an air and naval base there, and defer the diplomatic dickering until after the war?

"We are in a period of world revolution. Everybody else is grabbing with gloves off; it's a wolfish time in the history of the world."

WEDDINGS

GASCOIGNE—WALT

Stirling, (Special) — An interesting wedding took place on Thursday afternoon at one-thirty in Deer Park Chapel, Toronto, when Margaret Eileen, daughter of Dr. Charles Findlay Walt, Stirling, became the bride of Francis Charles Gascoigne, Montreal, P.Q., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Gascoigne, Liverpool, England. The Rev. F. H. Joblin officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in royal blue transparent velvet fashioned on princess lines with matching turban and she carried Talisman roses.

Mr. Jack Thomas, Kingston, was groomsman.

COONEY—SCOTT

A pretty wedding took place yesterday morning at eighty-thirty at St. Michael's Church, when Marie Agnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Scott, became the bride of Gordon William Cooney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cooney. The ceremony was performed by Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lovely frock of heaven blue crepe with matching hat and corsage of pink Delight roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Frances McGrady, Toronto, who was in rose crepe with hat of the same shade and wore a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Edward Cotton, Toronto, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride, Yeomans Street. The rooms were charming with pink and white decorations, the table being arranged with pink and white chrysanthemums in a silver basket and matching tapers in silver holders. Mrs. Scott, mother of the bride, in navy blue crepe and Mrs. Cooney, mother of the groom, wearing brown silk, assisted in receiving the guests.

Later the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Toronto, the bride travelling in a frock of flowered crepe with black coat and accessories. Upon their return they will take up residence in Belleville.

DOUGHERTY—LANCASTER

St. Thomas Church was the scene of a lovely Christmas wedding at four o'clock on Wednesday, when Myrtle Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Lancaster, became the bride of Mr. Colonel Russell Dougherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dougherty, New Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne.

White chrysanthemums and pink carnations against a background of cedar boughs combined with Yuletide decorations and multi-colored lights made a beautiful setting for the event. Mr. W. E. Wheatley presided at the organ for the wedding music and during the signing of the register, Mr. J. Burke sang very beautifully "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in white chiffon and satin patterned in heart-shaped motifs of forget-me-nots entwined with lovers' bows. Her head-dress was a small cap of the same brocade as her dress with tulle caught with orange blossoms. She carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

Mr. Kenneth Munnings was groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. W. J. Dougherty, Norman Lancaster and Rae Lancaster.

A reception followed at the home of the bride, 300 Foster Avenue. Mrs. Lancaster, mother of the bride, wearing black with corsage of red roses and Mrs. Dougherty, attired in navy, with corsage of red roses, received with the bride and groom. Later Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty left on a wedding trip to Montreal and eastern points. The bride chose for travelling a dress and hat of blue chiffon velvet with seal wrap and wore a corsage of violets. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dougherty and Miss Laura Dougherty of New Toronto, Mr. F. Grills, Mr. and Mrs. T. Bladwick and Mr. Gerald Mitchell of Campbellford.

Annual Dance of Women's Auxiliary Of the Hospital to Be Held Tonight

What is regarded by many as the outstanding social event of the season, and one that has been looked forward to for some time, is the Christmas dance of the Women's Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital, which is being held in the Trianon ball room tonight.

An indefatigable group of workers, the members of the auxiliary have for years, bent all their efforts and energy to helping in the work of the hospital, and the result has been many much-needed appliances and equipment for an institution which holds a proud place in the esteem of not only city residents but of the district which it serves.

Establishing an enviable reputation since its inception two years ago, the ball is being anticipated by large numbers of dance-lovers of the entire city and district. It will be by far the most colorful event of the current season and members of the sponsoring organization have left no stone unturned to make it so.

The Trianon ball room is en fete for the occasion. Colorful drapings and appropriate seasonal decorations will provide a perfect setting for the beautiful gowns of the ladies and the conventional black and white of the men, and the uniforms of the military, naval and air service attendants.

For those who prefer bridge as a pre-dance interlude, arrangements have been made to have lovers of the popular game play in the Y.M.C.A. building on Campbell Street, a few doors from the ball room. The players will enjoy their lunch with the dance devotees later in the evening. The proceeds of the function will be devoted to the hospital and is a cause that is worthy of the support of all. Tonight is the night.

Patronesses for the function are: Mrs. (Dr.) James Forrester, Mrs. (Dr.) G. H. Stobie, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, Mrs. (Dr.) R. A. Flynn, Mrs. Mack Robertson and Miss Ruth Thompson. The convener of the dance committee is Mrs. John McIntosh.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

BE THOUGHTFUL — REMOVE HATS WHEN IN MOVIES AND THEATRES

Many people in many walks and stations of life are joining the crusade against the unmitigated selfishness of the girls and women who keep their hats on in movie houses and theatres.

One of the latest of the complaints is Arthur Guiterman, well-known poet, who expressed his dislike for this type of discourtesy in a lilting poem called "From Behind a Feather." Mr. Guiterman concluded his plaint with a plea for the offending females to doff their headwear reasonably.

Apparently he wonders about the mental processes (if any) of these completely inconsiderate girls and women. They look and act so smug in their own comfort. Not a thought in the world for anyone else's comfort or view. How can they, one wonders, be so shamelessly unheeding of anyone else?

There sit the exasperatingly placid assorted femininity with hats trimmed with bows and veils and other what-nots sticking up and sticking out, devil-directed to obstruct our view. Patient customers directly behind the altitudinous creations zigzag their heads as the annoying trimming zigzags. This means that customers in all the rows behind have to do some fancy zigzagging to be able to see even a bit of what's happening on the screen or stage.

The movie hat-pest is a pattern of a thoroughly disagreeable and unpleasant person.

What about you, lady, and you, and you? Do you keep on your hat in the movies, oblivious to the other person's comfort? Ever hear of the Golden Rule?

The best observations I've heard lately about this maddening habit was made by a man sitting near me the other evening in the movies. He'd had a difficult time trying to see the movie behind a Queenie with a bird on her hat. Said he, tartly, to his companion, "That girl in front of me has as little sense and feeling as the bird on her hat!"

Suggestion for a New Year's resolution: Take off your hat in the movies or theatre. See and let see!

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Not "Absolutely Sure" She Loves Him

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 19 years old and for two years have been going with a young man a little older. We're sort of engaged. I feel that he's going to ask me to set the date very soon. Do you think I should? Here's why — I don't feel absolutely sure of myself and don't know whether I really love him enough to get married. I don't know anyone else I'd rather marry, although I dance with other young men who tell me I'm attractive.

I have a good stenographic position in a large office, and am deeply interested in my work. I want to be a success in business and at the same time I would like to keep a little kitchen of my own. What would you advise?

Judith.

It seems to me that it would be a great mistake for you to marry anyone at the present time. You are having a good time, know plenty of young men, but you are not in love. Why not tell the young man to whom you seem tentatively engaged that you have decided to wait until you are a little older before making a final decision?

In the meantime, if you have no home, it would be quite a simple matter for you to rent a small apartment and have that little kitchen where you may do a little experimenting with cooking whenever that art appeals to you.

Proposed "Shower" Too Close to Holiday Season

Dear, Miss Fairfax:

My sister is to be married the first of February, and her engagement is to be announced at our house on New Year's Eve at a large party.

I want to give her a shower and would like to know the proper time to give it. My cousin says I ought not to give it at all, as I'm too nearly related. Why should that interfere with my giving her a nice linen "shower?" Or would another kind of shower be better?

E.W.T.

"Showers" are not given by the members of one's immediate family, the idea being that anything in the nature of a donation party should be suggested and managed by someone outside the family group. Perhaps if you talked this over with some friend of your sister's, she will undertake the "shower".

As the first of February, the date of your sister's wedding, comes so close to the holidays when pocketbooks will be more or less flat, why not wait until your sister is settled in her new home and then engineer a shower and house-warming?

Coiffures Ornate and Startling

New York.—Anyone who has had any experience with fancy dress or costume parties knows that it's what one does to one's head that sets the zip into one's costume. Curiously enough, the head's the place to concentrate on right now. The dressy hats, the Oriental veiled effects, the mantillas and the hairdos plus ornaments are the new points of interest. Beginning with earrings and ending with aigrettes, there is a wide choice Don't forget to dress from the neck up.

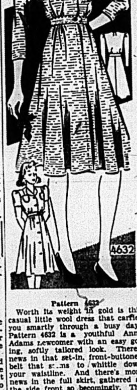
Some earrings follow the line of the lobe of the ear, some are two-faced affairs dressing up the now exposed back of the ear. Some insist that pendant earrings are playing a return engagement. One does see a few about, but the average woman likes to wear a necklace, or pearls or something and that's a bit too much.

Most of the nicest costume pieces as well as the real ones, are made in sections so they may be worn in more than one way. Dresses are usually convertible too, and what a craze there is for reversible coats!

And speaking of color, those pastel gloves do a lot for a black dress, don't they?—not to mention what they do to a Persian lamb or some other more or less sedate coat.

A Tiny-Waisted Sports Dress

By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4632

Worth its weight in gold is this casual little wool dress that carries you smartly through a busy day! Pattern 4632 is a youthful Anne Adams newcomer with an easy going, softly tailored look. There's news in that set-in, front-buttoned belt that seems to whittle down your waistline. And there's more news in the full skirt, gathered at the side front so becomingly. The neckline is convertible — button it high or turn it back into revers. You may either button bodice to the waist, seaming the skirt down the centre—or have a stunning, full-length buttoning. Those high-riding pockets are chic; your sleeves may be "bracelet" length, long or short. Do choose a soft, bright color wool or a spun rayon for this dress.

Pattern 4632 is available in junior misses' sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17. Size 13 takes 2 3-8 yards 54-inch fabric.

Heredity and Disease

Many of us are inclined to make fun of anyone who devotes much time to tracing his ancestry or spends money for a record of the family tree and we are prone to attribute the interest to vanity. Yet knowledge of the family tree can be of great value to us if it is investigated in the right way. For instance a study of family will very often show a weakness in some direction such as a tendency toward contracting some particular disease, or having a weak heart or weak lungs. If we learn about these things, and want to do it, we can save ourselves from going the way our forebears did.

Having had the opportunity to serve a succession of generations, I know of families in which there have been an unusual number of diabetics. Of course, diabetes isn't heredity. But a certain weakness of the pancreas is. If you find out that you come of such a family strain, then you are just plain foolish if you don't try to live in such a way that you don't place too much strain on the pancreas. Avoid too much sugar and starch, check your tendency to overweight, and try and find work that doesn't involve tension and worry.

Let me cite another illustration. There is an old belief that the taste for whiskey is inherited. Of course, that is nonsense, I think; at least I have never had it proven to me. But just the same if my father and my grandmother died from alcoholism, I'd be mighty careful about any drinking I did, for I'd know my tendencies would be the same

Certain eye weaknesses are inherited. If an examination of your family's history indicates a recurrence of this, don't take a job that involves a lot of eye strain. The tendency to deafness in certain forms is handed down from generations. Some people may bleed to death from the smallest cut, and this tendency, too, is inherited — handed down mother to son.

It is on account of these inherited tendencies that the marriage of cousins is discouraged. For if you marry your cousin you are apt to find all the family weaknesses intensified in your children. Of course, the good qualities of the family will also be intensified.

Cancer is another disease about which there has been a lot of discussion from the point of view of heredity. As with other diseases, I believe you inherit certain tendencies that make the danger of your developing it greater than average, if there have been cases of it in your immediate forbears. If I belonged to a family with a history of cancer, I would be very careful of certain skin conditions; I would make sure that all warts and moles were carefully and scientifically removed. If I had much difficulty with my stomach and bowels, I would see my doctor and tell him my troubles. If you do that, chances are you won't contract cancer, even though your family seems to have a weakness for it.

Heredity is important in disease, but its importance can be minimized if you change your mode of living so as to minimize hereditary weaknesses.

P. G. Wodehouse Writing Book In German Camp

English Humorist Was Taken Prisoner When Germans Invaded France

(Angus Thuermer of The Associated Press Berlin staff made a journey to a prison camp in Upper Silesia, Eastern Germany, with special permission to interview P. G. Wodehouse, the British author, who was taken prisoner when the German armies swept through Northern France.)

By ANGUS THUERMER
(Copyright, 1940, by The Associated Press)

Berlin, Dec. 27 (AP)—P. G. Wodehouse, the imperturbable creator of the unexampled Jeeves, is cheerfully writing a book about United States crooks these days in a room in a German civilian internment camp that once was the padded cell of a madhouse.

The English author's companions in confinement are truck drivers, coal heavers, Cambridge graduates, artists, some of His Majesty's consuls—Britons picked up by the Nazis all the way from Brest Litovsk, in Poland, to the English Channel and from Kirkenes, in Norway, to the Brenner Pass.

Wodehouse was arrested in occupied France at his villa in Le Touquet, on the Channel, during the Nazi offensive last May.

My visit to the Silesian camp where he and 1,100 other British subjects now are held inside double barbed-wire fences was the result of long argument with German officialdom, which finally gave its permission.

I found him concerned with his new novel. He told me he was thinking of calling it "Money for Jam," and when I confessed that the phrase didn't mean anything to a Middle-Western American he exclaimed:

"That's what I was afraid of. What it means is money for nothing, or easy pickings."

Formerly Insane Asylum

Wodehouse came into the interviewing room smiling; pulled a battered old cap from his shining head, stretched out a hand and said:

"Well, my, my. It's certainly grand of you to come down to see me."

He was wearing a long, heavy tan bathrobe held together with a leather belt; a blue turtle-neck sweater; a tweed sports jacket, trousers and a pair of knit gloves. He carried a three-inch stack of sheets of paper—the innards of the new book.

Coming over here to East Germany came as an absolute blow to me," he said. "It all happened so quickly, you know, that I really didn't have a chance to leave France.

"Really before I could do anything the war was over for me. By the end of May the whole thing was settled in my territory."

His eyes twinkled as he told of the months during which he had to report every morning at 9 o'clock to the German police.

In July he was sent, along with other British prisoners, to Loos, and there they were turned over to the French police. Shortly the prisoners—Wodehouse and his oddly assorted companions—were transferred to Belgium and from there to the present camp, a group of red brick buildings with barred windows, which formerly was an insane asylum.

Rises at 6 A.M.

Asked about his daily schedule, Wodehouse laughed and said, looking at the camp commander:

"Well, am I allowed to tell him——?"

"Sure, why not?" the English-speaking officer replied.

The prisoners, Wodehouse then said have reveille at 6 a.m., dress and wash, have breakfast and then roll call at 9 a.m.. After that they have a chance to see the doctor, and are free to pursue their chosen activity until lunch time, since as civilians they are not required to do manual labor.

The 1,100 men eat in three shifts in a dining hall.

"Immediately after roll-call I go over to 'the white house' our amusement and concert hall," Wodehouse said, "to do some more work on the book which I started here. It's about three American crooks who appeared in one of my other books, and the scene, as usual, is laid in England.

"This is the first time in thirty-five years that I've written a book in longhand. Oh, but now even that's stopped, as the commandant has been kind enough to lend me his typewriter."

Refuses Private Quarters

Wodehouse, who obviously struck the right note with his German captors by his gracious bearing and cordiality, endeared himself even more when he refused to accept special housing privileges. The commandant, in view of Wodehouse's age (he is 59), his position in the world and the work he is doing, offered to remove him from a room with sixty other internees and place him in a private room.

Wodehouse refused, saying he would stay with the others. He has taken advantage of a single room in the amusement centre, where he writes undisturbed each morning and afternoon.

Release is Denied

In order that he might take to his bunk a half-pound of American pipe tobacco, some soap and a can of baked beans which was a present from The Associated Press, the little group went to the dormitory where the English author is "bedded down."

In the twilight the long room resembled anything but the villa from which Wodehouse came. Unshaded light bulbs hung down from the ceiling and many of the internees were far from looking their best.

Wodehouse, who is president of the camp library, said:

"I have my own library here, fourteen of my own books being read by my roommates. You can imagine how flattering it is to have fourteen in one room reading your books at the same time."

As to the food, which the Nazis say is the same in amount and quality as that given the German population, he said he was becoming "a great admirer of the German potato."

In view of Wodehouse's age and position, interested United States parties have been interceding in his behalf with the German police authorities to get him outside the barbed wire and into a hotel where he merely could report periodically to the authorities. Their efforts so far have been in vain.

OBITUARY

MRS. ADDIE L. SMITH,
(Point Anne)

Mrs. Addie L. Smith, widow of the late Alfred G. Smith, passed away at the Belleville General Hospital early this Friday morning, Dec. 27th, after a lengthy illness.

The late Mrs. Smith was a resident of Point Anne, being born at Napanee, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Patton. For the past fifteen years she had lived in Point Anne, coming there from Deseronto.

Surviving to mourn her passing are five children, one daughter, Mrs. Bernard Bennett, Herchimer Ave., Belleville, four sons, Everett V. Smith, Belleville, Albert O. Smith of Toronto, Wilburt L. Smith of Oshawa and Leon N. Smith of Belleville.

The late Mrs. Smith was a member of the United Church and was highly esteemed by her friends and acquaintances.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell St., the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

INFANT MARLENE BRONSON

Following death in the Belleville General Hospital on Dec. 25th, the funeral of 11-day-old Marlene Bronson, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bronson of Crookston, was held from the family residence on Thursday afternoon.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Winters of Madoc and interment was made in the Eldorado Cemetery. Only immediate relatives and neighbours were present.

POLICE COURT

Two Sidney Township brothers appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., for sentence in today's Police Court held at the Court House. The brothers, Roy and Fred Bryant, had pleaded guilty to breaking and entering, theft and being found in possession of stolen goods in a previous police court.

Today Roy Bryant was sentenced to serve two months in the common jail on each of three charges, the terms to run concurrently. At the request of Provincial Police authorities sentence was postponed in the matter of Fred Bryant, the police having been informed that one of the men was needed to care for the farm stock on the family premises west of Belleville.

Magistrate Butler intimated today the same disposition would be made in the case of Fred Bryant upon the expiration of his brother Roy's sentence, thus permitting one of the men to be available for farm work at all times. The charges arose out of investigations conducted by Provincial Police looking into the pilferings from summer cottages in the district west of the city along the bay shore.

Two charges of intoxication were heard in City Police Court preceding the above cases, both counts being enlarged until Monday.

LAY KEEL EARLIER

New York, Dec. 27 (AP). — The New York Times said today that the keel of the 45,000-ton battleship Missouri would be laid at the New York navy yard in Brooklyn about Jan. 6, three months earlier than original plans specified.

There will be three huge warships simultaneously under construction at the yard. The others are the North Carolina, which is expected to be commissioned next July 15, four months ahead of schedule, and the Missouri's sister ship, the Iowa.

DEFENCE MINISTER CLIMBS ABOARD BREN GUN CARRIER

Hon. J. L. Ralston Gets 'Tremendous Kick Out of It,' He Says After His First Ride in Carrier

VISITS 1ST DIVISION

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, Dec. 27—(CP—Cable)— Concluding his tour of the Canadian 1st Division, Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, climbed aboard a Bren gun carrier today and travelled at high speed across the training area of a French-Canadian regiment.

Accompanied by Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Chief of the Canadian General Staff, and Col. A. A. Magee, senior executive assistant to the minister, Col. Ralston whipped over roads and fields and, in his own words, "got a tremendous kick out of it." It was his first ride in a carrier and it was the highlight of a seven-hour visit to the Division.

Yesterday the minister saw corps troops and a friend said he had enjoyed his two days with the army more than any since he arrived in England.

He started the 1st Division tour by inspecting its headquarters. Guards were provided by a Central Ontario regiment. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, General Officer Commanding-in-Chief the Canadian Corps, and Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, General Officers Commanding the 1st Division, accommanied Col. Ralston. The minister met commanding officers and then motored past the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps Unit, later visiting a field ambulance.

Discontinue Search For 2 RCAF Planes Missing Since Dec. 12

Search Will be Resumed When Lake Muskoka Freezes Over

Toronto, Dec. 27 (CP)—Search for the two Royal Canadian air force planes which are believed to have collided in mid-air and fallen into Lake Muskoka, 85 miles north of here, Dec. 12 has been discontinued until the lake freezes over enough to permit diving operations, R.C.A.F. officials said today.

The planes were lost during a search for L.A.C. P. C. Hopton, and two trappers living on the shores of the lake said they saw two machines collide and plunge into the water. The lake was dragged and some heavy object was caught in grappling hooks. It slipped loose, however, before it could be identified.

Early this week R.C.A.F. officials said they received a report that a plane had crashed on the shore of the lake. A flight of planes was sent to investigate but nothing was found.

Ice has been forming on Lake Muskoka for several weeks but still forms only a ring near the shore. Divers who have visited the area refused to descend into the lake until the ice is heavy enough to hold equipment, and there already is too much ice to permit tugs to travel to the spot where the planes are believed to have sunk.

Hopton's plane was found crashed five miles from Camp Borden. The pilot was dead.

Separate Shelters Urged for Each Tubercular Family

London, Dec. 27 (CP).—Lord Horder's committee which has been studying health conditions in air raid shelters issued a report today urging hospital treatment of all known sufferers from "open" tuberculosis.

WINNERS IN STORE CONTEST ANNOUNCED

The following are the lucky winners of the New Percival Furniture Company's Christmas Contest, the drawing taking place last Saturday evening. Mrs. W. B. May, 96 Chatham Street, was the winner of the first prize, a beautiful steel bridge set. Mrs. Musgrove, 56 West Moira Street, won the second prize of a lovely occasional chair. Five other winners were awarded a smart Spot-O-Lite bed lamp each, Miss Lula Palmer, R.R. 1, Frankford; R. G. Stafford, Rednersville; Mrs. Fred Mitchell, R.R. 6, Belleville; Mrs. F. Rushlow, 93 South John; Mrs. Clarence Chambers, R.R. 1, Corbyville.

8 PETERBOROUGH SOLDIERS INJURED

Bus Overturns in Ditch Along Highway West of Brockville

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 27—(CP)—Eight Peterborough soldiers were injured today when a bus containing members of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders overturned on Highway 2, four miles west of Brockville. The men were en route to camp at Ottawa after spending Christmas at home.

A tire blowout is believed to have caused the truck to overturn in a ditch on the south side of the highway.

Pte. Mark Kennedy, asleep when the accident occrred, suffered injuries to his legs and mouth. The injured were taken to Brockville hospital.

WILL TRANSFORM NOVICIATE INTO MILITARY HOSPITAL

Ottawa, Dec. 27—(CP)—The Department of National Defence Medical Services have taken over the noviciate of the Grey Nuns of the Cross at nearby Hurdman's Bridge, it was learned today.

It is the intention of the department to transform the noviciate into a military hospital, equipped to handle both surgical and medical cases. The hospital will have a capacity for more than 400 patients.

B.C. SAWDUST STOCKS REACH EXHAUSTION

Vancouver, Dec. 27 (CP).—Owners of sawdust burning furnaces here faced a possible shortage of fuel as stocks of sawdust in the city reached the exhaustion point, dealers said last night.

Current prices are $5 a unit, as compared with $2.50 a unit during the summer months.

Dealers said that production of city mills is not enough to meet the present demand, and they are meeting current orders on a strict "ration" basis.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Long Voyage Home"

John Ford's screen transcription of a group of Eugene O'Neill plays under the title of "The Long Voyage Home" is being held over at the McCarthy Theatre for the remainder of the week.

In "The Long Voyage Home", a film which is already reported to have been selected for prominent positions on leading critics' "ten best' lists, Mr. Ford and his scenarist, Dudley Nichols, have constructed one full-length film out of the four short plays of the sea by O'Neill, "The Moon of the Caribees", "Bound East for Cardiff", "In the Zone" and "The Long Voyage Home".

Originally these plays were no more than the brief episodes, related only by the fact that they all took place on the British tramp steamer Glencairn. With considerable invention and alteration, Mr. Ford and Mr. Nichols together have produced something that is unique in screenplays.

Here are told a handful of stories of the men of the sea, told without the usual straight line of progressive action that is generally considered essential to all film stories.

There is the story of Olson, the boy who hopes to shake off the binding influence of the sea and settle down on a farm. His dream becomes the crusade of the other men of the crew, who know themselves to be eternally bound by the ways of the seafaring, but who concentrate all their own efforts to save Olson.

There is, too, the story of Smitty, the 'toff' of the crew, whose besetting weakness has led him to cast himself off from his home and family, and to seek redemption on the sea.

Then there are the stories of Driscoll, of Cocky, of Yank, who dies dreaming of the land "I dreamed I was 'way in the middle of the land, where yuh could never smell th' sea or look at a ship", stories told with less recognizable plots, but all separate in kind.

These episodes have been strung together into one story, the story of the long voyage of the Glencairn, which brings the tramp ship up from Buenos Aires, along the coast of South America, across to the States and then across the Atlantic to England, running into an attack by a Nazi plane on the way.

Ford has cast his film with such character players as Thomas Mitchell, Barry Fitzgerald, John Qualen, Wilfred Lawson, with John Wayne and Ian Hunter playing Olson and Smitty respectively and Mildred Natwick in one of the few women's roles.

Never has any picture any time received such acclaim. "The Long Voyage Home" is "unquestionably one of the greatest motion pictures of all time".

WHOLESALE PRICE BUTTER PEGGED ASOFDECEMBER12

Price Will be That Which Butter Sold at in Each District on That Date

STOCKS ARE LOW

Ottawa, Dec. 27 (CP).—Wholesale butter prices throughout Canada were pegged today at the maximum wholesale price prevailing in each locality on Dec. 12 last. Fixing of the price was announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and means an appreciable reduction from the prices now prevailing.

The wholesale price for first grade creamery solids in Montreal on Dec. 12 was approximately 34½ cents a pound. The present price is around 37 cents a pound.

In making the announcement the board said the step had been under consideration for weeks but action was withheld in the hope that gradually increasing prices would attract the imports sufficient to meet any physical shortage feared by the market.

"It now seems definite," said the board in a statement, "that, insofar as several anticipated sources of supply are concerned, imports are highly improbable and such a remedial action as can be taken must be confined to the domestic market."

Stocks In Canada Low.

"Statistics reveal that stocks of butter in Canada at present are lower than normal and, with a tendency towards increased consumption due to larger payrolls, the individual consumer should use special care and economy in the consumption of butter during the coming winter months.

"Housewives, restaurant and hotel proprietors and all other users of butter are urged as a patriotic duty to avoid waste and unnecessary use of butter. The people of Great Britain are restricted to two ounces of butter a week each whereas normal Canadian consumption is four or five times the present British weekly allowance.

"It is contemplated that the present maximum price will hold until the end of the winter season. At that time the situation will be reviewed in the light of Canadian commitments to the United Kingdom in regard to cheese, the existing butter supplies at that time and trends in domestic consumption.

"The board's offer is effective on and after Saturday, Dec. 28."

Climbed In Recent Weeks.

It was reported recently that shipments of butter were on their way to Canada. These are expected to arrive but are not considered sufficient to remedy the situation at which the board's price-fixing order is aimed in view of the fact that imports in quantity from anticipated sources of supply will not be available.

Butter prices have been climbing in recent weeks due to increased consumption and sub-normal stocks in store.

The rising prices caused concern in government circles lest they should lead cheese producers to turn to butter-making and so reduce the reduction of cheese at a time when Canada has undertaken to deliver a larger quantity of cheese to the United Kingdom

FIREMEN CALLED TO CANNIFTON ROAD

A call to the city fire brigade to the scene of a house fire on Cannifton Road, outside the city limits, on Tuesday afternoon undoubtedly saved the home of Mr. Noble from falling prey to flames, which caused damage to the attic of the building before being extinguished. Apparently a defective chimney was responsible for the blaze which had gained considerable headway before the arrival of the brigade. The application of water through the use of hand pumps was sufficient to subdue the blaze, however.

The blaze on Tuesday afternoon was the only fire reported over the holiday, with fire hall circles being all serene from Tuesday up until noon on Friday.

Party Injured In Head-on Crash

Tweed, Dec. 27 (Special)—Marshall Drinkwater, Mr. and Mrs. Elgie Drinkwater and son Floyd, also Mr. and Mrs. John Kingston were severely shaken up and bruised, the result of a head-on collision between the car driven by Mr. Drinkwater and one driven by Mrs. John Marchen shortly after seven o'clock on Christmas morning, the accident being due to the heavy fog that prevailed over the Tweed district at that time. The accident happened three and one-half miles south of Tweed, the Drinkwater party being on their way to Toronto to spend Christmas with Mr. M. Drinkwater's daughter. Marshall Drinkwater and Mrs. Elgie Drinkwater were severely cut and bruised in the collision but were able to continue to Toronto later on Christmas Day after another car had been secured. Both cars were badly damaged in the collision.

FRACTURES LEG FALLING ON ICE

While crossing Pine Street on Tuesday last, Mrs. Arthur Newman, 296 Charles Street, had the misfortune to slip on a piece of ice and fall fracturing her leg. The fracture was reduced by Dr. G. S. Cronk and Mrs. Newman is reported to be resting quite comfortably at her home.

Husband and Wife Released on Bail

Toronto, Dec. 27—(CP)—Joseph Classey, assistant professor of Archaeology at the Royal Ontario Museum here, and his wife Jocelyn, a University graduate, were released on bail of $1,000 each in court here today when they appeared for judgment on a charge of breach of the Defence of Canada Regulations. Judgment was deferred until Jan. 3 because of the absence through illness of both defence counsel and the crown prosecutor.

The charge against them reads: "Knowing or having reasonable cause to believe that S. Ryerson, alias Robertson, is guilty of an offense against any of the Defence of Canada Regulations, they gave the said Ryerson assistance with intent thereby to prevent, hinder or interfere with the apprehension, trial or punishment of the said Ryerson."

Italian Communique

Rome, Dec. 27.— (AP)—Artillery and patrol activity were reported today from both the Libyan and Albanian front by the Italian High Command.

A scouting seaplane sighted and "effectively bombed" a British submarine yesterday off the Libyan coast, it said.

Other Italian planes in North Africa bombed ships, in an unidentified harbor, and British batteries and mechanized forces, it said.

(There was no immediate British comment on these claims.)

C.N.R. Western Region Employees Contribute To Lord Mayor's Fund

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 27. — A Christmas present amounting to more than $13,600 was the answer of the employees of the Western region, Canadian National Railways, to a suggestion sent out a short time ago that something special be done to help the work of the Lord Mayor of London's General Fund. This money was raised in a quick campaign and already has been cabled to the Old Country so that use may be made of it at once.

Considerable Air Activity Over England

A Southeast Coast English Town, Dec. 27.—(CP) — Following the quiet of the Christmas holidays, there was considerable air activity over the southeast coast today.

At dawn British reconnaissance planes were seen patrolling the coast and the English Channel. In mid-morning a single German raider flew in from the Channel and dropped a few bombs that fell harmlessly into the water near a small patrol vessel two miles off shore.

A low mist hung over mid-channel all day, reducing visibility to three or four miles.

SEAMAN TO FACE CHARGE OF DAMAGING RADIO TRANSMITTER

Halifax, Dec. 27 (CP).—A warrant was issued here today for the arrest of a Norwegian seaman, Ingear Hjeintdett, charged with damaging a radio transmitter set belonging to the British Ministry of Shipping. The seaman is being held by immigration authorities here.

A French radio operator off an inbound ship was charged with a similar offence a few weeks ago. His case has not been completed yet.

Mass Training of Japanese Girls

Tokyo, Dec. 27 —(AP)— Mass training of girls desiring to become brides of emigrants to Manchoukuo is scheduled to begin soon under direction of the Japanese-German Woman's Association.

The overseas ministry has granted permission for construction of a $60,000 school at the town of Oruki, outside Tokyo, on the pattern of that established last Oct. 1 at Osaka for training prospective North China brides.

Five hundred girls annually are expected to graduate from the new three-month course in housekeeping and farming.

Canadian, U.K. Contractors May Carry Out Part of Work on U.S. Bases

Ottawa, Dec. 27 (CP).—Canadian contracting companies and firms supplying materials may carry out part of the work on the new United States defence bases, Hon Angus Macdonald, acting minister of munitions and supply announced today.

He said the United States War Department would receive offers from Canadian and United Kingdom contractors to undertake work in connection with the construction of the bases on empire soil which the United States received from Britain in exchange for destroyers.

Generally speaking, the United States War Department will employ contractors on the basis of their qualifications and capacity to undertake the work in view and for the most part they state tenders will not be called, but contracts will be allotted to various contractors with fees varying according to the extent of the work, Mr. Macdonald said. No particulars of the work involved in the construction of each base will thus be made known.

It is understood here that many of the construction materials required will, when possible, be purchased locally. In other instances, the speed of delivery will govern the source of supply which will be used to provide construction materials. It is understood the United States war department will purchase some Empire products for these purposes and it is thought that Canadian cement may be employed in some of the bases.

Spain Aspires to Be Great Sea Power On Atlantic Says Falangist Paper.

Madrid, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Spanish government set aside today new funds to rush enlargement of Vigo Harbor and simultaneously the Falangist newspaper Arriba declared that Spain aspires to be a great Atlantic sea power to protect both herself and Latin America.

Arriba said the idea was to build such a "powerful" Hispano-Americanism that the present Pan-Americanism (advocated by the United States) would no longer be 'eulogized on the other side of the Atlantic."

When this plan is effected, the newspaper said, there will be no more "listening to the foreigner."

The War Today

By H. M. PETERS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The brief Christmas lull in the aerial warfare between Britain and Germany has ended today—although full scale operations had not been resumed.

Britain used the interval to repair worn production machines and at the same time she welcomed fresh arrivals from overseas, Units to complete the Canadian 2nd Division debarked in large numbers from grey transports; Canadian and Australian airmen, a trickle of the Empire Air Training flood to come, also landed.

Today came word that the Royal Air Force using light forces had bombed Bordeaux, one of the German occupied French channel ports, and also attacked German airdromes in France. The Germans sent single planes over the Thames estuary yesterday, when bombs were dropped at Sheppey Island, and over the London district today.

While constant vigilance was maintained against a German attempt at a lightning thrust across the channel, on the other side of which Hitler is reported to have visited his seamen during Christmas, an enemy raider operating in the southern Pacific came out into the open.

The ship shelled the phosphate-exporting island of Nauru (or Pleasant Island), once a German possession but flying the Union Jack since the Australian cruiser Melbourne called upon its German residents to surrender during the last war.

This raider, operating almost under the shadow of the Japanese-mandated Marshall Islands, more than 1,000 miles from the Australian mainland, presumably is the one which has caused an undisclosed amount of damage to merchant shipping in the Pacific and has been the object of an intensive hunt.

Prime Minister Menzies of Australia announced it is using a Japanese name and sailing under Japanese colors.

Meanwhile Hitler's plans, if any, of aiding his partner, Mussolini, to escape the blows being dealt him by the Anglo-Greek allies in Africa and Albania were no clearer. Persistent reports of German troop movements in three directions, through Hungary into Rumania, through the Brenner Pass into Italy, and across the Pyrenees into Spain brought no confirmation. Of the three, the movement through Hungary seemed the best authenticated, leading to belief Hitler may plan a fresh Balkan adventure.

National Hockey League Fills Early Forecast of Tight Race As Canadiens Beat Chicago

'Weak Sister' of Loop Had Rookies Running Wild in Montreal

SCORE IS 7-5

Canadiens Sitting Pretty in Race With Two Games in Hand

By JACK MITCHELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Seldom does a season start before the National Hockey League moguls, with an eye to the cash customer, have filled the air with forecasts of an ultra-tight race, but here is once that time has lent an unusual ring of prophecy to the August words.

Despite the early runaway tendencies shown by Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings, the league has tightened into anybody's battle. With a slightly-slumping Toronto still well out in front, Detroit has slipped in second place until now only seven points separate that berth from the last.

One of the former "weak sisters" strengthened by the influx of new blood this season, Montreal Canadiens struck a big blow toward the new compactness by defeating the fourth-place Chicago Black Hawks, 7-5, last night. The victory lifted Montreal into a sixth-place tie with New York Americans.

Going like a house afire of late, the Canadiens have played two games less than the second-place Red Wings. Victories in both of them, while problematical, could put the Habitants into the fourth place so fondly predicted for them by Coach Dick Irvin at the start of the campaign.

Their cellar bunkmates, the Americans, have been bothered by injuries in the early weeks of the season but still have turned in a better performance than the Amerks of recent years. They meet Boston Bruins at New York in the only N.H.L. tilt tonight and a victory would shoot them into fifth position ahead of the Rangers.

Stricken by Injuries

Lending spice to the visions of all-around closeness, also, is the possible picture of Toronto slumping after following their usual custom by jumping into a wide lead. Stricken by injuries, the Leafs have managed to gain only one draw in their last four starts but still have a six-point hold on first place.

That the close race has been largely brought about by the influx of rookies there is little doubt. Both Detroit and Americans are rebuilt teams while the Canadiens, most changed of them all, saw rookies dominate everything in their victory over Chicago in Montreal.

Five Montreal goals came from the sticks of Yannigans in the match, which was the only N.H.L. fixture last night. Pacing the attack was Jack Adams with two tallies while the other rookie scorers were Joe Benoit, Johnny Quilty and Elmer Lach. The other two counters were tallied by Murph Chamberlain and Tony Demers.

A crowd of 8,524 watched a see-saw battle in the opening half until Chicago, playing their second game in two nights after tying the Rangers 3-3 in New York, began to wilt. The Black Hawk scorers were Bill Thoms and Pep Kelly, who each bagged two, and George Allen. The veteran Earl Seibert aided in four of the five goals.

Right winger Harold (Mush) March of Chicago had a tooth broken accidentally in the second frame but returned to action.

Jockey Earl Dew Winging Westward To Protect Lead

Miami, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP).—Determined to protect his slim lead for 1940 riding honors, Jockey Earl Dew was winging westward today to finish the year on Pacific coast tracks and take advantage of a long Sunday card at Agua Caliente in Mexico.

Dew was just two wins ahead of Walter Lee Taylor—283 to 318—when he hurriedly packed his equipment and caught an airliner last night.

Earlier in the day Dew and Taylor were fined $50 each and reprimanded for a fist fight that occurred in the Tropical Park jockey quarters after their mounts had almost collided in the third race. After the fine and reprimand they shook hands at a public reconciliation, but the incident added drama to a contest that already had race fans here agog.

GREATEST THRILL PROVIDED BY WILLIE THE KID

Winning of King's Plate by Miss A. M. Kane's Horse Pleased Writers

RANGERS SECOND

Winning of Stanley Cup in Sixth Game Also a Thrilling Event

(By Robert Clarke)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 27.—(CP) — One sunny day last May Willie the Kid, a bay colt carrying the colors of Miss M. A. Kane of Toronto, came flying down the stretch to win the 81st running here at Woodbine race track of the historic King's Plate, Canada's Blue-Ribbon racing event.

Sports Writers across Canada, participating in a poll conducted by The Canadian Press, hailed the feat today as providing them with the greatest thrill of the Dominion's 1940 sports year. Last year the honor went to Winnipeg Blue Bombers for their thrilling victory in the Canadian Football final over Ottawa Rough Riders.

Twenty-seven writers cast ballots in the poll, with Willie the Kid's triumph getting the call from four of them. Runner-up honors went to New York Rangers for their Stanley Cup triumph in six games over Toronto Maple Leafs. Three writers cast their votes for the Rangers, stressing the "kick" given them by the sixth and final games which Rangers won in overtime on a goal by Bryan Hextall.

Actually, the Rangers came close to winding up tied with Willie the Kid for supplying the writers with the biggest thrill of the year. For besides their three votes as a team, Hextall himself also got an individual vote.

All Sports Enjoyed

Football, hockey, English rugby, basketball, horse racing, baseball, lacrosse, and a famous fist fight on the ice were the things that drew the attention of the voters. However, only one feat, other than the top two, drew more than a single vote. Two Maritime writers cast their ballots for a rugger football game between Dalhousie University and Caledonia.

One scribe called it a toss-up between St. Catharines Athletics' victory in the Mann Cup Lacrosse final over Vancouver Burrard Blue Bombers and the scrap between Syl Apps of Maple Leafs and Jimmy Orlando of Detroit Red Wings during a hectic free-for-all that occurred at Detroit in a Stanley Cup playoff game.

The four sports writers who voted for Willie the Kid could probably find plenty of support to their "biggest thrill" theory from the 25,000 persons who watched the running of the race. It was the kind of a race that had everyone at Woodbine on their feet from the very start.

Miss Kane's colt won by three lengths but it looked for a time as if H. C. Hatch's Curwen would take the race when Willie the Kid swung wide at the head of the stretch to lose ground. But the gallant little horse came spurting past the stands to overtake and pass Curwen and win by three lengths paying $8.70 to win. Toronto-born Ronnie Nash was the winning jockey.

One sports writer found his biggest thrill in watching Howie McPhee dash 55 yards for a try against a California English rugby team and then reading the tribute sent by the United States Club when McPhee, one of Canada's outstanding sprinters, died less than a month ago.

Cleveland Indians Ready for Opening Of Baseball Season

Cleveland, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Cleveland Indians are practically lined up for the 1941 baseball pennant race, in the opinion of Vice-President C. C. Slapnicka.

"I guess we'll go to bat with what we have", he said in the wake of the major leagues' two biggest post-season shuffles.

"We still would like to get an established pitcher "but everyone has his established pitchers locked up in the office safe.

"We would like to get such a fellow as Vern Kennedy but we could not tempt the St. Louis Browns with anything we could afford to give up".

However, Slapnicka was greatly pleased with the deals he has put over. The latest brought Joe Krakauskas, Montreal-born Lithuanian lefthander from Washington in trade for outfielder Ben Chapman.

Oldest Horse Alive Down in Kentucky

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 27.—(AP)—The heart that carried Merrick through 205 races from 1905 through 1915 still is ticking in the oldest of thoroughbred horses known to be alive today.

On January 1, Universal age-change date of all race horses, Merrick will be 38 years old.

There's sadness in the voice of his owner, J. C. Milam, a horseman-farmer, when he tells you only a small country bridge and Milam's farm will carry Merrick's name after the "Old Man" is gone. Merrick is a gelding.

People from all over the country visit Merrick every year, Milam continued, beaming on the nearly blind, deaf and crippled animal.

NIAGARA BRIGHTS IN FIRST PLACE

Joined on Thursday Night by Hamilton, Who Beat London 8-1

London, Ont., Dec. 27 —(CP)—Leaders of the senior "A" series in the Ontario Hockey Association seldom have time to get lonesome at the top of the standings, this season. No one club stays in the same position, or alone, for long.

Just Christmas night Niagara Falls Brights climbed into first place, and last night they were joined by Hamilton Dofascos who swamped London Streamliners here 8-1 with the aid of a brilliant four-goal performance by Clarence Shillington.

Archie Woodward, Dillon Brady, Doug Fritz and Leo Lamoureux got one goal each to add to Shillington's four, while Bill Legg scored the only London tally.

The result left Toronto Marboros and St. Catharines tied in third place, one point behind Brights and Dofascos. Oshawa Generals are in fifth place, four points out of first. Port Colborne and London trail in that order.

SENATORS AT FULL STRENGTH

Ottawa, Dec. 27.—(CP)—Ottawa Senators, Quebec Senior Hockey League leaders, were back at full strength last night when they went through a practice for their two-game series with Quebec Royal Rifles. Senators meet Quebec here Saturday and play a return engagement at Quebec Sunday.

Wingman Tony Lemay did not work out with the team but attended the drill. He was given treatment for a Charley horse.

"I don't mind being attacked in the air, but I do hate being bombed," said Col. Sandeman Allen, M.P. for Birkenhead, after he had been attacked by Messerschmitts while flying to London.

LEADING HITTER IN NATIONAL LOOP IS DEBS GARMS

A UTILITY MAN

Played in Outfield and at Third and Served as Pinchhitter

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 27 —(AP)— The disputed batting championship of the National Baseball League became the irrefutable property of little Debs Garms of Pittsburg Pirates today upon announcement of the official averages for 1940.

The dark Texan reeled off a .355 figure for 358 times at bat in 103 games.

His average was the highest in the senior circuit in three years, and there wasn't any question about its legitimacy.

The controversy that raged at the close of the season over the batting leader centred solely on the fact he had gone to bat less than 400 times, the figure which for years had been considered the minimum qualification for the championship in both major leagues.

On this basis, the title would have gone to Stanley Hack, the veteran third baseman of Chicago Cubs, who batted .317 in 603 times at bat in 149 games.

But in the waning days of the 1940 campaign it was discovered that while the American League had a rule providing for the designation of a hitting champion each year on the basis of 400 times at bat, the National League had no rule of any kind, and its batting championship was only semi-official.

A Utility Man

Garms was a utility man for the Pirates, playing the outfield and third base and serving as a left-handed pinchhitter. He never was a regular. But he got into more than 100 games and led the hitters, so the batting championship is his as far as the National League is concerned.

Three other batters intervened between Garms and Hack in the rankings. Virgil (Spud) Davis of the Pirates played in 99 games and went to the plate 285 times to get an average of .326. Ernie Lombardi of Cincinnati Reds, hurt at the end of the season, batted .319 for 376 times in 109 games, and John Cooney of Boston Bees had .318 for 365 at bats in 108 games.

Based on appearance in 100 or more games, the 10 leaders were Garms, Lombardi, Cooney, Hack, John Mize of St. Louis, the 1939 champion, .314; Jim Gleeson, Chicago, .313; Frank McCormick, Cincinnati, .309; Fred (Dixie) Walker, Brooklyn, .308; Enos Slaughter, St. Louis, .306; and Carvel Rowell, Boston, .305.

N. H. L. STARS

Jack Adams, Canadiens, who scored the opening two goals and earned an assist in the Canadiens' 7-5 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

Earl Seibert, Chicago, who played a steady game on defence and made the play for four goals although his team was beaten in Montreal.

Santa Claus came and for many it was a joyous Christmas, the pall of war mitigated the festive season for numerous families and to them their sole desire and hope is to have their loved ones home for next Christmas and universal peace reigning supreme. But four more days remain and 1940 will be only a forgotten memory, as we look into 1941 with keen hopes of success and prosperity for all.

Several sport fans say they would like to have a copy of all O.H.A. games being played in the Hume arena this season, so for the benefit of those desirous of keeping a handy pocket-size schedule of the 1940-41 O.H.A. games we give you them in sequence.

Dec. 30th: Cobourg at Belleville—(Junior).
Jan. 3rd.: Air Force at Belleville.
Jan. 6th: Peterboro at Belleville.
Jan. 10th: Whitby at Air Force.
Jan. 13th: Trenton at Belleville — (Junior).
Jan. 15th: Kingston at Air Force.
Jan. 17th: Belleville at Air Force.
Jan. 22nd: Cobourg at Belleville — (Junior).
Jan. 27th: Trenton at Belleville — (Junior).
Jan. 31st: Whitby at Belleville.
Feb. 3rd: Cobourg at Belleville — (Junior).
Feb. 5th: Kingston at Belleville.
Feb. 7th: Peterboro at Air Force.
Feb. 12th: Trenton at Belleville — (Junior).

The above schedule of home games to be played in the Hume arena tallies exactly 14 games, senior and junior. Their are eight senior and six junior games in all, with an equal number to be played by the respective clubs on the road. The Senior "B" play-offs open on Feb. 10th, with four of the five clubs entered in the group qualified for the playdowns. All Juvenile League and Ki-Y group games will also be played in the local ice palace.

We observed where the Van Horne finals in Kingston will not get under way until Jan. 10th at the earliest, that being the date most of the Queen's University students are doubtlessly scheduled to resume their studies. The Belleville Reliance sextette is assured of a Van Horne Memorial play-off spot and are anxious to get in their playdown games as soon as possible. Starting on Jan. 6th, the Reliance team has a long and strenuous schedule of games taking them right up to Jan. 22nd but apparently the local entry was given no consideration and once again we find the Van Horne playdowns conflicting with the district O.H.A. schedule.

Do you remember when Sylvanus Apps, National Hockey League centre for Toronto Maple Leafs was acclaimed Canada's outstanding athlete of 1937 in the annual Canadian Press sports poll three years ago today. The former British Empire and Olympic games pole vaulter failed by only one point to win the N.H.L. scoring title in his first pro season, 1936-37. And also when Mike Karakas, an important cog in Chicago Black Hawks' drive to the Stanley Cup in the 1937-38 season, was shipped out of the National Hockey League to the minors a year ago. He was replaced by Paul Goodman of the International-American League.

Last May 3rd. Memorial Day in the U.S.A., Wilbur Shaw made sporting history at Indianapolis when he became the first man in the 28-year history of the 500-mile Indianapolis speedway race to win the event twice in succession. Shaw also equalled Lou Meyers' achievement of winning the classic three times. On two occasions the Hoosier speedway ace had to come from behind to win championships the hard way.

The reason for all this—well one of the many Christmas cards to reach the sporting department of the Ontario Intelligencer came from Wilbur Shaw, who was general manager of the World's Soap Box Derby race held at Akron, Ohio, last August, during which time he met the Belleville contingent and became acquainted with the Ontario Intelligencer-sponsored Kinsmen Club entry.

Worchester's most famous southpaw, Lou Brouillard, who held two world's boxing championships, recently made a successful wrestling debut before a home-town audience in Mechanics Hall, defeating Gus Johnson, Minneapolis, Minn., in five minutes 51 seconds.

Somewhat heavier than before he hung up his boxing gloves, Brouillard weighed 177 pounds for his match against Johnson, who held a 20-pound advantage.

Though his opponent twice appeared about to use his fists on Lou, neither contestant fell back on his punching ability during the bout. Lou twice was on the bottom and receiving punishment during the brief bout but managed to squirm loose and win.

Sport Slants—The Kirkland Lake Blue Devils, Allen Cup winners of 1940, were named Canada's top-ranking team of the year.... The Ottawa Rough Riders were next in the Canadian Press poll.. Football, hockey and lacrosse clubs have attained this distinction, but never once has baseball reached this peak, nor will baseball or softball be included in such a lofty bracket until the diamond moguls shorten their season's schedules and engage in some kind of inter-provincial competition in order to test the relative strength of the game across the Dominion....See where the 33-year-old Cobalt rink roof collapsed on Christmas Day, the rink was erected back in 1907 when professional hockey was introduced into the then youthful Cobalt ....Them was the days of the Renfrew "Millionaires," Montreal Wanderers, Halleybury, Cobalt and the McNamara brothers .... Norm Barriage, manager of the Hume arena, says they've a fine foundation and with a slight drop in the temperature over the week end, ideal ice can be assured for the Cobourg at Belleville junior fixture....The boys in the N.H.L. are slowly whittling away at that early lead enjoyed by Toronto, Detroit are only six points in arrears now and Boston but eight.. Now for some turkey soup, at least it slides down easily.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

George Allen of Chicago Black Hawks made the only change in the National Hockey League's Big Seven last night, picking up a goal and an assist in Chicago's 7-5 loss to Montreal Canadiens to enter into a tie for the last berth with Syd Howe of Detroit Red Wings. It was the only game, leaving Bill Cowley of Boston Bruins with an eight-point lead among the individual point-getters as all the other leaders were idle.

The leaders:	G.	A.	P.
Cowley, Boston	8	18	27
Hextall, Rangers	12	7	19
Apps, Toronto	7	12	19
Wiseman, Boston	5	13	18

Noise Lessens Our Working Ability

One by one the elevated railways of New York are being removed, the trains being replaced by almost noiseless busses. We are told by some authorities that people living on these streets with the elevated trains soon learn to disregard them, sleep and eat well, and enjoy just as good health as those living on streets with no elevated railways. While there is no question but that we can all get used to even loud noises when we know exactly what is causing them, there is also no question but that some damage is done to the nervous system by noise, even noise that is familiar. Getting accustomed to noise costs something in nervous energy, the amount of energy expended differing, of course, with different individuals.

There has been an increased interest in noise or sounds lately because the hard of hearing have been looking and hoping for something that would restore sufficient hearing to enable them to enjoy the company of others, concerts, theatre and radio. It was found that for the hard of hearing noise, very loud sounds, could bother or upset them just as these sounds bothered those with normal hearing. This has resulted in the invention of machines to measure the amount and type of hard of hearing present in any individual, and of hearing aids that would permit the hearing of sounds of the right pitch and right amount for individual cases.

It can be seen that by studying noise, its quality and quantity, something can be done to prevent noises of a type that is irritating and disturbing to the human ear. The invention of the muffler for motor cars and for most motor boats has made cars and motor boats a source of pleasure and comfort to the users and others.

Dr. A. H. Davis, Principal Scientific Officer Physics Department of the National Physical Laboratory in his book "Noise" says that the rustlings of trees, the steady patter of rain are rhythmic, soothing and restful, but the irregular rattle of machinery, the motorcycle gaining speed, pneumatic drills for breaking up pavements, burst rudely on our consciousness and stir our resentment and fears.

'Dig-for-Victory' Drive Naugurated

BY LOUIS V. HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 27 (CP).—Britain, confronted by a growing submarine menace to the free flow of food from overseas, is stepping up its "dig-for-victory" drive on the farm front where the ploughshare is as vital as the sword.

Announcement by Agriculture Minister Robert Hudson that present agricultural prices will be guaranteed for the duration of the war and for one year afterwards marked the start of the country-wide expansion campaign that will enable Britain to feed herself.

The authorities believe it is well within the reach of the farmers—whose financial future is to a large extent guaranteed under the new policy—to obtain an overall increase of five per cent—and possibly much more. That may appear small, but it is equivalent to the ploughing up of another 1,000,000 acres. And it is only the beginning.

Greater production is necessary for a variety of reasons. Britain's food position cannot be too strong. Enemy action has been concentrated on the vessels bringing food to these shores and there have been considerable losses. If a ship is sunk it means not only that a shipload is lost, but that subsequent shiploads cannot be brought in that ship.

HOLLOWAY ST. W.A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Association was held in the church parlors on Thursday afternoon, December 19. The president opened the meeting with the theme song, followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. Scripture lesson Luke the 11th Chapter was read by Mrs. Denton. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and the treasurer's report was given and various committees reported. The report of the nominating committee was then read. A vote of thanks was moved to our retiring President, Mrs. Sweetnam for her work during the past year. Roll call was taken with 27 present. Mrs. McMurray then took charge and opened this part of the meeting by all singing "It came upon the Midnight Clear". Scripture lesson, Luke 2nd Chapter was read by Mrs. Kerr followed with prayer by Mrs. Mason.

Mrs. Dilts then gave a very impressive Christmas story "The Life of Mary and Jesus".

A reading "Higher Culture" was given by Mrs. Hickey and much enjoyed. The meeting closed with Hymn "Silent Night" and the Mizpah benediction.

Mrs. McMurray and Mrs. Ketcheson's group then served dainty refreshments and a social half hour was spent by all.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:—

Past President, Mrs. L. Sweetnam; President, Mrs. R. Andrews; 1st Vice President, Mrs. B. Moorman; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. A. F. Scott; Cor. Secretary, Mrs. W. Johns; Press Secretary, Mrs. C. Gibson; Treasurer, Mrs W. Oliphant; Program Com., Mrs. M. Denton, Mrs. B. Langabeer; Parsonage Com. Mrs. C. Ostrom, Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Robertson; Flower Com. The Stars Say—

For Saturday, December 28

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

ACCORDING to very lively planetary configurations this day should offer excellent opportunities for the fulfillment of long-cherished and ambitious objectives. These may enjoy definite impetus, especially as relating to certain static conditions in business ventures, in investments or in speeding up property values.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may benefit by a year of most decided opportunities for stabilizing the fortunes, expanding the interests and putting old and lagging projects on an accelerated basis. Property values may increase and generally there is promise of growth, sound enterprise and accomplishment. And this despite elements of subtlety and treachery which must be offset by vigilance, sagacity and ready grasp of peculiar circumstances or traps, possibly emanating from influential sources.

A child born on this day should be efficient, hardworking and ambitious, blessed with much promise of stability, success and place in life, despite certain antagonism or suspicious undercurrents.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Melody Ranch"

After seeing Gene Autry's performance in "Melody Ranch," which is now playing at the Capitol theatre to capacity audiences, we have decided that the young man is not only "Public Cowboy Number One," but a close contender for the lead in all-Hollywood popularity.

Some years ago we began hearing about the western star who was making remarkable fan headway with his series of "horses operas" for Republic.

Today that young man has reached such heights that Republic—the same studio which launched him on his career—has surrounded him with a top flight cast and a story whose production values will place it on the "must see" list of thousands of Americans.

Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante, whose unique brand of hilarious comedy has made him a favorite of millions, provides humor relief for Autry's courageous exploits in rounding up the villainous element in "Torpedo" present-day frontier town of the west.

George "Gabby" Hayes, the old timer who is regarded with universal affection by his battalions of fans, portrays the spunky owner-operator-mechanic of the Torpedo Traction Company — consisting of one limping trolley of the "Toonerville" type. It comes to grief in a breath-taking sequence in which it crashes through a barricade erected by the heavies to keep Autry from restoring law and order in Torpedo, and although the trolley is considerably the worse for wear, Gene is able, by crashing the barrier, to rout the heavies.

Ann Miller, popular tap-danseuse, plays opposite Gene in the leading feminine role, and Mary Lee, a singing moppet, scores an ovation of her own through the rendition of several catchy songs.

"Christmas in July"

"Christmas in July," which opens with a preview at the Capitol Sunday midnight after 12.05 a.m. co-starring Dick Powell and Ellen Drew, is an original story by Preston Sturges, who also directed. Powell plays the role of a clerk with a coffee concern whose mania is contests. Through a practical joke played by some fellow employees he believes he has won a slogan contest and $25,000 from a rival coffee concern. On the strength of this he goes ahead with plans to marry Ellen Drew and blows all his relatives and friends to presents. Even the neighborhood kids share in his generosity, all of which he obtained on credit. Suddenly the head of the rival concern realizes he has made a mistake in giving him the check, and then the fun sharts. He is confronted with the irate store manager, who demands everyone be arrested, and the coffee magnate, who tears up the check, which leaves him and his fiancee in a pretty tough spot. It's a riot of fun from start to finish. On the same program "Roaring Timber" with Jack Holt.

AT THE BELLE

"Little Nellie Kelly"

With Judy Garland in her first solo starring role, "Little Nellie Kelly," filmization of the famed George M. Cohan musical hit, opens next at the Belle theatre, replete with songs, laughter and a few heart-tugs.

Miss Garland is permitted to grow up all at once in this delightful comedy-drama. She marries and has a child. Later she appears as that child, grown to the age of seventeen. The story deals with an Irish lass named Nellie Noonan, portrayed by Miss Garland, and her father, Michael Noonan, portrayed by Charles Winninger. When Nellie marries, her father vows that he will never speak to her husband, Jerry Kelly, played by George Murphy. Although he lives with the couple and follows them to America, he keeps his word. When Nellie dies, Noonan lavishes his affection upon the youngster who is torn between love for her father and her grandfather. Not until the end of the film do Noonan and his son-in-law reach an amicable agreement, brought about by Nellie.

Laughs and Tears

The role of Noonan is said to be one of the best Winninger has ever had. His interpretation of the old man, who has a horror of work, brings many a laugh as well as an occasional tear. Murphy, last seen in a singing and dancing role in "Two Girls on Broadway," with Lana Turner, neither sings nor dances in this new film, but has a straight dramatic role. Miss Garland's romantic interest in the last half of the film is supplied by Douglas McPhail, who won acclaim for his work in "Babes in Arms", McPhail, youthful baritone, is given more of an opportunity both as an actor and a singer in this new film. His numbers include "Nellie Kelly, I Love You," and "It's a Great Day for the Irish," both sung in a duet with Miss Garland. Miss Garland's solo songs include "Pretty Girl Milking Her Cow", and the more modern "Singin' in the Rain."

The popular Belle Newsreel and "Milky Way," a funny comicolor cartoon precede the feature attraction. Saturday Matinee a new and interesting chapter of "The Green Hornet" serial will be exhibited. A special extra matinee attraction over the week-end will be the exhibition of three selected cartoon comedies.

"Love Thy Neighbor"

With commendable sagacity, Paraamount pictures saw the great possibilities in famous feud between Jack Benny and Fred Allen as the basis of a first-rate comedy.

They weren't at all wrong, for "Love Thy Neighbor," starring the feverish feudists, which is now closing at the Belle, is noe of the most hilarious pictures produced in a long, long time.

Witty, tuneful and expertly produced, it is grand screen entertainment, boasting the excellent capabilities of such favorite performers as Mary (My Heart Belongs To Daddy) Martin, Verree Teasdale, The Merry Macs, Virginia Dale, the graceful and beautiful Merriel Abbott Dancers, and the one and only Rochester.

Three grand short treats precede the feature offering.

Royal Bank Has Satisfactory Year

Total Assets $995,000,000—Current Loans in Canada Increased $17,000,000—Profits Moderately Lower After Largely Increased Taxes

The annual balance sheet and profit and loss account of The Royal Bank of Canada for the year ending November 30, 1940, was issued to its shareholders.

In line with the experience of Canadian banks, assets show a moderate decrease as compared with the previous year.

Canadian Deposits Up.

Total deposits amount to $852,000,000, as compared with $911,000,000 in the previous year. The difference is accounted for mainly by a reduction of $20,000,000 of balances due to the Dominion government and a decrease of $48,000,000 in deposits outside Canada. Canadian public deposits actually increased $20,000,000

Current Loans Increased.

The greatly increased volume of business now being transacted throughout Canada is reflected in an increase in commercial loans of $17,000,000. Loans outside Canada have been reduced $10,000,000.

Strong Liquid Position.

Cash balances show practically no change as compared with the previous year. Bank balances and investments show moderate reductions but total immediately realizable assets amount to $585,000,000 which represents 66.5 per cent of the total liabilities to the public.

Profit and Loss Account.

A feature of the Profit and Loss Account is an increase in taxes as compared with the previous year of approximately $620,000 after providing for which and making appropriations to Contingency Reserve, out of which provision for all bad and doubtful debts has been made net profits amount to $3,526,894. This is a moderate decrease as compared with the previous year. $2,800,000 was distributed in dividends. Contributions to the Pension Fund Society were increased to $325,000, and an amount of $300,000 was written off Bank Premises Account, as compared with $250,000 in the preceding year. The balance of Profit and Loss Account carried forward amounted to $3,198,146, an increase of $101,894.

The Annual General Meeting of the shareholders will be held at the head office of the bank at eleven a.m. on January 9, 1941.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself with a sattisfied expression and ma said, Well Willyum, I've been a proverbial model wife today. If I darned one pair of your socks I darned a dozen, she said.

The logical question is, did you darn one? pop said and ma said, Now Willyum dont be flippant, I darned a dozen.

Then I'll do as much for you, pop said. If I wear the darns out of one pair I'll wear them out of the whole dozen, he said, and ma said, And that was only the beginning of how I slaved in your intrist all day. I had every shirt out of your shirt draw and I turned the cuffs of 3 of them so they're as good as new and then I overhalled your perfect galaxy of neckties and ironed the mussed ones and sent the soiled ones to the cleaners, so when they come back you wont know them, she said.

I hope you'll interduce me, my deer, pop said. But seriously, I'm deeply touched, and you shall have your reward, he said, and ma said, Dont be silly, I'm not telling you all this because I expect a reward.

Then you shall have an unexpected one, pop said. If you remind me I'll give you a rousing good night kiss, he said, and ma said, But of course every figure cant be on the same side of the ledger in this world.

They are in some businesses nowadays, and they're all red, pop said. What's all this about figures? he said, and ma said, Well, I mean there's just one mark on the outgoing side of the ledger, or whatever you call it. Maud Hews dropped in late this afternoon and she's a great gingerale drinker, and I couldn't find an opener to get the cap off the bottle, so invention being the mother of adversity I tried one of your safety razors and it worked, but it broke. It was the one that folds up and down over the blade, I do hope it's not your favorite one, she said.

Yee gods, it's not now anyway, pop said.

Proberly meaning it was before ma broke it.

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 27—(CP)—Peter Floyd MacArthur, 652 York Street, London, Ont., was sentenced to three years in penitentiary today a few hours after he was captured in the Goodrich Tire Corporation store at Main Street and Ferguson Avenue. Police surrounded the building to apprehend MacArthur.

In court MacArthur pleaded guilty to safebreaking and breaking and entering.

INSTALMENT 18

"I'd rather not read it." Gwen's hand still rested on the letter .. "This must be a terrible dream," she thought. "I'm not here in this dining room on this horrible wet afternoon, promising to marry Van Bellamy! I'm asleep upstairs in my rooms—"

"Read it, and then you can destroy it," Van was saying. "And it will be as if it had never been! Turn it over and notice that it's on Public Library paper, Gwen."

"I see it is. You say, Van", Gwen recapitulated it, in a slow, puzzled fashion, "that your mother owned this apartment house, and that after Tony Lomont gave up his apartment, eight years ago, you found this letter in a book and kept it, and that only yesterday someone said something that made you think it might be Link's wife?"

"Baker's wife," he corrected, checking her story with nods as she went along.

"But you didn't know Baker's wife was Sheila."

"No; not until just now. I've been away since March."

"And only yesterday you put it all together? Is that really what happened, Van?"

"My dearest, truly, truly. My darling, you can wipe the whole thing out if you will. Don't look so distressed! Would I ask you to marry me, Gwen, if I didn't know I could make you happy?"

She looked at him steadily, her eyes ringed with shadow.

"Read that note," he said again.

Gwen looked down at it, her spirit sick within her. There was no mistaking Sheila's handwriting in the few lines that crossed the sheet of Library paper.

Gwen could not see the lines; she took in the meaning with blurred eyes and a fast-beating heart. Then she tore the fine paper to shreds, pushed them down into her plate, saw their lines run and blot.

"Gone!" she said, clearing her throat to pronounce the word, facing him with colorless cheeks and lips.

"You are a heroic woman, Gwen," he said. "You are mine now, and you are never going to be sorry."

She took her glass and poured water upon the torn papers in her plate, drove them to and fro with her fork until they were a gray pulp.

"You'll marry me, when?" the man asked. "Tomorrow?"

"Anytime. After election. We'll—There'll be too much going on at home before that. They'd — I couldn't fool them."

"Wednesday, then. The sooner the better. You'll write your doctor friend in Scotland?"

"Yes, I'll write him. Not Wednesday, that's too soon! We can be married a week from Wednesday, maybe."

"You'll not fail me, Gwen?"

"Oh, no. I'll keep my word. I feel so tired and so confused now that I hardly know what's going on," Gwen added, unwelcome tears suddenly biting at her eyelids and thickening her throat, "but I do hear my own voice saying, this, Van, and I can keep my word. Anyone can do that. I don't know what I'll write Dick."

A faintness of spirit like physical weakness came over her, and she rose unsteadily to her feet.

"I think I'll go upstairs to Sheila. We're staying here tonight, but we're going back to Kenthill early in the morning, we start at six. So I won't see you again. Next Sunday — I don't know what we're doing — but I'll write . . . No more long letters to Scotland," she thought. "Just one note more, and a short one! Ah, Dick, my darling, my darling—!"

Van went with her to the elevator. "Good night, my lovely wife!" he said. "In a few days I won't have to say good night."

She looked at him, pathetically quiet, receptive.

"I've always thought," she said hesitantly, "that any woman could make a success at any marriage if she determined to. But I don't know. If things go wrong—"

It was all like a dream. It was like a dream to go upstairs and find Sheila asleep with a smile like that of a sleeping child on her face, to think the fearful thoughts that Gwen was thinking and to know that Sheila right here on the adjoining bed had no faintest conception of them. Sheila would go on to Washington with Link, and everyone there would admire the beautiful Mrs. Baker.

Gwen felt dazed and tired. If her thoughts slipped away for a few seconds, it was only to return with a fresh sense of shock and incredulity. She couldn't have promised to marry Van Bellamy! It couldn't have been true that only an hour ago she had held in her hand the fatal note; that note whose existence had haunted her, had filled her soul with fear, since Friday night. It was destroyed now, forever, and everything she had hoped and planned in the months since Dick had gone away had been consumed with it. It was as if a part of her living heart had been cut away.

The next day, in the office, she found a letter from Dick. He had had her joyous confident letter; he could not believe that things might really be coming their way, he wrote.

"Gwen, I've not let myself think how much I want you! Do you know what I do now? I go down to the railway station where your train will come in from London and walk about it and imagine that the time has come.

"I've looked at apartments," the letter went on. "One is quite nice, two pounds a week, and coal found. Not so bad? It's only two rooms, but we could use the attic, she says. The other is simply a pip, four rooms, one enormous, and looking out on such a nice street, and only one flight up, but she wants three pounds ten. However, I think I can get her to come down. Gwen, was anyone ever married before, feeling this way? It seems to me the old world would have split open with excitement if this is the usual thing. I look at the married doctors, men of my age, at the hospital, and just wonder and wonder. You've made life a thing to wonder about."

She sat for a long time looking into space, the letter in her hands. After a while she began to answer; tore the pages up. She began again; again it would not do. After a while she wrote five lines, signed them "Gwen" and sent them off.

After the election, Sheila and Link went away to Pebble Beach for a ten days' rest. They took the baby with them, with Tryrena's sister as nurse. Gwen was to go down and join them for a long week end. But she wired them on Friday that she could not make it, and when Sheila came back her first puzzled question was about Gwen. She perceived from her mother's manner and from the expression of the home group that something was wrong.

"What is it?" she demanded. "How's Gwen?"

"She's out. She was here a few minutes ago," Mrs. Washburton said. "She had to go downtown."

"Home at three o'clock in the afternoon? She's sick!" Sheila exclaimed anxiously.

"No." Mrs. Washburton had obviously been crying. Now her eyes watered again. "Come sit down, Sheila, you must be dead. No, she's left the office," she said. "She only told Dad and me at breakfast this morning. She's going to be married to Mr. Bellamy this afternoon."

"She—what!" Sheila exclaimed. She was seated now by the sitting-room stove. Mrs. Washburton, seated opposite, had little Fanny in her arms. Sheila's eyes never left her mother's.

"What about Dick Latimer," Link asked in his kindly understanding voice, ending a long moment of dead silence.

"She's written him that it's all off" Peter offered.

"I don't know what's got into her; it doesn't seem like Gwen," the elder Peter said. Sheila seemed incapable of speech.

"It was at breakfast," Mrs. Washburton added, "that she said very quietly to Dad and me that Mr. Bellamy was in town and that she wanted to be married in the house at five o'clock and they would go afterward to Sacramento. He was here Sunday and the Sunday before, and Dad said once or twice that he didn't like it much—a man that age paying attentions to our Gwen! But we never dreamed —! Seems she didn't notify the office that she was leaving until last night. Mr. Bellamy was here last night; he had dinner with us, and afterward he and Gwen went for a walk, and I suppose they arranged all the details then. Anyway, Doctor Stockbridge is coming here any time now, and I've telephoned a few of the family. It's all so different from your lovely little wedding, dear—"

"But I don't understand!" Sheila said in the first pause. "It doesn't seem like Gwen! She can't— Link, she oughtn't to marry Van Bellamy!" she protested passionately.

"No, I don't think she sould," Link agreed slowly. "He's oh, he's all right, I suppose," he conceded, "but he works for that gang of crooks, and he's mixed up in some pretty queer cases!"

"But Link, what can we do?" Gwen's mother demanded despairingly.

"Here's what she said at breakfast," Peter contributed. "She said that she's made up her mind, and if there was going to be any fuss she'd be married in Sacramento."

"But—but she couldn't!" Sheila protested. "She can't love him. She told me herself how he bothered her. He's spoiled and he's selfish and he's jealous; she said so herself!"

"She's free, white, and twenty-one," Link reminded them soberly.

"She's been looking something awful," Peter said. "For about a week—well, I've never seen Gwen look the way she does! She cries all night, I guess. When she told us she was going to be married we were all stunned, and it was Tryrena who spoke up and said, 'Well, I hope you-all's going to be the happiest woman in the world, you sure did get a handsome-looking man,' and Gwen burst out crying and jumped up and kissed Tryrena, and then of course we all said something — we said whatever we could——"

"Mother, how much money have we, all of us? How much money have you, Link?" Sheila suddenly demanded. "Let's send her off—let's ship her off to Scotland—now—tonight!"

"Darling, you can't do that," Link remonstrated.

"There's no use arguing with Gwen," Peter said; "she's made up her mind. I don't know why she's doing it, and I'll be darned I think she does, but you can't change her now!"

"He's bullied her into it," Sheila said, very white.

"Here they are!" Peter warned her. Immediately afterward Gwen, followed by Van, came in.

Sheila thought that Gwen looked thinner than she ever had seen her before. Her eyes were set in rings of pallor now, and Gwen looked and seemed ill, but she was quite composed and welcomed her sister with a laugh that somehow managed to imitate its old ring of joy.

"Sheila! I thought we'd be back before you got here! And my darling, darling Fanny." Gwen went on her knees before the child, who gave a crow of delight at seeing her. "My sweetheart, you are more beautiful than ever!" her aunt said, a little unsteadily.

Van had meanwhile greeted the group easily without embarrassment, and now he said, "Speaking of beauty, it seems to me I am getting a very beautiful wife! They've told you our plans?"

"Sheila, do you like it?" Gwen said, standing to display a new blue suit. A blue hat curved becomingly about her face like an old-fashioned poke bonnet. "I got it in Sacramento; Mother and I went up on the train last Saturday, and Van drove us back after dinner. You didn't know then that it was a wedding dress, did you, Mother? Dad, I think that's Doctor Stockbridge who's just driving up; will you let him in? Who else is coming, Mother? I'm going to dash upstairs to straighten my bonnet and shawl, and I'll be right down. No party, Sheila. Van wanted to send champagne, but I thought it was silly."

"You hate me for taking the last daughter—for taking your sister away," Van said, sitting down, "but my apology is that anyone who sees Gwen, who knows her, couldn't help it!"

A few relatives all in a state of decently concealed amazement, were now arriving. Gwen came downstairs, looking the better for a little beautifying, pinning a line of creamy gardenias to the shoulder of the blue sit.

"Married in blue, faithful and true," she said cheerfully, not looking at any one. She greeted the clergyman. "Where shall we stand?" Gwen was managing everything as she always had.

Van looked radiant. He stood very straight beside her, but Gwen was still a half-head taller. Gwen made her responses audibly, in a clear steady voice; Van's joy broke through as he promised to love and cherish her for all the days of his life, and Sheila, watching him, felt her unreasoning hate and distrust of him a little weakened. He did love Gwen passionately; that was what had won her, of course. And he wasn't an idler or a gambler or a drinker.

The newly wedded pair remained only a few minutes after the ceremony. They had a long drive to Sacramento. Gwen kissed everyone without a sign of breaking, and promised Sheila that she and Van would be in Washington sometime in the following summer.

Van and Gwen drove away into a changed life in a changed world.

"Tell me that you're one-tenth as happy as I am, Gwen," Van said after a while.

She smiled, with a tired face and white lips. "I hope we're going to be happy, Van. There's no reason why we shouldn't be. I know you —I know you won't—hurry me, if I seem—oh, unenthusiastic, puzzled," Gwen said, searching for words, using them carefully, her throat thick.

"And you've forgotten your young doctor in Edinburgh?"

"If I haven't," she said, with the shadow of a smile, "this would be a good time to begin."

"I'm jealous of every thought of yours," the man confessed. "You're mine now, forever and forever. It even disturbed me to have you ask your father and mother to come see us! I want every minute!"

"But Van, they'll surely want to come and see us!" She was roused out of her weary calm by sheer surprise.

"Yes, but not that casual way. When we ask them, and for the time we ask them. We don't want people running in and out, Gwen, my darling, is this a dream, or are we truly married, and am I taking you to our own little home? A late supper will be ready there, Gwen, and a fire, and when you've rested, and come out in your wrapper and slippers to join me for that little supper, then I'll believe you're mine. It isn't a dream, dear, it's real."

Her eyes met his and with their faithful, honest smile. She did not speak aloud. But deep in her spirit she said: "No. It isn't a dream."

x x x

For some months after her marriage Gwen Bellamy lived and moved and had her being in a state of numbness and bewilderment. She went gallantly through the outward form of everything demanded of her; she stifled all inner emotions resolutely. And when realization began and her normal feelings dared to return, they were softened by time and by the hundred considerations that common sense and her young, untried philosophy afforded.

Sometimes in the early days she would walk the streets of Sacramento for hours, wondering who she was and why she was here, and what had become of Gwen Washburton. Thoughts of her family and of Dick Latimer had receded into that past she had determined to ignore and had succeeded surprisingly in banishing to a world of vague dreams and unreal memories. Constantly she reminded herself that there was no hardship in her life to be classed with those endured by millions of women all over the world; there was much to make it pleasant. Yet the numb sense of bewilderment persisted.

Toronto, Dec. 27 —(CP)— Gold stocks advance on Toronto Exchange today. Volume was quite heavy in Golds and total turnover was 255,000 shares. Other groups held about steady.

Kerr-Addison and Chesterville posted new high prices and gains were boarded by Pickle Crow, Macassa, East Malartic, Pamour, O'Brien and Perron. The market was higher for Steep Rock and steady for other base metals.

Distillers-Seagrams, Industrial Alcohol A, Cub Aircraft and Brazilian were gainers in the Industrial section. Turnover was quite heavy in Brazilian and price was up 3-8 to 6 5-8.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 27 —(AP)— Scattered buying in special situations having a national defence angle poked a few issues above a generally level stock market today.

An early fairly general rally had about disappeared near the fourth hour and the majority of prices jigged fractions from the previous close. Coppers found a more consistent following than most other groups.

In demand, some at new tops for a year or more, were Bath Iron Works, New York Shipbuilding, National Acme, Electric Boat and Timken Detroit Axle.

In the Canadian list Dome and Lake Shore Mines and Canadian Pacific each dipped 1-8 of a point. Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagram improved fractions while McIntyre held unchanged.

Minor Gain Shown for Butter

Offerings of butter were light, and trading was very slow. The market was steady but almost nominal. The odd lot of first-grade Ontario solids was offered at 37 cents but the general asking price was 37¼ cents with no pressure on broker to sell at this level.

Egg receipts were slightly in excess of demand and the market was easier in tone. Buyers displayed caution, purchasing only for immediate requirements. Prices were unchanged in the graded section but slightly lower than on Tuesday in wholesale-to-retail trading. In the latter group, A large eggs sold at 33c to 34c, A medium at 30c to 31c, A pullet at 28c to 29c and grade C at 28c. No grade B eggs were offered.

Montreal Produce.

Butter — First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 38c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 37½c.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Ont. Dec. 27.—(CP)— Dressedweight were up five cents at Brantford and Peterborough and prices were unchanged at Stratford in bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Brantford $10.40 plus transportation, Peterborough [illegible] plus transportation, Stratford $10.40 plus transportation.

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Dec. 27 (CP)—The small supply of livestock offered on the market here this week was cleared at unchanged prices.

In the cattle section weighty steers sold at $8 to $9.50 cwt. Butcher steer and heifers were mostly $6 to $8 with a few light steers up to $8.75. Butcher cows sold at $4.25 to $6. Canners and cutters traded at $3 to $4. A few bulls sold between $4.50 and $6 cwt. Fed calves ranged from $8.50 to $10 with two at $10.50. Small lots of stockers sold at $5.50 to $6.50. Milker and springer trade was quiet with tops selling at $85 to $95 each.

Calves of good to choice quality sold at $10.50 to $11.50 with an occasional top at $12. Commonlights sold downward to $6 cwt.

Lambs sold steady at $10.75 to $11 for good ewes and wethers with common to medium grades from $6 to $10.50. Sheep ranged from $2.50 to $5.50 cwt.

Hogs sold steady at $11 dressed and $8.25 liveweight with sows at $4.75 to $5.50 dressed.

Effort To Sweep Italians From Air.

Pending orders for the final assault upon Bardia ,the Royal Air Force sought to counter the attempts of Italian fliers to harass British ground forces by striking heavily at Fascist air bases far to the west.

Reports from the front indicated that every effort was being made to sweep the Italians from the air.

A recent increase in Italian aerial activity, as well as the tactics employed by the Fascist bombers, led to speculation among British officers that a new Italian air commander had taken charge on this front.

British officers said the Italians were making no attempt to send reinforcements to Bardia or to withdraw troops and materials from that region, but that the Fascist garrison under Gen. Berti appeared determined to put up a fight.

Reports reaching Cairo said the Italians were moving some war materials from Italy to Libya, but no abnormally large shipments across the Mediterranean were reported.

Hundreds or horses and mules left behind by the Italians when they retreated from Egypt are still roaming the western desert in groups, seeking water and trying to graze on thorny shrubs, which are the only vegetation.

British soldiers are rounding up some of these animals, but many have been so frightened by the sound of battle that they are not easily caught.

STRATEGIC

which began Oct. 28 had cost Italy 45,000 wounded soldiers but made no estimate of the number of dead, saying only that the toll was high.

The Royal Air Force announced it had carried out an attack on the coastal town of Kironero, about five miles south of Valona, bombing the warehouses, buildings and railway lines. All British planes returned safely, despite a 10-minute encounter with nine enemy fighters, a communique said.

The Greek spokesman said Italian troops suffered a new defeat in the sector north and northwest of the captured town of Chimara, which is 30 miles south of Valona.

"An attack on the part of our units resulted in the enemy being thrown back and in his abandoning the line which he held and a height of considerable strategic importance," he said.

The battle for Tepeleni and Klisura continued in the central sector but the spokesman said conditions on the northern front were very hard. There were snowdrifts, mist and extremely bitter cold. Nevertheless, she added, the Greeks "advanced and occupied some villages" after local engagements.

In Pitiful Condition

Captured Fascist officers all spoke of the bitter cold and prisoners reaching Ioannina, Greece, from the front were said to be in pitiful condition because of cold and hunger.

One officer said he feared that 700 prisoners of war were the only survivors of an Italian infantry regiment overwhelmed by the Greek advance on Chimara. A regiment normally has between 2,000 and 3,000 men.

"We departed from the rear fifteen days before we were forced to surrender last Sunday," a lieutenant said. "For five days we were without bread. Many of our men were wounded or suffering frozen feet. Some of us stood in snow up to our hips defending advance posts."

Many Died of Cold

One group of prisoners—27 officers and 80 men—arrived in Ioannina Christmas night and cried "viva Grecia" when Greek troops gave them cigarettes.

A captured Italian lieutenant colonel said the bitter weather was causing severe suffering and that many Italian battalions were reduced from 700 to 200 men by losses. Many of his men died of cold, he said, and many others were sent back to hospitals because of frostbite.

The Greek High Command spoke only of successful local operations in its usual communique and mentioned the capture of "a considerable quantity" of war material.

The Ministry of Home Security said the fate of 49 Greek notables abducted by Italians during their flight from Argirocastro was not known.

Equipped for War

THIS BANK, inspired by the common motive which is linking all Canadians in an intensive War effort, has equipped itself to render a banking service, effectively organized and directed in all its phases, to meet the new and manifold requirements of a nation at War.

His Majesty Broadcasts Christmas Message

London, Dec. 27 — The text of King George VI's Christmas message to the British Empire:

"In days of peace the feast of Christmas is a time when we all gather together in our homes, young and old, to enjoy the happy festivity and goodwill which the Christmas message brings. It is above all, the children's day, and I am sure that we shall all do our best to make it a happy one for them, wherever they may be.

"War brings, among other sorrows, the sadness of separation. There are many men in the forces away from their homes today, because they must stand ready and alert to resist an invader, should he dare to come, or because they are guarding the dark seas, or pursuing the beaten foe in the Libyan Desert.

"Many family circles are broken. Children from English homes are today in Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. For not only has the manhood of the whole British Commonwealth rallied once more to the aid of the Mother Country in her hour of need, but the peoples of the Empire have eagerly thrown open the doors of their homes to our children so that they may be spared from the strain and danger of modern war.

"And in the United States also, where we find so many generous and loyal friends and organizations to give us unstinted help, warm-hearted people are keeping and caring for many of our children till the war is over.

"But how many more children are there here who have been moved from their homes to safer quarters?

"All in the Front Line"

"To all of them, at home and abroad, who are separated from their fathers and mothers, to their kind friends and hosts, and to all who love them, and to parents who will be lonely without them: from all in our dear island, I wish every happiness that Christmas can bring. May the New Year carry us toward victory and to happier Christmas days when everyone will be at home together in the years to come.

"To the older people here and throughout the world I would say: In the last Great War the flower of our youth was destroyed and the rest of the people saw but little of the battle. This time we are all in the front line and the danger together and I know that the older among us are proud that it should be so.

"Remember this. If war brings its separations it brings new unity also, the unity which comes from common perils and common sufferings willingly shared. To be good comrades and good neighbors in trouble is one of the finest opportunities of the civilian populaton. And by facing hardship and discomfort cheerfully and resolutely not only do they do their own duty, but they play their part in helping the fighting services to win the war.

"Time and again during these last few months I have seen for myself the battered towns and cities of England and I have seen the British people facing this ordeal. I can say to them all that they may be justly proud of their race and nation. On every side I have seen a new and splendid spirit of good fellowship springing up a adversity a real desire to share burdens and resources alike.

Harmony Growing

"Out of all this suffering there is growing a harmony which we must carry forward into the days to come when we have endured to the end and victory is ours.

"Then, when Christmas days are happy again and goodwill has came back to the world, we must hold fast to the spirit in each of our own lives as men and women and shall need it even more among the nations of the world.

"We must go on thinking less about ourselves and more for one another; for so, and so only, can we hope to make the world a better place and life a worthier thing.

"And now I wish you all a Happy Christmas and a happier New Year. We may look forward to the New Year with sober confidence.

"We have surmounted a grave crisis. We do not underrate the dangers and difficulties which confront us still. But we take courage and comfort from the successes which our fighting men and their allies have won at heavy odds by land and air and sea.

"The future will be hard. But our feet are planted on the path of victory, and with the help of God we shall make our way to justice and to peace".

Greetings to Sailors

In a special greeting to Britain's merchant sailors and fishermen, the King said:

"This second wartime Christmas finds the members of the British Merchant Navy and fishing fleets pursuing their calling through the seven seas, and I wish to send them a personal greeting.

"You were the first of our civil population to suffer such merciless attacks of the enemy. You have carried on undaunted, maintaining the vital supplies of the Empire. Your courage and daring have been an inspiration to your fellow countrymen, who are now facing the same brutal assault.

"In their name I thank you, and I send you all best wishes for Christmas and a good landfall".

BRITISH BOMBERS

The Press Association reported a German warplane reached an area near London in midmorning today but was driven back by anti-aircraft fire.

Unofficial Truce Ended

The announcement of Britain's air offensive operations where coupled with yesterday's announcement of the Isle of Sheppey bombing, disclosed that both sides ended the unofficial Christmas truce yesterday but there was no indication here which dropped the first bomb.

On the defensive side of the air war, there was a nightlong lull. A government statement issued after daylight said: "There was no enemy activity over this country last night."

The last alert sounded in Britain at 1.20 a.m. Monday (8.30 p.m. EDT Sunday).

German long-range guns at Cap Gris Nez, France, were reported in action during the early morning.

In the Dover Strait the sea was calm at dawn and observers said "invasion weather" was ideal. There was a low haze over the strait.

The big gun bombardment of the Dover area, said to have been fairly intense, began at 4.30 a.m. and lasted 2 1-2 hours.

SECOND DIVISION

Major.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Chief of the Canadian General Staff who accompanied Col. Ralston, predicted that the new Canadian Corps, like its predecessor constituted 25 years ago, would make history.

Of that former corps he said that "its record of enemy divisions met and defeated during the last days of the Great War, is, I believe, unsurpassed."

And he expressed confidence that all who knew the officers and men of the Canadian Corps of 1940 would be convinced that "this treasured military reputation of the past is safe in the keeping of the younger generation."

Address by Ralston

Concerning the Canadian corps, Col. Ralston said:

"Formation of a Canadian corps is a very natural development and I am pleased indeed to have Gen. McNaughton as its commander."

The Canadians landed from grey troopships which brought them safely from the Dominion as they had done all the other contingents. "Seasickness was our only worry," one officer said. The voyage had been extremley rough.

Like those that went before the eighth contingent was guarded by the might of the Navy and the Royal Air Force.

The men disembarked at a western port and were greeted by representatives of Col. Ralston, Gen. McNaughton, the Dominion's office and Canadian military headquarters.

Among the arrivals were nursing sisters from the Dominion.

On behalf of Col. Ralston, his senior executive assistant, Col. A. A. Magee told the men the minister would hasten word of their arrival to the Dominion "so your people will be saved any anxiety during the holiday season."

Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum expressed pleasure at the arrival of the 2nd Division units. "The division is at last complete," the general officer commanding the division declared. "I am delighted to learn how far advanced the training of the new units progressed in Canada. The work there has been notable and the latest arrivals will fit admirably into the framework of the division."

Posted At Stations.

The air training scheme graduates, both Canadians and Australians, will be posted, like previous contingents, at Royal Air Force stations and likely will be in action soon.

Royal Canadian Air Force officials and officers accompanied the airmen for direct talks with British air authorities.

Air Vice Marshal L. S. Breadner, who was accompanied by Air Vice Marshal E. W. Steadman, said that while the output from the Air Training Scheme is "only a trickle at present", it will grow "like a snowball and people will be dumbfounded as more and more numbers are turned out".

The air leaders of the dominion expect to see how the various commands are functioning in Britain and to determine at first hand the exact role the Canadians are to play so that their training will be shaped to conform.

Col. Ralston spent yesterday seeing the Canadians at their various tasks. He watched a Quebec machine-gun regiment in training, called at the army field workshop, saw a tunnelling company at work, witnessed a demonstration by a medium field artillery regiment to show how it would go into action with its six-inch Howitzers, and watched a road construction company of the Royal Canadian Engineers building a new highway. He also inspected a mobile laboratory.

"I am pleasantly surprised at the extent the troops have gone in their training and keenness and at their equipment. It is all better than I expected," he said.

PRESS WANTS

a peace in which the heel of the conqueror is lifted from prostrate Holland, Denmark, Norway, Belgium, Poland, France and Czecho-Slovakia, with restitution made for damage done and adequate assurance given for the future? If so, at what point in the record of Hitler's broken promises and his savage treatment of the countries he has conquered can they find the slightest scrap of evidence to indicate that such a peace is possible?

"And if they do not mean such a peace, then what kind do they mean? A peace which would compromise those fundamental issues of life and liberty which have now been raised? A peace in which a bargain is struck and Holland becomes 'half' free? A peace in which Belgium is permitted to remain a name provided it takes orders from a Gauleiter? A peace in which Denmark and Norway achieve meaningless liberty within the orbit of the Nazi system? A peace in which the Czechs are slaves and the Poles are homeless and the French are at Hitler's heels? A peace in which every nation in the world ourselves included, continues to arm to the teeth because it is impossible to trust Hitler's word?

"If this is the kind of peace which Mr. Wheeler and his like-minded colleagues have in mind, let them say so. But let them not call it a 'just' peace. The very use of that word, as a description of any peace which American intervention at this point could help to bring about, does a mean disservice to the British people, whose high fortitude is now being tested under fire." . .

CYCLONE HIT TOWN IN CUBA

Becujal, Cuba, Dec. 27 (AP). — Becujal and neighboring towns counted eleven dead and 150 injured today in the wake of a series of cyclonic disturbances which swept across Western Cuba last night, and officials feared later reports might swell the toll.

Becujal, a town of 10,000 inhabitants 25 miles south of Havana, and the surrounding area were placed under martial law as army officers directed relief workers. More than 200 doctors and nurses were sent from Havana.

Two severe "twisters" swept north across the Becujal area in quick succession shortly after 6 p.m. Approximately 200 homes were demolished in Becujal alone.

RAIDER SAILING

against such an attack," Mr. Menzies declared in a statement, "and must be so under the League of Nations mandate.

"The enemy knows this fact which removes any justification for his action, which is a greater crime because it was made under neutral colors. The raider attacked under a Japanese name and Japanese colors—those of a country with whom we are at peace."

Nauru is about 1,300 miles northeast of the Australian mainland and just south of the Japanese-mandated Marshall Islands.

There was considerable damage but no casualties from the shelling, Mr. Menzies said.

He announced the raider "was sailing under a Japanese name and flying the Japanese colors.

The island, formerly German, surrendered to Australian forces in 1914, and since 1920 has been administered by Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand under League of Nations mandate.

It has an area of appproximately 5,400 acres and is an atoll surrounded by a reef which is exposed at low tide. It lies in the Pacific about 2,200 miles southwest of Hawaii and only 26 miles south of the equator.

Nauru is chiefly valuable for its phosphate deposits, of which it exports nearly 1,000,000 tons a year, Its population in April, 1939, was 187 Europeans, 1,651 Nauruans, 29 other Pacific islanders and 1,516 Chinese.

On Dec. 16 Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand disclosed that wreckage of a small steamer had been found on the shore of Chatham Island, 350 miles east of New Zealand, and said there had been indications of a German raider operating in that area of the south Pacific.

No News In London.

London, Dec. 27 (CP).—Official sources said today they were without information as to the shelling of Nauru, in the south Pacific, other than the announcement by Prime Minister R. G. Menzies.

They said Nauru is a Guano island and rich in nitrates but without strategic importance.

They added it was known that a German raider was operating in that general part of the Pacific in recent months.

The post office announced that mails for New Zealand, the Cook Islands and Tonga dispatched in the latter part of October had been "lost through enemy action".

Dive Bombers Attack Enemy Shipping in Norway

Supply Ship Fired And Hits Scored on Factories, Jetties

R. A. F. Active in Bombing "Invasion" Ports at Bordeaux, Lorient and Le Havre

London, Dec. 28 (AP)—The Admiralty announced today that Skua airplanes (dive bombers) of the Fleet Air Arm had attacked enemy shipping in the harbor of the Haugesund, Norway.

A supply ship lying alongside a dock was hit and set afire, a statement said, and hits also were scored on warehouses and jetties.

One of the raiders dived low to silence an anti-aircraft gun with machine-gun fire. All the planes returned safely.

Haugesund is about 30 miles north of the large port of Stavanger on Norway's west coast and about 290 miles airline from the nearest point in Scotland.

Unidentified Man Killed Instantly Near Burlington

Burlington, Ont., Dec. 28 (CP)—An elderly unidentified man was killed almost instantly on the Queen Elizabeth Way near Burlington, when struck late last night by a car driven by George W. Hunter, 16 of Winona, Ont. The man appeared to be about 68 or 70 years of age.

Hunter, accompanied by Bruce Bolton, 18, of New Toronto, informed Provincial Constable William Coles that he did not see the aged pedestrian until too close to avoid the accident. He said the man was walking along the pavement about a foot and a half in from the edge. After questioning the young men were allowed to proceed to Toronto.

The victim was described as being well dressed and wearing a blue overcoat, gray sweater, gray trousers, and dark cap.

The first joint of the third finger on his right hand is missing and the index finger on the left hand up to the second joint is also missing. He also had a partial plate of upper false teeth.

DUNDAS RAISES $4,664

Dundas, Ont., Dec. 28 (CP)—Following a brief campaign in this town the sum of $4,684 was raised for the British War Victims Relief Fund and at a meeting of the campaign committee in the town hall last night it was decided to cable this sum direct to the Lord Mayor of London.

The fund will be kept open and hereafter when £100 is raised, such sums will be cabled. The fund was started mainly with the idea of sending a substantial gift for Christmas and the results were considered very gratifying, representing practically 1 per capita.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 28 (CP). — The weather has been unusually mild over Ontario with rain in southern and eastern districts and snow in the far north. Light snowfalls have occurred in some sections of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and southern Alberta. It has been comparatively mild in southern districts of the west.

SUBS, BOMBERS HITLER'S WEAPONS IN 3RD CAMPAIGN

Attacks on Industrial Cities by Planes and Packs of Subs Prey on Shipping in Latest Phase of War

OTHER SCHEMES FAIL

Military Experts Expect Hitler to Strike Invasion Blow Comparatively Soon

By J. F. SANDERSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 28 (CP).—Hitler has launched his third campaign against Britain, a double stroke combining submarines and bombers, aimed at the arteries of this country's war machine.

In his first campaign against Britain, Hitler massed troops, along the French, Belgian and Dutch coastlines but the Royal Air Force in mid-September upset his invasion plans by routing the luftwaffe and maintaining control of the skies above this country.

In his second campaign, Hitler attempted to blow London off the map, attempted to break the heart and morale of its 8,000,000 inhabitants. For days and weeks his bombers rained death and destruction on the biggest city in the world, infliction great damage, killing and maiming thousands of people, but failing to destroy or even dent the morale of the people.

Now, in the gathering darkness of winter, Hitler has changed his tactics again. His bombers slacken their bombardment of unconquered London and attack industrial cities scattered through the country. Out on the open seas, his submarines are hunting in packs, attacking with growing ferocity the ships by which Britain lives.

That does not mean the invasion threat is over. On the contrary, it is the official view here that Hitler may strike with land and sea forces at any time. There are military experts here who expect Hitler to strike comparatively soon, taking advantage of the many hours of darkness at this time of the year.

That probably lies behind the recent bombing raids by the coastal command of the R.A.F. against German-occupied French ports, the

Good Choice of Foods in London Restaurants Though Menus Limited

If you dropped in a British restaurant today you would find that although the menu has been sharply reduced there's still plenty of food, despite Hitler's "total" warfare.

By MILO M. THOMPSON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 28—(AP)—Do not send food packages to Britain. You will annoy the Ministry of Shipping and probably embarrass the recipient. He may be questioned on the theory he is trying to circumvent the rationing laws and the chances are he'll have to pay more to get your package out of customs and inspection than he'd have to pay for twice its equivalent in British foods.

Restaurant menus are not what they used to be, but here is one which will serve to illustrate the present situation. It comes from a place catering to the newspaper men of the Fleet Street area.

(Prices have been converted to the Canadian equivalent.)

Consomme Brundise .09; Pea Soup .09; Fish—Fillets of Plaice .44; Fried Whiting, Tartar Sauce, .46; Entrees—Vienna Steak with braised celery .40; Chop toad-in-the-hole .44; Boiled Cod, lobster sauce .46; Sausages and Mashed Potatoes .33; Roast—Roast Mutton, red currant jelly .46; Vegetables—Cabbage .09 boiled; mashed or saute potatoes .09; Sweets—Plum Tar .14; Suet Roll and marmalade .14; Savories—Soft Roes on toast .20; Welsh Rarebit .14; Toasted Cheese .14; Club Toast .20; Sardines on toast .14; Beverages—Coffee .07.

This is a typical menu and, if one studied it, eloquent of the food situation. While it indicates no serious want, it also shows what rationing and bombs have done to the food situation.

ONLY TWO SEAMEN LOSE LIVES WHEN U.S. TANKER SUNK

First Word of Sinking Near West African Coast Reported 22 Lost

CAUSE UNKNOWN

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—The unexplained sinking of the Standard Oil tanker Charles Pratt off the west African coast was reported today by its captain, who cabled that of the crew of 42 United States seamen only two were lost.

First word of the sinking last Saturday was received here yesterday by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey from its London offices and placed the number of known survivors at 20.

Early today, however, Capt. Eric R. Blomquist of the 8,982-ton Panamanian-registered tanker said in a cable transmitted through London:

"Ship lost 21st. All crew rescued except Arthur Duffy, wiper, and Patrick Dougherty, ordinary seaman. Please notify relatives."

New Nazi Expedition Moving Across Hungary An Insurance Measure

By ROBERT B. PARKER,

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 28—(AP)—With the advance guard of a new Nazi expedition of 300,000 troops already rolling eastward across Hungary, authoritative sources reported today that Germany plans to move against Greece by way of Bulgaria only if Britain tries to use Greece as the starting point for an invasion of central Europe.

Germany, these sources reported, will not make any move to aid the Italian forces now fighting the Greeks in Albania if Britain refrains from landing troops in Greece.

Germany was understood by these sources to have let it be known in the Balkans that in the event of Italian collapse as the result of a Greek victory, the Nazis would hasten to make a definite peace with France.

Agreed to an Attack

It was stated authoritatively in these circles that Hitler agreed to let Mussolini attack Greece last October only because he wished to divert Italy's attention from beaten France.

Germany was said to have been considerably embarrassed by Italian clamor for slices of French territory when Hitler reportedly wished to give Marshal Petain, French chief of state, easy terms.

The debacle in Albania, far from disquieting Germany, has made Italy keep quiet about demands in France, these sources said.

They asserted that Hitler was prepared to make a full settlement with France, with only the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine changing hands, if Italy collapses.

Petain was understood to have told the Nazis that in case the German terms were "unreasonable" he would cut North Africa loose, with Gen. Maxime Weygand taking a large colonial army into the ranks of Gen. Charles De Gaulle's free French forces, moving against Italian Libya from Tunisia in co-ordination with the current British action from Egypt.

An Insurance Measure

Mass movements of German troops and war materials to Rumania, which, it is estimated by observers, will give the Nazis nearly 500,000 men there by the end of January, were designed chiefly as an insurance measure, it was reported here.

Concentration of Nazi groups in Southwestern Rumania was expected in some quarters to put great pressure on Yugoslavia.

These troop concentrations also were said to be designed as a brake on reported Soviet Russian designs to occupy Moldavia and the mouths of the Danube, as well as giving Turkey reason to think twice about fulfilling her treaty with Britain or increasing her help to Greece.

The Soviets were reported to have moved 30 crack divisions into Bessarabia on the Rumanian frontier.

It was said authoritatively that King Boris of Bulgaria informed Hitler during the monarch's recent visit to Germany that he would abdicate rather than sanction the passage of German troops across Bulgaria toward Greece or Turkey.

Reports that the recent Hungarian-Yugoslav pact of eternal friendship had angered Germany were discounted by Nazi sources.

The heavy concentration of Nazi forces in Rumania also was said to be designed to cope with the expected forthcoming "settlement" between two rival factions of the Rumanian Iron Guard. German troops were reported to be ready to suppress the expected disorder.

END OF BRITAIN'S CASH PAYMENTS IS APPROACHING

Authoritative Sources Say Britain Has Only Enough Cash to Pay Until Next Fall

PAY NOW WITH GOLD

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)— A preliminary audit of British resources disclosed today, that Great Britain will run out of cash to pay for purchases of arms and munitions here in the early autumn of next year.

The preliminary examination of Britain's financial condition, made by United States Treasury experts, established that the end of cash payments is approaching, it was stated. A more detailed study of the British treasury's "balance sheet" now is under way.

The British government now is paying for war supplies with gold shipped from London, payments for British goods, and receipts from the sale here of British-owned dollar securities.

Pay For All On Order

Well-informed sources said that the British Treasury's balance sheet showed that Britain would be able to pay cash for all ships, planes and other war implements and supplies now on order, but could not pay cash for the tremendous orders which Britain wants to place immediately.

The treasury's analysis of British resources, it was believed, prompted President Roosevelt's recent proposal that the United States take measures necessary to ensure a continuous flow of vital war materials to the British Empire when Britain no longer is able to pay cash.

The President suggested that the United States government might take over all future orders for war supplies and lease or lend the planes, guns and other material required to the British government.

Mother of Six Children and Country Youth of Nineteen Victims

NO INQUEST

Canning, N.S., Dec. 28—(CP)—The double shooting of a housewife, mother of six children, and a 19-year-old country youth in a lonely hay barn near here was written down today as a suicide pact.

A tug on a string attached to the trigger of a sporting rifle sent a single bullet through the hearts of Mrs. Florence Steele, 38, and Allison MacDonald, and their bodies were found yesterday in the barn not far from their homes at Scott's Bay, 12 miles from here.

Twin suicide notes, signed by the pair, were found beside the bodies, laid out on the hay-strewn floor beside neatly-stacked little piles of their personal effects. Authorities said the notes asked their families for forgiveness.

Naval Sources Refrain Comment On Press Reports

Tokyo, Dec. 28 (AP)—Both the Government Information Bureau and Naval sources refrained from comment today on press reports that a mysterious sea raider flying the colors of Japan had shelled the British mandated islet of Nauru yesterday.

The Australian legation said it had not been informed officially of the incident.

Prime Minister Menzies of Australia announced the shelling at Melbourne yesterday. Nauru is near the Japanese-mandated Marshall Islands and was German territory before the First Great War.

GERMAN BOMBERS ATTACK LONDON IN GREAT FORCE

Capital Subjected to Intense Bombing for Four-Hour Period

CHURCH DAMAGED

One Seating 1,000 Persons Gutted and Hotel in Nearby Thoroughfare Destroyed

London, Dec. 28 (CP)—After one of the heaviest night bombing attacks of the war on London, Britain's own bombing planes were reported today to be striking at Hitler's invasion ports along 1,000 miles of Nazi-occupied coast from the Bay of Biscay to the fjords of Norway.

Navy dive bombers joined the Royal Air Force in raids on shipping, docks and air and sea bases while available units of the fleet kept a weather eye on the second big problem—maintenance of the transoceanic supply lines.

"The shipping situation worries us as much as the threat of invasion," one source said. "We are running as much chance of being blocked by the blockade before United States aid reaches its peak as we are of being knocked out by an invasion.

"You can take it we're not going to be diverted from the job of countering these two real dangers flat-out by any sideshow such as the reported German troop movements in the Balkans—whether that's a real move to strengthen the German position there, or merely a redherring."

The Evening Standard, owned by Lord Beaverbrooke, Minister of Aircraft Produtcion, said

Hitler's Purpose Plain

"It is plain that Hitler's whole and urgent purpose is to batter down the defences of Britain before next summer," and added that "the people of Britain are at this moment dependent for their lives on keeping the sea roads clear enough of bandits to let a percentage of traffic pass."

The latest blows in Britain's "offensive-defensive" aerial operations as detailed by the Admiralty and Air Ministry included:

1. Attacks by the R.A.F. on Nazi-held invasion ports, where unusual troop movements had been reported recently.

2. R.A.F. raids on docks, airdromes and submarine bases in German-occupied France.

3. A joint attack by the fleet air arm and the R.A.F. on shipping and harbor works at Haugesund, Nazi-held harbor in Norway, in which dive bombers scored three hits which started fires and caused

Gayda Warns U.S. Against Sending Convoys to Britain by Way of Eire

Rome, Dec. 28 (AP)—Professing to speak for Germany and Italy, the Fascist editor Virginio Gayda cautioned the United States today against sending any convoys of supplies to Britain by way of Eire.

This, he said, would be "an open violation of neutrality and therefore signify initiative of the United States in intervention in the war."

(No such proposal is under consideration. Prime Minister De Valera has appealed to the United States for help in getting supplies to Eire for Eire's own use.)

Gayda said that if American "interventionists" sent supply convoys to Britain by way of Eire they would start "a spread of the conflict from Europe and the North Atlantic to the Western hemisphere, the southern Atlantic and the Pacific."

Gayda asserted that Japan, under her three-power pact with Italy and Germany, "is watchful and would not allow, without immediate reaction, extension of the European and Asiatic conflict."

(Japan, Italy and Germany are pledged to go to each other's aid if any one of them is "attacked" by a power not now party to the wars in the western or eastern worlds. This pact is considered generally to be directed against the United States.)

For this reason, Gayda went on, he did not see "exactly what interest American interventionists have in creating an open conflict between continents."

(Karl Megerle, Nazi commentator said yesterday that Eire would continue to be included in the Nazi blockade zone even if it should be excluded, by amendment, from the danger zone specified in the United States Neutrality Act.)

The Rome radio told Eire she would have the "support" of Germany and Italy in the event of conflict with Britain.

Fascist newspapers gave much space to dispatches from the United States, reporting isolationist opposition to President Roosevelt's aid-for-Britain policy.

Prisoners State Duce Gave Order Port Must be Held

Fascists Believed Striving to Gain Time to Defend Tobruk

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 28 (AP)—British general headquarters announced today that 38,114 prisoners taken in the offensive against Italian Libya had been counted.

They include 24,845 Italian officers and other ranks, the communique said. The remainder were non-Italian soldiers.

The British authorities said that "the concentration of our forces investing Bardia is proceeding smoothly, while our artillery continues to harass the Italian garrison."

Bardia is a frontier base, just within Libya, now in its 13th day of siege. Captured Italian soldiers said Mussolini himself had ordered the garrison to be "ready to die rather than give up."

"Operations by our mobile detachments to clear the country to the westward are proceeding," a British communique said.

Italian prisoners predicted that Bardia would become a "second Alcazar."

They referred to the 10-week defence during the Spanish civil war of Spain's military school at Toledo by Gen. Franco's forces, which ultimately were rescued. But the Italians at Bardia apparently hold little hope of history repeating itself in another rescue.

The prisoners said Marshal Graziani, the Italian commander in North Africa, was hurriedly strengthening defences at Tobruk, 50 miles to the west of Bardia, in preparation for an expected British attack there.

Fall Inevitable Say British Officers

British officers regard the fall of Bardia, stubbornly held by a "sacrifice garrison" of 20,000 Italian troops, as inevitable.

Even if the Italians should slice through the British ring which surrounds Bardia, they would have to run the gauntlet of a fierce naval bombardment on their sole line of retreat along the coast, British sour-

FDR to Broadcast Important Address On Sunday Evening

President Roosevelt of the United States will be heard over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Sunday night between 10.30 and 11 o'clock (E.D.T.), in a talk to the American people, officials of CBC announced yesterday.

The address will be broadcast by CBL and the CBC in Canada and by the CBS, NBC—Red and Blue, and MBS in the United States.

President Roosevelt will speak from the White House on "The Present Emergency." An official statement from the White House, said the President will be "very specific" on the subject of further aid to Great Britain. It will be the first of his "fireside chats" since his re-election last month.

RAIDER HOISTED GERMAN FLAG BEFORE FIRING

Wireless Station Left Intact After Orders Obeyed Not to Use Set

FUEL TANKS HIT

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 28 (CP-Reuters). — The mystery sea raider which shelled the Pacific island of Nauru yesterday hoisted the German flag before opening fire, it was disclosed today.

An Australian government announcement had said that the raider bore a Japanese name and flew the Japanese flag before the attack.

Navy Minister W. M. Hughes, who made today's announcement, said the raider appeared just before dawn off the 5,400-acre Guano Island, in the equatorial Pacific, and signalled with its morse lamp:

"Do not use wireless or I will shoot mast down. I am going to shoot at stores and phosphate jetties."

Mr. Hughes said the instructions were obeyed and the wireless station was left intact. The raider fired on loading equipment, stores and fuel tanks, but left private houses untouched.

Nauru has a population of slightly less than 3,500. Formerly a German possession, it has been under British mandate since 1920.

"Y" BOYS VISIT NEWSPAPER PLANT

Twenty young lads of the Preps and Junior Classes of the local "Y" were given an incite into the intricacies of a modern newspaper plant on Friday afternoon when they were taken through the Ontario Intelligencer offices and press rooms. Youthful eyes and minds missed nothing as the lads were shown through the editorial department where the news is edited and where the clicking teletype brings in the news of the outside world. The lads showed intense interest as they were taken through the composing room where the linotypers were busy setting up the day's copy and, holding true to the boys' inherent love of machinery, marvelled at the activity in the press room where the afternoon's run was rolling off the press.

Alleged Theft From Parked Cars Brings Arrest

Found ransacking parked automobiles on Campbell St. shortly before midnight last night, John Henry Shaw, who gave 375 1-2 Front St., as his temporary address was arrested by city police and today charged with theft.

Information that a man was entering parked automobiles on Campbell St. and acting strangely was reported to Constables Arnott and Thomson and they went to the scene of the reported trouble. Shaw was arrested and upon being searched he was found to be in possession of a small pocket jimmy, two pocket cameras, two flashlights and other small articles which police claim was stolen from several motor cars, which had been entered.

Today Shaw appeared before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace, on a charge of theft. He was remanded in custody until Monday. Two local citizens today identified the cameras as their property.

NATIVE OF CITY GIVEN HIGH POST

Gerald A. Vandervoort Named Chief Engineer of New Brunswick Power Company.

Gerald A. Vandervoort, A.M.E.I.C., of St. John, N.B., and former resident of this city, was recently named Chief Engineer of the New Brunswick Electric Power Company, it was learned here yesterday. His appointment was made public by the Hon. Mr. J. Gaspard Boucher, chairman of the New Brunswick Electric Power Company at St. John. Mr. Vandervoort had been acting Chief Engineer for the past two years.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Addison Vandervoort, Gerald A. Vandervoort was born in Belleville and received his public and high school education here. He entered the old Seymour Power Company employment and was "load superintendent" of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission in 1922, when he accepted a post with the New Brunswick E. P. Co. His many friends in Belleville and vicinity extend to Mr. Vandervoort their congratulations and good wishes upon his more recent advancement.

Poultry Prices Generally Firm

Geese Slightly Lower From the Pre-Christmas Price

Attendance on city market was a mere shadow of the numbers displaying produce over the previous Saturday. Inclement weather forced many of the vendors to the indoor market and only an isolated few braved the rain to stay on the outdoor market.

There was a fairly large display of poultry offered, however, with prices for the most part remaining at last week's quotations. Geese were the only fowl to show any decline in price, selling from 26c to 28c per pound. Turkeys ranged from 35c to 30c per pound with ducks being quoted from 27c to 30c per pound. Chicken held steady at the usual price of 25c per pound.

Butter held at last week's price despite the fact that wholesale prices have been pegged at the level as of December 14th, and sold at 75c per two-pound roll. Eggs were quoted at 35 for grade "A" large, with other grades selling for 32c and 30c per dozen.

Vegetable prices remained steady with carrots, beets, parsnips and turnips selling at 30c per peck. Onions were 40c per peck, cabbages 5c and 10c and sauerkraut at 10c per quart. Potatoes sold at the usual price of $1 per 75-lb. bag. No. 1 Spy and MacIntosh apples were quoted at $1.75 per hamper with lesser grades at $1.50. Cookers were $1 per bushel.

Pickled pork sold at 18c per pound for pieces or at 20c sliced. Headcheese was 15c per pound and sausage 20c. Wood vendors were scarce with prices remaining at the usual figure of $10 for hardwood and $7.50 for mixed lots. There were no young porkers offered.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Of Permanent Fire Department In City Celebrated January 1st

Only Two Members on Force at Present Time Who Were Members When Changeover Made

WM. LYNCH CHIEF

January 1st, 1941, will be a red letter day in the history of the Belleville Fire Department. It will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the inauguration of the present permanent fire-fighting force, which, until that time, existed only as a voluntary unit.

It was January 1st, 1916, just twenty-five years ago, that ten men who had served the city in the capacity of voluntary fire-fighters were taken on permanently and made full time members of the force. Prior to that date, only the three drivers who looked after the horses, the motive power of the fire-fighting equipment of that date, were permanent members of the force.

Only two members of the present force, the present fire chief, William Lynch and Captain Frank Orr, were with the voluntary unit in 1916 when the change over to a permanent force was made, it was revealed this morning as a reminiscent brigade recalled the history of the department since its inception as a permanent force. The two above named men, both now having served more than twenty-five years, were with the voluntary brigade and were included in the permanent force under Chief Brown who was the first chief. George Campbell acted as the first assistant chief and James Clement as captain.

Volunteers Paid

Members of the voluntary fire-fighting force were paid ten dollars per month, recalls Fire Chief Lynch. In addition to this amount they were also paid according to the time they served actually fighting fires, he said.

Ten men comprised the first permanent force, of which six men were stationed in the upper hall and four in the lower hall. Two fire wagons were kept in the upper hall and one in the lower building. The lower fire hall was vacated by the department during the winter of 1939-40 when it was decided to centralize the brigade into one building.

The first motorized equipment for the local fire brigade was purchased by the city in 1922 when two hose trucks were bought, the last of which was only turned in during the spring of 1940, after 18 years of service to the city. Horses were dispensed with entirely in 1926 when a hook and ladder wagon was purchased.

The personnel of the brigade was raised to sixteen men in 1923 when the platoon system was adopted, and in 1928 the staff was raised to twenty men, a figure at which the strength has been maintained to the present time.

Fire Chief Brown was killed during a fire at the Springer Lock Co. factory in the spring of 1929, after which the present fire chief, William Lynch, was appointed to take his place.

Increase In Fires.

A great increase in the number of fires reported annually has taken place in the intervening twenty-five years since the local brigade became a permanent one, states Chief Lynch. "At that time," he said, "the average number of runs per year ranged anywhere between forty and sixty, but today this figure has been greatly increased and the number ranges between 225 and 280. This despite the fact that the population has only been increased by one quarter." The great majority of these extra runs were for minor chimney blazes, it was stated, but the number of alarms had been materially increased and also the dangers of fire-fighting had been increased manifold through the common use of chemicals, gasoline and other inflammable materials. "Garages, automobiles and industrial plants where chemicals are used, create a dangerous fire hazard, and are responsible for many of the fire alarms today," it was stated.

The city of Belleville has been very fortunate in that there have been very few serious fires. The gasoline fire at the Cities Service warehouse during the past summer when five large tanks of gasoline fell prey to flames, was termed by Fire Chief Lynch as the most serious conflagration in Belleville's history. "That was the only occasion in which I can remember that outside aid was necessary to help bring a fire in Belleville under control," he stated.

Letters to the Editor

E. V. ILSEY EXTENDS SEASONAL GREETINGS TO FRIENDS HERE

Seattle, Wash.,
Dec. 20, 1940.

The Editor,
"The Ontario Intelligencer",
Belleville, Ontario.

If you will permit me to do so, I should like the indulgence of enough of your space, to extend to our friends in Hastings and Prince Edward, Seasonal Greetings and to express the hope that they will have health and happiness ahead of them in the New Year. There are so many we will think of during the holidays and by whom we should also like to be remembered! It will not be a "merry" Christmas for any of us under existing conditions, but it can still be a happy one in the knowledge we have of the Empire's epic struggle to preserve freedom on the earth.

Neither time nor distance can lessen our affection for all the old friends at home, and I shall greatly appreciate it if you will pass on to them our kindest remembrances and regards.

Yours sincerely,
E. V. ILSEY.

DONORS THANKED

CABINET MEETING HELD IN OTTAWA

Members Discuss Plans for Conference to be Called January 14th

Ottawa, Dec. 28 (CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King presided over a cabinet council session Friday but the meeting was brief and there were no announcements after it ended.

One of the subjects occupying attention of the ministers these days, apart from the war, is the Dominion-provincial conference called for January 14 to deal with the report of the Rowell-Sirois Commission.

The commission made a voluminous report after two years' study of Dominion-Provincial relations. The conference called for next month will consider what recommendations should be put into effect at once by legislation.

Some of the personnel who worked on the commission staff have been recalled and are arranging the agenda of the conference, expected to be one of the most important of a long list of meetings between the Dominion and Provincial governments.

It is understood an agenda has been prepared for submission to the governments concerned. It will be made public some time next week.

Normally the proceedings of such conferences are behind closed doors with the press admitted only for the opening session when an exchange of courtesies and submission of the agenda is the only business.

There has been a suggestion that the forthcoming conference, because of its great importance, should be open to the press. This may not be decided until after a discussion among delegates when the conference opens.

FILES NOTICE OF APPEAL

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 28 (CP). —Frank Longo of Welland has filed notice of appeal against convictions in Welland on three charges of conspiracy arising from seizure of a still near Dunnville. He was sentenced to three and one half years in penitentiary and fined $1,000, with an additional one year sentence in default of payment of the fine. He has been released on bail of $20,000.

JUST CHANGED UNIFORMS

Washington, Dec. 28—(AP)—Altus G. Moore made the jump from private to major by just changing uniforms. He is a private on the Metropolitan Police Force. But in the Reserve Officers Corps he is a major. He has been ordered to active duty.

German Propagandists May Jab at Trade

But Canadian Officials Believe They Will be Less Effective Next Year

Ottawa, Dec. 27 (CP)—German propagandists who took a few effective jabs at Canada's tourist trade from the United States last summer may be less effective next year but are certain to try their hand at it again, it was learned today.

Americans who are becoming accustomed to the fact that Canada is at war, now are more favorably disposed to the allied cause and more resistant to enemy propaganda and are losing their fear of possible wartime restrictions in Canada.

"The fear complex is gradually being dissipated," said D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau.

The American tourist business is important to Canada in that it provides American dollars for purchases of war materials from the United States. Recognizing this the alert German agencies in the United States lose no chance to tell Americans Canada is a good place to avoid.

Their activities are not noticeable at the moment but in planning their campaigns for the coming year Canadian Tourist Agencies are making allowances for a revival of the Nazis' anti-Canadian efforts.

Canada Becoming Chief Supply Base For Great Britain

London, Dec. 28 (CP).—Hon. C. D. Howe, Canadian Minister of Munitions and Supply, said Friday that Canada is becoming "the principal supply base for Great Britain", the British Broadcasting Corporation reported.

Mr. Howe, now visiting the United Kingdom, said "foodstuffs, ammunition, guns, aircraft, motorized equipment and a great variety of other equipment are pouring across the Atlantic in a growing stream to aid the mother country," the BBC reported.

The BBC said Mr. Howe presented these facts regarding Canada's war effort to his British audience:

"Orders placed for Canada's account alone total more than $390,000,000; 55 main airports have been completed and next year Canada expects to be turning out twelve planes a day;

"The new Canadian gun plant will be one of the largest and most modern in the British Empire and another plant is being built for the manufacture of secret war devices;

"The Canadian navy, which at the outbreak of war consisted of only 15 vessels now has 120 naval craft and within a year a further 100 vessels will be added."

Fighting for Humanity Nothing Else Says Brother of Queen

London, Dec. 28 (CP). — Hon. David Bowes-Lyon, brother of Queen Elizabeth, said in a Christmas message broadcast to North America Friday that "Britain is fighting for humanity, nothing less".

"With that aim in sight, we do not think that the Christmas message of peace on earth, good will to men, is out of date," Mr. Bowes-Lyon said on the British Broadcasting Corporation's "Britain Speaks" feature.

"It has been a hard Christmas for many of us, but there has been much to cheer us. We have a great peace of mind resulting from the knowledge that we are doing what we can for a good cause."

There was good will between Englishmen of all types and classes. They were "more united than ever before". There also was good will in the United Kingdom for the dominions and the colonies, "for the warm-hearted people of the United States", and for oppressed Europe.

"Our Christmas was a curious one," Mr. Bowes-Lyon said, "but all is well and we are cheerful."

The humanity for which Brita n is fighting was "what Hitler and his new order rejects".

"Hitler does not like humanity and the brotherhood of man," Mr. Bowes-Lyon said. "Even the Germans he regards only as material to satisfy his lust for power.

"Think of the German people at this time and what they are being made to sacrifice to strengthen the German war machine."

OBITUARY

LATE WALTER ROSS

The funeral of Walter Ross took place from his late residence, 71 Geddes Street, Friday morning, December 27th., to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father J. J. Collins, who said also the committal prayers at the graveside in St. James' Cemetery.

In the church during the Offertory Mr. Harold Barrett sang, "Nearer My God to Thee".

The bearers were Messrs. Frank Follwell, Vincent Hogan, Michael Hogan, Robert Davison, Stanley Harris and Leo Gauthier.

CANADIAN NAVY'S GLORIOUS RECORD THROUGHOUT 1940

Dominion's Guarding and Fighting Ships Gained Honor in Patrolling Sea-lanes During Year

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 28 CP).—The fortunes of war in 1940 thrust on Canada's small but growing navy a greated burden of arduous work, danger and loss of life than fell to the lot of either the army or the air force.

The big task of keeping the sea lanes open to British shipping proved one of the essential jobs in permitting the British nations to outstay the first wrathful thrusts of a powerfully-armed enemy and build for the days of offensive fighting ahead.

Early in December the Canadian destroyer Saguenay fought with a German submarine in the convoy lanes of the Atlantic and suffered the loss of 21 men missing and 18 wounded—the ship itself being badly damaged

In the tas kof keeping the sea lanes open the Royal Canadian Navy played a vigorous part. For the first time in history Canadian destroyers travelled overseas to share in the defence of Britain. There one was lost in a collision during the evacuation of the French city of Bordeaux under the guns and bombs of the enemy, while another went to the bottom in the North Atlantic. Both disasters were the result of collisions.

In the first the Fraser was cut in two by another warship and in the second the Margaree suffered a similar fate when struck by a liner.

The necessity of travelling without lights in danger zones was responsible for the collisions. The Saguenay engagement and loss of ships in collisio ntogether with that of the Bras d'Or, a minesweeper which disappeared in stormy weather in eastern Canadian waters and other incidental casualties made Canada's naval casualties heavier than those in the army or the air force—about 300 officers and men.

Besides aiding Great Britain overseas the navy guarded Canadian ports and coastal waters and ranged over wide areas of both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Aided In Captures.

The flotilla leader Assiniboine aided a British cruiser in capturing and salvaging a big German freighter—The Hannover—in West Indies waters early in the war. The German crew attempted to scuttle the ship by fire but failed.

When Italy entered the war the Italian freighter Capo Noli was making a run down the St. Lawrence for safety but was captured by the Bras d'Or—later to be lost.

Biggest single achievement of the Canadian navy, however, was the taking of the German express cargo boat, Weser, off the west coast of Mexico in September. The capture was effected by the auxiliary cruiser Prince Robert, one of two former passenger liners converted to naval use.

Overseas Canadian destroyers were engaged by enemy aircraft and dropped depth charges aimed at enemy submarines. The traditional reticence of the "silent service" was observed in regard to these operations and details were not disclosed.

Men of the Canadian navy, however, took part in the evacuation of Dunkerque and in numerous rescues at sea when ships were torpedoed by the enemy.

As the year started Canada had seven destroyers and a growing number of small auxiliary craft requisitioned for naval purposes. The acquisition of six destroyers out of the fifty acquired by Great Britain from the United States after the loss of the Fraser and the Margaree which replaced the Fraser leaves Canadian destroyer strength at 12.

In addition there are auxiliary cruisers converted from merchant ships, minesweepers, corvettes and torpedo boats built in Canada within the past year.

As the year draws to a close plans for the building of larger naval vessels, cruisers and destroyers in Canadian shipyards are under consideration.

FOXHOUNDS MADE A MISTAKE

Adelphia, N.J., Dec. 27—(CP)—Tethered in his master's yard, Tootsie, John Wagner's pet Pomeranian, was minding his own business. Along came the 40-dog pack of the Monmouth Hunt Club. Tootsie knew he wasn't a fox but the foxhounds weren't aware of it. The Hunt Club paid a veterinarian to patch up Tootsie. Wagner was treated by a doctor for bites and scratches.

STUDENTS PRESENT AMBULANCE

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 28 — (AP)—Students and faculty of the University of Buffalo have "presented" an ambulance to Britain. A drive for funds to purchase the machine, costing $1,350 brought $1,539 and a cheque for the entire amount was turned over to the British-American Ambulance Fund.

AP BUILDING IN LONDON HIT

Building Housing The Canadian Press Badly Shaken by Bombs

New York, Dec. 28—(CP)—The building of the Associated Press in London, in which are housed the offices of the Canadian Press, apparently was shaken by a blast Friday night during the German renewal of the air siege of London after the Christmas lull.

Dispatches from London said merely: "A building housing an American firm was shaken, its windows were shattered, and considerable minor damage was caused by one blast. There were no casualties."

Later a London dispatch from Pat Ussher, Canadian Press staff writer, said: "A building housing a Canadian firm was shaken by the blast from one of the heavy explosions and some windows were smashed."

Private information received by the Associated Press and the Canadian Press led to the belief however, that the building was that occupied by the news services, situated in Tudor St. off Fleet St. which was bombed previously during last autumn's raids on Britain.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Sunday, December 29

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE should indicate the precipitation of events of utmost significance on the entire future life and its destinies. It is probable that this occurrence may be the sudden accomplishment of a long-cherished and faithfully worked-for desire or ambition of major importance.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for the advent of an event which may prove the turning point of the life and its future security. This matter of major significance, while marking a crisis and coming as a sudden climax, may be the sound and enduring fulfillment of a long-sustained effort or wisely pursued objective. In the happy excitement it would be wise to postpone decisions regarding material change or other innovations until a more poised moment.

A child born on this day may be endowed with exceptional talents, probably of a constructive though spectacular nature. It should possess sterling character.

Monday, December 30

Monday's astrological forecast is a rather conflicting one, with augury of much activity, enterprise and initiative, although such may be carried to extremes by over expansive or ardent zeal, with tendencies to "plunge," gamble, or other excesses or extravagance. The safest prospect is in union with sound corporations, or organizations where restraints and brakes may be strategically employed. Use tact, diplomacy, even healthy intrigues, in all major moves.

Those whose birthday it is may find their most profitable and enduring objectives may be achieved by uniting with organizations or established bodies of tried and true strength. Trickeries lie in other directions, with subtleties active from least suspected sources. Be shrewd, tactful, discreet.

A child born on this day should be versatile, shrewd, creative in advanced or modern lines, expressing through subtle qualities and great warmth of emotional feeling. It may be prodigal, extravagant, indulgent, but ultimately may meet high success.

Scholarship

Value $750.00, and cash awards for original musical compositions. Canadians of either sex under 22 years on March 1, 1941, the closing date for entries. Junior Division open to competitors under 16 who do not qualify for major prizes. For entry forms and full information apply CANADIAN PERFORMING RIGHT SOCIETY LIMITED, Royal Bank Building, Toronto.

Jean Arthur in a scene from her new hit, "Arizona," a Wesley Ruggles production which also features William Holden and a cast of thousands which is coming to the McCarthy Theatre New Year's Day.

EASY WAY TO FRIGHTEN DUCKS

North Bend, Neb., Dec. 28—(AP)—How to frighten away wild ducks feeding on farm crops and not violate any game laws was solved by Henry Beebe. He made his tractor back-fire, the noise resembling the booming of a shotgun.

WORRY FOR OFFICERS

Camden, N.J., Dec. 28—(AP)—Judge A. Boyd Avis tossed a poser into the laps of immigration authorities here. He found that Anton Poppen had entered the country illegally in 1927 and ordered him deported to Germany. Now all the immigration authorities have to do is figure out how to get him to Germany.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, and ma said, Willyum, do you realize you were out late every night this week except tonight, and still got up at your reguler time each morning like clockwork, and yet you still look as fresh as a proverbial daisy? I think it's wonderful. Time marches on, as the saying is, but you can still stand the pace, she said.

I can take it, I guess, pop said. This business of age hasn't got so much to do with actual years, it's a question of resilience, or recuperating power, just good old fizzical condition. There's no reason a healthy man should have to sleep his head off in order to be able to stand up without tottering. Within reasonable limits a normal man of any age ought to be able to burn the candle at both ends without sprouting tallow circles under his eyes. Give me 6 or seven hours sleep and I can snap back with any of them, he said, and ma said, I think it's marvellous. And of course if you can do it a weekdays, there should be no hardship at all about doing it Sattidays, such as tonight, when you can sleep to the sweet dictates of your own fancy, she said.

Tonight? pop said. There's nothing doing tonight, he said, and ma said, There's a special preview at the Narcississ, starting about eleven, after the regular show. How's that for your money's worth? she said.

Yee gods, I didn't say I could get along with no sleep at all, pop said. I know I can sleep in the morning, but daylight sleep hasn't got the same vitamines and mineral salts, any doctor knows that, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum dont add the last straw, I'm willing to pretend I haven't heard a word you've said if you get your hat and overcoat this minute.

The result being they went.

MORE CANADIANS ARRIVE IN BRITAIN

Safe arrival in Britain of the eighth large contingent of Canadians on Christmas or on Thursday was good news to the people of Canada as well as Britain. The transportation of so large a body of men and equipment is one of the achievements of British organization. The Canadians who have been in training in Canada have long thought of the day when they would arrive in the Motherland, that island fortress which stands as the world's defence and bulwark against evil forces.

The Canadians are now in the land that will be "forever England."

By the men who have arrived in the Old Land the influence of their new situation will be keenly appreciated, they are in the land of freedom, the land of hospitality, the land of justice. To the British people their coming, as did the coming of the other contingents, brings pride in the part that Canada, like the other Dominions and the Colonies, is playing in the war. To Canadians at home the men who have just reached Britain and are with the various contingents now making up the two complete divisions which are to be formed into a Canadian army corps, are an inspiration which calls for the fullest expression of national assistance to the Motherland.

HESS SPEAKS IN HITLER'S VEIN

Imitation is said to be the sincerest form of flattery but what can be said of imitation of the subordinate Nazi for Nazi No. 1 can hardly be said to be sincere.

Hitler is given to speaking of himself as sent by Providence to direct Germany. In his mouth this is blasphemy considering his record of broken promises and his scorn of the finer feelings which are associated with faith and devotion. Now Hess on Christmas gave expression to the typical Hitler view, making the declaration that "Divine Providence is against England. God, you gave us the Fuehrer. You blessed his struggle in mighty victory." Such words would shock anyone but a Nazi.

Hitler when he sent his Germans into Rumania spoke of having been divinely sent to guide the German people. But Hitler's assault on the moral world of faith, religion, his treatment of the Jews with every form of barbarism, his looting of nations, his cruelty to the Poles and Czechs and his engrossing ambition to rule belie his reference to his divine mission which is nothing but blasphemy and sacrilege. He worships only the Fuehrer of Germany, who is Hitler himself. Truly pious and religious men approach Heaven meekly and in the spirit of prayer, but not the spiteful, proud-necked Hitler who has revolted against the laws of heaven in his treatment of those who oppose him.

Rudolf Hess himself was thinking not of humanity but of Nazism and narrow racialism when he spoke of "an eternal and wonderful Germany" as Hitler's aim. The idea of the love of human brotherhood which is associated by true believers with the love of God, is foreign to this Nazi Hess, in whose expression is nothing of piety or devotion.

GERMANY AND HITLER

What has Hitler given Germany? He has rationed, regimented the nation for six or seven years, a nation willing to be regimented by a dictator. Now no creative work is possible. All is put into the worship of Mars, the war god. Germany has no song to sing, her regimented mind is petrified as it were, it is the sound of the machine she knows. Her Christmas was a cheerless affair with the war machine eating up much which should go into the larder. Nazism has invented restraints which deprive the people of so many things that are termed luxuries but which seem to outsiders not luxuries. To be able to buy some things ration card holders have had to surrender points on their cards. It is said that the large outdoor markets which once were full of a great variety of foodstuff and fat fowl were not open. Goose, the national fowl for Germany, was missing, but a bootleg business sold fowl at almost two dollars a pound, or even as high as $40 for choice birds. So Hitler had made Christmas fare of the leanest. But then Hitler cares nothing for the Christmas festival, he is the fanatic, the egoist, who imposes himself and his mad lust for power and his rage at the democracies upon everything in Germany and wherever else he can. Hitler's Germany is a dull, bleak affair, with no spirit but the spirit of subjection. With Hitler such subjection would continue but with Hitler gone as go he must when Britain and her Allies smite the curse and blight of the Berlin fanatic, it will disappear. Under him Germany can see nothing but continuance and rapid descent to degradation. What he has done to his Huns, he would do if he could to others, but for Britain.

Despite the war, the rest of the world, that which is free from Hitler influence, could enjoy Christmas. Britain, which has to keep watch by night and by day against possible invasion attempt, observed Christmas. Britain has not starved the soul of her people. The Britisher is no defeatist, he is the person of sound confidence. Christmas does enrich the lives of those who celebrate. Hitler, who degrades everything, he touches with his smear, could not kill the spirit of the Christian feast throughout the world. He is only one of the spirits of destruction who have come upon the world's scene, to disappear in time. Something of the appreciation of this may soon or late invade the stolid mind of the German people, particularly the older. German rulers for generations have ruled their people with an iron hand and used this power to seize on their neighbors. In 1914 German militarism started the Reich on its swift descent to savagery because of the spirit of militarism which obsessed the mind of Wilhelm the former Kaiser and latterly of Adolf Hitler and the groups of sycopants who have buzzed in their ears.

New Heavy Blows To Shake Italian Morale Impending

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Dec. 28.—New and jarring blows to shake Italian morale seem impending in both Albania and Africa and nothing Germany can do is likely to avert them.

Time is of the essence for Italy and Mussolini. For whatever compelling reasons, Germany has frittered away time in moving to Italy's aid. The seeming inevitable developments in Albania and Africa may not knock Italy out of the war nor topple Mussolini from power. However, they will effectively eliminate Italy for a long time to come, as an active or aggressive element in the war.

Official and neutral eyewitness accounts agree that the fall of Bardia in Libya before a pounding and relentless British attack must come within hours, a day or two at most. A Greek break-through at the Tepelini-Klisura hinge of Italian defence in southern Albania appears no less imminent.

Must Face Music.

Neither an "all-out" German attack on Britain nor a German march by any Balkan route to Italy's aid would alter the situation immediately. The Italians must face the music and pay the piper on both fronts alone, whatever Germany might do later to relieve the situation.

Of the two fronts, Albania holds the more immediate possibilities of a cumulative disaster for Italy. The back of the Italian army in Albania could be quickly broken there. Collapse of the Tepelini-Klisura defensive bastion under a triple-pronged Greek attack well might precipitate an Italian rout like Napoleon's tragic retreat from Moscow.

The few and inadequate roads along which the Italian forces in southern Albania might flee northward are now snow clogged. They would also be under fire of Greek guns from surrendered heights and bombardment by British planes. That is the trap the Greek Command is endeavoring to close upon its tottering foe.

In Africa, aside from the indicated loss of another 20,000 men with the seemingly certain British capture of Bardia, the portents of Italian misfortune are graver, but more distant. What is happening there is only the beginning of the British program to rip Italy's African empire "to shreds and tatters".

It is clear beyond doubt that Marshal Graziani has ordered a fight to the death at Bardia; but it is a deliberate sacrifice of the garrison. They were left to hold off a major British advance into Italian Libya long enough for the Fascist commander to rally the shattered fragments of his forces for a new stand deep in Italian territory.

It remains to be seen whether the British forces, once Bardia falls, press on westward to destroy that army utterly and clear Libya. They might have more to gain by turning eastward to free Red Sea approaches to the Suez Canal of Italian threats. Possibilities of a widespread tribal revolt in Ethiopia against hated Italian conquerors also point that way.

It is in Albania, however, that Mussolini is confronted by his greatest immediate peril. The crack-up of Italian defences among the naturally strong positions from Klisura westward to the shores of the Adriatic might lead to an utter rout. It would tend to undermine the whole irregular front from north of Chimara in the south to Elbasan in the north, around which the Greeks are also creeping.

If the Tepelini-Klisura bastion falls, large portions of the Italian army may find it impossible to escape to the coast for perilous embarkation for Italy. Whether Mussolini could survive the shock of a new and greater disaster in Albania remains to be seen. Prime Minister Churchill, at least, greatly doubts that he could.

New Canada Speaks—

No Racial Prejudices

"Novy Shliakh" (New Pathway), Ukrainian semi-weekly, Saskatoon: A dispatch came just yesterday that the German government has extended to Poles the so-called Nuremberg racial law which until now applied only to Jews. This law forbids blood relationship between Germans and Poles, bans mixed German-Polish marriages. In other words, the German race must not be polluted by mixing with the low and impure Polish race.... "Thank God", some people would say, "such things are not possible in Canada. It is true that such fanaticism cannot exist in Canada on a large scale because the Canadian population, from which some time a distinctly Canadian race will emerge, consists today probably of representatives of all greater races that exist in the world. However, manifestations of racial prejudices, as sporadic cases, may be observed here too.... It would be needless to prove that such things do not favor the creation of social unity and do not consolidate community forces. Such chauvinistic pranks are particularly harmful in time of war when the interests of the nation require a most solid unification of the whole people.

Poles and Czechs Unite

"Czas" (Polish Times), Winnipeg, commenting on the agreement between the Polish and Czecho-Slovak governments in London:

This news must be very joyous to us, although we do not yet know the exact terms of the agreement.. This kind of agreement bears witness to a great political ripeness of the governments of President Raczkiewicz and Dr. Benes and, at the same time it opens certain perspectives for the other Slav races which are Polish and Czech neighbors .. The outlining of such a political and national course for the Polish and Czech governments at the present time is of extraordinary importance for the development of future political relations in Central Europe.

Poland Still Lives

"Zwiazkowiec" (Alliancer), Polish-language weekly, Toronto:

Although crushed under partitions as tragic as the partitions of the past, we can be proud that it was nothing but the heroism of the Polish soldier, the heroism of the children, women and workers of Warsaw, of the sailors of Westerplatte, of the defenders of Lwow, Modlin or Gdynia which opened the eyes of the world to the real essence of the long maturing conflict, to the real face of the enemy by revealing his actual plans and designs. Although cast down, we are not dead, not even broken, and we can be proud that the cause of dishonored Poland has become the cause of the whole civilized world, that once more we have strongly tied Poland's future to the future of that new life, that new universal justice, for which today, along with Polish soldiers, the heroic warriors of Britain are fighting.

Canada's Aircraft

"Der Courier," German-language weekly, Regina. Commenting on development in Canada's aircraft industry:

It will be seen from the foregoing how our young aircraft industry has expanded and what promise it gives of accomplishment. Only one thing is needed if the desired objective is to be reached: a firm will to carry the programme through and to provide for trained workers as they are needed. An aircraft industry created from military needs in wartime will, in peace time, be a worth-while asset for Canada.—Director Public Information.

Aggressive Men Command Services

by Strategicus,
the prominent
British Military Commentator

It was in the very crisis of the struggle for the French Channel ports that Mr. Churchill uttered one of those flaming obiter dicta which, illuminating a confused picture, contrive to bring out everything in its true perspective. "The armies must cast away" he said, "the idea of resisting attack behind concrete lines or natural obstacles and must realize that mastery can only be regained by furious unrelenting assault." The words then seemed to wear an air of novelty, though it was not yet known that a distinguished French general had informed a correspondent that he had abandoned his early and skilfully conducted advance against the West Wall because "we were too far away from the Maginot Line". A statement such as that would have seemed unintelligible to Marshal Foch, and everyone today must find it difficult to remember that the first quotation comes from a statesman and the second but not the first from a professional soldier.

The facts have taught us much. Before the war there had grown up a school of thinkers, who, in the endeavour to evade the inexorable law that wars are won by resolute fighting, had attempted to find a prescription for victory in numbers, material and organized defensives; but this has perished in the breath of reality and now it is realized that the dependence upon the defensive at length breeds incapacity even for defence. The defeat of France was due not so much to inferior numbers and lack of material as to the fatal obsession with the defensive system, with the Maginot Line, and this Frankenstein rose up in the end to overwhelm its creator.

Vice-Admiral Tovey

But how far we have travelled from that mood can now be realized when it is seen that the fighting Services have been quietly given a new command of young aggressive men. With the appointment of Vice-Admiral J. C. Tovey, C. B., D. S. O., as Commander-in-Chief of the Home Fleet and Rear-Admiral Sir Henry Harwood, K. C. B., as Assistant to the First Sea Lord, Sir Dudley Pound, the Senior Service receives a new breath of life. Fortunately it did not need to be infused with the offensive spirit: that indeed is its continuing characteristic. But each of these officers brings with him a fresh and vigorous bent for aggressive action. Both of them have been recently connected with the small ships of the Navy; and the spirit of attack is more inevitably associated with them than it is with the battleship, the ship of the line, which in the last resort assures their safety and is the foundation of sea power. It is, however, the small ships of the Navy that carry out the Navy's offensive, the blockade; that are for the most part the visible signs of its strength Admiral Tovey, however, though he has only recently relinquished the command of the destroyer flotillas of the Mediterranean which have done so much to foster caution in the Italian Navy, has had experience of all types of ships; but since the smaller ships are the limbs with which the battleships reach out and secure their chance of battle it is much that an officer who has had such a command should now have charge of the Home Fleet.

Sir Henry Harwood

Sir Henry Harwood is much better known to the general public. He brilliantly demonstrated the power of the small ship in the battle of the River Plate; but he brings to the conduct of naval affairs something much more valuable than is generally realized. The action he fought was so inspiring because he did not merely drift into it but because, in spite of his immense inferiority in armament, he deliberately courted the battle, foreseeing ten days ahead the probable action of the Graf Spee, concentrating his small force where it would appear and practising the tactics he thought most suitable before going into action. Ability to plan ahead, resolution, daring and discretion were all involved; and it is a great gain to have those qualities reinforced in the Admiralty.

But we have always had a tradition of offensive action in the Navy. It is in the air, which has witnessed the most striking developments, that we have been so pleasantly and proudly reassured. When the warfare of the allies appeared to have withered under the blight of the defensive obsession the Royal Air Force bombers showed that they could carry the offensive across the most highly defended frontiers and invade the enemy's territory. The fighters have been magnificent; but they—though tactically the attack is their only weapon—were strategically only fulfilling the task of defending hearth and home. The bombers have from the beginning been on the offensive, inflicting damaging blows upon the enemy, weakening his morale, destroying his war potential. Under Air Marshal Sir Charles Portal the bombers have never rested from their vigorous offensive against the dock-yards, munition factories, oil refineries and communications of the enemy. His promotion from the post of Chief of the Bomber Command to that of Commander-in-Chief, Royal Air Force, brings that spirit of scientifically controlled aggression to the supreme office of the Air Force. If this newest of the Services has saved England from invasion, who can say how far it will go towards the defeat of the enemy? It is at least certain that in defence, in the preparation of the attack and the development of the offensive, the Air Force is an almost incalculably important factor. In the Great War, according to Major Grosskreutz, the comparatively minor bombing attacks of the time broke down "the moral resistance of the German nation". Now that the attack will develop increasingly it is certain to have an immense affect.

The Services

With the Navy supplying the basis of victory and the Bombing Force spreading increasing destruction the war will be open for the coupe de grace. This will be administered by the vast scientifically trained army that is now being shaped into an offensive weapon. England was the inventor of the tank and of the first armoured division. Sir Alan Brooke, the new commander-in-chief of the Home Forces, is the brilliant officer who fought through the war in France and, a specialist in the use of mechanized force, saw both its power and its limits. Another of the younger school, his bold aggressive spirit will inspire the growing army that will one day take the offensive with decisive effect. The lesson of the war in Belgium and France has been well learned. The use of the tank with accompanying aeroplanes was first applied by the British army at Fricourt, in 1918; and the army command is no longer minded merely to present ideas to the Germans. The new army is being trained along the most modern scientific lines. From America alone 4,000 tanks have been ordered; Canada is manufacturing them and for some time various improved types have been mass produced in England.

The allies entered the Great War inspired with the conviction that they must take the offensive at all costs. This was taken so literally that on occasion it led to heavy loss, and as a reaction there grew up the school which places its reliance upon the defensive. But if an obsession with the offensive is risky, obsession with the defensive is fatal. It is recognized that only by the offensive can a decision be obtained; and no less than that is the objective of England. The British army, in any case, has always been an offensive instrument, like the tank it invented. The direction of the fighting Services is now in the hands of a new, younger and aggressive men who by instinct and by training believe in the offensive. But it is in the scientific offensive they believe, in the improved armoured divisions, in bombing attacks prepared with scrupulous care and carried out with precision, in the new Navy with its immense accretion of small ships. At present only the bare outlines can be seen of the offensive instrument which will achieve victory; but they are taking shape and they form the foundation of our confidence.— British Ministry of Information.

Toast to The King

By R. C. R.
in the Canadian Veteran

The toast to His Majesty is drunk (in an officers' mess) in this manner: As soon as the president has satisfied himself that all is in readiness for the toast viz., that the wine decanters have been placed in front of himself and the vice-president, he fills his wine glass and then passes his decanter clockwise to the diner on his left; the vice-president does likewise. Diners who are teetotallers should ask a waiter to fill up their wine glass with water or other non-alcoholic beverage before this passing of the wine takes place.

When the president sees that all glasses have been filled, he rises to his feet with his wine glass in his right hand, and in a loud, clear voice says, "Mr. Vice, the King", whereupon the vice-president rises, glass in right hand, and says, "Gentlemen, the King," after which all diners rise with glasses in right hand, all standing to attention while the band plays a few bars of the National Anthem.

When the band ceases playing, the Commanding Officer raises his wine glass and says, "The King, God bless Him." After the Commanding Officer has said these words, but not before, all diners raise their glasses and say "The King" and then drink from their glasses.

The words "God bless Him" are permitted to Field Officers only: the use of these words is optional and not compulsory.

Stewart Says—

Uncle Sam Should Be Careful Which Islands He Accepts

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Chas. P. Stewart

Washington.—Some of the island bases that Uncle Sam is acquiring or may yet acquire from Britain, in connection with his plan to help John Bull win the war, undoubtedly are well worth having. To the acquisition of a few of these bases, however, there are certain objections. Mexican critics who are familiar with them are trying to point out that the U. S. should not allow its appetite for islands to lead it into overeating on that particular diet.

For example, reports are current that the British intend to hand over the Falkland insular group in the Southern Atlantic. The Buenos Aires newspaper, Noticias Graficas, already has published this rumor, and it immediately is evident that its readers don't like the idea a bit.

Anyone who's acquainted with the little archipelago's history can readily see why.

They're nice islands, with a first-rate harbor at Port Stanley. They're pretty flat. Therefore well adapted to suit aviation's needs. Lying about 250 miles off the Argentine coast, they have considerable naval strategic value in their own part of the world.

But are they a possession that Britain has any right to deliver to the U. S.?

Claimed by Argentina

Originally, under the name of the Malvinas isles, they belonged to Spain. When the Argentines cut loose from their parent country, they claimed the group as part of their new republic. They hadn't the facilities then, though, to police it effectively. It became a pirate stronghold. The pirates pestered British shipping so much that in 1833, an English war fleet swooped down, cleaned out the sea marauders, and proclaimed the isles to be John Bull's. He's kept them ever since.

Upon Uncle Sam's entrance into world war No. 1 President Wilson, desiring to give an appearance of Pan-American solidarity, brought strong pressure upon the Latin-American countries to join the Allied line-up. Most of them did — not to the extent of fighting, but nominally, which was all President Wilson desired.

The Argentines, however, said, "If Britain will give us back our Malvinas (or Falkland) islands, we'll join — not otherwise." Britain wouldn't do it, so Argentine stayed neutral and more or less pro-German throughout.

Now if the U. S. gets the Malvinas islands all this Argentine resentment inevitably will be turned in their direction, shooting at least one hole through the so - much - desired western hemispherical unification —for Argentina's major consideration in the new world neighborhood.

Beauty Gone

Back in 1937 Vittorio Mussolini, son of the Italian Premier, wrote a book entitled "Flying Over Ethiopian Mountain Ranges." It described his "adventures" while flying as a member of the "In Desperate" squadron, and dropping bombs on spear-carrying Abyssinian natives while himself remaining at a good safe height. Here are some sentences from the book:

"War is the quintessence of beauty.... I remember that one group of horsemen gave me the impression of a budding rose as the bombs fell in their midst. It was exceptionally good fun, and they were easy to hit....," the Kansas City Star recalls.

Of course, that was way back when the Italians were fighting an enemy equipped chiefly with spears and a few old muzzle-loading muskets. But today, war presents a different picture to the Italians. Their fliers are reported pleading against being sent up against the British. Their ground troops have found out what it is to be on the receiving end of bombs.

War has ceased to be a glorious adventure. War is no longer beautiful. War is hell.

And by the way, where are Vittorio Mussolini and his brother Bruno in the present campaign? It is curious, considering how very prominent they were during the bombing of helpless natives, to observe how very modest has been their role since the Italians began facing R.A.F. machine guns in equality in the air.—Lindsay Post.

Special Music at St. Peter's Church Service, Sunday

Madoc — Christmas music and a real Christmas was observed in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, on Sunday Dec. 22. The regular Sunday School service was given over to the singing of Christmas hymns and carols with Stanley Hawthorne presiding at the piano. Miss Lamoine West told the Christmas story "Why The Chimes Rang." At the morning service the choir rendered Christmas music, two anthems, "Upon the Midnight Clear" and "Star of Love Divine" with Stanley Hawthorne taking the solos. The minister Rev. W.A. Hunter gave the message choosing his text from Matthew, chapter 2, verse 2. At the evening service Christmas hymns were sung and the minister chose his text from Matthew 1, 21. Mrs. Blanche Alexander, organist and choir leader presided at the organ.

Trinity United Church observed the Christmas season with special music on Sunday morning and in the evening at the close of the regular evening service a fireside service was conducted. Special music under the direction of Mrs. Ashley was rendered by the choir. Others taking part in the fireside hour service were Miss Doris Broad, Mrs. Jack, Master Billy and little Miss Doris Caverly and Christmas hymns and carols were sung by the congregation. The church was beautifully decorated in keeping with the Christmas season.

Popular Cannifton Couple Mark 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Twiddy were entertained at a surprise dinner on Thursday, Dec. 19. arranged by their children Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth and Harry Twiddy at the home of the elder son.

At 12 o'clock noon dinner was served by the daughter-in-law to about 20 guests. The rooms were beautifully decorated with streamers and a big white bell hung from the centre of the room. The table looked very pretty with a large 3 storey wedding cake in the centre.

During the meal Mr. and Mrs. Twiddy were presented with a silver Tea Service from their children and many other lovely gifts from visiting relatives. The afternoon was spent renewing old acquaintances and all departed on singing "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." Out-of-Town guests included, Mrs. J. Wilkin, Toronto, Mrs. A. Osborne, Toronto, Mrs. E. Nicholson, Centenary, Mr. E. Twiddy, Ivanhoe, Mr. A. Twiddy, Mrs. H. Twiddy and Master Keith Twiddy, also of Ivanhoe.

Santa Claus Parade Successful Event In Marmora Village

Marmora—Sponsored by the Marmora Branch of the Canadian Legion and the merchants of Marmora, the annual Santa Claus parade was held on Saturday afternoon. A special matinee of the hilarious comedy picture "Breezing Home" was shown in the Town Hall at 3 p.m. to a capacity house of juveniles. Following the show, the children lined up outside and led by Santa Claus who was escorted by Village Constable William Lavender and Lieut. Percy Gray paraded to a position on Forsythe St. near the residence of Dr. Crawford, where from a chartered truck all received their gifts, the street presenting a truly animated scene. It is estimated that about five hundred children of the village and district were in attendance.

A children's service was held at St. Paul's on Sunday morning instead of the usual Sunday School session. The rector addressed the children on the birth of Christ and the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem as it is today. Carols and Christmas hymns were sung at Evensong. Mrs. C. Nichol and Mr. L. R. Cheese Factories in Rawdon District Conclude Busy Year's Activities

On Thursday evening, December 19th the pupils of the Allan School and the Williams School held their annual school concert in Mount Pleasant Church hall with a large number in attendance, the proceeds being $27.60.

The teachers Miss Esma Cole and Miss Betty Hoard decorated the hall and a beautiful Christmas tree sparkled and gleamed and added charm to the occasion. Mrs. Kenneth Weaver presided at the piano throughout the evening and Rev. J. E. Beckel was master of ceremonies while Mr. Ken Weaver manipulated the curtain.

The opening chorus by the pupils of both schools was a double number "I am a Canadian" and "The birthday of the King."

Master Neil Hubble with his mother as accompanist sang "Santa Claus is coming to town" and responded to an encore. All the pupils of the Allan school staged a dialogue entitled "The toymakers Dream" and this included a drill, singing and a novelty number when the various toys were on parade.

The pupils of the Williams school then staged a three act play "Christmas with the Mulligans" assisted by Miss Gladys Summers as mother Mulligan. During this presentation the Mulligan family staged a Christmas concert of their own and several local hits were enjoyed.

Miss Mabel Seeney gave a recitation. The senior pupils gave a song by candlelight entitled "Candles of Christmas."

A beautiful pageant interspersed with the singing of Christmas carols and the presentation of the Christmas story made a fitting climax to the program.

Thanks were extended to all who had in any way helped to make the evening a success and the closing chorus was "The Santa Claus Express."

Santa, dear to the hearts of the children, then arrived and distributed bags of candy and nuts to all the children besides a large assortment of gifts from the tree.

Fourth Line Cheese Meeting

The Sterling Cheese and Butter Company with their factory situated on the Fourth concession of Rawdon has had a very successful year and their plant is now in first class condition for the cheese industry. They held their annual meeting on Friday afternoon at the factory and Mr. John B. Thompson was re-elected as president with Mr. Thomas Searles as cheesemaker.

During 1940 there were 2,092,842 pounds of milk received and 176,740 pounds of cheese manufactured.

The average selling price of the cheese was 13.46 and the value of the milk per standard was 30.10. During the year a refrigeration plant was installed.

Bethel League was held on Thursday evening with the President, Miss Elda McMullen in charge. The meeting opened with a hymn and prayer by Rev. J. E. Beckel. All sang Christmas songs and Mrs. Harry Preston read the Bible lesson. Mr. Chas. Morton gave the topic based on the Christmas spirit. Mr. Don Thompson delighted with a solo playing his own guitar accompaniment. Mrs. Gordon Green gave a reading. Rev. Beckel also spoke a few words and league was closed with a hymn and Mizpah benediction after which Rev. Beckel staged a quiz contest.

Mount Pleasant United Church held their Christmas service on Sunday morning and the pastor, Rev. J. E. Beckel brought a message on the theme "Keeping Christ in Christmas". The choir rendered a special number and the pianist, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, contributed Christmas music.

WEDDINGS

GRIGG—BELNAP

A quiet wedding took place at Christ Church on Saturday, December 21, at four o'clock, when Edna Belnap, became the bride of Gunner R. V. Grigg, Petawawa. Rev. G. G. Wright officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Crosby attended the young couple.

THOMPSON—BELL

At the residence of the officiating minister, Rev. J. D. P. Knox, 104 W. Moira Street, the marriage took place on Tuesday, December 24th., of Madeline Keitha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell, 369 Bleecker Avenue, and Burton William Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, Massassaga.

Miss Helen Thompson, the sister of the groom and Mr. Dorland Emerson Bell, brother of the bride, were attendants at the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside on the groom's farm, Massassaga.

HETHERINGTON—REDFERN

A lovely wedding took place at Tabernacle United Church at four o'clock this afternoon, when Margaret Amy, daughter of Mr. H. H. Redfern and the late Mrs. Redfern, became the bride of Thomas Walter Hetherington, Toronto, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. Hetherington, Deseronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. T. McClintock.

The church was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums. Mrs. M. P. Duff played wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her gown of white crepe, in princess lines, with matching turban. She carried Talisman roses.

Miss Lillian Colden was bridesmaid and wore rose silk jersey with turban to match. Her bouquet was of sweet peas and Talisman roess.

Mr. Murray Malcolmson, Montreal, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Harry Redfern, Ottawa, brother of the bride, and Mr. Douglas Cleland.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Hotel Quinte. Mrs. Harry Redfern, Ottawa, wearing black crepe with touches of gold, black sailor hat and corsage of roses, received with the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Hetherington left on a short wedding trip, the bride travelling in aqua blue with brown accessories. They will reside in Toronto.

McKEOWN—STOTTS

The home of Mrs. J. H. Stotts, Seymour East, was the scene of a pretty but quiet wedding on Christmas Day, when her younger daughter, Bertha May, became the bride of Melville Edgar McKeown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKeown, Bonarlaw. Rev. G. N. Maxwell officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Herbert Tinney, Seymour East, chose a gown of floor length white taffeta cut with sweetheart neckline and shirred waist and full skirt, which was trimmed with white velvet bows. She carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses.

Her bridesmaid, Doreen Pollock, wore floor length pink taffeta, the skirt falling very full from a shirred waist. She carried a colonial bouquet. Mr. Percy Reid, Bonarlaw, attended the groom and Miss Evelyn Todd of East Seymour, played the wedding music.

For travelling the bride donned a smart tailored blue frock with black accessories. Following a wedding trip to Eastern Ontario and Quebec, Mr. and Mrs. McKeown will reside in Seymour East.

Hair With a Golden Glint

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

DRAB haired girls, feeling that they are neither blondes or brunettes, but betwixt-and-betweens, bemoan their sad fate. They long for golden glints in their hirsute halos. Some flirt with the peroxide bottle and, not knowing the rules of the bleaching game, pour troubles on their heads. The presto-change act can be accomplished with gratifying results, but it takes a trained beautician to do it. A great deal of bleaching and dyeing is going on in Uncle Sam's domain, and few observers are the wiser.

A camomile rinse, which is safe to give at home, will brighten the hair slightly. It has been used in Europe for many years and is supposed to have a tonic effect upon the growth; we can't vouch for that; we merely pass on the talk we have heard in Paris beauty shops.

Camomile Rinse

Take two level tablespoonfuls of camomile leaves, pour over them a quart of boiling water and let stand for half an hour. Strain through coarse muslin. Use as a final flourish after the shampoo, and do not rinse it away. It is a sort of spiritual comfort to the pretties who hesitate to use a stronger bleaching agent.

Blonde and drab hair must be shampooed carefully with a bland soap; harsh ones will darken the shafts. Hair is more easily discolored than most of us realize.

Library Corner

(By K. G.)

Among new non-fiction at the Corby Public Library this week are three outstanding Canadian books, which are winning a high place in the critics' acclaim.

All sang "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear." Miss Eileen Mitts read "Should We Keep Christmas" followed by "Silent Night" and other Christmas carols. Miss Aletta Horton then gave the topic for the afternoon, "Christ and the Home." The meeting was closed by the benediction. An exchange of Christmas present was then enjoyed after which Mrs. Ross served a lovely Christmas lunch.

72 AIR RAID VICTIMS BURIED

Manchester, Dec. 28 (AP).—Seventy-two of this city's recent air raid victims were buried today with a mass funeral.

Brilliant, Colorful Throng Enjoys Annual Hospital Christmas Ball

Attracting many people from the far-flung sections of the district, the ball sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital, held in the Trianon Ball room, Friday, easily lived up to its reputation of being the outstanding social event of the season.

Upwards of five hundred attended the function which was without doubt one of the most colorful events of the current season. The ball room, tastefully decorated with a Christmas motif, provided a pretty background to the beautiful gowns of the ladies, and the conventional black and white of the men. The khaki of the military and the famous blue-grey of the Royal Canadian Air Force added a war-time touch to a function that was outstanding in its personal enjoyment as well as a distinct credit to the sponsoring organization.

It was a grand party. The exigencies of war and other material things were forgotten. The beauty of Belleville and district as well as other sections of the province were perhaps never more apparent than that which attended the ball. Lovely ladies from as far east as Montreal and as far west as Port Arthur added their beauty to that which is Belleville's. Officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Canadian Army and the Royal Canadian Navy added a war-time touch that was as appropriate as it was colorful.

The ball room was crowded. And the colorful crowd enjoyed to the utmost the sparkling rhythms of the Belleville Commodores Orchestra under the direction of Bud Haines. The music left nothing to be desired. Versatility of the band as has been exemplified in many a previous engagement was perhaps never more tuneful than it was at the ball. The "boys" were in splendid "fettle" and their performance in which they brought to the melodic utmost the popular tunes of today and those of yesterday was perhaps the highlight of the affair.

Nor was the inner man forgotten. A delicious luncheon was served by members of the Auxiliary, augmented by the help of the "male" members of the party, shortly after midnight. Dancing continued until the wee sma' hours.

As an interesting interlude to the dancing proper, bridge was played in the rooms of the Y.M.C.A. where many parties took advantage of the facilities provided there by a committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Joseph Imlah. Later the bridge enthusiasts joined the dancing party for refreshments and the remaining enjoyment of the party. Winners as announced by the committee in charge were Mrs. Illey and Mr. Frank McKeown.

Greeting the guests as they entered the ball room were Mrs. (Dr.) R. A. Flynn, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson and Miss Ruth Thompson, Director of Nursing at the hospital.

Financially, as well as socially the affair was a splendid success. Well over four hundred dollars will be added to the coffers of the Auxiliary and President Mrs. (Dr.) James Forrester and her executive today voiced their appreciation of the splendid response of the general public.

Letters of A Father to His Children

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

My fellow parents who would like to improve their letters to their children away from home ought to read the letters of a very wonderful father to his adolescent sons and daughters. I refer to Joel Chandler Harris, known to most of my readers as Uncle Remus. Where is the child who does not enjoy Br'er Rabbit? As you know, it was Joel Chandler Harris and Henry W. Grady who helped make the Atlanta Constitution famous.

You wonder what kind of letters Uncle Remus would write to his sons and daughters. Well, you can read them in The Biography of Joel Chandler Harris by his daughter Julia Collier Harris, Houghton Mifflin Co., 1918.

Sympathetic Understanding

In his first letter to his son who at sixteen went alone from his home in Atlanta to Quebec to spend some months with his grandparents, and who at twenty-one become news editor, "Try to be as respectful to your grandfather and grandmother as possible. Bear in mind that they have lived long out of the world, so to speak, and try not to treat them with that superciliousness so often affected by boys of your age. Remember that learning is merely an accomplishment and not a virtue, and if they seem to you to be ignorant, bear in mind that, in turn, you will seem to be ignorant to your descendants . . . .

"We are all well here. The place is just as you left it, except the hole made in the air by your abscence, and it is a pretty large one, too. I am waiting for those long letters".

More "Lectoring"

From a later letter: "Another thing . . . when I make a remark or suggestion, don't take it too seriously. You are old enough to have discovered, or, at least, to have suspected, that, except in the matter of morals, it is impossible to map out a young man's career by means of advice. All I can do is to give you some of the results of my experience. I am much more interested in seeing you grow up strong-bodied and clean-minded than I am in your career. A clean-minded man will be everything that he should be. I should like to see you with a will strong enough to resist all forms of temptation. Your career will then take care of itself".

Still later: "It is very gratifying to me to know that you have made an impression on people. Lord! Lord! don't disappoint 'em, and don't disappoint your mammy and daddy. (More 'lectoring.')"

Space does not permit me to quote the funny things he writes his daughters, and his replies to his boy's request for advice in his love affairs. There was no wall between Uncle Remus and his children. The letters by Joel Chandler Harris to his son and daughters should prove excellent material for study groups of parents of adolescent children; good material for a discussion in an adult Bible class; good material for a sermon.

PRESENTATION

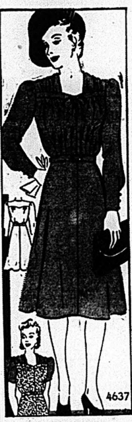
On Tuesday evening a number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mrs. Jos. Grills in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Grills of Carmel. Rev. Laverty called the gathering to order and led in community singing. After a fine program was put on Mrs. C. Smith read an address. Mr. and Mrs. Grills received many lovely gifts. Both Ernest and Annie thanked their friends and invited one and all to visit them in their home.

An address was read signed by Mrs. Lewis Bird and Mrs. Chas. Smith.

LOOKING AHEAD to Spring we see grey as a sure-fire hit. A new suit is in slate grey wool cross-barred in yellow. Heart-shaped leather buttons and leather belt that shows in front only.

Woman's Dress Has New Yoke

By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4637

If you want that distinctive, one-of-a-kind look . . . if you like the new slim silhouette, yet must have soft touches—this is YOUR dress! Designed by Anne Adams, Pattern 4637 is everything the more mature woman could ask. Its fashion highlight is that new, eye-catching shoulder treatment. The yoke-band serves to hold soft, flattering gathers in place, and gives a smart, wide - shouldered effect as well. There's a well-shaped yoke in back too. The simple style of the skirt accents the bodice interest and makes your figure look unbelievably slender from the waist down. Darts or gathers are used at the front waist. Your sleeves may be short, three-quarter or long. For a flash of color, you might like the yokes and short sleeves in lively contrast!

Pattern 4637 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 5-8 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Send your order to The Ontario Intelligencer Pattern Department, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont.

Fashion Flashes

THE NICEST PARTIES are the spur-of-the-moment affairs, so it behooves a gal to wear something smart after five. A good solution is a day-length suit of red silk velvet with black silk jersey blouse and gold costume jewelry.

SOMETHING NEW at the beach this year is the very short, full-skirted outfit. One such costume has an above-the-knee pleated skirt of grey jersey with a striped top in wine, beige and gray.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Long Voyage Home"

John Ford's, four-star production of Eugene O'Neill's story "The Long Voyage Home" featuring Thomas Mitchell, John Wayne and Ian Hunter and a brilliant cast of supporting players is now showing at the McCarthy theatre. "The Long Voyage Home" is one of the "ten best" motion pictures produced in 1940 and a "must see" for all moviegoers.

"Ellery Queen Master Detective"

As great a detective on the screen as he is in the suspense-laden pages of fiction or the mystery-haunted weekly air-waves, Ellery Queen makes his motion picture debut next at the McCarthy theatre in the first of a new series of feature productions based on stories of one of America's most famous amateur sleuths, the first release "Ellery Queen Master Detective" brings to the screen Ralph Bellamy as "Ellery Queen," Margaret Lindsay as "Nikka Porter," Charley Grapewin as "Inspector Queen," James Burke as "Sergeant Velie" and Marsha Hunt as "Barbara Braun. An excellent program of short subjects including latest Fox News events will be presented in addition to "Ellery Queen Master Detective."

"Arizona"

New Year's Eve

Starting at 11.30 p.m. Tuesday evening, a gala event will take place at the McCarthy theatre, to usher in 1941 with a bang. Every patron will receive noisemakers, horns and hats, stage entertainment will be provided and Mr. Fred Jobson will act as Master of Ceremonies and Community sing leader. In addition, on the screen a feast of enjoyment has been carefully selected to make it a New Year's Eve you'll never forget. The feature presentation brings Jack Buchanan one of the most popular and talented personalities on stage and screen today in a musical-comedy laugh hit "The Sky is the Limit," plus an all-star comedy "The Spook Speaks," screen vaudeville and "Goodnight Elmer" a laugh crammed cartoon novelty. Seats for this special program are now on sale at the McCarthy theatre box-office.

AIKENS CHRISTMAS CONCERT

Miss Clara Wilson, teacher at the Hogle School, with her pupils, presented a fine Christmas program at the annual concert held at Aikens Church on Thursday evening.

The pastor of the church, Rev. L. W. Scott, acted as chairman for the program of songs, recitations, dialogues, monologues, a drill, a pageant, a demonstration in choral reading and selections on the guitar by Miss Vivian Woods, a senior pupil.

A solo by Mrs. Perry Hamilton and selections on the trumpet by Mr. Gordon Spafford added to the evening's enjoyment.

Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton was the piano accompanist throughout the entire program, each number of which was exceptionally well given, showing extensive training by Miss Wilson and her assistants.

Regret was expressed at the absence of one of the pupils, Miss Betty Wellman, who was ill in the Belleville General Hospital.

AT THE CAPITOL

"CHRISTMAS IN JULY"

Thousands of people have entered national contests offering fabulous sums for a slogan. Thousands have planned to enter but never get around to it. Then there are some who just dream about what they would do with the money if it was in their pocket. All of these will appreciate the heart-throbs, hopes and despair that accompany this latest Sturges picture.

Dick Powell plays the role of a young man with ideas. He's going to marry Ellen, but not until he's able to be a little independent—support her, her family and his family in the style in which they haven't been accustomed. Contests seem the only way out, because they'll never get ahead as clerks in the coffee company. He tries several —but the goddess of luck passes him by. A rival coffee company offers $25,000 for a slogan. Here's something he knows about.

Some practical jokers in the office learn he has entered this contest and send him a wire to come and collect. The president of the company reads the wire and hands him the check—and then the fun begins. Well, what would you do with $25,000? Whether it's July or not, it's going to be Christmas for all his friends, everyone. The department store can't cash the check but that doesn't matter—his credit is good. Then the president of the company learns that his committee is still trying to decide on a winner. How it works out makes a fascinating and screamingly funny picture.

Sturges selected his cast with a practiced eye for comedy. In addition to Dick Powell and Ellen Drew he has added Ernest Truex, Raymond Walburn, William Demarest, Alexander Carr and Franklin Pangborn. Together they have made one of the outstanding and pleasing pictures of the season.

"Roaring Timber"

AT THE BELLE

"Little Nellie Kelly"

Taking its place as a milestone in the career of Judy Garland, "Little Nellie Kelly" filmization of the famous George M. Cohan musical comedy now on the Belle Theatre Screen for an engagement presents the young star in her first grown-up role.

The story revolves around the life of a little Irish girl who marries against the wishes of her father. The feud that ensues from that moment between the father and his son-in-law makes for comedy as well as tears. When the daughter dies leaving an infant girl to be cared for, the child finds itself torn between love for her father and her grandfather. Through her efforts the two are finally brought together. Miss Garland appears both as the mother and as the thoroughly Americanized daughter.

The strong supporting cast is headed by George Murphy in the role of the young Irish husband. Murphy will be last remembered for his work in "Two Girls on Broadway". Charles Winninger is cast as the grandfather. Douglas McPhail as the romantic interest in the latter half of the film, and Arthur Shields, of the Abbey Players, as McPhail's father.

Song numbers include "Pretty Girl Milking Her Cow", "Singing in the Rain", "It's a Great Day for the Irish", "Nellie Kelly, I Love You", and "Nellie is a Darlin'."

The popular Belle Newsreel and "Milky Way", a funny comicolor cartoon precede the feature attraction. On Saturday matinee a new and interesting chapter of "The Green Hornet" serial will be exhibited. A special extra matinee attraction over the week-end will be the exhibition of three selected cartoon comedies.

Tickets are now selling for the Belle Theatre New Year's Eve Frolic, which starts Tuesday evening at 11.30 p.m. You couldn't start the New Year in a happier mood than by attending the Belle Frolic. Hats, Noisemakers and favours for all, with Community singing and a Scotch Pipe Band, to greet 1941. The screen presents a class "A" first choice screen hit, augmented by three hand-picked comedies, novelties and cartoon comedies.

BRIGHT LIGHTS beckon. Made for winter joys is a lovely evening frock with very full, swirling skirt of grey silk marquisette with snug top of silver metal cloth plaided in red and blue.

A LITTLE LEISURE will go much further if one dresses to express its mood. A delightful house gown is of beige silk crepe, the long skirt softly draped. The top is snug with a high yoke and long tight sleeves of leopard spotted velvet.

THE NEW VETOMOLD TOMATO
THE IDEAL GREENHOUSE AND GARDEN TOMATO
RESISTS LEAF-MOLD
(Cladosporium fulvum)

This epoch-making new mold-resistant tomato was developed jointly by the University of Toronto and the Ontario Experiment Station at Vineland.

Every Tomato grower should make a test planting of VETOMOLD, both for forcing and outdoor growing. VETOMOLD is resistant to leaf-mold. VETOMOLD produces heavily, uniform, smooth, clean and bright red fruits of ideal size, being deeper and more round than Grand Rapids. Seven or eight fruit clusters are formed in a height of six feet, the trusses being frequently branched, each producing seven to fifteen fruits.

VETOMOLD is an unexcelled and VERY EARLY GARDEN VARIETY, whether staked or field grown, possessing highest quality, earliness, uniformity and high yield.

Packet 25c. (⅓ oz. 50c) (oz. $1.50) (¼ lb. $4.50) postpaid. Make your dollars count. Plan a real garden for 1941. Ask now for our 1941 Seed and Nursery catalog.

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw—A splendid school concert was held in the school house here on Wednesday of last week. There was a good attendance. Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne acted as chairman. The program consisted of recitations, drills, dialogues, pageants, choruses, solos, part songs etc. and was under the supervision of Miss Marion Richardson, teacher. Mr. Morgan, teacher of music in the school gave a short but interesting talk on music, explaining that quality of tone and proper harmony is aimed at now more than mere volume.

A good feature of the program was the singing of patriotic airs by the pupils with the audience joining in.

At the close of the concert Santa appeared and distributed presents to all the children. Miss Richardson was presented with a beautiful bed room lamp by the pupils.

A photoelectric phonograph has been developed that transmits sounds that it reproduces over a light beam.

Generous Donation Aids Public Library Activities at Tweed

Tweed—For a number of years Tweed Public Library Board has been putting forth strenuous efforts to raise money by various means to meet the casual expenses of rent fuel, light, librarian's salary and certain other items in addition to keeping the library up-to-date by the purchase of modern books. On more than one occasion the amount of money which could be devoted to the purchase of books has not been as large as the board might have wished but this was a matter beyond their control.

This condition of affairs will not occur again, at least not for a considerable time, owing to a very generous gift of two hundred dollars made yesterday by Mr. W. S. Gordon, Superintendent of Tweed Steel Works, Ltd. To say that this fine gift is deeply appreciated by the President, Mr. T. E. Moffat and the members of Tweed Public Library Board is an understatement. To those who know Mr. Gordon and who recall the many occasions when his contributions, financial and otherwise, have been made to various organizations in the community, this gift comes as no surprise. It is what one has come to expect from him.

Mr. Gordon has been a member of Tweed Public Library Board for nearly fourteen years, having been named to the board on January 31, 1927. Since that time he has been one of its most valued members.

The library is not the only organization in which Mr. Gordon is interested. At the present time he is chairman of the Parks Board and was also president of Tweed Amusements, Ltd., for a number of years. Both these organizations owe a large measure of their success to his untiring efforts.

Large congregations attended both morning and evening services in Tweed United Church on Sunday, December 22nd. At the morning service Rev. H. L. Morrison gave a special Christmas message. Anthems sung by the choir were "Behold, I Bring You Good Tidings" and "Anthem Celestial" with solo by Mrs. H. A. Grier. Anthems at the evening service were "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," (obligato by Mrs. M. G. Dales) and the Christmas song "Holy Night" with solo by Miss Ruth Foster. The Christmas music contributed materially to both services with the solo parts by Mrs. Grier, Mrs. Dales and Miss Foster being particularly well rendered.

The evening service was featured by a pageant "The Shepherd Who Did Not Go." The pageant was directed by Mrs. H. L. Morrison, assisted by Rev. Morrison. Characters were: Shepherds, Samuel, L. A. Macdougal; Ezra, Donald Bateman; Joel, T. C. Graham; David, Ken. Morrison; Joseph and Mary, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Barnett; Abraham, Carmen Atton; Servant, Borden Countryman; Worshippers, C.G.I.T. Group in uniform, Muriel Baker, Shirley Leal, Louise Morrison, Marion Hall, Colleen Colgan, Margaret Bateman, Anna McGuire, Ruth Woods, Betty McCulloch and Elda Masters.

Americans Only Team in NHL With Pair of 200-Goal Scorers On Roster and Another Close

Conacher and Jackson Have 200 Goals Apiece and Hooley Smith Needs One to Enter Select Circle

IN LOOP 17 YEARS

Smith Scores Goal That Gives Amerks 3-3 Tie With Boston Bruins in New York

By JACK MITCHELL

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Amazing in more ways than one are Manager Mervin (Red) Dutton's New York Americans—the only team in the National Hockey League with a pair of 200-goal scorers on its roster as well as another standing today on the threshold of the select circle.

Less than a dozen performers in the history of the league have compiled lifetime totals of 200 goals or more. Of these only two—big Chuck Conacher and handsome Harvey Jackson—are still in active service, both doing yeoman work for the Amerks.

By all indications, Dutton should have a third in short order. The veteran Reginald J. (Hooley) Smith scored the goal that gave the Amerks a 3-3 tie with Boston Bruins in New York last night and now needs only one more to hit the 200-mark.

It is a coincidence that all three were born in Toronto. Smith, whose 17 years of unbroken service constitutes a record, broke in with the old Ottawa Senators and played with Montreal Maroons and Boston before going to New York. Conacher and Jackson formed with centre Joe Primeau the famous "kid line" of Toronto Leafs.

Veterans Play Important Role

Despite the new accent on youth program of the Americans, all three still have a potent part in Dutton's machine, as 10,590 fans who watched the Amerks battle the third-place Bruins to a stalemate in New York can testify. Converted to a defenceman, big Chuck turned in a sterling game while Jackson aided in one of the New York goals.

It was left to the real veteran of the trio to provide the punch. With Boston ahead 3-2 after Fred Hunt and Murray Armstrong had scored for the Amerks and Dit Clapper, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart for Bruins, Smith fired a late third period tally that sent the game into a scoreless overtime.

The match was the only league fixture last night and New York climbed into a fifth-place tie with their intra-city rivals, the Rangers, by the victory. The Amerks travel to Montreal to play the Canadiens tonight, when the Hooler will get a chance for his 200th goal.

Besides Smith, Clapper of Boston is about the only other player with a chance to enter the 200-goal circle this season. His goal against the Amerks gave the big defenceman a total of 198 in the 14 seasons of league play with the Bruins.

A Spectacular List

Patience and prolific scoring are the keys to the group's entrance and the list of names inside is a spectacular one. Far out in front with his unbelievable total of 323 tallies is ambling Nels Stewart, who quit last season after spending his last hockey years with the Americans.

The great Canadiens duo of Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat is next in line. Morenz had scored 270 league goals before his untimely death while Joliat hit just the same figure before his retirement. Bill Cook of Rangers bagged a few tallies more than Conacher's 221 mark while Jackson has an even 200.

VERDUN OUTLASTS MONTREAL TEAM

Red Devils Score 5-4 Win to Move Within Point of Fifth Place

Montreal, Dec. 28 (CP)—Verdun outlasted Montreal Royals for a 5-4 Quebec senior hockey league overtime victory Friday to move within a point of fifth place in the standings. Royals retained third place despite the loss.

Royals came back with a rush in the closing minutes of the third period to tie the score after Verdun had led through most of the game, but they had no answer for Bob Morin's goal early in the overtime session.

The losers played the overtime minus a coach after Frank Carlin had been removed from the box when he protested too vigorously against a minor penalty to Raymond in the third.

Meloche and Stangle scored for Verdun in the first period, to offset Perowne's counter for Royals. Stangle made it 3-1 early in the second, but Raymond kept Royals in the running with a goal a few minutes later.

Morin increased the Verdun lead to 4-2 at the beginning of the third and they appeared headed toward victory in regular time, only to have Perowne and O'Connor score in rapid succession to send the game into overtime.

CORNWALLFLYERS HANDED DEFEAT

Montreal Concordias Overcome Three-Goal Lead to Win by 4-3

Cornwall, Ont., Dec. 28.—(CP)—Overcoming an early three-goal lead, Montreal Concordia handed Cornwall Flyers, a 4-3 defeat in a hard-fought Quebec Senior Hockey League game here Friday. Concordia were down 3-0 late in the second period.

The improved Mantha-men were soundly outplayed in the opening half of the game, but struggled through to knot the count half-way through the third period. The winning counter came when Cormier broke away from a Cornwall power play.

The win made no changes in the standing, Verdun's win over Royals depriving the civies of an opportunity of emerging from the League cellar.

Carignan, Caudette, Cardinal and Cormier got the Concordia markers, with Shaw, Forsey and Hayes counting for Cornwall.

Flyers opened up a one-goal lead in the first period when Shaw counted early in the frame. Goals by Forsey and Hayes made it 3-0 in the second, and Carignan bagged the first Concordia goal 54 seconds before the period ended.

Gaudette's goal in the fourth minute of the final period started civies on the upgrade, and Cardinal tied the count at 7.56 to set the stage for Cormier's clincher.

Bowlers Doing Bit to Assist Armed Forces

Toronto, Dec. 28—(CP)—They're knocking down a lot of timber in Toronto's 35 bowling houses to raise $10,000 to buy sports equipment for Canada's armed forces.

The project is the pet of the Canadian Bowling Association, whose president, Harry Tobin, is in charge of the voluntary effort by Toronto bowling men to get the Dominion's soldiers, sailors and airmen the equipment they need for recreation. The five-day bowling carnival got under way Thursday night.

The money is being raised from the sale of tickets, at 50 cents each, that entitles the purchaser to roll three games on any one of the city's 640 bowling beds. Before the carnival closes Tuesday night C.B.A. officials expect 20,000 to 25,000 men, women and children to have entered the lists.

Fifteen Major Prizes

There'll be prizes at each of the 35 bowling houses and there are 15 major prizes besides for which everyone is eligible whether they roll 150 or 350 in each of their three ticket games. Fifteen ticket stubs will be drawn Tuesday night and the holders will roll another three games on a handicap basis for the major awards, which range down from a new automobile.

The alley owners all donated their places free of charge. Most of the prizes were donated or obtained at a minimum cost and C.B.A. officials gave their time free to organize and run the tournament. Only the pinboys are being paid among the hundreds of people who got together to make it a success.

The reward for all those who worked so hard to put it over, says Tobin, will be ample when they present the cheque from the proceeds to the Sports Service League of Canada, which will look after the armed forces' needs.

THOMPSONSCORES 4 GOALS TO TIE NIAGARA BRIGHTS

Oshawa Wingman Tallies All the Goals Scored by His Team

HAMILTON WINS

Team Moved Into First Place by Downing Port Colborne 5-3

(By the Canadian Press)

The Ontario Hockey Association's hectic senior "A" series race was clarified at least temporarly today, with Hamilton Dofascos in undisputed possession of first place due to a victory over Port Colborne Sailors and the amazing goal-scoring proclivities of Johnny Thompson, Oshawa wingman.

While Hamilton beat Sailors 5-3, Thompson scored four goals as Oshawa held Niagara Falls Brights to a 4-4 overtime tie in Niagara Falls. If the Brights could have beaten Oshawa they would have kept pace with Hamilton, but with the draw Brights dropped into second place. Another game, London at St. Catharines, was postponed because of London injuries.

Thompson's feat overshadowed a similar scoring record hung up by Hamilton's Clarence Shillington against London earlier this week, because while Shillington's goals were only half of the Hamilton total in that game, Thompson carried the entire Oshawa scoring load against Brights.

Hewitt Gives Ruling

Thompson scored one goal in the first period, two in the second and one in the third against Niagara Falls. Hal Cooper bagged a couple for the Brights, Bobby Walton and Brenchley getting the other two.

London's inability to play St. Catharines may precipitate a squabble of minor proportions. St. Catharines officials claimed a default. W. A. Hewitt, Secretary of the O.H.A., said he considered the game to be a postponement, to be played later.

A fight between Leo Lamoureux and Spike McLeod in the second period of the game at Hamilton was an outbreak of feeling that ran high all night. Hamilton had four goals disallowed for various reasons.

Dofascos now lead the league, with Niagara Falls one point back in second place. St. Catharines and Toronto Marlboros are tied in third, another two points behind, with Oshawa close in fifth, Port Colborne and London trailing, in that order.

BUSHER JACKSON PLAYING SWELL HOCKEY IN N.Y.

Member of Famous 'Kid' Line of Leafs Having One of His Good Years

PAIRED WITH ROOKIES

Scores Seven of Nine Goals Secured Since Teaming Up With Hunt and Thurier

New York, Dec. 28—(CP)—Handsome Harvey Jackson zipped into New York Americans' dressing room and said to no one in particular: "I'm a kid again and I feel like scoring a lotta goals."

That bore out what the Manhattan hockey mob has been talking about for two weeks—the rejuvenation of the Busher. He's flying again like the Jackson who shone as a member of the kid line with Toronto Maple Leafs. Last night he played his best game of the season as the battling Americans held a strong Boston Bruin team to a 3-3 overtime tie in a National League game.

"Right now I don't feel any older than when I was a junior with Toronto Marlboroughs," the big left winger said.

The Jackson rejuvenation started little more than two weeks ago when two 23-year-olds, Fred Hunt and Alfred Thurier, came up from the minors to help the old men of Manhattan. Jackson went on a line with them and since that time has scored seven of his nine points this season.

Last night, with Thurier out with a knee injury, Jackson made a play to hunt for the Americans' first goal. His aggressiveness earned the praise of Manager Red Dutton.

"We wuz robbed," said Dutton. "But that Jackson was a pip."

At 29 and playing his 12th season of major hockey, Jackson believes he has several good years ahead. Then he wants his main ambition to be realized.

"I'd like a good job coaching a hockey club," he said as he headed for the showers. "After about 18 years of batting a puck around, you get to know a little about it."

How many more points was he going to get this season?

"At least 20," the Busher shouted—but that was just as he turned on the water and he might have said "30."

Hooley Smith, Americans, who scored his 199th goal in N.H.L. League play to give the Americans a 3-3 overtime draw with Boston Bruins.

AS NEW YORK AMERICANS HANDED LEAFS 2-1 DEFEAT

Jackson of the New York Americans fails to stop a drive by Schriner (11), of the Toronto Maple Leafs, who has just rifled the puck past Goalie Robertson's ear, at Madison Ssuare Garden, New York City. The puck is visible a short distance behind Robertson's head. The Americans defeated the Leafs 2-1.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with
Ken J. Colling

Being a firm believer in that old proverb—"all work and no play, etc"—we're off an a week's vacation, prior to which we wish all a Happy and Prosperous 1941. During our absence the old column will appear as usual with the various local reportial realm taking care of your interests. From the Ontario Intelligencer staff Claude D. Tice, city editor, George H. Carver and Roy Peacock will step to the plate and bat for us, while Arthur L. Cole, Telegram correspondent and Godfrey C. Scott, Globe and Mail correspondent will also give their personal views on local sports during our absence and to them we say—"Thanks fellows and the best of everything for the New Year."

Hockey will be ushered in this season with a junior O.H.A. fixture on Monday, that is providing the weatherman decides to come to bat with a little freezing weather. There is a splendid ice foundation at the Hume arena and all that is needed to assure ideal hockey facilities is a freeze-up over the weekend. As the junior squad has only been out twice to practice, Coach "Toots" Holway hasn't had an opportunity to observe his candidates in action sufficiently to announce anything that might resemble a line-up. Only four of last year's regulars are available, Ross Clare, Arnold Ethier, Bonnie Gerow and Don Wagar of Tweed. Others who have practiced are Francis McCaw and Ted Clarke in goal; Bill McBride, up from last year's juvenlies and Vince Guay from Foxboro. Forwards available are Mike Powers, Vern Goyer, Whiting (formerly with Toronto), Dick Barrett, Gene Rosebush, Maracle, Hall, and Fitzgibbons, which coupled with a few others should line-up a fairly good junior squad for Belleville in 1941.

Undoubtedly the Juniors will be the classiest and nattiest dressed squad to appear on the Hume arena ice this winter. President Cook and Secretary Yanover purchased brand new royal blue and scarlet uniforms, the scarlet being a yoke across the shoulders and trimmings at the cuffs and bottom of the sweaters. The stockings are ringed royal blue and scarlet. A large crest, bearing the words—"Belleville Juniors" on a white background, adorns the front of the sweaters with large white numbers on the back. Incidentally the Reliance Aircraft uniforms are identical to those of the Shell "Oilers" softball sweaters, gold and scarlet, while the Air Force will sport their customary Air Force blue and scarlet, giving every club making the Hume arena their home ice a touch of scarlet as the trimming color.

Do you remember when heavyweight champion Max Baer knocked out King Levinsky in the second round of their scheduled 15-round bout at Chicago seven years ago tonight. It was the first time Levinsky had been knocked out in his 77-fight career.

What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander—they do say. Out in Peterboro the Canadian General Electric transferred Don Crowe and Jake Jopling to Toronto for war work and upon application for the Peterboro club under the prevailing circumstances, both Crowe and Jopling were declared eligible to play with the Petes this winter. Now along comes word, that the Reliance Aircraft Company has expanded its operations to such an extent, that it has been necessary to transfer several skilled mechanics from their Toronto plant to the local concern. Among those being transferred to Belleville were two hockey players of fair note, 'tis rumoured. These men are engaged in vital war work and should be given the same consideration as active servicemen.

When the Bay of Quinte group of the C.O.S.S.A. hold their January meeting here, be prepared for some big and startling news. It seems several of the district Interscholastic teams have been caught infringing upon the playing rules of the C.O.S.S.A. in the matter of age limits and ineligibilities. The various school principals will be invited to sit in on the January conclave.

Pete Beach, physical director at Albert College, dropped in on us to extent the season's greetings yesterday and we asked him why Belleville wasn't included in the district O.B.A. set-up along with Peterboro, Port Hope, Cobourg, the Air Force, Albert College and Picton. "Simply because I was reliably informed the "Y" did not wish to sponsor a team in that group," was Pete's accepted reply. "However, if the Belleville basketball players of intermediate age desire to play the game, we should gladly welcome them into our Albert College squad. Our team is not exactly a strong one and we would welcome with open arms additional strength from Belleville and thereby floor one good team", added Mr. Beach to which we added a loud 'amen'.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—there are several ranking American college basketball players now connected with the R.C.A.F. at Trenton and the Flyer-cagers will be headed by F. O. Brian Casey, former Western University hoopster? ......That the Trenton at Cobourg Junior O.H.A. fixture scheduled for last night had to be postponed owing to the lack of ice...... The weatherman says it'll be cloudy and colder over the week-end, which may save the day for the opening junior O.H.A. date here..... The experts say that these annual "Bowl games" really are jinxes in the long run, as only eight of the 92 bowl game teams have returned to the grid iron with a season's perfect record in the succeeding year...... The London and Woodstock hockey interests desire to pool their playing resources to ice amalgamated clubs in the junior "B" and intermediate "A" ranks ......When cities the size of Woodstock, Belleville or even a smaller centre, can't sponsor a junior team it's high time something was done to put the old hockey game back on its feet...... And the answer to all such problems is very simple—"get the game back into the public schools"—from where so many stars of the past sprung...... and the same goes for baseball, lacrosse or any game for that matter.

And it's so long until 1941 and a Happy New Year all.

Italian Communique

Rome, Dec. 28 (AP)—The Italian high command claimed today that Italian motorized columns had "destroyed" a British mechanized detachment on the Bardia front with the aid of the air force, capturing crews of machines, while an Italian warship shelled the British forces along the Libyan coast.

The warship bombarded "armored detachments, dispersing enemy nuclei," and silencing tractor-drawn artillery, the daily war bulletin claimed.

(There has been nothing in dispatches from the front to substantiate these Italian claims.)

A clip has been invented to be attached to an automobile steering column to hold a smoker's pipe, even when its contents are burning.

The Various Methods of Treating Psoriasis—Raised Patches of White Scales on Skin

One of the mean skin ailments that embarrasses the patient and causes the skin specialist to likewise feel embarrassed because of its persistence in some cases, is psoriasis. Psoriasis is the white raised patches of pearly scales on the skin which, when scales are removed, leave a red or bleeding surface.

As a student we were taught that the cause was unknown and that a tonic, Fowler's solution (a poison) should be taken internally and a weak ammoniated mercury ointment should be put on the patches at night, washed off in the morning with green soap, and the ointment applied at night again. During the day a dusting powder was applied to the scaly patches. This treatment cleared up many cases but in a large percentage the eruption appeared again, particularly in the cool weather.

During the past few years various vitamins have been tried, First D, then C, and finally B and B1. The reports on the use of vitamins varied greatly, some physicians getting more successes than failures, and others getting more failures than successes.

Following the vitamins came the use of the fat-free diet or diet containing but a very small amount of fat. These patients avoided butter, cream, fat meats, egg yolks and nuts. This method of treatment has, perhaps, given more satisfactory results than any other single method of treatment.

A report on the results obtained by the use of all the above methods is given by Dr. John F. Madden, St. Paul, Minn., in the Journal of the American Medical Association. One hundred and twelve patients were treated from October 1937 to October 1939, with vitamin D, vitamin B 1, vitamin B complex, brewer's yeast, vitamin C, liver extract, diluted hydrochloric acid, ovary substance, sulfanilimide, bismuth salicylate, anterior pituitary extract, or adrenal cortex extract alone or in combination with one another or in combination with a low fat diet.

What are his findings after investigating the results of each treatment? The results showed that each and every method cured some cases but there were more failures by some methods than by others.

LOST SUNRISE

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 13

Bellamy's devotion, his almost violent determination to make Gwen happy, could not be without fruit. She did have hours of happiness, hours when her old spirit flashed up and she laughed and made him laugh in some fortunate moment. These intervals, however, came only on his own terms; when Van was not in a happy mood nothing could change him, and Gwen swiftly learned to recognize the signs of bad weather and to efface herself as much as possible while it lasted.

They made several short honeymoon trips; to Eureka, to Stockton, to Reno, and Gwen enjoyed the long rides through new country and the stays at strange hotels. Van liked comfort and always ordered the best of everything; sometimes he would keep her waiting, weary and dirty, in a hotel lobby for twenty minutes while he inspected two or three different types of accommodation. More than once he descended, with an apologetic proprietor in attendance, to say that nothing in this place would do; they must try elsewhere. If Gwen protested amiably, "Ah, Van, we're so tired! This place seems very nice," she risked his furious displeasure and a sulphurous silence that might last several hours. So she schooled herself to silence.

It mystified her sometimes that a man so genuinely attached to his wife, so passionately eager to please her, to make her presents, could go into periods of cold anger so easily, but then a great many things mystified Gwen now.

"You've picked a man who likes his own way, my dear!" Van would say in satisfaction, when some plan of hers was lightly discarded and one of his own substituted. He was sometimes very good company when he was sure of her complete compliance with his arrangements and would entertain her, as they drove along through mountains and orchards and villages, with stories of interesting cases and notorious criminals.

Then there was always his music to act upon her more analytical moods. He loved music; he was an exceptional performer himself, and he would always give up any other amusement to take her to a concert or even to a lecture about music. A new world opened to Gwen when Van spent contented evening after evening playing Wagner's operas or Chopin's études, intent, absorbed, happy.

But all this did not lessen her sense of not being herself, of having been transported to a life where everything was unfamiliar and unnatural. Between her and her husband there was no basic sympathy of natures; what developed between them of companionship and congeniality was deliberately contributed at Gwen's expense. She knew that he never suspected it, but she was conscious of it from the very first hour of her married life. He conceded nothing; he was unaware of any necessity to concede anything. It was Gwen who made herself like what he liked to eat at the hour he liked it, made herself cultivate the men he felt valuable to his business, resigned herself to giving up other friendships and contacts. If he burst into disappointed exclamations upon seeing how she was dressed for some outing, she changed her dress. If, just before they left the house for some anticipated expedition, he complained of illness, begged her to stay home and "spoil her old man" just for once, with a quiet evening of milk and toast and music, Gwen agreed. There was no peace otherwise.

His attitude toward new friends, and toward her family in particular, was perhaps the most amazing lesson she had to learn as a wife. Van's deepest-rooted characteristic was jealousy. It was not jealousy alone of her charm or a desire that it should not be exerted on other men; it went deeper, and touched every interest and very moment of her life.

When first she proposed that her mother and father come to Sacramento for a visit, his attitude was one of fear. How long would they want to stay. Just for lunch? Not by any possibility for dinner?

Just before they arrived upon the long-discussed Sunday he discovered that Peter was driving them, and exhausted Gwen with one of the most violent exhibitions of temper she had ever seen in him. Why in the name of God, he shouted, hadn't she told him her doubly-qualified brother was coming? She had kept it from him! He had always said that if he had a wife who deceived him he would leave her! But her sister hadn't thought much of keeping poor Link Baker in the dark; it was a family characteristic evidently! The Washburtons were the sort of slack, slovenly family who put truth aside with a lot of other things that did not matter!

Gwen was stunned, sickened by the outburst but that crisis had passed, as she was to learn many other crises would pass. He had indeed disappeared with a vicious slamming of doors, and Gwen prepared herself to face the family with a serene explanation of his absence. But in fifteen minutes he was back, sulkily apologetic, willing, as he said, to meet her overtures of peace halfway. If she was sorry, then he was sorry; they must not fight; they loved each other too much. And at the family party he had been his most charming self.

Her mother had been charmed with Gwen's little apartment. "Well, Gwen, you just have everything!" she declared. "And you look so well, dear!"

"I'm spoiled. We have a room over the garage, you see, and we let this nice little Chinese college boy use it, and he comes in about four and simply does everything. And I have him all day Sunday. So all I get is breakfast and my own lunch."

Peter and Van, meanwhile, had become engrossed in a political discussion, and Gwen's father had been slowly sipping a long drink with great approval. Gwen had begun to feel some of the pride and excitement of first entertaining, and the rest of the day had gone delightfully. But it had been with a sense of relief, an almost guilty sense of relief, that Gwen had seen her family depart at four o'clock for the long drive home.

After they left she had praised him, to his intense delight, for being "so nice to Peter, when you hadn't expected him."

"Well, I don't know why I raised such a row when I heard he was coming. I like your brother, and I know he likes me. But I hate to have things sprung on me."

"But that wasn't sprung on you, Van. From the beginning it was arranged that Peter should drive them up—"

"I know, I know. And it was all fine, and I was proud of you! But you see, Gwen, I'm so crazy about you that I'm jealous of everyone. I hate to see you kiss your father! My sister never kissed my father in her life." Van had caught her in his arms as she passed him, and kissed her fiercely. "Damn it, I love you!" he had said.

At Christmas time he firmly refused to go to Kenthill for the family celebration. Gwen had taken it for granted he would go, and had written her mother to that effect.

"No, my dear, I won't do it. All very nice for you with your family making a fuss about you. 'Darling Gwen' and 'Gwen, precious.' What do I get out of it? Nothing. You write your mother I'm on a case."

Van showed the greatest interest in her Christmas list, and in deciding what each and every member of the clan should receive; Gwen pleased him by asking many questions about his daughter's activities and tastes, and by taking special pains with little June's gift.

She had never seen her stepdaughter. June lived with her mother's mother in a town twenty miles from Kenthill. She had been ill at about the time of her father's second marriage, and the grandmother had written that it seemed unwise to send her to Kenthill under the circumstances. Gwen asked if it would be possible to have her for Christmas.

But Van said no. If New Year's day was clear, he and Gwen could bundle up and drive to Par Hill and see June. They could take her present then.

As the holiday neared and Gwen insisted upon a turkey and everything that went with it, and as she brought home evergreen wreaths and toyon berries, he warmed to the spirit of the hour and asked an associate lawyer and his wife to come and share their Christmas dinner.

The day turned out to be far happier than Gwen had ever dreamed her first Christmas away from home might be. She and Van walked to early service. As one more surprise in this nature so filled with surprises and contradictions, she had discovered that he liked to go to church occasionally. He had given her a dozen thoughtful gifts that morning; not expensive gifts, but all things she needed or was delighted to have, and when her guests arrived it was a happy, eager hostess who received them.

Mrs. Peters was three years older than Gwen, but an even newer bride. She had been feeling homesick and strange for three weeks; her husband told them at once that she had cried with pleasure at being asked to a "real home" for Christmas dinner, and they both thanked Gwen and Van so profusely that they were able to estimate what the invitation had meant to the lonely young couple. And here, with these guests of his own selecting, Van showed neither stiffness nor jealousy, but carried the whole affair easily in his own inimitable way. It was at his suggestion that the Peterses remained with them for an informal supper which they followed by a bridge game that was mostly laughter and apologies.

"The happiest Christmas of my whole life," Van said, when the guests had gone and he and Gwen were getting ready for bed. "And you love me?" he said jealously, coming to her dressing table to sit on the bench beside her, and tightening his arm about her softness and sweetness and youth.

"What do you think?" It was her usual answer, although she had come, as was inevitable, to love him, or rather love certain moods and phases of the strange complexity that was his nature. When he was proud of her, she was proud; when he was, as tonight, completely content, she was content.

And more unexpectedly, she trusted him. His business experience had been with shrewd and crafty rather than simple and honorable men.

Some Europeans trying to snatch sleep in shelters must be envious of the sleeping sickness victim in Pyatigorse, U.S.S.R., who fell asleep in August, 1939, and did not waken till May, 1940. He is still drowsy, and is artificially fed.

Toronto, Dec. 28—(CP)—Prices were unchanged at Chatham, Peterborough and Stratford, bacon-hog markets reporting today.

Liveweight: Chatham $7.35.

Dressedweight: Chatham $9.90, Peterborough $10.40 plus transportation, Stratford $10.40 plus transportation.

PEGGING OF BUTTER PRICE SURPRISES PRODUCE DEALERS

Toronto, Dec. 28.—News of Ottawa's action to control rising butter prices caught Toronto dealers totally unprepared and caused an immediate cessation of trading on the local market. More than one dealer characterized it as "a bolt out of the blue".

Until noon, first-grade Ontario solids traded at 37¼ cents, up slightly from Thursday's price range. The market had been quiet and steady at that price, with offerings still light. Then, when the local trade learned that the price was to be pegged at the Dec 12 level, effective Saturday, buying came to a halt.

The egg market, which had remained fairly steady all week, closed quietly at unchanged prices. Receipts were ample for a moderately good demand. Closing quotations on A-large eggs were slightly higher than at the beginning of the week, due to the lightness of supplies. Dealers attributed the steadiness to a fairly consistent out-of-town demand.

Poultry maintained its firm tone. Supplies were light but sufficient to meet a strong demand. Dealers expressed satisfaction with the movement of poultry in general into retail channels. Prices were all unchanged, with the exception of turkey quotations, which firmed slightly to a range of 29c to 30c on dressed, select "A" birds, all weights.

Montreal Produce

Butter— First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 38c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 37 1-2c.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 28.— (CP)—Prices maintained an even keel on the Toronto Exchange in the trading today with the action moderately active in the Golds and quiet in other groups. Turnover totalled 76,000 shares in the first hour.

Steep Rock was the only active member of the Bast Metal group. Several blocks of 5,000 shares were taped out at a loss of 5 cents to 1.48 but the price recovered to 1.53 in the second hour to stand unchanged.

The gold shares ruled stronger. Gains of 3 to 5 cents were showing around noon for Teck Hughes, O'Brien, Pamour, East Malartic and Preston and several penny golds, including Cochenour Villans, Sladen, Duquesne and Naybob, posted narrow gains.

Changes in the steels and aircrafts were on the down side and other industrial groups held steady. C.P.R. firmed the minimum fraction and a gain of 3¼ to 32 was boarded by Ontario Silknit Pfd.

Polish Ace Dies in Flying Accident; Shot Down 28 German Raiders

London, Dec. 28 (CP)—Sgt. Josef, 28-year-old Czecho-Slovakian described as "one of the first aces of this war," has been killed in a flying accident.

Member of the Polish air force, Sgt. Josef shot down 28 German raiders, 17 of them in England. His surname cannot be disclosed until after the war because his family still lives in Czecho-Slovakia.

When the Nazis occupied his country, Sgt. Josef was one of the Czecho-Slovakian airmen who machine-gunned advancing German columns until their ammunition was spent. Then he flew to Poland and joined the Polish air force.

He was in the thick of the air fighting in Poland, eventually escaping in damaged machines with other Polish fliers to Rumania, where he was interned.

Later, he escaped, went to Syria and from there to France where he joined the Polish squadron fighting with the French air force. He came to England after the capitulation of France.

Sgt. Josef was awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal shortly before his death. He won the Croix De Guerre in France and in England was decorated by Gen. Sikorski with the Virtute Militari, highest award for gallantry in Poland.

His squadron commander, an English squadron leader, described his as a splendid pilot.

"I would regard him as one of the first aces of this war," he said. "He was kind, unassuming and gentle on the ground, but in battle he was a deadly killer."

SUPPLY SHIP FIRED

The Royal Air Force, too, was active, subjecting the "invasion" ports in German-occupied France to a heavy bombardment during the night, an official announcement said.

British flyers also hammered at Bordeaux, Lorient and Le Havre, in the occupied territory of France, bombing docks, airdromes and submarine bases, the announcement declared.

The raids were described by informed circles as part of Britain's "offensive-defensive" campaign against the threat of German invasion.

Haugesund and the shipping bases around Stavanger are regarded as among those which could serve the Germans well in event of a move to invade Britain. Such an invasion, it is believed here, would some simultaneously from ports between the Bay of Biscay and the lower Scandinavian peninsula.

The fleet air arm has made several attacks recently on German-occupied Norwegian ports.

GOOD CHOICE

the pea soup is freshly made. The consomme is canned and you wait 10 minutes for its heating. Uncertainty of gas pressure and a limited number of emergency oil burners lead to making as few commitments as possible in this section.

Before war's crimp in offerings, at least 10 or 12 fish dishes were available, including Dover sole, Scotch salmon and the inevitable broiled herring.

And if you chose, you could have fish followed by entree and then by roast. Today, under Ministry of Food orders, you can be served only one such dish, whether fish or meat.

The abbreviated entree list of these days is notable for its avoidance of scarce and rationed foods and its use of left-overs. The Vienna steak is a pat of ground meat from yesterday's roast. It is cooked like a hamburger steak but is more like a croquette in the eating.

Sausages are not rationed. They are of limited meat content, but savory and fat and you get two broiled ones with your potatoes. Egg dishes have disappeared from the entree list.

Time was when you had several roasts to choose. Now you have no choice, but nearly always you find one roast offered.

The vegetable assortment has shrunk from six or eight to two. One is always potatoes and the other some kind of greens like cabbage, brussels sprouts or spinach.

The list of hot desserts has been cut in half, but one can choose one of the standard cold dishes, like wine gelatine or fruit trifle but there will be no cream to pour over it now.

The present list of savories is the standard one. It will probably endure while cheese, canned herring roe and canned sardines are available.

And it is always possible to call for cheese and biscuits or to have an apple or pear. The once-available French, Netherlands, Swiss and Italian cheeses are gone. So are the tropical fruits.

The offerings of only one hot beverage is another indication of the uncertain gas situation. Sometimes we have to take coffee with milk in it whether we want it black or not because that is the way it has been prepared. Usually a glass of milk is available, however.

a "violent explosion" on a supply ship. Warehouses and jetties were also hit.

Wave after wave of German bombers attacked the capital last night in a raid which, while it lasted, equalled in intensity any in the past. For four hours the raiders flew over, dropping incendiaries and then heavy explosives in district after district. It was the first raid on London in three nights.

A government statement acknowledged that a number of people were killed and that many dwellings were destroyed or damaged. Numerous fires were started, but they were dealt with quickly and efficiently, the communique said.

A building housing a Canadian firm was shaken during the attack and its windows shattered. There were no casualties.

(There were indications this was the building housing The Canadian Press and The Associated Press, at 20 Tudor Street. This building had suffered minor damage previously.)

A daylight survey of damage showed one church which seats 1,000 persons was gutted and a hotel in an adjacent thoroughfare was destroyed by a heavy bomb. Many houses nearby were wrecked.

Eleven persons were rescued alive from an underground shelter beneath a block of houses. A number were believed to have been killed.

A woman in an adjoining shelter said:—

"We could hear them screaming for help but couldn't do anything. Men were trying to hack their way through the wall dividing the shelters but wardens came and told them to stop because the entire shelter might collapse."

Patrol To Prevent Looting.

Reports of rescue and civilian defence workers told of the widespread nature of the raid in the London area.

In one district, eight horses were led out of blazing stables by men and women of the neighborhood.

Home Guards patrolled the streets to prevent looting in an area where shop windows and fronts had been blown out.

One rescue worker told of digging out a girl, 14, whose dead mother was beside her.

"She kept calling to us where she was," the worker said. "We finally uncovered her with her face lying near the fire, which was still burning in the grate. She kept saying: 'Mum is just behind me.' Her mother must have been killed instantly."

PRISONERS STATE

ces said, or try the desperate expedient of escaping into the desert, where they would be at the mercy of the Royal Air Force.

Had it not been for Mussolini's order, one captured officer was quoted as saying, Bardia would have been abandoned soon after the fall of Salum, 12 days ago.

Italians Used Mules and Horses

The strategy, however, appears to be for the Bardia garrison to resist long enough so that their comrades at Tobruk can complete the strengthening of defences there.

An Associated Press reporter with the British forces outside Bardia reported, meanwhile, that examination of captured Italian equipment disclosed the amount to be greater than originally believed, but that much of it was of poor quality.

Mules and horses were used to pull some of the Italian mobile equipment and most of their infantry marched. The British forces were wholly motorized.

Italian trucks mainly were good, it was reported, but many guns of the Libyan troops were as much as 50 years old and Britons looking at some of the field pieces exclaimed: "Must have been inherited from Garibaldi."

ONLY TWO SEAMEN

Whether the ship was sunk by a war weapon or by accident was a mystery, as Standard Oil officials received no further information other than the two terse messages

Made a Nice Target.

The first of these termed the tanker a "casualty", which led one company spokesman to assume it had been torpedoed or shelled.

"She would have made a nice target," he said.

The captain's message, as received through London, did not give the point of origin, but Standard officials placed the scene of the sinking as near Freetown, British West African port, where the vessel was due the day it sank.

The Charles Pratt was owned by the Panama Transport Company, a Standard Oil subsidiary, and was one of seventeen New Jersey Standard Oil vessels transferred to Panamanian registry before President Roosevelt proclaimed combat zones in the war.

The vessel left Aruba, Netherlands island near Venezuela, Dec. 5 with 5,000,000 gallons of oil consigned to pany atthe British-Mexican Pet the British-Mexican Petroleum Company at Freetown.

It was the eighth sinking of a vessel flying the flag of Panama since the war began.

END OF BRITAIN'S

Could Lend Material

He declared the dollar sign should be eliminated from the question of aid to Britain, and a mutually-satisfactory settlement negotiated after the war.

An estimated $3,000,000,000 worth of war material might be lent or leased to the British under the plan, authoritatively military sources said.

The British government, through an office set up for the purpose, now is systematically liquidating British-owned stocks and bonds taken over by the British Treasury from British subjects, it was explained. The amount of Britain's receipts from that source can not be known until liquidation has been completed.

The securities were reported being liquidated gradually, with the British officials and their brokers making every effort to take advantage of the market and secure every possible dollar for their war effort.

DOUBLE SHOOTING

Dr. M. R. Elliott of Wolfville, coroner for the district, said no inquest would be necessary. Police said the evidence indicated double suicide, with MacDonald pulling the trigger.

Set-up Arranged Some Time

From the condition of the bodies Dr. Elliott believed the strange set-up in the barn had been arranged some time Thursday night. The motive for the suicide was not disclosed by police, but they indicated it had been prepared carefully.

The youth, from the appearance of the scene, had placed the .303 calibre rifle against the woman's back, bracing it to stand the explosion. The cord tied to the trigger allowed him to discharge the rifle while standing close to the woman and facing her.

Before the single shot was fired, MacDonald had cleaned out his pockets and laid his pipe, watch and other effects on the floor. In a separate stack were the woman's jewelry glasses and wrist watch.

The barn was about 1 1-2 miles from Mrs. Steel's home, where she lived with her husband and family. Young MacDonald's home is about a quarter mile from the spot.

The bodies were found by a passer-by who noticed the barn door hanging open and went to close it.

SUBS, BOMBERS

same sort of attack that smashed Hitler's invasion force in September.

In focusing his air attack on small factory towns, Hitler has adopted the tactics the R.A.F. has been using for months—striking directly at industrial targets.

Subs a Real Menace

Although the night bomber is a definite threat to Britain's war effort, the submarine is regarded as a still greater threat to the nation's economic stability. Britain's greatest need at the moment appears to be shipping, merchant ships to transport the food and raw materials on which this country is dependent, naval vessels to sweep the underwater menace from the world's trade routes which converge on this small island.

For some weeks, shipping losses have been on an upward curve largely because of the plentitude of bases available for German U-boats, the refusal of Eire to lease Britain naval and air bases, and, above all, the shortage of naval escort vessels. There is another factor—the Germans after the collapse of France got their hands on the secret detection devices used by British naval vessels and handed to the French while they were still an ally. It is more than likely the Germans are using the device on their own submarines to pick up the trail of British convoys on the seas.

Less Shipping Than in '14

Britain had far less shipping at the outbreak of this war than she had in 1914 and for that reason it is almost impossible to contrast 1940 with 1917 when in April, German U-boats sank 881,000 tons.

The press of Britain has praised the United States for turning over 50 destroyers but it has emphasized more are needed.

Commenting on this point, the London Evening News said: "More than all, we need escort vessels and still more escort vessels.

"We are building them ourselves as fast as we can. And if America can add still further to our fleet of destroyers she will strike what may be the decisive blow in the battle of the sea."

WAR EQUIPMENT,

"Many prisoners were captured and mortars, machine guns, rifles and other material, horses and mules have fallen into our hands."

Earlier the Greeks had announced "local" successes and the capture of 200 prisoners and considerable war equipment.

A brief high command communique did not specify where the new Greek gains were won, but reports from the front indicated sharp fighting in the vicinity of Klisura, mountain gateway leading to Tepeleni and thence to Valona.

The communique listed "many automatic weapons and mortars" among the equipment reported captured.

The Ministry of Home Security announced Italian warplanes had bombed a town in the Epirus sector of northwestern Greece yesterday, but said there were "no casualties or damage."

There's nothing German about Air Raid Warden John German except his name, and he has been awarded the George Medal for brave conduct during an air raid.

Trenton and District

'FLU' EPIDEMIC STRIKES TRENTON

Number of Stores Forced to Hire Extra Help to Cope With Situation

Trenton, Dec. 28—An epidemic of influenza struck this district over the holiday leaving many of the shop workers, clerks and business men confined to bed. The 'flu' caught its victims when they were tired from the excessive work before Christmas. A number of stores were forced to hire extra clerks today to aid them during the busy time as theinregular clerks were unable to work.

Will Assume Duties

Rev. F. C. McCullagh, of Brantford, who was recently gazetted as a Flight Lieutenant will assume the duties of a chaplain at the Trenton Airport. His appointment was announced last week, after he had been on call to the Royal Canadian Air Force for some months. Rev. McCullagh was the minister at the Alexandra Presbyterian Church in Brantford since 1930. He is a veteran of the first Great War in which he served as gunner with the 2nd Field Battery, Ottawa.

Trenton Market

A drizzling rain and heavy fog was held responsible for the light market in Trenton today. Turkeys were again featured and many were offered for sale at prices practically the same as they were before Christmas, selling at 32 cents to 35 cents per pound. Large birds were offered at $3.50 and $4.00.

Large numbers of geese and chickens were also offered for sale. Geese were offered at 28 to 30 cents per pound while chickens were offered at 25 cents per pound.

Eggs again showed a slight decline to 30 cents a dozen for grade "A" selects and 28 cents for mediums. Pullets eggs were offered at 25 cents per dozen.

Vegetables remained stationary with carrots and turnips selling for 30 cents per peck while parsnips and onions were sold at 40 cents. Potatoes were offered at $1.00 per 75 pound bag.

Large quantities of cooking apples were offered on the market selling at various prices ranging from 75 cents per bushel to $1.00 per bushel.

"Y" ACTIVITIES

The second week of the special holiday program at the "Y" will commence on Monday with the junior classes beginning a championship tournament of checkers, ping-pong, crokinole, horseshoes, etc. In the afternoon there will be a hockey tournament on the harbor ice.

Tuesday morning will see a continuation of the junior championship series, while at 10.30 the ladies will take over for a gym and swim period. Prep and junior gym and swim classes will commence at 2.00 p.m. while the day will be topped off by a supper provided by the losers of the junior Christmas card selling contest.

On Wednesday, New Year's Day, the "Y" will be open from 9.30 until 12.30 noon.

Thursday will be Girl's Day, with contests in ping-pong, checkers, crokinole, bowling, etc., while the regular ladies' and girls' gym and swim classes will be held.

Friday morning the intermediate boys' basketball team will practice from 9.30 to 12.00 noon and in the afternoon a special interest industrial visit for the boys is scheduled. In the evening a supper and reception for new members brought in by the "Y" membership campaign will be staged."

On Saturday, Jan. 4, the Prep and junior gym swim and club periods will wind up the week's activities.

DEBRIS FLUSHED FROM CITY STREETS

Members of the Belleville Fire Department flushed the debris off Front Street with hose late last night. Dirt and debris had collected on the streets of the downtown area to such an extent that it was necessary to flush the main streets free of such debris. Today Front Street took on a cleaner appearance after having been flushed off.

VALUABLE COLLIE ESCAPES FROM TRAILER

Thomas Thorne, city dog pound custodian, found a valuable black and white collie dog wandering at large in Belleville on Thursday. Yesterday enquiries from Sarnia revealed that the canine had escaped from a trailer owned by M. A. Jackson of that city. Communication with Mr. Jackson at Sarnia resulted in Mr. Thorne shipping the dog to its owner early today. Another black collie pup was placed in the city dog pound today and is awaiting ownership.

MOTORISTS ADVISED TO DRIVE SLOWLY

Motorcycle patrolmen throughout the local district reported heavy fogs have been hanging over the highways of Eastern Ontario for the past few days and the department issued warnings to motorists today to drive with caution during the early hours of the morning, when the highways become rather greasy and slippery as the result of the settling fog-mist. It was also announced by Inspector Frank Gardner of the Ontario Provincial Police headquarters here today, that additional motor patrols would be on duty on New Year's Eve in an effort to minimize the conventional accident toll of that season.

Manhattan in Wartime

Neutral New York, neutral only in name . . . Its people have taken sides long ago, arguing, wrangling, reading the newspapers, listening to the short-wave into all hours of the night. . . . You can read the war on the faces of the people in this great throbbing metropolis of United States . . . Crowds around news-stands scanning headlines . . . The perpetual group of avid readers around the publicly displayed teletype in Rockefeller Plaza in front of the building housing the offices of The Canadian Press . . .

Taxi drivers late at night huddled around a radio in one of their cabs blaring news items that echo down the silent block . . . A group around the windows of the office that once housed the French Line, where a large map shows partitioned France and a pleading sign asks for aid for refugees . . . The room in Radio City where humble chorines and stage celebrities sit side by side sewing for Allied relief . . . The little newsie at the corner hawking the morning papers and shouting during the big days of the air siege, "All about the war today: They've knocked down another 150." . . .

Beyond the Great White Way along the river front the gaunt gray Normandie standing like a lonely ghost . . . The little sailors' hang-outs closing up one after another . . . Bistros and bars once gay with men of all nations now silent . . . Bundles for Britain, blood donors, the Maple Leaf Fund, the thousand and one agencies working for European aid, the Red Cross . . .

The French and German you hear everywhere along Fifth Avenue and in the other shopping streets . . . Manhattan, refuge of thousands of exiles coming in an unending stream, by clipper, by liners travelling roundabout routes, by freighters taking as long to cross the Atlantic as the old paddle-boats . . . The soap-box spouters of the left along the Columbus Cycle claiming they know all the answers . . . The street corner spouters in Yorkville claiming they have the truth from Germany . . . And the crowds in the news reel theatres, packing in for war shots, cheering King George and Queen Elizabeth and the boys in Camp Borden. . . .

Scientist Explains Unpredictable Effects of Alcohol on Drinkers

(By Howard W Blakeslee)
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Some mysterious action of man's tissues is the reason why one person can "hold his liquor like a gentleman" while the same number of drinks put another under the table.

This, the latest answer of science to the age-old puzzle of how a person acquires tolerance to liquor, was reported to a symposium on alcohol at the American Association for the advancement of Science, which began a week's meeting here today.

The alcohol conference is sponsored by the Research Committee on problems of alcohol, which announced that it holds no brief for or against prohibition, but is trying to ascertain scientific facts.

The puzzle of heavy drinking and capacity for large amounts of alcohol was discussed by Dr. Harry Newman, Stanford University School of Medicine.

He told of experiments verifying the finding that in habitual heavy drinkers the alcohol is absorbed more rapidly into the blood than in moderate or rare drinkers. Once it was believed that the heavy drinker stayed sober because his blood absorbed liquor more slowly.

It was also believed that the alcohol went to the brain of the habitual drinker more slowly than in the novice, and that this explained how a person could carry a heavy 'load' without becoming intoxicated. But Dr. Newman outlined animal experiments which he said show that the brains of habitual drinkers get the alcohol faster than those who became drunken more quickly.

A third recent scientific explanation of staying sober, he said, has been a belief that the body of a person used to liquor metabolized, that is burned, the alcohol more quickly. But Dr. Newman described experiments showing that this also is not true. By process of elimination, he concluded, this leaves tolerance of alcohol as something which the tissues themselves acquire. But what that mechanism may be is not known.

Finding a Blooming Dandelion, Alderman Thinks Spring is Just Around the Corner

As there will always be an England, so there will always be a Springtime. At least so thinks Clarence Clapp, Front Street service station owner who brought undeniable proof to the offices of The Ontario Intelligencer Friday.

Strolling through Victoria Park early Friday afternoon, Clarence was amazed to see the yellow blob of a dandelion poking its nose through the cold ground. He plucked it and brought it into the office. Substantiating his proof, Mr. Clapp declared stoutly that a maple tree was bursting into bud in his garden.

Under the snow, Clarence maintains, the grass is sprouting, and all present signs, at least point to one of the earliest Springs in years.

Open Negotiations For Renewal of Fisheries Agreement

Moscow, Dec. 28—(AP)—Diplomatic sources said today that Japan has opened negotiations with Soviet Russia for renewal of a fisheries agreement which expires Dec. 31.

Yoshitsugu Tatekawa, Japanese ambassador in Moscow, has seen Premier Molotoff three times in connection with this question, these sources said.

The agreement, which grants the Japanese the right to fish in some Soviet waters in the far east, was renewed last year for 1940 just before it expired.

The Russian Trade Union organ Trud published a review of the domestic situation in Japan in connection with the opening of parliament in Tokyo, and asserted that "discontent is growing."

"The economic position of Japan is becoming more unstable," the newspaper said, because of war conditions, while "discord is becoming more acute among the main groups of the ruling camp" over foreign policy.

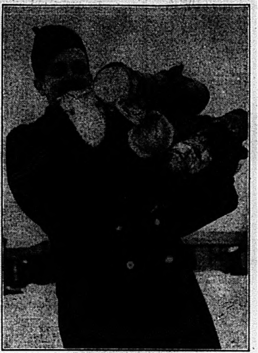
Seeing's Believing



It actually happened at Camp Borden, a corporal carrying a huge armful of wood into barracks. But perhaps he's just showing his fatigue party how to do it.

Aside From War—

Recalling Some Notable Events of 1940 Apart From Action in the Battle Zones

WAR cornered the headlines day after day throughout the year, giving Canada its One Big Story for 1940. At the same time the year witnessed epochal events apart from actual warfare—though in some cases connected with the war's progress—that in other times would have stood out in a list of big stories. For instance:

+ + + + +

The year opened with Turkey rocking from its depths, with the estimate on Jan. 3 of 46,200 killed, 100,000 injured and 500,000 homeless from earthquake and flood. . . . Much nearer home were the mine explosions at Bartley, W.Va., Jan. 10, with 92 miners losing their lives. . . . On Feb. 11 Canada's Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir, died from injuries suffered in a fall at Rideau Hall. . . .

+ + + + +

Canada's general election March 26 resulted in the return of the Mackenzie King Liberal government with 178 supporters of the total 245. . . . The Social Credit government of William Aberhart was returned in the Alberta general election March 21 with 36 of 57 seats. . . .

+ + + + +

On April 20 Great Lakes seamen ended a six-day strike which tied up lakes shipping in the busiest season in years. . . . On April 23 200 negroes were burned to death in a dance hall fire in Mississippi. . . .

+ + + + +

On June 10 Canada's Defence Minister, Norman Rogers, and three R.C.A.F. men were killed in a plane crash near Newtonville, Ont. . . . Eleven U.S. Army fliers were killed when bombers collided over Queensborough, N.Y., June 17. . . . Twenty-five lost their lives Sept. 1 in an airliner accident at Lovettsville, Pa., and 19 in a crash at Rio de Janeiro Nov. 8. . . .

+ + + + +

+ + + + +

Forty-three were killed in a train wreck at Akron, Ohio, July 31 and there were 24 fatalities in the derailment of a train in Somerset, England, Nov. 4. . . . Vessels collided in Conception Bay, Nfld., Nov. 10, and 28 were lost. . . . Five vessels were lost together with 67 lives in Great Lakes storms Nov. 11. . . .

+ + + + +

F. D. Roosevelt was elected President of the United States Nov. 5, giving that country a third-term President for the first time in history and climaxing a campaign in which the candidates of both major parties were pledged to continued aid to Britain.

No Attempt Made To Single Out Military Targets

Ancient Guildhall Damaged and St. Paul's Cathedral Endangered by Flames

(By Hugh Wagnon)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Historic Central London suffered today from the fiercest fire-bomb attack since the start of the air siege last September in a raid the government called a "deliberate attempt" to burn the heart of the British capital.

The ancient Guildhall was damaged and St. Paul's Cathedral was endangered by spreading flames.

The building housing the offices of The Canadian Press and The Associated Press was destroyed by fire started by an incendiary bombs. No one was injured.

The fierce raid caused more fires in the heart of London than any previous assault.

The threat was the greatest to the ancient city since it was rebuilt after being laid waste in the great fire of the 17th Century and only heroic work by firemen and volunteers—and a fortuitous rain—prevented even heavier damage. A number of firemen were killed and injured.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

The thermometer scale! Why has the Fahrenheit scale of temperature persisted in popularity when practically all scientists use the Centigrade scale? This is believed to be due to two causes. First, the Fahrenheit degree is smaller than the centigrade degree, and the smaller degree is very useful as in many cases when reading to tenth is unnecessary. The temperature of the air, for instance, is adequately represented by a reading to the nearest whole degree. Second, Fahrenheit was the first to devise a good, usable scale. At first he too had a large degree, but he kept on sub-dividing it until he arrived at the present usable size.

TWO FREIGHTERS SEND OUT SOS

City of Bedford Collides With Unidentified Ship and Bodnant Reports She Needs Aid

New York, Dec. 30 (AP). — Two British freighters flashed SOS calls from the submarine zone of the North Atlantic today—one reporting a collision 600 miles off Scotland, the other radioing that she was "taking water fast".

The 6,402-ton City of Bedford, out of New York for England, radioed at 4:49 a.m. EDT that she had collided with an unidentified ship.

The 5,342-ton Bodnant sent this message picked up by MacKay Radio at 9:53 a.m. EDT:

"Position 58.40 North (Latitude), 21.38 West (Longitude) taking water fast in number 1 hole. Needs immediate assistance."

The Bodnant did not give the cause of her trouble. Her position was close to that of the City of Bedford, indicating they were in the same convoy.

The Bodnant, a Liverpool freighter built in 1919, traded between England and Africa before the war.

The City of Bedford is listed in Lloyds register of shipping as a 430-foot vessel built in 1924 and owned by Ellerman Lines, Ltd., with the home port of Liverpool.

Met a Friendly Vessel.

The British freighter Nalgora, 6,-579 tons, radioed at 9:53 a.m. that she was being trailed by a mysterious shop 200 miles east of the Azores.

MacKay Radio said she sent this message:

"Being traced by a mysterious ship in 37.22 North (Latitude), 21.50 West (Longitude).

The Glasgow freighter was in the India-England trade before the war.

Ninety minutes later, the Nalgora cancelled her "raider" alarm without explanation, indicating that she had met a friendly vessel.

CUSHION FOR SHRAPNEL

Hungarian Minister of Agriculture Leaves Gov't. in Protest of Movement

Budapest, Dec. 30 (AP).—Hungary began mobilizing additional troops today in a movement reported designed to lead to total mobilization by next January 15.

The action was interpreted in some quarters as a sign of one more move in German preparations for war in the Balkans where Hungary's army might help strengthen the German flank against Soviet Russia while the Nazis struck south toward Greece and Turkey.

Mobilization cards reached thousands of Hungarian men of military age last night and this morning.

This coincided with reports of renewed Russian military activities on highways running from Lwow (Lemburg), in Russian Poland, to the Slovak frontier.

The flow of German troops and material continued at top capacity of the Hungarian and Rumanian railroads.

Estimates of the Nazi troops moving across Hungary into Rumania mounted from 300,000 originally to 600,000 and Hungary's Minister of Agriculture, Michael Teleki, resigned because of a reported difference with his government over the mass movement of German soldiery through his nation.

Nervous Bulgarians, knowing well that their country constitutes a potential avenue to Greece, to Turkey or to the Russian-dominated Black Sea, wondered where and how far the steady surge of Nazi troops would spread.

Naples Bombed

Rome, Dec. 30.—(CP)—The Italian naval port of Naples was bombed early today by the Royal Air Force which also dropped leaflets, presumably containing last week's speech by Prime Minister Churchill in which he urged Italians to rid themselves of Mussolini.

The Italian High Command claimed seven persons were killed during the raids and that several were injured.

The raiding planes were said to have attacked Naples, where important steel and airplane manufacturing plants are located, in two waves.

Hundreds of Fires Result In Small Area of London From War's Worst Fire Raid

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 30 (CP).—Its dome blackened but defiant, St. Paul's stands today as the hub of a scene of devastation probably as great as any ever caused by flames ignited by the hot hate that is bred by war.

Even as I write this story in substitute quarters—the building housing The Canadian Press was burned out — smoke from one of Sir Christopher Wren's most famous churches, St. Bride's, is curling past the window. Only part of the walls of the church are standing. They are blackened and twisted grotesquely.

Without doubt it was the worst fire raid of the war. The German air force apparently selected a comparatively small area embracing the city of London and plastered it with thousands of incendiary bombs. Fires broke out all over the area. Bombs came down in such numbers that it was impossible to stamp out hundreds of them before they caught hold.

PLANE CRASHES INTO A HOUSE, TWO AIRMEN DIE

Fliers at Collins Bay School on Last Day of Training When Accident Happens

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 30 (CP) — Leading Aircraftman Henry Levy, 21, of Toronto and Leading Aircraftman George Douglas Lowe, 22, of Waterloo, were killed today when their R.C.A.F. training plane crashed into a house at Westbrook, eight miles west of Kingston.

The fliers were on the last day of their training, being members of the first class of pilots at the Collins Bay School to receive their wings three weeks ago.

They were to have been posted for duty tomorrow.

Officials investigated the accident but could not explain the cause of the crash.

The strewn wreckage indicated the plane must have landed at a terrific speed in a field of trees and shrubs on the south side of

SURFACE RAIDER DRIVEN AWAY AND SUPPLY SHIP SUNK

Cruiser Berwick Suffered Slight Damage in Naval Skirmish Christmas Day

London, Dec. 30—(CP)—A "powerful enemy surface raider"—possibly a German pocket battleship—was driven away from a north Atlantic convoy Christmas morning by the British cruiser Berwick, which hit the raider squarely once and also sank a Nazi vessel believed to have been the raider's supply ship.

The Admiralty said the 10,000-ton Berwick, recently transferred from the Mediterranean service, suffered slight damage and five casualties in the fight and, although the raider escaped, the 8,204-ton steamer Baden was sunk after being set afire by her crew.

It was the second time in a month that the Berwick had suffered scars of battle. She was hit twice and lost seven men in a battle off Sardinia Nov. 27 against Italian warships.

Despite her new wounds, the Ad-

Text of Fireside Chat Made by Roosevelt

Washington, Dec. 30 (AP).—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's "fireside chat" Sunday night.

This is not a fireside chat on war. It is a talk on national security; because the nub of the whole purpose of your President is to keep you now, and your children later, and your grandchildren much later, out of a last-ditch war for the preservation of American independence and all of the things that American independence means to you and to me and to ours.

Tonight, in the presence of a world crisis, my mind goes back eight years ago to a night in the midst of a domestic crisis. It was a time when the wheels of American industry were grinding to a full stop, when the whole banking system of our country had ceased to function.

I will remember that while I sat in my study in the White House, preparing to talk with the people of the United States, I had before my eyes the picture of all those Americans with whom I was talking. I saw the workmen in the mills, the mines, the factories; the girl behind the counter; the small shopkeeper; the farmer doing his spring plowing; the widows and the old men wondering about their life's savings.

New Crisis Faced.

I tried to convey to the great mass of American people what the banking crisis meant to them in their daily lives.

Tonight I want to do the same thing, with the same people, in this new crisis which faces America.

We met the issue of 1933 with courage and realism. We face this new crisis—this new threat to the security of our nation — with the same courage and realism.

Never before since Jamestown and Plymouth Rock has our American civilization been in such danger as now.

For, on Sept. 27, 1940, by an agreement signed in Berlin, three powerful nations, two in Europe and one in Asia, joined themselves together in the threat that if the United States interfered with or blocked the expansion program of these three nations—a program aimed at world control—they would unite in ultimate action against the United States.

The Nazi masters of Germany have made it clear that they intend not only to dominate all life and thought in their own country, but also to enslave the whole of Europe, and then to use the resources of Europe to dominate the rest of the world.

Quotes Nazis' Leader.

Three weeks ago their leader stated: "There are two worlds that stand opposed to each other." Then in defiant reply to his opponents, he said this: "Others are correct when they say: With this world we cannot ever reconcile ourselves . . . I can beat any other power in the world." So said the leader of the Nazis.

In other words, the Axis not merely admits, but proclaims that there can be no ultimate peace between their philosophy of government.

In view of the nature of this undeniable threat, it can be asserted, properly and categorically, that the United States has no right or reason to encourage talk of peace until the day shall come when there is a clear intention on the part of

New Cattle Strain for Rodeos May Make Life Tough for Cowboys

Calgary, Dec. 30 (CP).—Cowboys beware—a new strain of cattle promises to make things tougher in the rodeos two or three years from now.

Development of this strain is still in the experimental stage but last summer the first crop of calves showed themselves more than willing to put up a fight. They charged more than one roper and did a fair job of butting some around. And they kicked hard even when thrown.

Take it from J. W. Dillon, arena manager of the Calgary Stampede, only an expert can make anything like the time formerly made with Shorthorns and Herefords.

These calves were born last spring on the ranches of Fred Burton of Claresholm and Harry Streeter of Nanton and were only used once or twice at small stampedes in southern Alberta. But Dillon and other Calgary officials say they put up a better fight than any they had seen previously, so they must be good.

The first crop will spend next summer on the range, but in 1942 they will be brought here for the boys' steer riding event. If their showing is satisfactory they may be used for the senior steer riding and decorating the following summer.

The calves are the result of the latest experiment by Calgary officials to obtain a satisfactory stampede animal. Brahamas, the type used in most United States rodeos, were all right but proved too expensive when the herd had to be replenished every two or three years.

Their fathers, however, are purebred Brahama bulls, obtained by Burton and Streeter two years ago from the famous King Ranch of Texas. Their mothers are a cross between purebred Highlands, and some range cows which a few generations back had quite a bit of Mexican Longhorn in them. The Mexican-Highlands cross has been used here for several years.

The Calgary officials still consider the new strain in the experimental stage—but there's no denying that they have high hopes of a strain as good and maybe better than the Brahamas.

GREEKS SHELLING "LAST STAND" DEFENCE LINES

Italians Stormed in Tepeleni-Klisura Sector From Newly-Captured Heights

VALONA BOMBED

Intense Cold and Deep Snow Restricting Operations in North Sector

Athens, Dec. 30 —(AP)— Greek troops are shelling Italian "last stand" defence lines in the Tepeleni-Klisura sector of the Albanian battlefront today from newly-captured heights commanding roads north to the ports of Valona and Durazzo.

A government spokesman said the Greeks "have again attacked fortified positions which the Italians held and defended stubbornly," and finally hurled the Fascists back.

"We have been able to push our lines forward appreciably," he declared in a review of operations up to late last night.

BRITISH BOMBERS RAID VALONA

Pilots View Bombs Exploding Among Transports and Troops Moving on Road

Athens, Dec. 30—(AP) — Royal Air Force warplanes operating with the Greek forces subjected Valona to its 21st and 22nd raids of the war yesterday, the R.A.F. announced today.

"Pilots saw bombs exploding among transports and troops moving on a road near a jetty where a building was hit and a large fire started," a communique said in describing the first of the two attacks.

In the second, the R.A.F. said "Various hits were registered on a road leading to the northern jetty, buildings were hit and a number of bombs were observed to burst in a motor transport, park and military stores."

In addition, the communique said two cargo vessels, a merchant ship and a cruiser were machine-gunned.

One British plane was lost in the first raid. The two crew members descended by parachute.

Commuting to Work in London Now Usually a Trip of Adventure

This chapter brings to a conclusion the story of life in Britain under wartime conditions, written by Milo M. Thompson, chief of the London Bureau of The Associated Press, who is in the United States on his first visit since 1938.

By MILO M. THOMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 30 (AP).—If you are a good rummy player, putting your faith in combinations of cards which give you several chances, not merely one, of success, you will enjoy the gamble and adventure of going to work with me in London.

I am a commuter and I offer a typical experience because it will show what most Londoners face.

I have slept through the storm of the night, lulled by the grind-grind-grind of German planes overhead and wakened only half-a-dozen times by spasms of gunfire close enough to make the house tremble. A nearby bomb or two has made my dreams nightmarish and I am not quite rested when I leave the house an hour earlier than in peacetime days.

We shall not choose the pre-war route under the chestnut trees and beside the typical English gardens to the suburban railroad station. If the night bombs have interfered with that line, which is part of the underground system, we shall have had to walk for nothing and lost time. That is like putting all our faith in the turning up of one card only.

No Trains Moving.

Instead we wait at our own corner for a bus bound in the direction of the city. Half-a-mile down the road our route parallels part of the underground system and we watch the railroad closely. If there are signs of trains moving, we shall hop off presently near a station and take one.

But that doesn't happen today and we continue on to Hammersmith, a junction which offers three changes. There is the district line, which runs shallowly underground following the general line of the Thames River. There is the Picadilly Line wihch, after several surface stops goes deep underground far out of reach of the bombs. There is also a terminal on the metropolitan line which, however, is a rather out of the way route for me and to be avoided if anything better offers.

We pile off the bus and dash into the station to have a look at the blackboard. Each station has one now, to chalk up the temporary

Expresses Faith in Ability of Britain To Defeat Axis

Idea of "Business-as-Usual" Would Have To Be Abandoned in United States He Tells Radio Audience

Washington, Dec. 30 — (CP) — Against the "unholy alliance" of Germany, Italy and Japan, President Roosevelt has proclaimed the active, non-belligerent hostility of the United States.

In a 40-minute broadcast speech heard around the world last night, the President expressed his faith in the ability of Great Britain to defeat the Axis powers and then gravely told his countrymen that production of war materials for Britain and for home defense must be multiplied.

In an emergency which he declared to be "as serious as war itself," the United States must turn its hands to defence works. The American people were told that the idea of "business as usual" would have to be abandoned.

"I believe that the Axis powers are not going to win this war," he said. "I base that belief on the latest and best information."

At another point, he paid high tribute to Britain and the Empire in these words:

Fire Damages Anhalter R. R. Station In German Capital

Berlin, Dec. 30 AP).—A fire which officials said was quenched quickly damaged the luggage room and ticket offices of Berlin's Anhalter railroad station early this morning.

Persons living in the vicinity said they heard an explosion prior to the blaze and pointed to smashed shop windows opposite the station.

Authorized sources said petroleum supplies for railway lamps in a room above the luggage room had been set afire, presumably by a short circuit.

Five persons were killed and many injured today when a freight train crashed into the rear of a special train carrying troops near Rathenow. The accident was attributed to faulty operation of a block signal.

PRICES PEGGED

Ottawa, Dec. 30 —(CP)— Chairman H. B. McKinnon of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board said last night he had denied a request from the Montreal Produce Merchants' Association for a meeting in Ottawa today.

Mr. McKinnon received a telegram from the association Saturday, asking that a meeting be held. The wire did not state what would be discussed at such a conference, Mr. McKinnon said, but presumably butter prices would be the chief topic.

Only Two Fatalities Reported Over Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario had one of its lightest death tolls in months during the week-end, when the two fatalities reported were as a result of an automobile accident and self-inflicted gunshot wounds.

Eight-months-old William Camm, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Camm of suburban Ottawa, died in a Kingston hospital from injuries received near Kingston when an automobile driven by his father crashed into the rear of a truck driven by Solly Rabanovitch of Montreal

Near Farkhill, Gordon B. Mathers, 34, died as a result of gunshot wounds said by police to be self-inflicted. No inquest will be held.

EARLY REGISTRATION FOR NIGHT SCHOOL CLASSES ADVISED

The advisability of early registration in the second term of the regular night school classes to be opened shortly at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School is being stressed by those in charge of the technical and business courses. Instruction will be given in motor mechanics, woodworking, machine shop, welding and drafting, while the business houses include typewriting, shorthand, business practices and bookkeeping.

The machine shop and welding classes will begin on January 6th. at 7 p.m. and the other classes on January 7th at 7:30 p.m. Persons interested may register for these classes at rooms 117 and 118 at the Belleville Collegiate between 10-12 a.m. and 2-5 p.m., on December 30, 31 and on January 2 and 3.

MOTORISTS LINE UP TO GET 1941 MARKERS

Long lines of motorists stood in line at the counters of Mr. E. Vermilyea, local issuer of motor licences, all day Caturday and the crush continued unabated on Monday as would-be purchasers strove to beat the deadline of December 31, which is the last day for 1940 markers. Approximately one half of the usual number of markers sold in this district had been disposed of by ten o'clock Monday morning.

It had been expected locally that there would be an extension of the deadline for 1941 markers beyond the 31st of December, but this morning still no word to this effect had come through. At the present rate of sale, however, Mr. Vermilyea stated that most local motorists would be supplied with their markers by Tuesday evening.

GREAT DANE DOG GOES BERSERK AND JUMPS THRU WINDOW

Believed to have gone mad while suffering from distemper, a large black Great Dane dog, owned by a resident living on Yeomans St., plunged through a window to freedom and to a late hour today was still missing.

The animal went berserk over the week-end and drove its owner out of the kitchen. It was placed in a shed at the rear of the house, but only remained there for a few minutes when it crashed through the window. The dog ran away and a sympathetic search of the immediate vicinity revealed no trace.

According to the officers, a mild epidemic of distemper accompanied by convulsions is evident among dogs of the city. A fine animal owned by an East Hill resident went wild on Sunday night and had to be shot by police. Dog owners are warned to keep an attentive eye on their pets.

LOWER RIVER AGAIN FREE OF ICE FIELDS

In one of the earliest break-ups in years, the ice in the lower stretches of the Moira River moved downstream to the open waters of the bay over the week-end. With the exception of occasional patches that are adhering to its banks, the river is entirely free from ice as far as the Upper City Bridge.

Steady rains of the past week are said to be responsible for the ice movement.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM I. COLE

William I. Cole died at his residence in Corbyville after an illness of one day's duration with a heart attack, on Sunday morning, Dec. 29th., and to a host of friends and acquaintances in Belleville and throughout this district his sudden passing has brought sincere regret.

The late William Irwin Cole was born 66 years ago near Napanee, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Cole. For thirty-five years he was a Federal (Excise) Officer at the distillery in Corbyville and was a highly valued and popular member of the service. For the last few years he lived retired.

Mr. Cole was prominent in fraternal organizations being a member of The Belleville Lodge No. 123, A. F. & A. M.; Past First Principal of Quinte Friendship Chapter No. 227, R. A. M., and Scribe of this Chapter for the past ten years; he held the rank of Very Excellent Companion in the Grand Chapter of Canada; member of King Baldwin Preceptory No. 6, Knights Templars and of Rameses Shrine, A. A. O. M. S., Toronto. In the Orange Order he was a member of L. O. L. No. 2320, Cannifton; Loyal True Blues of Belleville, and the Black Knights Preceptory, Foxboro. In the True Blue Society he was a Past Grand Master of the Dominion of Canada.

Mr. Cole was interested in sports and was a member of the Anglers Association. In the work of the Victorian Order of Nurses he was much interested and gave valuable service being for a number of years the President of the Belleville Branch.

In religion he was a member of the United Church at Cannifton and in the regard of all who knew him he held a high place. He was a good citizen and will be much missed.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Bertha Canniff; three daughters, Mrs. Harry Walker, Mrs. Roy Pound and Mrs. Roy Clazie, all of Thurlow Township; one brother, Mr. Edward Cole, Faulkner, Manitoba.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE CHARLES F. SCOTT

The funeral of Charles F. Scott, late residence, 78 Victoria Avenue, took place from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 28th. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne, Rector of the Church of St. Thomas.

LATE WILLIAM J. RADFORD
(Sidney Township)

Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29th., the funeral of William James Radford took place from his residence in the 3rd. concession of Sidney Township to Centenary United Church where service was conducted by the Rev. W. E. Mercer, the pastor.

Interment was made in Stirling cemetery; the bearers were Messrs. David Thrasher, Fred Aikins, James Ray, Harold Garrison, William Waterhouse and Harry Roblin.

LATE JAY FAULKNER

Saturday afternoon, Dec. 28th, the funeral of Jay Faulkner took place from the Grant Funeral Home, North Front Street. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. C. T. Olmstead, pastor of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Clarence Faulkner, Harry Faulkner, William Faulkner, Clayton Hamilton, Vernon Hamilton and Percy Badgley.

LATE MRS. L. SMITH

The funeral of Mrs. Addie L. Smith, late residence Point Anne, and widow of Alfred G. Smith, took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29th. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Shannonville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. E. Farnsworth.

The bearers were Messrs. George MacDonald, John McConnell, Delbert McConnell, William Juby, Ralph Payne and George Winters.

SAMSON WICKENS,
(Ivanhoe)

The funeral of Samson Wickens, a life-long resident of Huntingdon Township, who died in Toronto on Friday, Dec. 27th, took place from the residence of Mr. Archie Wickens at Ivanhoe on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29th. The service in the home and at the graveside in White Lake Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. S. Delve, pastor of Beulah United Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Frank Green, John Wickens, Archie Wickens, Joseph Wickens, Samuel Wickens and George Wickens.

LATE JAMES BIRTWISTLE

The funeral of James Birtwistle, late residence 2 Wickett Street, took place from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street, on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 28. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Joseph Semain, Charles Davis, George Hammett, Fred Ashmore, James Shepherd and D. Doler.

HARRY A. HEAGLE,
(Kingston)

To many friends in Belleville, the death of Harry A. Heagle which occurred in the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, on Friday evening, Dec. 27th, has brought sincere regret. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Heagle, who was 54 years of age, resided in Belleville for some years, being associated with the National System of Baking. A few years ago he moved to Kingston where he was in the service of the same company. In Kingston and in Belleville he was well known and highly esteemed. He was an enthusiastic curler and bowler and was President of the Kingston Curling Club during the year 1938 and 1939; he was also a popular member of the Kiwanis Club in that city. Fraternally he was a prominent member of the Masonic Order.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Patience Kemp; one son, Maxwell Heagle, at home and one daughter, Mrs. R. Card, Napanee. His mother, also several brothers and sisters survive him.

The funeral took place from the Masonic Temple in Kingston this Monday afternoon.

ROBERT GREEN
(Trenton)

Robert Green, the two-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Green, Trenton, died in the Belleville General Hospital, on Sunday, December 29th. The child was a patient in the hospital for two days.

WILLIAM BRENNAN
(Tyendinaga Township)

After an illness of one week's duration William Brennan, who was home on a visit from Detroit, Mich., died at the residence of his brother, Mr. Stephen Brennan, in the 6th. concession of Tyendinaga Township, early this Monday morning, December 30th.

The late Mr. Brennan, who was in his 52nd year, was born in Tyendinaga Township, being a son of James Brennan and his wife, Jane Mackay. His father died some years ago. For the past twenty-five years he resided in Detroit, Mich. Prior to going to live in Detroit he resided in Tyendinaga Township and was a member of St. Charles' Church at Read. In the community he was well esteemed. He never married.

Surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Jane Brennan, Tyendinaga Township; four sisters, Mrs. P. Irwin, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. H. Burbank, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. J. Bennett, Roslin; Mrs. P. O'Ray, Read; four brothers, Mr. James F. Brennan, Read; Mr. Patrick Brennan, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. Richard Brennan, Detroit, Mich., and Mr. Stephen Brennan, Tyendinaga Township.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

WILLIAM F. LAUGHLIN

William Ferguson Laughlin, residence, 280 Bridge Street East, Belleville, died in the Kingston General Hospital after a brief illness on Sunday evening, Dec. 29.

The late Mr. Laughlin was born at Marlbank, Ontario, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Laughlin. The greater part of his life was passed in Marlbank and for the past twelve years he resided in Belleville. In religion he was a member of Bridge Street United Church and highly esteemed.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Jennie Fluke; one daughter, Miss Elizabeth Laughlin, teacher in the Prince of Wales School, residing at home; one son, Stephen Laughlin, at home; three sisters, Mrs. R. A. Allen, Toronto; Mrs. Annie Keller, Whitby, and Mrs. Albert Baxter, Point Anne.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street until Wednesday morning, then at the family residence, Bridge Street East. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

New Year's Eve Celebrants Warned Against Driving Under Influence of Liquor

Stern warning to potential New Year's Eve motoring celebrants that "there will be no warnings" was issued today by Provincial Police Inspector Frank Gardner.

"There will be no toleration or acceptances of excuses by the police," he added. "It will be a plain case of arrest and subsequent punishment. Drivers will be held responsible and any caught under the influence of liquor will receive the full consequences."

Patrol cars manned by Provincial Police officers will ride the highways from an early hour until the morning of January 1st. Every member of the Belleville detachment has been called out and will be on duty at various sections of the district.

Instructions received from Attorney General Gordon Conant state that the practice of warning will be discontinued for this period. All traffic laws must be strictly enforced and violators aggressively prosecuted. Courts will be urged to impose substantial penalties.

"There will be no favors shown," Inspector Gardner said, "and all those who break the law will be detained. We are not taking any chances and we hope the general public will co-operate with us to the the fullest extent, and help us to minimize the number of accidents and prevent loss of life."

PLANE CRASHES

Highway No. 2 and then crashed into a farm house.

The fuselage of the plane, torn and twisted, landed on one side of the wide stone house and rested against a hen coop. A long wing with one wheel attached was on the opposite side of the house, the impact cutting the plane in two. The motor was catapulted about 100 yards near the stables at the back of the house.

Woman is Eyewitness

Mrs. Mary MacMorine, occupant of the house, was apparently the only eyewitness. She said she heard the plane making a peculiar noise and then it seemed to disappear.

A few seconds later she heard a terrific crash and saw the plane hurtling toward the house. She rushed to the wreckage and passing motorists followed her. One flier was dead when Mrs. MacMorine reached the plane and the other died a few minutes later.

18,000 Engagements Reported by Japs In 1940 Campaign

Peiping, Dec. 30 (AP).—The Japanese command reported today that its forces in North China fought 18,000 engagements against 3,500,000 Chinese guerrillas and regulars in 1940, inflicted 600,000 casualties and took 27,000 prisoners.

The area involved covers all of China north of the Yellow River to the Manchoukuo and Outer Mongolia frontiers.

GIVEN 7-DAY REMAND FOR FAILURE TO GET REGISTRATION CARD

The calm assurance of George Wright when he informed Magistrate E. J. Butler in police court today that he had not complied with the National Registration Act, brought him a remand for seven days, while his case is being taken up with Ottawa.

Wright, who has served one month in jail after being found guilty of a similar offence in November, denied Chief of Police Alex. Kidd's statement that he had been warned several times to secure a registration card. "I was not told to get one" he asserted. "I was merely informed to get out of town".

Asked if he had secured his registration, Wright coolly informed the bench that he had not. Magistrate Butler remanded him for a week pending further investigation.

Another man charged with theft was also remanded for seven days.

There were only two cases on the docket in one of the quietest police court sessions of the year. Not even the usual Saturday night celebrants were in evidence. No arrests were made over the week-end.

Motorists Given Final Warning Before N.Y.'s Eve

Toronto, Dec. 30—A final warning to motorists planning to use their cars New Year's Eve, was issued last night by Hon. G. D. Conant., Attorney-General.

"All traffic laws must be strictly enforced and violators will be aggressively prosecuted," said Mr. Conant. "The courts will be urged to impose substantial penalties."

The Provincial Traffic Advisory Committee has undertaken an extensive campaign to warn motorists by radio and in theatre announcements. Car owners are urged to leave their automobiles at home and either hire a driver, a taxi or use the street cars.

"All branches of the Provincial Police will be on twenty-four-hour duty and everything possible will be done to prevent a recurrence of the alarming accident toll over the Christmas holiday," said Mr. Conant.

the aggressor nations to abandon all thought of dominating or conquering the world.

At this moment, the forces of the States that are leagued against all peoples who live in freedom are being held away from our shores. The Germans and Italians are being blocked on the other side of the Atlantic by the British and by the Greeks, and by thousands of soldiers and sailors who were able to escape from subjugated countries. The Japanese are being engaged in Asia by the Chinese in another great defense.

In the Pacific is our fleet.

Oceans Vital to U.S.

Some of our people like to believe that wars in Europe and in Asia are of no concern to us. But it is a matter of most vital concern to us that European and Asiatic war-makers should not gain control of the oceans which lead to this hemisphere.

One hundred and seventeen years ago the Monroe Doctrine was conceived by our Government as a measure of defense in the face of a threat against this hemisphere by an alliance in Continental Europe. Thereafter, we stood on guard in the Atlantic, with the British as neighbors. There was no treaty. There was no "unwritten agreement."

Yet, there was the feeling, proven correct by history, that we as neighbors could settle any disputes in peaceful fashion. The fact is that during the whole of this time the Western Hemisphere has remained free from aggression from Europe or from Asia.

Does any one seriously believe that we need to fear attack while a free Britain remains our most powerful naval neighbor in the Atlantic? Does any one seriously believe, on the other hand, that we could rest easy if the Axis powers were our neighbor there?

Would Live at Gun Point

If Great Britain goes down, the Axis powers will control the continents of Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, and the high seas — and they will be in a position to bring enormous military and naval resources against this hemisphere. It is no exaggeration to say that all of us in the Americas would be living at the point of a gun—a gun loaded with explosive bullets, economic as well as military.

We should enter a new and terrible era in which the whole world, our hemisphere included, would be run by threats of brute force. To survive in such a world, we would have to convert ourselves permanently into a militaristic power on the basis of war economy.

Some of us like to believe that even if Great Britain fails we are still safe, because of the broad expanse of the Atlantic and of the Pacific.

But the width of these oceans is not what it was in the days of clipper ships. At one point between Africa and Brazil the distance is less than from Washington to Denver—five hours for the latest type of bomber. And at the north of the Pacific Ocean America and Asia almost touch each other.

Even today we have planes which could fly from the British Isles to New England and back without refueling. And the range of the modern bomber is ever being increased.

Asked Not To Tell Facts

During the past week many people in all parts of the nation have told me what they wanted me to say tonight. Almost all of them expressed a courageous desire to hear the plain truth about the gravity of the situation. One telegram however, expressed the attitude of the small minority who want to see no evil and hear no evil, even though they know in their hearts that evil exists. That telegram begged me not to tell again of the ease with which our American cities could be bombed by any hostile power which had gained bases in this Western Hemisphere. The gist of that telegram was: "Please, Mr. President, don't frighten us by telling us the facts".

Frankly and definitely there is danger ahead — danger against which we must prepare. But we well know that we cannot escape danger, or the fear of it, by crawling into bed and pulling the covers over our heads.

Some nations of Europe were bound by solemn non-intervention pacts with Germany. Other nations were assured by Germany that they need never fear invasion. Non-intervention pact or not, the fact remains that they were attacked, overrun and thrown into the modern form of slavery at an hour's notice or even without any notice at all. As an exiled leader of one of these nations said to me the other day—"the notice was a minus quality. It was given to my Government two hours after German troops had poured into my country in a hundred places".

Justified by "Pious Frauds"

The fate of these nations tells us what it means to live at the point of a Nazi gun.

The Nazis have justified such actions by various pious frauds. One of these frauds is the claim that they are occupying a nation for the purpose of "restoring order." Another is that they are occupying or controlling a nation on the excuse that they are "protecting it" against the aggression of somebody else.

For example, Germany has said that she was occupying Belgium to save the Belgians from the British. Would she hesitate to say to any South American country: "We are occupying you to protect you from aggression by the United States?"

Belgium today is being used as an invasion base against Britain, now fighting for its life. Any South American country, in Nazi hands, would always constitute a jumping-off place for German attack on any one of the three republics of this hemisphere.

Analyze for yourself the future of the two other places even nearer to Germany if the Nazis won. Could Ireland hold out? Would Irish freedom be permitted as an amazing exception in an unfree world? Or the Islands of the Azores, which still fly the flag of Portugal after five centuries? We think of Hawaii as an outpost of defense in the Pacific. Yet, the Azores are closer to our shores in the Atlantic than Hawaii is on the other side.

Sees Wishful Thinking

There are those who say that the Axis powers would never have any desire to attack the Western Hemisphere. This is the same dangerous form of wishful thinking which has destroyed the powers of resistance of so many conquered peoples. The plain facts are that the Nazis have proclaimed, time and again, that all other races are their inferiors, and therfore subject to their orders. And most important of all, the vast resources and wealth of this hemisphere constitute the most tempting loot in all the world.

Let us no longer blind ourselves to the undeniable fact that the evil forces which have crushed and undermined and corrupted so many others are already within our own gates. Your Government knows much about them and every day is ferreting them out.

Their secret emissaries are active in our own and neighboring countries. They seek to stir up suspicion and dissension to cause internal tries. They seek to stir up suspicion against labor, and vice versa. They try to reawaken long-slumbering racial and religious enmities which should have no place in this country. They are active in every group that promotes intolerance. They exploit for their own ends our national abhorrence of war. These trouble-breeders have but one purpose. It is to divide our people into hostile groups and to destroy our unity and shatter our will to defend ourselves.

There are also American citizens, many of them in high places, who, unwittingly in most cases, are aiding and abetting the work of these agents. I do not charge these Americans with being foreign agents. But I do charge them with doing exactly the kind of work that the dictators want done in the United States.

Can't Appease Nazis.

These people not only believe that we can save our own skins by shutting our eyes to the fate of other nations. Some of them go much further than that. They say that we can and should become the friends and even the partners of the Axis powers. Some of them even suggest that we should imitate the methods of the dictatorships. Americans never can and never will do that.

The experience of the past two years has proved beyond doubt that no nation can appease the Nazis. No man can tame a tiger into a kitten by stroking it. There can be no appeasement with ruthlessness. There can be no reasoning with an incendiary bomb. We know now that a nation can have peace with the Nazis only at the price of total surrender.

Even the people of Italy have been forced to become accomplices of the Nazis; but at this moment they do not know how soon they will be embraced to death by their allies.

The American appeasers ignore the warning to be found in the fate of Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Norway, Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark, and France. They tell you that the Axis powers are going to win any way; that all this bloodshed in the world could be saved, and that the United States might just as well throw its influence into the scale of a dictated peace, and get the best out of it that we can.

They call it a "negotiated peace." Nonsense! Is it a negotiated peace if a gang of outlaws surrounds your community and on threat of extermination makes you pay the tribute to save your own skins?

Would Be Only Armistice.

Such a dictated peace would be no peace at all. It would be only another armistice, leading to the most gigantic armament race and the most devastating trade wars in history. And in these contests the Americas would offer the only real resistance to the Axis powers.

With all their vaunted efficiency and parade of pious purpose in this war, there are still in their background the concentration camp and the servants of God in chains.

The history of recent years proves that shootings and chains and concentration camps are not simply the transient tools, but the very altars of modern dictatorship. They may talk of a "new order" in the world, but what they have in mind is but a revival of the oldest and the worst tyranny. In that there is no liberty, no religion, no hope.

The proposed "new order" is the very opposite of a United States of Europe or a United States of Asia. It is not a Government based upon the consent of the governed. It is not a union of ordinary, self-respecting men and women to protect themselves and their freedom and their dignity from oppression. It is an unholy alliance of power and pelf to dominate and enslave the human race.

The British people are conducting an active war against this unholy alliance. Our own future security is greatly dependent on the outcome of that fight. Our ability to "keep out of war" is going to be affected by that outcome.

Thinking in terms of today and tomorrow, I made the direct statement to the American people that there is far less chance of the United States getting into the war if we do all we can now to support the nations defending themselves against attack by the Axis than if we acquiesce in their defeat, submit tamely to an Axis victory, and wait our turn to be the object of attack in another war later on.

If we are to be completely honest with ourselves, we must admit there is risk in any course we may take. But I deeply believe that the great majority of our people agree that the course that I advocate involves the least risk now and the greatest hope for world peace in the future.

Fight Fast-Spreading
GRIPPE - COLDS
THIS PROVEN WAY!

During the present epidemic don't let a cough, sneeze, ache or shiver go unchecked. At the very first sign take Buckley's Cinnamated Capsules and Buckley's Mixture. This double-treatment acts fast. Buckley's Mixture eases the cough almost instantly and helps correct over-acidity. Buckley's Cinnamated Capsules give you the benefit of not ONE but THREE pain-relieving, cold-dispelling ingredients. One ingredient brings quick relief from aches, pains and cold misery. Another stimulates and refreshes. The third induces a beneficial relaxation of the nerves. A fourth ingredient—Oil of Cinnamon has long been a standby in Europe for fighting grippe and similar maladies. Be Prepared. Get these two dependable Buckley remedies NOW. If this treatment does not bring prompt relief call your doctor.

The people of Europe who are defending themselves do not ask us to do their fighting. They ask us for the implements of war, the planes, the tanks, the guns, the freighters which will enable them to fight for their liberty and our security. Emphatically, we must get these weapons to them in sufficient volume and quickly enough, so we and our children will be saved the agany and suffering of war which others have had to endure.

Let not defeatists tell us that it is too late. It will never be earlier. Tomorrow will be later than today.

Certain facts are self-evident.

Fight Will Live Forever

In a military sense Great Britain and the British Empire are today the spearhead of resistance to world conquest. They are putting up a fight which will live forever in the story of human gallantry.

There is no demand for sending an American expeditionary force outside our own borders. There is no intention by any member of your Government to send such a force. You can, therefore, nail any talk about sending armies to Europe as deliberate untruth.

Our national policy is not directed toward war. Its sole purpose is to keep war away from our country and our people.

Democracy's fight against world conquest is being greatly aided, and must be more greatly aided, by the rearmament of the United States and by sending every ounce and every ton of munitions and supplies that we can possibly spare to help the defenders who are in the front lines. It is no more unneutral for us to do that than it is for Sweden, Russia and other nations near Germany to send steel and ore and oil and other war materials into Germany every day.

We are planning our own defense with the utmost urgency; and in its vast scale we must integrate the war needs of Britain and the other free nations resisting aggression.

This is not a matter of sentiment or of controversial personal opinion. It is a matter of realistic military policy, based on the advice of our military experts who are in close touch with existing warfare. These military and naval experts and the members of the Congress and the Administration have a single-minded purpose—the defense of the United States.

Sacrifice Required

This nation is making a great effort to produce everything that is necessary in this emergency —and with all possible speed. This great effort requires great sacrifice.

I would ask no one to defend a democracy which in turn would not defend every one in the nation against wants and privation. The strength of this nation shall not be diluted by the failure of the Government to protect the economic well-being of all citizens.

If our capacity to produce is limited by machines, it must even be remembered that these machines are operated by the skill and the stamina of the workers. As the Government is determined to protect the rights of workers, so the nation has a right to expect that the men who man the machines will discharge their full responsibilities to the urgent needs of defense.

The worker possesses the same human dignity and is entitled to the same security of position as the engineer or manager or owner. For the workers provide the human power that turns out the destroyers, the airplanes and the tanks.

The nation expects our defense industries to continue operation without interruption by strikes or lockouts. It expects and insists that management and workers will reconcile their differences by voluntary or legal means, to continue to produce the supplies that are so sorely needed.

And on the economic side of our great defense program we are, as you know, bending every effort to maintain stability of prices and with that the stability of the cost of living.

Nine days ago I announced the setting up of a more effective organization to direct our gigantic efforts to increase the production of munitions. The appropriation of vast sums of money and a well-co-ordinated executive direction of our defense efforts are not in themselves enough. Guns, planes and ships have to be built in the factories and arsenals of America. They have to be produced by workers and managers and engineers, with the aid of machines, which in turn have to be built by hundreds of thousands of workers throughout the land.

Lands Co-operation

In this great work there has been splendid co-operation between the Government and industry and labor.

American industrial genius, unmatched throughout the world in the solution of production problems has been called upon to bring its resources and talents into action. Manufacturers of watches, of farm implements, linotypes, cash registers, automobiles, sewing machines, lawn mowers and locomotives are now making fuses, bomb packing crates, telescope mounts, shells, pistols and tanks.

But all our present efforts are not enough. We must have more ships, more guns, more planes—more of everything. This can only be accomplished if we discard the notion of "business as usual." This job cannot be done merely by superimposing on the existing productive facilities the added requirements for defense.

Our defense efforts must not be blocked by those who fear the future consequences of surplus plant capacity. The possible consequences of failure of our defense efforts now are much more to be feared.

After the present needs of our defense are past, a proper handling of the country's peacetime needs will require all of the new productive capacity—if not more.

No pessimistic policy about the future of America shall delay the immediate expansion of those industries essential to defense.

I want to make it clear that it is the purpose of the nation to build now with all possible speed every machine and arsenal and factory that we need to manufacture our defense material. We have the men—the skill—the wealth—and above all, the will.

Defense Put First

I am confident that if and when production of consumer or luxury goods in certain industries requires the use of machines and raw materials essential for defense purposes, then such production must yield to our primary and compelling purpose.

I appeal to the owners of plants—to the managers—to the workers—to our own Government employees—to put every ounce of effort into producing these munitions swiftly and without stint. And with this appeal I give you the pledge that all of us who are officers of your Government will devote ourselves to the same wholehearted extent to the great task which lies ahead.

As plants and ships and guns and shells are produced, your Government, with its defense experts, can then determine how best to use them to defend this hemisphere. The decision as to how much shall be sent abroad and how much shall remain at home must be made on the basis of our over-all military necessities.

We must be the great arsenal of democracy. For us this is an emergency as serious as war itself. We must apply ourselves to our task with the same resolution, the same sense of urgency, the same spirit of patriotism and sacrifice as we would show were we at war.

We have furnished the British great material support and we will furnish far more in the future.

There will be no "bottlenecks" in our determination to aid Great Britain. No dictator, no combination of dictators, will weaken that determination by threats of how they will construe that determination.

Allied Strength Growing

The British have received invaluable military support from the heroic Greek Army and from the forces of all the Governments in exile. Their strength is growing. It is the strength of men and women who value their freedom more highly than they value their lives.

I believe that the Axis powers are not going to win this war. I base that belief on the latest and best information.

We have no excuse for defeatism. We have every good reason for hope—hope for peace, hope for the defense of our civilization and for the building of a better civilization in the future.

I have the profound conviction that the American people are now determined to put forth a mightier effort than they have ever yet made to increase our production of all the implements of defense, to meet the threat to our democratic faith.

As President of the United States I call for that national effort. I call for it in the name of this nation which we love and honor and which we are privileged and proud to service. I call upon our people with absolute confidence that our common cause will greatly succeed.

SAFE DRIVING

Special measures have been planned for patrol of highways on New Year's Eve in order to guarantee as far as possible safe driving. The patrol will be increased in number.

Especially at New Year's it is felt that the driving public should exercise the greatest caution. Those persons who drive or are likely to be driving cars on that time should observe the advice not to imbibe liquor as liquor in the system of a driver and gasoline in the tank of a car create a very dangerous combination when the two are "mixed."

Drivers are also warned to travel with more than ordinary care as there will probably be heavy driving on that occasion and if there is carelessness in operation not only one car but others may suffer with their occupants for the lack of sensible driving by one person. Passengers must be careful not to say or do anything to distract the driver's attention from his duty or to handicap the operator in any way.

By this time everyone knows fairly well the pattern which motor accidents take for they generally fall into certain classifications as to cause and amount of damage and injury. Accident are very rarely due to mechanical defect and most often to some human failure to take the necessary step or to avoid doing something which is dangerous in the extreme. Upon the driver rests a great responsibility.

Weather conditions are one of the factors which have to be taken into account by the driver who is operating a vehicle, highly dangerous unless it is always under control, a fact which he should realize. If there is ice, or a thin layer of snow, driving is very dangerous, if there is rain, driving is also dangerous.

HIGHWAY PATROL

Shortly in this district a cream-colored motorcar will appear on the highways bearing the words, on the side, "Ontario Provincial Police." This car and the motorcycle patrol will constantly keep before the public the fact that there is a steady patrol and that sane driving is the essence of safety, The new car with its color will be easily distinguished and motorists halted on the highway will understand any signal given them from this car.

THE WEATHER UNPREDICTABLE

This winter which set in early with unexpected severity of cold and heavy snowfall has again given a demonstration of the vagaries of the temperature and season. Where there was expectation that the snow which fell in November and December would lie on the ground until the melting days of spring, there is now the almost total absence of snow. The mild spell which reached actually warm temperatures at Christmas time and was followed by rain at the end of the week has wrought a great change.

About eight or nine years ago there was such a winter with a heavy rainfall during the holidays. Such a change is not entirely unknown as midwinter mildness sometimes results in what has been called midwinter flooding. Whatever its drawbacks the mild spell has removed a large amount of snow which might or might not have proven a factor in the spring breakup.

Today instead of a solid mass of ice in the river, the ice is melted and worn away so that water flows freely down the open stream.

This is the mark of the Christmas season of 1940. Instead of snow and cold there has been a season of warmth and thaw, rain and almost balmy weather. It is one of the unpredictables.

Who will say even now what will be the weather of the following months of winter?

NEW NETHERLANDS WARSHIPS TO FIGHT HUNS

The Netherlands is in the ranks of the Allies to down their enemy Adolf Hitler with his companion Benito Mussolini.

Not only are Dutchmen fighting in the forces against the unspeakable Hun but Dutch war vessels are to take their toll of the Teutons. When the war descended upon the Netherlands, the several unfinished warships of the Hollanders were brought across to Britain whence they are being completed and will join the British navy shortly, it is disclosed in a British cable.

Holland has ever given a heroic account of herself. She knew centuries ago what it was to fight a war of freedom against tyranny and to win it. Today she has the same determination and her heroic people who have had to endure all the vileness of a Hun occupation are in spirit with Britain while Hollanders abroad give their services to the island kingdom as Allies.

Holland with her men and their warships will be in the victorious ranks of the Allies that will be in at the crushing of the world's most detested tyranny, Nazism.

HOW TYRANTS FAIL

The Jewish people have a dominant hope and confidence that Britain will win the war and have examples in their history to show how tyrants have failed. Rabbi Charles Bender at Montreal drew a parallel between the steadfastness of Judaea that led to its epic victory over the tyrant Antiochus who was obsessed by a mad desire to conquer neighboring territories and subjugate their independence, and the British determination to destroy Nazism. He declared that Antiochus succeeded in his career of conquest until he pitted himself against tiny Judaea which destroyed Antiochus and his hordes.

The rabbi pointed out the coincidence that Judaea of old and Britain of today have the same emblem, a lion. He said that the spirit of Judas Maccabeus who overthrew tyranny was the driving power of Prime Minister Churchill who leads not only Britain but every land that longs for liberty and spiritual freedom.

"How vividly we see this ancient scene re-enacted today in the horrible conflict which Hitler has foisted on the world. He has trampled countries under foot and destroyed their spiritual independence, but one tiny island, saturated with the ideals of human freedom and human values has thwarted him," the rabbi declared.

The crime of Hitler is the crime of other dictators of history. Millions died that Caesar might be great and the clay-footed Caesars of Germany and Italy are repeating that maxim. Democracy on the other hand does not seek the greatness of any individual at the expense of others, its sacrifices in this war are not for the aggrandizement of a man but for the betterment of mankind.

The course of history is marked by the triumph of right over the tyrant. Other history as well as that of the Jewish people points to the triumphs of justice over the cruel taskmaster, who would make mankind his slaves. World history too has revealed this again and again, that the clay-footed usurpers pass away because they are the enemies of the body, brain and spirit of humanity.

German Troops Growing 'Stale' Thru Inactivity

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, Dec. 30 — Armies, like football teams, grow "stale" through long inaction or overtraining. Lowered morale, declining spirit, waning fighting ardor are military equivalents.

At a time when Britain is braced in expectation of a gigantic German attack, the question of Nazi army morale appears to be bothering Hitler and his generals. They have had 1,000,000 men or more dawdling for more than six months on army-of-occupation duties in Norway, Denmark, the Low Countries and France. Whetting them back to the keen fighting edge needed for an attempted invasion of Britain represents no easy job.

Nazi troops were fired with fanatical zeal and trained and equipped to the minute for the attack on the Low Countries and France. Since collapse of France last June, the mass of German troops has seen no action.

There have been insistent whispers for many weeks of official concern in Berlin over the situation. The Christmas visit of Hitler and the army commander in Chief, Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch, to the Channel front must stem out of that since it did not herald an immediate attack across the Channel.

The general told his army it was "burning" with eagerness to come to final grips with the British army and soon would get the chance. Both he and Hitler took pains to let the army know they were personally sharing its risks from British bombers on Christmas Day.

Lead Momentous Life.

In retrospect, that appears to be an effort to key the troops up again for the desperate business ahead of them. They have been leading a monotonous life for months. Fraternization with the people among whom they are quartered is a special problem with all armies of occupation. Nazi forces are mostly billeted in the homes of citizens. Despite war-bred animosities, relationships develop under such circumstances and on a scale inimical to keeping an idle army on fighting edge. Order No. 1 for all armies of occupation invariably is "no fraternization," but it occurs.

Nazi commands in occupied territory probably are frequently shifted for that reason. It breaks off such contacts and also is part of training ritual to keep troops physically fit by marching.

Face Heavy Losses.

Yet invasion of Britain, if Hitler does thumb his troops forward, is going to require a higher degree of troop fighting elan than even the Battle of Flanders and France called for. It means certainly far heavier battle losses for the Germans, and the veterans in the ranks know it.

Blitzkrieg equipment and technique cannot minimize casualties in an attempted Channel crossing as they did on the continent. The odds of position and equipment will be with the British defenders, not with Nazi attackers. The numerical odds also will be reversed.

By and large, then, any extensive let-down in German army elan during its months of inactivity would be a critical weakness in the supreme test London believes impending. The invaders will have to try to penetrate British sea and air defences in the Channel, then cut their way ashore by sheer ability in hand-to-hand fighting against heavy odds and probably terrible losses.

BULLFIGHTER KILLED IN RING

Mexico City, Dec. 30 — (AP) — Pitched into the air and gored three times by an enraged bull, Albertao Balderas, 29, famous Mexican bullfighter, was killed yesterday in Mexico City's bull ring only a few minutes after 30,000 spectators had cheered his artistry in dispatching another bull. He was the first matador and the third member of a bullfighting troupe to be slain in the capital's arena since it was opened in 1908.

Italian People Are Not Prussian Huns

Mr. Churchill's memorable appeal to Italy underlined a thought that has been with all of us. The thought that it would be unfair to confuse the Italian people with Mussolini, still more unfair to confuse them with the barbarians of Germany. To put the thing starkly: The British Empire is fighting the German people; it is not fighting the Italian people.

Germany's war is a war by the German race; a war of tribal hate and conquest waged by a whole people. Adolf Hitler is but the instrument of that tribal spirit; the symbol of the mad, barbarous doctrine of "blood and soil". The spirit of Prussia, the spirt of Nazism, is a German spirit. All of Germany's history, all of her philosophy, tells of violence, of a glorification af war.

One has but to read the pamphleteers of Nazism, read the writings of men like Rosenberg, Himmler and others, to understand their creed. It is a creed of force, of hate, of Godlessness. Adolf Hitler rose to power upon it because it was the creed of the Germans. Because it was taken up with enthusiasm by the German people. The blood purges, the concentration camps, the torturing of Jews—all were possible because the masses of Germans supported them. The frenzy of German audiences for Hitler; the brown-shirted Storm Troopers, the Youth organizations, the "Joy Through Living" bands, the cruel Gestapo, were not creatures of Hitler. They sprang from the German instinct for force; for brutality. The world must understand this. Must understand that it is the German race it is fighting; not merely Hitler.

It is different with Italy. There is overwhelming proof that the Italian people didn't want this war. That their Royal Family did not want war. That the head of their Church did not want war. They went to war because they were dragooned into it by Benito Mussolini and a few brigand Fascists.

The civilized, artistic, easy-going and always lovable people of Italy had and have nothing in common with the rude, cruel, brutalized German. They have nothing in common with the pagan Godlessness of the Nazi. They are not part of his fanatical "blood and soil" doctrine. They are the very antithesis of the German's nature.

That is why, for long years, British peoples always found themselves so much at home in Italy. They loved not merely her sunny skies and lovely landscapes; they reverenced her civilization and her devotion to the arts, and they had genuine affection for her people. It was this, as much as anything, which made Englishmen the partisans of Mazinni, Cavour and Garibaldi. England, more than any other nation on earth, wanted Italy to be united and free.

That wish remains. And while it may be the British Empire's melancholy task to strike at Fascist Italy, to visit misery upon the Italian people and upon itself in that necessary task, there will never be among British people the feeling for Italy that they have for Germany. Mussolini — the "sawdust Caesar" — will get his deserts, but there will be no revenge upon the Italian people. In Germany's case it will be not merely Adolf Hitler who will be dealt with; the whole German people must be made to pay for their barbarism.—Ottawa Journal.

SMALLEST HOUSE UNDAMAGED

London, Dec. 30 (CP)—The smallest house in London has a broken window but otherwise it has not suffered to date in air raids. The house, two storeys high and only four feet wide, is wedged between two bigger houses on a main thoroughfare in the West End. A single upstairs room, 30 feet long, holds a divan and a doll's house furniture. Tradition says it was built by a man who was left a legacy on condition he built himself a town residence.

De Gaulle Draws Noted Men

Among Them Are Experienced French Generals, Won by Britain's Heroic Stand

(By E. E. P. Tisdall, Author of Queen Victoria's John Brown and Other Books)

In the tragic hour of France's humiliating surrender there emerged one bright ray of hope. It was the refusal of some of France's military leaders to accept this defeat, and their men have now rallied to the flag of the Cross of Lorraine and created the armed forces of Free France. Setbacks they may encounter, but their grim determination will carry on until the honour and freedom of their country are once more restored and the betrayal by the men of Vichy is cast into the limbo of bitter memory.

In addition to General de Gaulle, whose ideas on modern warfare were consistently turned down by the old French military staff, there are at the present time in the forces of Free France Admiral Museller and Generals Catroux, de Larminat and Eon.

Admiral Emile Museller is commander of the Free French naval and air forces. He is one of the most distinguished officers of the younger school of the French navy. In the last war he commanded "Q" ships and submarine chasers and was four times mentioned in dispatches.

Slim, dapper, with keen, piercing eyes and a mass of unruly hair, the admiral is a typically adventurous figure. It is not difficult to picture him in the part of one of those gallant buccaneering sailors who in the eighteenth century brought fame and wealth to France and helped to create the great French colonial empire. He is, however, a man of many parts. He has specialized in the more scientific side of warfare. At one period during the last war he was made head of the section of ballistics and armaments at the ministry of inventions.

He was appointed vice-admiral in September of last year. His services on the scientific side, however, were too valuable to allow him to be given a command afloat. He was, in consequence, appointed to the task of co-ordinating the work of several factories connected with national defence under the ministry of armaments.

Admiral Museller was at Bordeaux when he heard of the impending French armistice last June. He left immediately by car for Paris, where he was able to destroy a large number of secret and confidential documents. He also organized the destruction of a number of plants which could have been of use to the Germans. His final act was to blow up 400 tons of oil destined for munition work.

Then the admiral made his way to Marseilles, travelling by car, peasant's cart and a fire engine, finally boarding an English collier which had four hundred refugees. On his arrival in Britain he joined General de Gaulle, who immediately made him commander of the Free French naval and air forces. The Petain government has decided to include the admiral among those to be court-martialled, the charge being "having passed into the pay of Britain against his country." He does not, however, intend to be present at his trial!

General Catroux is another distinguished adherent to the army of Free French. His help and advice should be of the utmost value to the Allies, for he was regarded as one of the most brilliant of all French colonial administrators. At the time of the armistice General Catroux was governor-general of French Indo-China, but, as he refused to obey the dictates of the Vichy government, he was summarily dismissed from his post. Without delay he sailed for England, where he joined General de Gaulle. Owing to the fact that General Catroux held a much higher military rank than General de Gaulle — being a five-star commander against the two held by the latter —he voluntarily reduced himself in position so as to subordinate himself to France's new leader.

General Catroux comes of a famous French military family, his father also having been a general. On entering the army he was posted to the Foreign Legion, serving in Indo-China. He next saw service in North Africa at the side of Colonel Lyautey. Until the outbreak of war, in 1914, he remained in this part of the French possessions. In France he saw active service until he was wounded and taken prisoner in 1917.

After the war he continued to demonstrate his great administrative abilities in the French colonial empire, gradually attaining high rank. The general is reputed to know Morocco as well as any man and should be a competent adviser on the trend of native opinion in Africa. During these years abroad he saw frequent active service, a fact which is demonstrated by the three long rows of ribbons he wears on his tunic.

In 1937 General Catroux was appointed commandant of the 19th corps in Algeria. Owing to differences of opinion, however, with General Gamelin, he was recalled and appointed by M. Mandel, then minister of the colonies, to be governor-general of Indo-China.

General de Larminet, like General de Gaulle, is a comparatively young man, being forty-five years old. During the last war he distinguished himself on active service and was thrice wounded. After the war he served in Africa and Indo-China, returning in 1929 to take up a post at the staff school. Six years later he went to Syria, where he did brilliant work as chief of staff to General Mittelhauser. At the armistice, when Mittelhauser, under pressure from Weygand, gave way and decided to throw in his lot with the Vichy Government, de Larminet left for London to join de Gaulle. The general is now at Brazzaville, in the French Congo, acting as governor-general for the huge area of Equatorial French Africa, which has changed its adherence to Free France.

The latest French general to join the army of Free France is General Eon. He has seen much service in North Africa and is essentially a colonial soldier, of the administrative type, that has done so well in the French empire.

Britain's heroic resistance to the Nazi war machine has done much to encourage these leaders of Free France who, in the hour of bitterest agony, still had faith in the future of their own land.

NOT BY WAVING BANNERS

By Phyllis McGinley in the Saturday Review of Literature

English lady will exchange recipe of a really good steak and kidney pudding for excellent recipe of lemon meringue pie or fish chowder.

Oh, not by waving banners,
By laying cornerstones
Or saying things at dinners
In loud, official tones.

I tell you not by fever
Of bunting or parade
Shall British hands forever
In Yankee hands be laid.

Divided by an ocean
No bigger than a brook,
Nation has stared at nation
With supercilious look.

And thorny as a thicket
Nourish their separate pride
While one held out for Cricket
And one for Baseball cried.

Greater and ever greater
Has grown the mortal rift
Since one said "Elevator"
And one kept muttering "Lift".

They've mocked each other's vesture,
Speech, custom, climate, use;
Till with a simple gesture
A lady brought the Truce.

For now to walk like Damon
With Pythias they begin.
One touch of grated lemon
Shall make these rivals kin.

Sing, sing her praises louder
While knife and fork we ply—
United by a chowder
Exchanged for kidney pie.

Stewart Says—

Hitler Seems Glad Over What May Be Mussolini's Finish

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Chas. P. Stewart

Washington—Probably it wouldn't be quite correct to say that Herr Hitler is outright glad of the evidently very serious situation in which Signor Mussolini is beginning to discover himself. He doubtless would have preferred Italy as a German asset rather than a liability. Nevertheless, U. S. state department information from competent observers in the midst of events across the Atlantic strongly hints at the conclusion that the Fuehrer at least is glad of what looks like Benito's finish as the Fascist's duce.

The impression in Washington is that Adolf considers his Axis partner a hopeless bungler and wants to install a new management of his own in Rome as speedily as possible. Presumably it will be nominally an Italian management, but entirely subject to his dictation.

Assuming that this guess is a good one, it manifestly will be to Adolf's advantage to see Benito go into the discard in a hurry, and the frantic effort that the latter has been making lately to put some ginger into his military, naval and aviation commands decidedly suggests that he fully realizes how precarious his position is.

And it's surmised that Adolf fervently hopes Benito is right about it. If the Duce's overthrown, the Fuehrer obviously will like to have the Italians think that they themselves capsized him. Then he can squeak into control surreptitiously, direct the country's policy under cover and maybe make it genuinely helpful to the Nazis without letting it know that he's doing the manipulating. Contrariwise, if he gives Benito a conspicuous shove the Italian people will be apt to resent it as outside interference, making them less amenable.

Internal Rumblings

That, it's supposed, is why Adolf's choice is an internal Italian revolution an overt move on his own part to turn the trick. That he's going his best to stir up anti-Mussolini sentiment in the Fascist peninsula is deemed much more than likely—but very covertly.

What becomes of Benito, Adolf apparently doesn't care; it's immaterial to him whether the Fascists kill him or chase him into exile or any other old thing, provided he's completely eliminated.

Stories are current to the effect that the Fuehrer never did like the Duce. When they met initially, Benito already was a full-fledged Duce, and going strong, whereas Adolf was just in his incipiency as a Fuehrer, and accounts are that the former patronized his vis-a-vis overpoweringly. It's the other way about now. So perhaps there's something personal between the two. Had Benito turned out to be a capable junior partner, the chances are that Adolf would let bygones be bygones. Benito has fizzled, though.

Of course the Duce's censorship, which still is effective, even though its boss is in a peck of trouble, prevents much news from getting out of Italy. Reports do leak out, however, of a deal of anti-Mussolini activity there, even to the point of sure-enough disturbances, especially in the country's northern area, which never was as pro-Fascist as the southern provinces.

Germany Pleased

It's noticeable, too, that German censors are pretty free in passing these rumors from the Nazi realm, hinting that Berlin doesn't object to their dissemination. If not, the fact tends to strengthen the belief that the Nazi regime isn't averse to further warming up the spot that Benito's seated on.

The rank and file of Germans certainly make all kinds of fun of the Italians' showing against the Greeks and in northern Africa. Dispatches from Berlin emphasize this detail, and the censorship o. k.'s 'em readily.

Apparently it isn't that the Germans want to unload Italy (though Germany and Italy traditionally aren't particularly good friends with one another), but that Adolf wants to unload Benito. Then he wants to Germanize the Italians. It'll be a queer mixture, if he can do it.

"Scotty" Holds A Rich Secret

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

One of the short moving-picture films portrays Death Valley, California, with "Scotty's castle" and "Death Valley Scotty" himself, looking hale and hearty but a trifle pugnacious in his two-gallon hat.

Death Valley ranch is a huge stone mansion in the loneliest and most desolate part of the United States. At the head of the scorched and salty Death Valley, it is surrounded by green lawns, flourishing trees and boasts a huge swimming pool. "Scotty" — his real name is Walter Scott—lives there with his wife, the former Josephine Fillius, New York candy store clerk

Scott, 12 years with Buffalo Bill's wild west show, left it when he married in 1920 and went to Death Valley, California. Three years later he rocketed out of the valley in a golden shower. The mystery of his sudden wealth has never been solved. It is subject of fantastic tales, to which "Scotty" takes no exception and is not above embellishing. He has told of spending $8,000,000 having a good time and "playing to the gallery." He is said to be the richest and most uccessful single-handed miner the world has ever known. It must have required a great deal of ingenuity to remain single-handed in the tapping of a fabulously rich gold mine somewhere in the California desert, but "Scotty" still holds the secret, and in due course will likely pass it on to his son, now 26 and employed in the U. S. war department.

His First Englishmen

Before I met an Englishman my idea of one was entirely founded on two pictures. One was on the box of a famous brand of cigarettes and the other was the head used to advertise the best-known make of automobile tire. Unfortunately the first person I met who resembled the man suggested by these pictures told me that he was a Catholic priest from France.

I can never forget the surprise I had when I first landed in this country. At the port of Dover, I was thrilled at the thought of setting my foot for the first time on English soil, and of meeting the first native Englishman. As the boat came to the quayside, a group of clean-shaven and polite men rushed on board to greet us. I couldn't make out what they were saying, but they had a peculiar way of pronouncing their "r's" which made me think that they had what I imagined to be "the Mayfair parlor accent", and that they were, therefore, typical English gentlemen. Imagine my mortification to learn that they were porters and what they said to us was merely "Porter, Porter!" When my train drew in at Victoria Station, my first wish was to hear the King's English from the lips of a real Londoner. That wish was soon fulfilled. A boy shouted to me, "Piper, piper, even' piper!"

My chief aim to come to London was to see James Barrie. After meeting him I paid a pilgrimage to the small Scottish town of Kirremuir, Barry's birthplace. I was the only passenger on the local train, and when walking out of the station, I stopped a passerby and asked him in the best English I could possibly manage: "Can you tell me where is Sir James Barrie's birthplace, please?" No, that was no good; he could not understand what I said. I tried several persons but it seemed to me that nobody there had ever heard of the name Sir James Barrie. At long last a man exclaimed: "Oh, Jim-mie Barrie's hoose!"—A Chinese Writer in London Listener.

CHAIRMAN DENIES

"I can see no advantage in such a meeting," Mr. McKinnon said, "and I have wired the association requesting them not to send any members here."

Last Friday the Wartime Prices and Trade Board pegged the wholesale price of butter in Canada. The Board's order, as published Saturday in an extra edition of the Canadian Gazette, said:—

"Until further notice, the maximum price per pound wholesale at which any grade or quality of butter may be sold or offered for sale in any place shall not exceed the maximum price per pound wholesale charged in that place for that grade or quality on the 12th day of December, 1940, whether in solids, rolls or in prints.

"Until further notice, no change shall be made in the terms or conditions of sale in effect on the 12th day of December, 1940, which would result in an increase in such maximum price."

In Effect on Saturday

For purposes of the order, "butter" means "creamery and dairy butter produced or manufactured exclusively from milk or cream or both, with or without the addition of coloring matter, salt or other matter."

The order went into effect last Saturday. Its effect would be a general reduction of three cents a pound in butter prices, Mr. McKinnon estimated.

Mr. McKinnon said the Board was not ruling that a dealer must take a loss on butter he purchased at a price higher than the wholesale price on Dec. 12.

"It is at his own discretion whether or not he wishes to reduce his price to the consumer and take a loss on the butter he already has in store and for which he paid a higher price than that at which the wholesale price has been pegged."

Mr. McKinnon said it was expected competition would take care of the retail price situation. Some dealers would lower their prices and others would follow suit. In any case, retail prices would come down as new stocks of butter, bought at the pegged price, came into the hands of retailers.

SURFACE RAIDER

miralty declared the Berwick remains at sea as an "effective unit" of the British fleet.

One ship on the convoy was hit but suffered "slight damage" before the cruiser came up to drive off the raider.

Poor visibility was blamed in part for the Berwick's failure to come to close grips with the raider.

This was the first indication that any British evssel had been shifted from the Mediterranean service to convoy duty in the Atlantic.

Not All S O S Calls Mean that The Attacked Vessels Are Sunk

Ottawa, Dec. 28 (CP)—Distress calls picked up by private radio stations from allied ships in these days of prowling Nazi submarines are interesting but, says the Navy, only in a negative way.

"It's not how many ships are attacked but the number that escape or perhaps even destroy their attacker that's the big news," said a Royal Canadian Navy spokesman today.

"And," he added, "the situation isn't as bad as private reports sometimes indicate."

For instance the steamship Sunflower (any similarity in name to a ship in service is purely coincidental) might report she is being attacked. That, admitted the Navy man, is news. But so is her escape and more often than not this news doesn't reach the public.

The Sunflower might cancel her distress call or she might go lickety-split for port and say nothing about it. But to the Navy's annoyance her SOS remains in the public mind.

The navy man explained a distress call is always sent plainly—that is, without code— on the 500 kilocycle frequency which anyone with a strong enough apparatus can listen to. But in cancelling the SOS the Sunflower likely would send in code on her regular frequency and shore listeners wouldn't hear it or know what it meant if they did.

The navy probably gets and keeps to itself more information on distress calls than all private listeners-in put together. "To give out this information would be tipping our hand and we might as well be part of the German Secret Service," said the navy man.

If the navy thought it in the best interests it could announce daily convoy arrivals. For instance, during the past month 73,000,000 pounds of imported goods reached Britain in convoy and 21,000,000 pounds were exported.

"In importance the sinking of or an attack on one ship in convoy doesn't rate beside safe arrival of other ships in the convoy," added the spokesman. "But to tell all you know isn't the way to win the war."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was eating my breakfist even faster than usual on account of the time, and I said, Hay ma, can I have a late note to the teacher just in case I'm late, and in case I'm early I wont have to use it.

Well of all the brazen requests, ma said. I called you 3 separate and distinct times this morning and each time you assured me you were getting up and all you were doing was a bare faced turn on the other side. And now he airily asks for an excuse note of all things. Nobody walks on any such bed of roses around here, young man. If you're late you'll just take the consequences and profit by experience, she said.

But, jimminy, ma, I've profited by experience lots of times, that's why I want an excuse note, I said, and pop said, Look here, my tardy friend, the pitfalls you dig for yourself at your time of life, unless you learn better, are just about the same kind of traps that you'll spread yourself in the years, to come. Not quite so deep, of course, but the sensation seems just as unpleasant while you're falling. Suppose you're late for your own wedding? Who's going to write you an excuse note to the bride? Suppose you're late for work? If you hand your boss an excuse note from your wife, do you think it'll wipe the scowl off his face? No, it'll make it explode. However, I'll write you one, just this once, he said.

Wich he did on the back of a letter he didn't want, saying, Deer Miss Kitty, Benny was unavoidably detained this morning as he absilutely refused to lift his procrastinating carcass out of bed and later wasted more valuable time trying to wangle this excuse note out of me, so I know you will understand and act accordingly. Yours affectionately, Willyum P. Potts.

The result being I ran like lightning all aways to school and just exactly made it.

MENTHOLATUM

AT THE McCARTHY

"Ellery Queen Master Detective"

Offering Belleville theatregoers a new type of screen story which packs mystery into every foot of film, the McCarthy theatre is now playing the first in a new series of feature productions entitled "Ellery Queen Master Detective," in which Ralph Bellamy, Margaret Lindsay, Charley Grapewin and Michael Whalen are the principal characters. An all-star comedy "Cold Turkey," latest Fox News Events, screen snapshots, showing Hollywood stars at work and play and also a novelty subject entitled "Nice Work If You Can Do It" round out the program to make it one of the season's best.

New Year's Eve

Everything in readiness to usher in 1941 in the most joyous manner possible, the McCarthy Theatre management is only waiting until 11.30 p.m. Tuesday evening to open wide the doors to begin the biggest New Year's Eve Frolic which has ever been presented at the McCarthy. Hats, horns and noisemakers will be presented to every patron, a stage program with Mr. Fred Jobson as Master of Ceremonies, community singing and fun galore is one part of the evening's entertainment, while a carefully selected screen program makes up the balance, first with a novelty cartoon entitled "Good Night Elmer," followed by a splendid screen vaudeville subject and also an all-star comedy, "The Spook Speaks," after which the gay musical comedy "The Sky is the Limit," starring Jack Buchanan, an eighty-minute feature loaded with laughs and gay musical selections, follows.

"Arizona"

A new show starts New Year's Day, the new Wesley Ruggle's production "Arizona," starring Jean Arthur, with William "Golden Boy" Holden, Warren William, Porter Hall and a cast of thousands. "Arizona" is based on the Saturday Evening Post story by Clarence Budington Kelland and has been magnificently produced to rank with the screen's greatest.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Christmas in July"

There's a treat in store for you at the Capitol Theatre where "Christmas in July" opened Sunday midnight. It's another uproarious comedy written and directed by that master of comedy technique, Preston Sturges. Dick Powell, who is known in Hollywood as "the fugitive from singing pictures," turns in a great comedy performance. Ellen Drew, who is co-starred with Powell is beautiful and sincere as his fiancee.

Yesterday's audience certainly enjoyed themselves to the limit. Even if you have never tried to win a national contest you'll still appreciate the heartaches and suspense suffered by a young couple planning to get married when they win. Preston Sturges knows just when and where to put the comedy and pathos to give an audience its money's worth.

The story is comparatively simple, but it's the Sturges touch that makes it great. Dick and Ellen are employees of a large coffee company. They want to get married but not until they are a little independent. Dick has ideas. He goes in for contests and right now he's going to win the $25,000 slogan contest put on by a rival coffee concern.

Some practical jokers in their office learn about his hopes and send him a wire announcing that he has won. He presents the wire to the president of the company and collects the money. Now, even if it is July, it's going to be Christmas for everyone! He buys presents on credit because the store can't cash the check. While he is playing Santa Claus, the president finds that his committee is still trying to decide on a winner. He notifies the department store that a mistake has been made and together they dash to Powell's home. You can imagine that situation, but you'll have to see the picture to see how it works out.

In addition to Dick Powell and Ellen Drew, the cast includes Raymond Walburn, Ernest Truex, William Demarest, Alexander Carr and Franklin Pangborn. They all make a great team in a great picture. It's real entertainment.

The added attraction packs plenty of action and thrills with Jack Holt in "Roaring Timbers."

An interesting short "Going Places," with Graham Macnamee closes this swell double feature program.

AT THE BELLE

"Little Nellie Kelly"

Judy Garland, who intrigued and charmed millions in "Strike Up The Band" and other lilting musical hits, provides her audiences with a new surprise in her first solo starring vehicle, "Little Nellie Kelly," as an Irish colleen on the sidewalks of New York, she is appearing at the Belle theatre.

George M. Cohan's smash Broadway stage hit provides her with an ideal vehicle in which to portray the joy and romance of youth, to sing favorite old-time ballads as well as streamlined modern songs. It presents opposite her Douglas McPhail, youthful baritone, who adds another smash performance to his laurels. And Judy ventures, very successfully, too, into a few moments of poignant drama amid the comical battles of the scrappy Kelly and Noonan families.

The story opens in Ireland, with Judy playing the young Irish girl, Nelly Noonan, who marries and comes to America. Then, amid the hustle and bustle of New York the story shifts to the later romance of her daughter, also played by Judy, as a girl grown to seventeen.

Miss Garland's performance is one of the surprise highlights of the season. It is marked by sincerity and feeling, especially in the early, difficult sequences. Interesting, too, is her singing of such Irish favorites as "It's a Great Day For the Irish," and "Pretty Girl Milking Her Cow," and, for the motion picture fan interested in more modern composition, there is the 1940 version of the Brown and Freed hit tune, "Singin' in the Rain."

Difficult as it is to choose one sequence as outstanding, one of the most delightful scenes is that in which George Murphy proposes to Miss Garland. It is her first serious, grown-up love scene. Murphy, incidentally, appears in an entirely new type of role. For the first time he neither sings nor dances, but essays a straight, dramatic characterization.

Outstanding in his character role of the elderly grandfather with an aversion to work, is Charles Winninger. Sharing the youthful romance with Miss Garland in the latter half of the film is the young baritone, Douglas McPhail, last remembered for his performance in "Babes in Arms." McPhail proves a likeable and talented leading man with an undisputably fine voice.

Easily one of the best family films of the current season, "Little Nellie Kelly" has the advantage of Norman Taurog as director. Taurog handled his people and his story with the utmost sympathy for the human elements with which he dealt.

An interesting Newsreel and a clever color cartoon "The Milky Way," precede the feature attraction.

The war events from day to day;
Battles on land and sea and air
And Britain's courage everywhere;
And Stephen Foster's plaintive songs
Beguile the lonely evenings long;
Sermons are heard from Buffalo
While listening to the radio,
And in our churches, here and

WEDDINGS

JUBY—BENSON

A pretty wedding took place at Bridge Street United Church parsonage at two o'clock on Saturday afternoon when Camilla Marie, daughter of Mr. Edward Benson and the late Mrs. Benson of Ivanhoe, became the bride of Harold N. Juby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Juby of Stirling. Rev. Dr. James Semple officiated, in the presence of the immediate families of the bride and groom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a charming English crepe frock and felt hat of soldier blue with gold trimming and accessories in black. She wore a corsage of carnations and fern.

Miss Margaret Benson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and was attired in a crepe frock and felt hat of heaven blue with black accessories. She wore a corsage of pink carnations and fern.

Mr. W. R. Juby, Stirling, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

The bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Toronto, the bride travelling in a hunter's green dress and hat, green boucle coat, brown squirrel trimmed, and brown accessories. They will take up residence at Stirling.

TURNER—MUNRO

A quiet wedding took place at St. Michael's on Saturday evening, December 28th., at six o'clock when Bernice Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Munro, Bancroft, became the bride of John Bruce Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Turner of Belleville, Rev. C. E. Baker performed the ceremony.

The bride was charming in blue silk velvet with matching turban and corsage of red roses. She was attended by Miss Clare McAlpine, who wore wine wool with matching hat and corsage of red roses.

Mr. Cecil McAlpine of Bancroft, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony wedding supper was served at the Quinte Cafe. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a compact and to the groomsman a cigarette lighter. Mr. and Mrs. Turner left for Peterborough where they will reside.

BENN—COOKE

A pretty Christmas wedding took place at Foxboro United Church parsonage, at twelve o'clock, when Laura Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Cooke, became the bride of Sherwood Arthur Benn, son of Mrs. Benn and the late William Benn of Belleville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. M. Cook.

The bride was charming in a lovely frock of turquoise blue crepe and wore a corsage of pink Delight roses. She was attended by Miss Helen Benn, sister of the groom, wearing heavenly blue crepe.

Mr. Clifford Cooke, brother of the bride was groomsman.

The bride wore the gift of the groom, a beautiful white gold wrist watch.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner for immediate relatives took place at the home of the bride's grandfather, Mr. James Stapley at Stirling.

Later the happy couple left amid showers of confetti for a wedding trip to Toronto, the bride travelling in a dress of soldier blue with matching accessories.

The young couple will reside in Belleville on their return.

McKEEN—GOULD

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 30.—In the manse of Stewarton United Church the marriage took place quietly on Thursday of Miss Mernie Gould, daughter of Mrs. Annie Gould, of Forresters Falls, and the late Mr. Gould, to Flight Sergeant Albert McKeen, son of Mr .and Mrs. Albert McKeen, of Cumberland, Ont. Rev. P. S. Milliken officiated.

The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Courtenay as bridesmaid, and Mr. Richard Perley was best man.

The bride wore a dress of Heaven blue, with a matching halo hat and a corsage bouquet of Rapture roses. As bridesmaid, Miss Courtenay wore dusty rose crepe, with a matching brimmed hat and a corsage bouquet of pink roses.

MOTLEY—HOULDEN

At the home of the bride's parents, near Frankford, the wedding took place on Saturday, December 21st, at three o'clock, when Jean Thelma, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lee Houlden, was united in marriage to Mr. John Esping Motley, Frankford. The ceremony was performed in the presence of immediate relatives of the contracting parties by Rev. L. M. Sharpe, grandfather of the bride.

The bride, who was gowned in tropical blue velvet, was attended by her sister, Miss Rita Houlden, wearing velvet in magic purple shade. Mr. Kenneth Motley was best man.

After a wedding dinner the bridal couple left on a motor trip to Cobourg, Oshawa and Toronto. Upon their return they will take up residence at Batawa where the groom is employed with the Bata Shoe Company. The many beautiful gifts showed the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, December 31
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE ASTRAL forces for this day should unite to make very pleasant and harmonious conditions, although there may be need for certain postponements or change of plans at the eleventh hour of social, domestic or romantic festivities. There may be some frustrating situations or intrigues demanding prudence, discretion and sound judgment lest there be regrettable entanglements or snares. This vigilance relates particularly to correspondence or written agreements.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly progressive and successful year, with some moderate advancement or signs of preferment from those in influential positions. While there may be definite and tenacious obstacles to combat, the auguries are favorable for success in this, especially if wariness, foresight and the ability to escape sinister schemes, betrayal and deceit is shown. The social, domestic and sentimental activities may complex the year's adventures.

A child born on this day should be kindly, compassionate and possess many social graces, as well as much talent in artistic expression. It will have much humor, although being serious and of sound judgment.

Reviving Pineapple Cut

Ann Rutherford uses an eyebrow brush to keep her brows smooth.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Even though the long bob seems to rule the hairdressing realm, many of the young fry are going back to the pineapple cut. Very pretty it is, too. Ringlets all over the head.

In Hollywood the paper curl is employed. The hair is parted off into inch squares. Each strand is made into a flat ringlet, covered with a three-cornered piece of tissue paper which is given a twist so it will stay put. There they are, fifty or sixty little paper soldiers standing at attention on the customer's head.

How It's Done

A special iron with double discs is heated, each ringlet is pressed, clamped tight. When the papers are removed each tress is combed out over the finger, then the curl is separated so the hair is fluffy. When the winding is done with precision, the heating properly timed, the wave will stay strong for a fortnight, when the hair is ready for another washing and ironing.

This style of coiffure is also known as the cherub cut. With long bobs seen everywhere it is a treat to the eye to observe a change, even if it is a step backward to the days of the short trim.

Eyebrows should toe to the beauty mark and not go scooting off on wild sprees. The ziggy eyebrow—freak lines and funny up turns—has had its day. If you don't believe it look at the movie stars; getting back to first base, they are.

For a woman with large features and a heavy jaw line to wear eyebrows that look like single threads of darning cotton, is a grave mistake. She needn't have bushy ones like a pirate; they should be of normal width to harmonize with her facial contour.

The girl with the oval face and small mouth looks best with eyebrows fairly narrow, a tilt at the far ends.

Jiggle Away Those Fat Cells

Women who are built light above the waistline and heavy below should take up tap dancing. They can jiggle away fat cells that are loitering on thighs, calves and ankles. And it's swell fun.

The plump woman, ever conscious of her adipose luggage, hesitates to take part in athletic activities. So she goes on gaining. She need not be timid about joining up with a dancing class; she will find many of her overdeveloped sisters there putting up a fight against excess measurements.

Gives Grace

Tap dancing has a vibratory effect upon the entire muscular structure. It creates suppleness and grace. It does not overstrain tissues because it is accomplished with ease. Properly taught it stretches all the fibres, down to the smallest of them. It has a beneficial effect upon circulation so it promotes coloring in the cheeks.

This style of dancing does not require endless lessons. It is learned quickly by anyone who has ever danced at all. To reduce enlarged ankles and thickened calves the quick stepping movements are the sure and perfect corrective course. More interesting than routine calesthenics, too. Get busy, heavyweights, and go in for normalizing.

Girls blubber a lot about ringlets going limp, always having to wind 'em up on metal curlers. A little care and curly cues will remain strong from one shampoo to the next.

When bathing, tuck them under a shower cap. Get a cap that has fullness, so it doesn't flatten the tresses. At bedtime comb or brush the hair, and arrange it, confine it in a wave cap or a net that has long ends that tie over the forehead.

If the hair retains particles of soap scum after the shampoo curls won't be worth a cent; they'll string out in a day.

FORCED FEEDING

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

About the hardest thing I know is to prevail upon a "bright" mother to let the child eat. She wants to do the eating for him. Until he is old enough to feed himself solid or semi-solid foods—the average child is able at twelve months—she will force food on him no matter whether he wants it or not.

Then when the child is 2, 3, 4 or even 7 or 8, she will go on forcing food on him. And what an orgy of emotions she and the defenceless child will experience!

The college graduate and those who read books and articles on essential vitamins, what foods the baby should have and how much of it, may be the worst. To add to her trouble, her pediatrician who knows his onions, spinach and carrots may employ poor psychology and keep nagging at the distracted mother to get the food into the child so he will gain. As a result the mother may, with increasing jitters and decreasing skill, cause the annoyed little tyke to eat less and less.

Think of Baby's Future Appetite

I've given up a lot of these "brainy" but bewildered young mothers as hopeless in relation to feeding problems. They refuse to reason. They can think only in terms of how much food the child eats right now and how much he weighs at this very minute. They can't think in terms of the child's appetite a month hence or his weight then. They resolve to put the food into the kid or burst, and they burst.

A certain worried mother writes of a boy 2 years old: "He has refused to feed himself and be fed for about five weeks now, any vegetables, regardless of how prepared, no cereals, this week no eggs, no potatoes in any form. He eats only fruit, any kind of meat, little bread, and plenty milk..He will be satisfied just to drink milk and water.. I admit both of us are nervous and easily upset—it is a strain to go through."

Give Small Portions

While I had little faith that my advice would be followed, I wrote this mother she should feed that child no longer. "Place a very small portion, a quarter of a teaspoonful, say, of a desirable food on a plate with a spoon beside the plate on a low table or chair. Nothing more, always just one food at a time. Call it to his attention with your hand, your lips sealed. If he does not choose to eat it after four minutes, remove the food with your hands, your lips still sealed, and end the meal. Only water until the next regular feeding time. If, however, he eats this food, give him in like manner a small portion of another single essential food. Proceed in this fashion so long as he chooses to eat. Let him always choose—between what you offer him or nothing. If he develops nausea or refuses food for two days or so, call your doctor."

MOIRA W. A.

PINE GROVE W. I.

The December meeting of the Pine Grove W. I. was held Thursday, Dec. 19, 1940, at the home of Mrs. H. Dafoe with 13 members and 1 visitor. Mrs. Heasman, president was the presiding officer. Roll call was answered by a Christmas verse. The Secretary read a letter from The Federated Women's Institute of Ontario re a donation toward furnishing a hospital ward in a Canadian hospital in England. It was moved by Mrs. Campbell, seconded by Mrs. Rodgers we donate $13.00 to this cause, and $7.00 to the Belleville Red Cross.

A collection of $3.00 was taken, and all joined in singing "Silent Night, Holy Night" which closed the business period. Mrs. Campbell convener for Dec. opened with singing a chorus of "O Come All Ye Faithful." Mrs. Finkle gave "Current Events." Readings "Christmas Bells," Mrs. F. Lough, "Jack Miner's Christmas Message", Mrs. P. Meale. Piano and mouth organ selection Miss Irene Coulter. Reading "The Unconquerable Christmas Spirit," Mrs. H. Dafoe. Mrs. Campbell, reading taken from "The Home and Country." Music by Miss Coulter. Reading "The Star of Bethlehem", Mrs. W. Rodgers, followed by the National Anthem.

Lunch was served by the ladies on Lunch Committee.

Presentations

Yuletide decorations formed a colorful setting for Christmas dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thompson, Massassaga. Mr. Thompson's brothers and families were in attendance but the two sisters were unable to attend. The relations presented Mr. and Mrs. Thompson with a set of silver.

A large number attended a miscellaneous and the V.A.C. shower given Mr. and Mrs. Howard Walt (nee Kathleen Montgomery) at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Montgomery, of Victoria. The community address for Victoria was read by Miss Audra Brickman and the V.A.C. address by Miss Nellie Werden. After the unwrapping of many useful and costly gifts the bride and groom both responded in a very capable manner thanking all for the gifts.. Lunch was then served. After an hour or more of social intercourse all left for their homes wishing Kathleen and Howard every success in their new home at North Lakside at Consecon.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

More on Stature

No series of columns on stature and height-increase would be complete without reference to some of the superstitions that surround this phase of human development.

Some preparations are sold for the avowed purpose of increasing height, just as some are sold to cure baldness and corns. An interesting thing about these 'patent medicines' is that they are almost never patented. They are a 'secret formula"—secret because to file the formula at the patent office would reveal the worthlessness of the preparation.

There are gadgets "guaranteed" to increase height. One is an apparatus with clamps for head and feet and a ratchet which when turned, pushes the head and feet in opposite directions. It is like the bed the famous robber in the old Greek myth used. The Bed of Procrustes, I think it was called.

As to drugs, there may be a few which a wise doctor could administer safely to take care of a deficiency in the system that was hindering growth. But they must be used with the greatest care.

On the other hand, there are drugs that should be avoided during the period of growth, since the evidence is that they retard interference with growth. Alcohol and tobacco are the most common of these.

As to the expensive exercising machines on the market for height-increasing, you don't need any special equipment. The exercises should be aimed at improvng posture. They should be devoted to straightening and pulling back the shoulders, and pulling in the chin. Remember that a person standing erect may be a full inch and a half taller than the same person standing in a slouch.

I remember knowing when I was a boy, an old farmer who seemed to be able to increase his height by at least four inches by standing erect. He was tall and skinny, and when he came out of a slouch, he was just like a telescope opening up.

A few exercises, chosen to get you in the habit of standing erect, can do a great deal more for your stature than all the preparation and gadgets.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Invited to Tea

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

The wife of my husband's employer has sent me an invitation to a tea, which I must accept. It will be my first attendance at such an affair, and I would appreciate it if you will advise me as to dress, conduct, and the matter of cards.

Reader

To this tea you wear your most formal day clothes—a dress and coat, or a suit, or an ensemble. The skirt should be street-length. Be especially careful about your choice of appropriate accessories.

Let's say that the tea is from four to seven or five to seven. You might arrive at half after five, and probably would stay from a half hour to an hour. When you arrive there will be someone at the door to tell you where to leave your wrap. You leave your wrap and your gloves, but you wear your hat during the tea.

When you enter the living-room, you at once go to the hostess, who welcomes and shakes hands with you. If her husband is at the tea, he will be standing near his wife/ and next you greet him. To your hostess you might say something like this: "It was so kind of you to ask me to come this afternoon, Mrs. Black, and I am so happy to be here". There may be a minute or two for a bit more conversation and perhaps for your hostess to introduce you to other guests standing near her. Then, when other guests arrive to be welcomed, you go on your "own", to chat with other guests, whether or not you have been introduced to them. Undoubtedly you will know other guests at the party. If not, you start chatting with the ones to whom your hostess first introduced you.

You will always find an opportunity to begin a casual conversation with other guests . . .and don't be self-conscious about doing this. At a tea-party, don't wait for introductions, for there usually isn't time or opportunity for the hostess to keep her social eye on individual guests. So do your own "mingling", making a habit of acquiring and using "small talk" of an interesting a kind as possible.

When you are ready, go to the dining-room or wherever the tea table is set. At one end of the table there will probably be a co-hostess pouring tea, and at the other another co-hostess pouring coffee. Go to which ever you wish: say "May I have same tea, please?" She will say, perhaps, "Certainly. How do you take it?" You say, for instance, "Strong, please One lump of sugar, and no lemon or cream". She will hand you the cup and saucer, and perhaps with a tea-plate and a tea-napkin on the plate, between the plate and the soucer. Or you may be expected to take your tea-plate and tea-napkin from the pile of plates on the table. Then you serve yourself to a sandwich or whatever you wish, and later, if you wish, to a tea-cake or a slice of cake. There will be other guests serving themselves; chat with them as you are drinking your tea.

When you art ready to leave, you seek out your hostess and say, for instance, Goodbye, Mrs. Black. I've had such a happy time at your party. Thank you again, so much, for asking me. Then, if the host is present, you say goodbye and give thanks to him too. Be sure to say these goodbyes before you go to get your wrap.

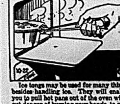
Unless the tea is a reception, very formal, you will not be expected to leave cards. The form of the invitation will indicate this, but you will probably be safe in not leaving your card. However, if there is any question in your mind about this, take your cards with you, and if you notice a tray in the entrance hall, with cards on the tray, add yours as you leave.

One more suggestion: it will be very gracious of you to write your hostess a note of appreciation of her invitation and hospitality a day or two after the party. She will like this!

Courtesy Tip

Are you a builder-upper of that important First Impression? It's entirely possible to gain or lose a friend, or at least an admiring acquaintance, by being gracious and cordial when you acknowledge an introduction, by being charmingly attentive to catch a name. This mannerliness takes no longer than being casual or inattentive or brusque.

Wife Preservers



Ice tongs may be used for many things besides handling ice. They will enable you to pull hot pans out of the oven without danger of burning your hands, to pull out caps and rubbers from boiling water, and if you have babies in the house, use them to handle bottles that you have been sterilizing in boiling water.

CANADIAN PRESS LOSES 'MORGUE' RECORDS IN RAID

Thousands of News Stories of Past Events in Britain Destroyed in Sunday's Fire Raid

SHORT INTERRUPTION

Activities Transferred to Another Building Occupied by British News Agencies

By SAM ROBERTSON,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 30—(CP Cable)—Parts of historic Fleet Street blazed like a suburb of hell, but news kept flowing to Canada.

Life flaming meteors of hate, three of the thousands of fire bombs that Axis raiders rained on the city section of London last night ripped through the roof of the building housing the Canadian Press London bureau and below it the Associated Press office.

They are the clearing house for news of the empire and a great deal of the rest of the world and although they are a mass of debris today—water ruined almost everything the flames missed—there has been scarcely any intermission in the tempo of news flow across the Atlantic.

Some delay in cable transmission occurred, since London offices of the cable companies are in the affected area. The delay was not great, however, and today the cables were operating near to normal.

Canadian Press office equipment was charred to nothingness. "Morgue" records of tens of thousands of news stories, of the coronation and of the deaths of kings, of war and happier events since the Canadian Press set up shop decades ago are gone.

But it was no holiday for the staff of young Canadians who live in the British front line.

Those who were in the office when it was converted into a giant torch along with scores of other buildings first tried to douse the flames. When the task became hopeless they gathered up such files as they could carry and hurried a block up winding Dorset Rise to a building shared by British news agencies—the Press Association and Reuters.

News Flows On Soon

There in the safety of that great pile of concrete and steel, while incendiary and high explosive bombs continued to rain down on the area, news started flowing again.

The co-operation of General Manager Henry Martin and his Press Association staff was unstinted.

The welcome into their already crowded news room was immediate and warm. They cleared a desk that really could not be spared—it meant the crowding of their own editors and reporters into corners—and bid us "go on with the show."

They found spare typewriters, pencils and papers. They brewed tea when long hours of work started wilting the staff's stamina.

The ancient five-storey building at the corner of Tudor Street and Dorset Rise which The Canadian Press shared with the Associated Press had proudly borne its earlier scars of war.

Several weeks ago a high explosive bomb plumped a few feet from the side of the wall. It blew away part of the basement and set the structure alight. But the flames quickly were squelched and somehow most of the blast kicked backwards and flattened the building across the narrow street.

The Canadian Press had to evacuate its main news room when it was discovered that the foundation under that section of the building had been cracked. It meant transferring diverse news gathering equipment to another part of the structure.

Building a Wreck

Now, however, daylight floods into The Canadian Press office across what is left of the floor above and the roof. There are great holes in the rear wall. The third floor, on which the bureau is located, and the fourth floor which is the top of the building, took the burden of fire and water.

Only a few steel filing cabinets lived through the blaze. All else is a blackened skeleton.

Concrete stairs still stand. It was an eerie experience to slosh through cascading water and dodge through a mass of tangled wires and tumbled girders to look at what was a hive of activity a few hours ago.

The floor crunches under man's weight. Where telegraph printers and typewriters once clacked the only sound now is hissing steam escaping from a cracked radiator.

The blaze that ate the crown away from the old building of brick and stone was a mere candlelight among the greater fires which transformed the vast historic area of London into a colossal birthday cake for the god of war.

None the less it destroyed The Canadian Press office that was "home away from home" for young Canadians staffing The Canadian Press Bureau and the blow was a heavy one. It was like losing an old true friend.

R.C.A.F. TRAINING AREAS REINFORCED BY NEW ARRIVALS

Fliers From Canada, Britain and Poland Arrive in Dominion to Help Train Fledglings

ALL PRAISE BRITAIN

An East Coast Canadian Port, Dec. 30 (CP)—Manpower for the Royal Air Force, drawn from many lands within and without the Empire, headed for training areas in Canada today to be molded into a machine to beat back the Nazi Luftwaffe.

Hundreds of them from Canada, Britain, other Empire countries and Poland filed down the gangplank of a liner here and soon were travelling toward fields and schools as far west as Saskatchewan. A goodly portion of them were experienced fighters who had battled the Hun in the air and were coming to help strengthen the wings of the fledglings.

The air officers from Canada came from homes as far afield as Nova Scotia and British Columbia. One who is officially credited with sinking a German submarine from the air—F.O. Everett Badouk of Stellarton, N.S.—was among them.

Travelling with the airmen were 70 Canadian soldiers invalided home from the Dominion's fighting forces in Britain.

Canadian army officers transferred back home as instructors formed another group. A few Imperial army officers—some of them veterans of Dunkirk—arrived, too.

Sir Hugh Dowing, Air Chief Marshal of the R.A.F., came to Canada at the same time, on the way to the United States to engage in coordination of American industry with British war requirements. He left for Ottawa for a brief stay there to confer with government authorities.

All the airmen were agreed in high commendation for the work of the R.A.F. "The Royal Air Force is giving back to Germany every bit she is giving England, and perhaps more, too," said one young Welshman. As an instance, he said the port of Hamburg is now a shambles.

Not As Bad As Pictured

An Englishman who lived through the Coventry raid said the damage there "isn't as bad as most people think."

A Canadian army man, Lieut. Paul Fahreholtz of Toronto, a native of The Netherlands, praised the morale of the British people. They never would get the "wind up," said the officer, who has been assigned to special duty in Canada.

Words of praise for the 1st Canadian fighter squadron in Britain were handed out by flying officers. With only five men lost, it was credited with 53 German planes.

Shells Pumped into Bardia, Little Response by Garrison

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 30 (AP)—British gun crews have been pumping shell after shell into the besieged Libyan port of Bardia, military sources reported today, in continued preparation for a final assault on the Italian stronghold which has held out for two weeks.

An official communique yesterday said there was comparatively little response from the Italian garrison" to the artillery fire.

London, Dec. 30 (CP)—Military circles said today there was no reason to expect an early surrender of Bardia, beleaguered Italian base in Libya, because of lack of food and water.

"It has been a base for some time and is well supplied," it was said.

They reported a continuing "artillery and aerial bombardment" of the town.

War Prisoners in Canadian Camps Served 50,000 Pounds of Fresh Eels

By T. R. WALSH,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, Dec. 30—(CP)—Nazi and Italian war prisoners in Canada's internment camps are enjoying this holiday season a dish which the war has denied their countrymen back home — eels from the nearby Island of Orleans, in the St. Lawrence River.

The camps have taken 50,000 pounds of the season's 600,000-pound catch, said Louis Coderre, Quebec's Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce, while markets in Great Britain and the United States have absorbed the balance.

"For the first time in years we haven't a pound left to sell," the Deputy Minister said. "We sold about 50,000 pounds to the internment camps and, if we had it, we could have marketed 150,000 pounds there."

Before war erased them from the province's trade lists, Germany and Italy were the major markets for the eel catch and they paid as much as 14c a pound for the long, wriggly fish which some cooks say "look like snakes and taste like chicken."

Italians, particularly, regard the eel as a yuletide delicacy and a big market is found annually—about 250,000 pounds this year — among the Italian populations of New York, Chicago and Pittsburgh. Of that amount, nearly 100,000 pounds were sent alive in barges to New York.

The balance of the eels was frozen before delivery. About two-thirds of the catch were shipped to Britain but the first shipment of 69,000 pounds went down at sea.

The eels are trapped by fishermen of the Island of Orleans and districts along the south shore of the St. Lawrence. The season runs from mid-August to mid-November.

Preparations for the dinner table is up to the individual cook but generally the eels are boiled for about 15 minutes to eliminate oil and then are fried.

The fish went for seven cents a pound this season, a price regarded by officials as "very low." However, they thought unprecedented quick sale of the catch helped the 225 eel-fishermen to enjoy the holiday season. Last year's catch totalled nearly 1,000,000 pounds.

Greater Production Percentage For Great Britain Hinted Say Washington Legislators

Washington, Dec. 30. — (AP) — President Roosevelt's declaration that United States experts would determine how best to use the nation's armament production "to defend this hemisphere" gave rise today to belief that an upward revision was contemplated in the present 50-50 formula governing aid to Britain.

"The decision as to how much shall be sent abroad and how much shall remain at home", Mr. Roosevelt said in his address last night, "must be made on the basis of our over-all military necessities."

Heretofore, a "rule of thumb" limited British aid to approximately 50 per cent of U.S. arms production, and the intimation that this policy might be abandoned for a higher percentage was one point commanding Congressional attention as legislators studied and commented on the speech.

Due For Discard

Those believing the 50-50 formula was due for discard cited another passage of the speech which they considered pertinent. In this, Roosevelt said:—

"It is a matter of most vital concern to us that European and Asiatic war-makers should not gain control of the oceans which lead to this hemisphere . . . . If Great Britain goes down, the Axis powers will control the continents of Europe, Asia, Africa, Australasia, and the high seas—and they will be in a position to bring enormous military and naval resources against this hemisphere".

Senator Warren A. Austin (Rep-Vermont), the acting minority leader, said his impression was that the President 'kept his hands untied' on the amount of defence production to be sent to Great Britain and had left the administration free to take any position which our military necessities make obvious".

Surprised at President

Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Dem-Montana), declared he was "surprised that the President intimated that everyone who disagrees with him might be a Fifth Columnist, or might be doing the biddings of the Dictators: it seems to me that is beneath the dignity of the President".

"I'm in favor of extending all possible aid to Great Britain", said Senator Tom Connally (Dem-Texas). "We don't need to wait until the fire burns our feet".

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Rep-Michigan) said he agreed with the President's denunciation "of an appeasement peace" but added:—

"A demand for a statement of war objectives from belligerents would make it undeniably clear whether no other peace is possible. If so, there is clear need for all possible aid to England under the policy to which we are already committed".

Trenton and District

Airman Saves Trenton Youth From Drowning

Aircraftman J. Lillie Plunges Into Ice-Covered Water to Bring Boy to Shore

Trenton, December 30.—Plunging into the icy waters of the Trent River fully clothed, Leading Aircraftman John Lillie of the Royal Canadian Air Force, saved the life of Percy Simpson, aged 11, from drowning on Saturday afternoon.

The heroic rescue was witnessed by a large number of spectators who gathered on the bridge and the shore of the river and when the two were brought ashore many personally congratulated the young airman.

Aircraftman Lillie was walking across the Trent Bridge, when he noticed the boy who was playing on the ice, plunge into the icy waters. Without hesitation, he rushed to the bank doffing his overcoat as he ran and crawled out onto the dangerously weak ice to the hole where the boy disappeared. Just as he reached the hole he noticed the boy come up at a hole a few feet south and lunged for him. As he did the ice gave way and both were plunged under but the airman maintained his hold on the boy and struggled to the surface.

Some of the spectators in the meantime had obtained a rope and threw it out to the airman. As soon as the two reached ahore, the boy was rushed to a nearby building where he was given artificial respiration by Bernard York.

Wishing no praise the airman disappeared from the scene and was not located until some time later in an apartment changing his clothing.

The boy was allowed to go home after he had received first aid treatment from Dr. E. A. McQuade. Today, he is none the worse from his episode and is around playing with his friends as if nothing had happened.

Spectators Praise Hero

Aircraftman John Lillie came to Trenton only one week ago from a western air station. His home is in Wallaceburg, Ontario.

In spite of the fact that he wished no praise or publicity for his deed, many spectators who witnessed the rescue were high in praise of the noble work. Sgt. W. Probert commenting on the rescue stated that it was wonderful the way the young man went out onto that ice after the boy.

"I didn't do anything more than anyone else would have done", commented Aircraftman Lillie. "While in the Scouts and in the Airforce I have been taught to aid others and that was all I did. I don't see why there has to be any publicity on the matter at all".

Mrs. Simpson, mother of the rescued boy and five other children, who has herself been very sick, praised the airman highly. "Thank God, he came along", she said, yesterday. "He is a very brave man and it is only because he was brave that my son is alive today".

This is second time within two days that one of her sons have been pulled from the river. Billy, age 14, was hauled from the river, after breaking through the ice on Friday afternoon but he had only fallen into water three feet deep. Two chums playing with him at the time pulled him out.

Current Strong

Percy was out on the ice only a few feet south of the bridge, where the water is about 18 feet deep and at a point where the current is very strong as it rushed between the shore and the cement abutment used as a rest for the swinging portion of the bridge. Had he not been rescued in the nick of time, he would have been swept under a solid thickness of ice covering the river mouth and the Bay of Quinte.

Percy himself would only say that he was very thankful to the airman for saving his life. "I hope that when I grow up I will be able to join the airforce and be as brave as the airman who saved my life".

Only fifteen minutes before, Percy had plunged through the ice an unidentified man had plunged through the ice only a few feet away but he managed to crawl to safety. Some men nearby had aided him by using a large sign that was on the river bank.

Radio Helps in Arrest

Trenton police radio has already aided the police force in apprehending misdemeanors. On Saturday night, a call was received at the station from a downtown store, that a man was following two ladies. The call was placed over the radio and within a minute the radio car appeared on the scene and Bernard Chase of Gananoque, was apprehended.

UNOFFICIAL JAPANESE SOURCES SEE MORE U.S. AID TO CHINA

Tokyo, Dec. 30 (AP).—Unofficial Japanese sources said today they considered President Roosevelt's speech a commitment to further assistance to China.

The President's reference to China's "great defence" against Japan was interpreted as an indication that Washington already has decided on additional support for Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's government and is not disposed toward conciliatory conversations on the forthcoming arrival in Washington of the new Japanese Ambassador, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura.

Churchill Works An Average of 17 Hours a Day

By HUGH WAGNON

London, Dec. 30 (AP).—Winston Churchill is giving full measures of the "blood and tears, toil and sweat" which he told Britain were all he had to offer when he became the empire's war leader. The vigorous 66-year-old prime minister lives to win the war.

He bends every moment to war service, wasting hardly a minute or thought on anything but that paramount object to which he is devoting the wide experience, great talent and contagious energy with which he seems able to endow the whole empire. He works an average of seventeen hours a day at this task.

Mr. Churchill keeps ten secretaires on the run, confers daily with the war cabinet and other key ministers. As his own defence minister, he keeps in closest touch with developments and strategy in every corner of the empire, every phase of the imperial war effort.

From the time he arises—usually about 7 a.m.—he expends his prodigious energy without a let-up until he finally gets to bed, generally about midnight, but sometimes as late as 3 a.m.

There is no time in his crowded day for amusements. Even his enjoyment of the parliamentary give-and-take in the House of Commons has been curtailed. Frequently he is absent, leaving his deputy, Clement R. Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, to answer questions in his behalf. Mr. Churchill has little time for ordinary family life but he sees Mrs. Churchill every day and the rest of the family "as much as possible". There are frequent family dinners.

Since even a prime minister must eat, he makes use of luncheons and dinners to see many persons he otherwise could not accommodate on his calendar.

Sees for Himself

Many people, however, see him every day—"too many to remember," a secretary says. The War Cabinet meets before luncheon, and a parade of generals, admirals, air marshals and intelligence officers lasts throughout the afternoon and often into the night.

Mr. Churchill gets no regular exercise except that of striding about Whitehall or walking tirelessly on tours of inspection of fighting commands, defense areas and bombed sectors. He wants to see for himself.

To sum it up, an aide says: "He works like a beaver; duty gives him no alternative."

Incessant work has even forced a reduction of the Prime Minister's cigar smoking. He now consumes about six long Havanas a day instead of the ten or dozen in less urgent times.

As First Lord of the Admiralty—the post he held during the first Great War and resumed at the start of the present hostilities—Mr. Churchill lived at Admiralty House a few steps from the Admiralty itself. A telephone stood beside his bed so that he could be informed constantly of anything extraordinary. He still keeps a telephone at his bedside—but where that is has been kept a State secret.

His day begins with a cup of tea, followed by the usual hearty English breakfast—porridge, kippers or kidney (both of which are unrationed) and eggs, topped off with toast and marmalade and coffee.

Then he reads the morning papers, digests despatches and correspondence. Some sifting is done by his confidential secretaries, but he keeps this to a minimum because he likes to know everything that is going on.

A voracious reader in peacetime, he now confines his reading to these chores, perusing nothing beyond official communications and newspapers.

Displeasure Awesome

He disposes of an immense mail with lightning rapidity. A master of organization, he tackles the papers systematically dictating terse general instructions to two women secretaries and leaving secondary matters to subordinates. On matters involving major policy he digs to the bottom himself, evolving minute instructions which he insists must be followed to the letter.

Mr. Churchill employed as many as half a dozen secretaries during his private life, so it is easy to see why he would need ten of them now. He generally is considered easy to work with, but his temper flares awesomely when he is displeased.

He is ordinarily conservative in routine matters, but liberal in outlook, and likes to slash "red tape" when it hampers direct action.

In an effort to speed tedious governmental machinery, he instituted a system of stickers bearing the label "for action this day"— which means exactly that. And woe to those who fail to act at once on documents bearing this urgent command.

The two women secretaries take turns in keeping up with his dictation, which is apt to erupt any time. He has been known suddenly to call them at a late hour and start a rush of work.

He speaks rapidly, meanwhile breaking matchsticks into bits and throwing them about on the floor. Sometimes he jumps to his feet to emphasize a point, then bobbles back into his chair.

Roast Beef Favorite Dish.

At table, he eats "what he can"—and his taste is catholic. One of his favorite dishes is famous: "The roast beef of old England." He also enjoys a thick steak, rare.

At luncheon with a group, he slouches comfortably in a chair, eats and talks at the same time. He generally monopolizes talk during a meal if he is interested. If bored, he squirms restlessly in oppressive silence, alarming to dinner partner or hostess. But his quick smile always wins forgiveness.

He seldom sees the press. He made an exception for one United States correspondent, with whom he talked for thirty minutes off the record, and the subsequent uproar from the Empire Press representatives in London caused him to grant an off-record luncheon for all.

His secretaries are almost as inaccessible as Mr. Churchill himself, for they respect his wishes and fear his displeasure.

Although as a professional journalist he has written about many personalities, he dislikes personality items about himself.

As for hobbies which might lighten his day, he has none in wartime —unless war strategy could be called a hobby. It has been his lifetime interest.

He showed such a talent as a lad in playing with toy soldiers that his father sent him to Sandhurst, as the first step in the fabulous Churchill career as soldier, war correspondent, historian and statesman.

MASSEY-HARRIS CO. PRES. DIES

T. A. Russell, Prominent Industrialist, Dies of Pneumonia and Heart Condition

Toronto, Dec. 30—(CP)—Thomas Alexander Russell, president and director of the Massey-Harris Company, Limited, prominent in many other Canadian industries and closely associated with the nation's war production, is dead.

Ill less than a week, Mr. Russell died at his home here yesterday at the age of 63. He was stricken with pneumonia last Monday and a heart condition from which he had suffered at times during the last six years complicated the illness.

In addition to his association with the Massey-Harris Company, Mr. Russell was president of Russell Industries, Limited; Canada Cycle and Motor Company; Canadian Acme Screw and Gear, Limited, and Galt Machine Screw, Limited.

He was vice-president of the Monarch Knitting Company, Limited, and a director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Canadian National Exhibition, Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada, Canada Cement Company, Toronto General Trusts Corporation, Canadian International Paper Company, Canadian Airways, Arkwright Mutual Fire Insurance Company and Underwood, Elliott, Fisher, Limited.

Mr. Russell also was a governor of the University of Toronto, a governor of St. Andrew's College, a trustee of the Toronto General Hospital, a trustee of the Banting Institute and a past president of the Royal Canadian Institute.

He was born at Exeter, Ont., the son of Thomas and Mary Fowlie Russell. He was educated in the Exeter public school, the College Institute at St. Marys and the University of Toronto. After graduating with a Bachelor of Arts degree we was awarded a fellowship in Political Science and lectured at the university for a year.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Olive Lillian Brown Russell, two sons, Thomas B., and John A., and one daughter, Mrs. W. A. Burkart Jr.

CANADA'S EFFORT PRAISED BY AVERY

Service Rendered by Largest and Industrially Most Developed of Dominions Praised in Detail

London, Dec. 30—(CP)—Canada's contribution to the war effort is far greater in this war than in the first Great War, L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India, said in an address at Newmarket.

"In any picture of the Empire's effort we must not leave out that great Dominion of the west, Canada, the largest and industrially the most developed of them all," Mr. Amery said.

"Canada produces today, not only the equipment of her ground forces, but airplanes of many types, ships, mechanical and armored vehicles on an enormous scale. Her troops are over here in no small numbers already straining at the leash for an opportunity to get at the enemy.

NEW RATION REGULATIONS

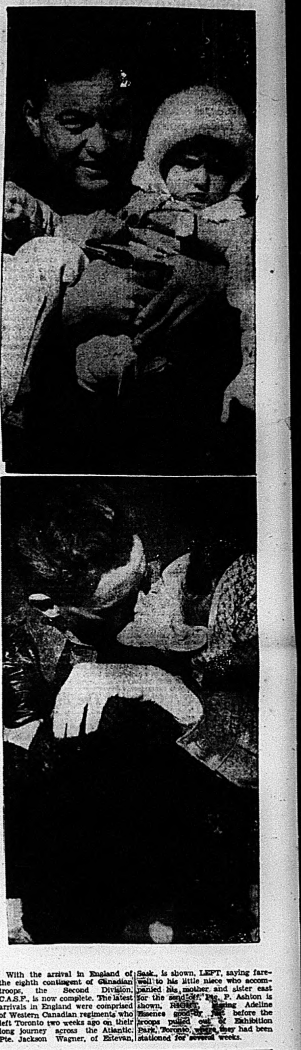
Rome, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Ministry of Agriculture announced today it was drafting new rationing regulations to be issued soon, without indicating whether changes were contemplated in the amounts of rationed foods.

The announcement, made in advising consumers on procedure for obtaining the present rations for the first half of January, followed naming of Giuseppe Tassinari, Minister of Agriculture, as Supreme Dictator of Italian dinner tables.

He was chosen under a new law which decrees death penalties in extreme cases for food hoarding or destruction of prime materials.

MAN GIVEN STRAPPING

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 30 (CP) — Convicted of assaulting his wife from whom he has been estranged for some time, Clifford Neadow, farm laborer of Lyndhurst, was sentenced today to three months by Magistrate Wright. In addition he will receive five strokes of the strap during his term of imprisonment.



With the arrival in England of the eighth contingent of Canadian troops, the Second Division, C.A.S.F., is now complete. The latest arrivals in England were comprised of Western Canadian regiments who left Toronto two weeks ago on their long journey across the Atlantic. Pte. Jackson Wagner, of Estevan, Sask., is shown, LEFT, saying farewell to his little niece who accompanied his mother and sister east for the send-off. Pte. P. Ashton is shown, RIGHT, [illegible] Adeline Essence good-by just before the troops pulled out of Exhibition Park, Toronto, where they had been stationed for several weeks.

Plenty of Action on N. H. L. Fronts as Leafs and Rangers Win and Lose by Same Score

Conny Smythe Fined $100 in New York for Stepping Out on Ice to Argue

ROUGH AT MONTREAL

Pat Egan of Amerks Draws Match Penalty, Stiff Fine and Suspension for Fighting

By JACK MITCHELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Even with the club staging a characteristic dazzling dash in the early part of the National Hockey League, things just couldn't seem like old times for Toronto Maple Leafs until Manager Connelius J. Smythe really got into the swing of his scene-stealing antics.

Compared to his old umpire, crowd and opponent-baiting self, Conny exhibited clam-like tendencies while the Leafs were building up a wide first-place margin. It took the recent Toronto slump to heat him to a boiling point reached while the Leafs split a pair of games with New York Rangers.

There was action alpenty on other N.H.L. fronts during the week-end, with the Canadiens blanking New York Americans 3-0 in Montreal and the second-place Detroit Red Wings defeating Chicago Black Hawks, 2-1. But not even in the turbulent Canadiens - Americans clash did it equal the one-man show staged by Smythe.

In both matches, Smythe stole the scenes as the Leafs snapped a four-game winless streak with a 3-2 Saturday night victory over the Rangers in Toronto and then lost by an identical score in New York last night. After arguing with the officials and berating the Rangers, he capped the show by saying he would not pay a $100 fine tacked on him.

Smythe Incurs $100 Fine

The fine was incurred by Smythe for stepping on the ice to argue with Referee Mickey Ion after a fight between New York's Phil Watson and Lex Chisholm of Toronto in the New York game. Smythe flared his refusal to pay it to a reporter after the game, claiming he had just stepped on the ice to attract Ion's attention.

The argument started in a first period period during which Clint Smith and Neil Colville scored to put Rangers into a 2-1 lead after Hank Goldup had counted for Toronto. Both Smythe and the second frame were eventless, but Mac Colville nullified Syl Apps' counter in the last session for a victory that regained fifth place in the standings for the Rangers.

The match, played to a crowd of 15,562, followed an equally argumentative game in Toronto in which the Leafs gained their first victory since Dec. 15. The Leafs came from two goals down on second-period counters by Apps and Billy Taylor after Babe Pratt and Bryan Hextall had opened the scoring for Rangers. Chisholm won the game for Toronto with the only tally of the last session.

Ordered Away From Bench

The main altercation arose from the Symthian habit of parading the Toronto rink, popping up at odd points. Coach Frank Boucher protested to the officials that Smythe was popping up too often behind the Rangers bench to annoy the players and a lively argument resulted before Smythe was ordered to watch the match from some other spot.

The $100 fine later incurred by Smythe was one of two handed out during the week-end. The other went to Jack Egan, rugged Americans defenceman, for popping Ken Reardon of Montreal over the head Saturday night as the Canadiens took over sixth place with their home triumph over the Amerks.

Egan drew a match penalty as well as the fine for opening a gash in Reardon's head that required four stitches. Reardon, who drew a five-minute banishment for fighting with Egan after the incident, returned to action later, however, while Egan's absence weakened the New York attack for 20 minutes before a substitute was permitted for him.

Gardiner Earns Shutout

The Canadiens had opened a 1-0 lead on a first-period goal by Elmer Lach and they increased the margin while helping goalie Bert Gardiner to his first shutout after the second-period arguments. Rookie Jack Adams and Polly Drouin both scored in the final session while the Amerks were still playing short-handed.

None of the disputes extended to the Detroit match, where only two minor penalties were given as a crowd of 7,679 watched the Red Wings protect second position by defeating the Black Hawks.

The three tallies were spread evenly over each of the three periods. Bill Thoms scored for Chicago in the first frame but Sid Abel evened the count. Halfway through the final session Wares got the winning tally.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Syl Apps of Toronto Maple Leafs picked up two goals during the week-end to move into second place alone among the National Hockey League's individual point-getters behind Bill Cowley of Boston, meanwhile idle. Leading in actual goals, New York Rangers' Bryan Hextall added one more to increase his total to 13 but dropped into third position in the Big Seven. Phil Watson of the Rangers gained an assist to tie Boston's Eddie Wiseman for the next place while Gordie Drillon of Toronto was held pointless in sixth position. Neil Colville, Rangers, moved into a three-way tie for the last berth with one goal.

Cleveland Continues Winning Ways at Expense of Indianapolis

(By the Canadian Press)

One of the two early leaders in the American Hockey League's twin divisions has dropped by the wayside but the other, Cleveland Barons, showed no signs today of a forthcoming slackening in their lengthy strides.

Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians opened up an even wider lead in the league's eastern section than did the Barons in the western division during the early weeks. A spurt by New Haven Eagles recently saw them pass the slumping Indians, however, and the Eagles increased their margin by walloping Springfield 3-1 last night.

Bill Cook's Barons meanwhile stretched their lead to six points by defeating Indianapolis Capitals 5-0, while the second place club, Hershey Bears, were beaten 8-4 by Buffalo Bisons. In the only other game last night, Providence Reds gained a 4-3 decision over Pittsburgh Hornets.

Weakened by the loss of Fred Hunt and Alfred Thurier, still leading the league's scorers, to the National League New York Americans, Springfield looked like just another hockey club as they lost to the Eagles in New Haven. All the scoring in the game came in the initial period.

At Indianapolis meanwhile, Cleveland was backed by a brilliant goaling performance by Jimmy Franks for their shutout victory over the Capitals. Four of the Cleveland goals came in the initial period.

Buffalo scored in every period for their home triumph over the second-place Hershey Bears of the western section.

At Providence, the Reds rallied for four tallies in the final frame to take the decision by one goal over Pittsburgh.

In Saturday's games, Murdo McKay scored two goals to lead Philadelphia Ramblers to a 4-2 victory at home over Pittsburgh while Hershey Bears rallied for two goals late in the third period for a 3-3 overtime tie with Cleveland Barons.

N. H. L. STARS

Bert Gardiner, Canadiens, who turned in a steady performance for his first shutout as the Canadiens beat New York Americans, 3-0, in Montreal Saturday night.

Lex Chisholm, Toronto, whose third-period counter was the winning goal in the Leafs 3-2 victory over the Rangers in Toronto Saturday night.

Mac Colville, Rangers, who helped the Rangers reverse the decision against Leafs by scoring the winning tally in their 3-2 victory in New York last night.

Syl Apps, Toronto, who scored a goal in each game in the Leafs victory and loss against the Rengers during the week-end.

Sid Abel, Detroit, who figured in both goals, scoring one and assisting on the other, as the Red Wings defeated Chicago 2-1 last night.

Bill Thoms, Chicago, who averted a shutout for the Black Hawks with a first-period tally in their loss in Detroit.

CALLING 'EM
Between the Lines

By GEORGE CARVER

A bunch of the boys were whooping it up the other day, not in the conventional manner nor the Robert W. Service style, but threshing out the age-old question of whether the box fighters of today were as good as those of the balmy scrapping days of long ago.

And many and varied were the opinions. Some of the lads opined that the lethal right of the famous Dempsey would send all the Joe Louis's in captivity into peaceful oblivion, while others claimed that the Sepia Slugger's dynamite fists would do the same thing to the Dempseys, the Tunneys, and even the grand old John L. himself.

Be that as it may. The only way to prove the contention is by an impossibility, and that is to throw the boys in the ring and let them battle it out for the satisfaction of the ringside referee.

However, one interesting angle arose from the Hot Stove debate, and that was the claim by a veteran of the squared circle that the fighters of today are going soft. He quoted the famous James J. Corbett as saying the plug-uglies and debonair scrappers of the last two years are nothing more than a bunch of sissies.

They do their roadwork behind the wheels of expensive automobiles; dress like Beau Brummels and figure that a sock in the puss is not worth two on the feet. They couldn't lick their lips, he maintained, much less another fighter.

"Look at Tony Galento" he snorted," the big lug trained on suds, and after every fight loaded himself with beer until the cold gray dawn broke. Can you imagine the immortal Dempsey or Tunney, or any of the rest of the boys doing that. They would faint with shame."

Yet another piped up with the opinion that Dempsey was one of the hardest hitters that ever donned the leather. "One sock from Dempsey and Joe Louis would go out like last year's sweetheart," he said. He grudgingly gave Tunney tribute for his boxing ability, and also for the fact that he can count up to sixteen.

And so on into the night went the argument. The issue however, was still clouded in argumentative fog when the final whistle blew and Joe Louis was still the champ.

Personally, there is no one, in our opinion, on the fistic horizon who can even flick the smile from poker-face Joe. And if his last fight can be judged as a criterion, the Michigan Avenue bomber is doing a bit of slipping himself. It took six rounds of pantomiming to put away McCoy, a chore he should have done in six minutes. In fact the estimable Joe could tie one of those lethal fists behind his back, tie a hanky over his face and take on any six of the present crop of alleged heavyweights.

Billy Conn was given a glimmering chance to wrest the crown from Joe's chocolate pate, but to date has not shown much of anything to warrant laying a couple of hundred on the line.

James J. Corbett says the lads of today won't train. They go into a sort of retirement a few days before a fight, show their muscles and whatnot to a bunch of girls and alleged sparring partners, and then put on a show that would not rate as a preliminary in the good old days. The old fellows had what it takes, trained faithfully, lived right, and as a result were able to stay in the ring for anywhere from 30 to sixty rounds. "Them were the good old days, when men were men and fighters did their scrapping in the ring."

Joe Louis will be champion for a long while yet, unless he retires.

Two Jockeys Tied For National Honors

Los Angeles, Dec. 30—(AP)—Two jockeys sped down the stretch today, neck and neck in the race for 1940 riding honors.

Tied at 285 winners apiece, with two days to go, were Walter Lee Taylor, performing at Florida's tropical park, and Earl Dew, riding at Santa Anita here. No money, but considerable glory, is attached to capturing the national title.

While Taylor was idle, Dew deadlocked the feverish contest Sunday with two triumphs at Agua Caliente Mex., out of nine tries.

The odds today appeared definitely with Taylor. He drew mounts in five of eight races at Tropical, while Dew was down on overnight charts at Santa Anita for only one.

There were plenty of open spots in the other seven races, however, and track followers considered it likely that Dew would be abroad entries in most of them.

There was the chance, too, that some of the other jockeys would toss good prospects his way.

SCORED SIX GOALS

In a game with the Winnipeg Monarchs, young McDonald scored six of the Terriers' seven goals. The Terriers won 7-6.

SKILLED HELP ALWAYS IN DEMAND

All was quiet in employment circles on Monday morning with no takers for the employables listed at the local employment agency. Construction work at the Mountain View airport has not yet commenced in earnest with the only activity being the unloading of lumber at the site while other work which usually takes up the slack of seasonal labor at this time of year seems to likewise be at a standstill for the moment.

The call for skilled help of every nature, especially experienced lathe hands, still continues apace, however, with local industrial plants ever on the lookout for workers of this nature.

Letter to the Editor

Talking and Laughing During Program

Belleville, Dec. 30, 1940

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Dear Sir:

Lieut. Jobson is to be congratulated on his excellent program on Sunday night. I had expected to see the Capitol Theatre jammed to capacity but it was not. Now I know the reason why. The entire program was spoiled by constant talking and laughing. If the parents of Belleville will not teach their children manners, why doesn't our excellent educational system do a little educating?

'Tolerance' Rome-Berlin Axis Limited Says Virginio Gayda

Cited Two Specific Actions Which Would Mean 'Open U.S. Intervention'

SUMMARY GIVEN

Rome, Dec. 30 (AP). — Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor, replied to President Roosevelt's fireside chat today with a declaration that the "tolerance" of the Rome-Berlin axis is limited. He called the president a "man of undeclared war fought against the axis".

Writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, Gayda cited two specific actions which, he said, would mean "open United States intervention for which no excuse could be created."

These steps, which Gayda said would bring the United States close to war, would be any attempt by United States flag ships to force a counter-blockade or the cession to Britain of German and Italian ships now taking refuge in United States harbors.

Fascist political circles professed they found nothing to worry about in Mr. Roosevelt's call for increased United States aid for Britain.

Official comment was withheld, it was said, because weather disturbances interfered with reception of the speech, particularly at the beginning

Without Monday morning newspapers, Italians had to wait until the noon editions of the afternoon press for a 300-word summary of the radio talk distributed by Stefani, Italian News Agency, in which only fifty words were quoted directly from the President's text.

Although the Stefani summary reported President Roosevelt's warning of possible aggressive intentions of the axis powers in the western hemisphere, it failed to mention his reference to "tyranny" and to the "unholy alliance . . . to enslave the human race".

Neither did it report his defence of United States neutrality with its comparison of American arms shipments with Russian oil and Swedish steel shipments to Germany. It likewise ignored his remark that Italians did not know "how soon they will be embraced to death by their allies".

No Comment From Berlin.

Berlin, Dec. 30 (AP). — Official Nazi reaction to President Roosevelt's fireside talk last night is Hitler's own secret and until he breaks his silence no one can say what Germany's attitude will be.

This was the stand put to correspondents attending the daily press conference today.

Those present concluded that the spokesman failed to state reaction because a strict injunction had gone out from the highest quarters that no one in official or semi-official position should say anything for the present.

HUNDREDS

From one roof many big fires could be counted, not considering the small ones.

At street corners and in doorways stood small groups of people, frightened but fascinated. Burning embers filled the sky and the streets ran with water. Windows cracking in the heat sent glass splinters flying through the air.

Masked firemen fought the fires, most of which were in commercial premises. Fire apparatus lined the streets or rushed past in the eerie light, the drivers dodging piled up debris in the roadway.

Cascades of Water.

Streets were lined with thousands of milling people anxious to catch sight of the war's worst fire raid. Whole blocks were barricaded and traffic diverted because dangerous buildings or roadways were littered with debris.

Cascades of water still flowed down the streets, sloshing against hundreds of lines of fire hose.

Mobile canteens crept down the streets to serve hot drinks to the weary firemen, some of whom had been on duty throughout the night of horror.

It was Royal Air Force night fighters that saved London from worse destruction. When the German bombers first flew over the city and dropped fire bombs they were subjected to a heavy barrage by ground defences.

While the glow of fires began to light up the sky the guns ceased firing and there was an unusual lull. Then the roar of fighter planes and the rat-a-tat-tat of machine-gun fire was heard high in the sky.

Fighter pilots were swooping in to smash and scatter the German formations.

While firemen and police battled the flames, the R.A.F. patrolled the skies and gave them a chance to work unmolested by the high explosive bombs usually thrown into a fire area.

Ringed With Fires

St. Paul's for a time was ringed by fires and firemen used its yard as a base for hoses and fire engines in fighting blazes on Ludgate Hill. Several incendiary bombs hit the cathedral itself, but were extinguished.

One correspondent described the scene:—

"Thousands of firemen, police and civilians battled to stem the onward tide of the fierce flames. Dawn found the streets covered with a web of hose.

"But historic St. Paul's was standing. Buildings had to be dynamited to save it . . . Thousands of people hustling to work glanced at the blackened dome that dominated London's skyline and smiled a little."

The Cheapside district was blackened. Building after building became nothing but scarred shells.

At one time during the fire, the roof of the Guildhall was a vast bonfire. The building, which houses the corporation of the city of London was begun in 1411 and completed in 1430. It was damaged by the great fire of 1666 and rebuilt in 1866. Most of the historic art treasures in the building were saved.

Workers at the Press Association tried to save St. Bride's Church, which is in a courtyard nearby, but incendiaries gained ground too quickly and the building was burned out. St. Vedast Church in Foster Lane suffered a similar fate.

LOST SUNRISE

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 20

But according to his irregular standards he maintained a strict rule. He would not owe money. Gwen's bills must be paid every month to the last nickel. Van would defend a dishonest client or base his defense upon a purely technical legal flaw, but only because he considered these practices honest. And Gwen was confident that when he told her that there was no other evidence in the world, as far as he knew, against Sheila except the note he had given Gwen to destroy, and promised her, as he solemnly did, that under no circumstances would he ever reveal to another soul what he knew of Sheila, he would keep his word.

They drove down to see June on a cold still New Year's day, and Gwen sat beside the bed of a delicate, shy, asthmatic child and put her hand over June's and smiled at her. Afterward they drove on to Kenthill and had dinner and spent the night with Gwen's people. The next day they returned to Sacramento, and then life began to go on evenly and quietly, and Gwen wondered somethimes if she were asleep or awake.

She wrote Sheila often, and often to her mother. At Easter June came to them for ten days. At first she was shy with Gwen, and almost equally silent and scared with her father. But they devoted themselves to amusing her and spoiling her, and long before her vacation was ended she had grown passionately attached to her stepmother.

Gwen asked the Trumbull granddaughter Alma to come upstairs for a party luncheon of meat cakes in buns and ice cream, and afterward took both small girls to the movies. She let June help her with her cooking and told her stories, and June wept when the time came to go.

Gwen liked June. The child was pretty in a delicate, gentle way, affectionate and dependent. They planned together for the summer vacation.

"We'll go swimming, June, and we'll have Alma come upstairs, and make candy—"

June glowed with ecstasy at these ideas, and begged her father to let her grandmother know at once that she was to come to Sacramento when school closed. But Van, to Gwen's surprise, was rather cool.

When June had gone, Gwen noticed that her husband was in a bad mood. He refused to answer her first concerned inquiries, and Gwen, tired and impatient on a hot April afternoon, thought that she would ignore him, let him sulk, go for a long walk alone. She was not well, and to have to indulge him in one of his scenes seemed at the moment too much to bear.

But to go away would be only to aggravate his mood; the tiresome explanations and apologies would only wait until she returned and then be longer and more bitter. So she coaxed him for several minutes, and finally won from him a dignified:

"Well, I suppose it isn't very pleasant to have you setting my daughter against me. You two laughing at me secretly, planning everything with no reference whatsoever to me, making me feel in the way in my own house!"

"Van, what nonsense!"

"It's not nonsense at all!" he said, suddenly furious. "You thought it would be a swell joke on me to get June away from me! All right. All right. But it will be a hell of a long time before she comes here again! I don't care if she never comes!"

"Van, she's your child. Of course I wanted her to like me—"

A great deal of this, and more shouting, and then Gwen in tears, lying limp on the couch, and Van passionately repentant, cursing the Chinese boy for being so slow with Mrs. Bellamy's iced tea, kneeling beside her to dry her eyes with his delicate, beautifully monogrammed handkerchief, begging her to forgive her stupid brute of a husband, because, after all, love for her had been at the bottom of all the trouble.

Afterward, in the slow dusk of the Sunday afternoon, he went to the piano, and for an hour or more Gwen lay passive, listening to the inspired music, wondering, wondering. She was the one woman in the world who could never be free of her husband; that had been nominated in the unwritten bond that had first bound her to him. His possessive, his jealous love would never let her go; she could never ask him to let her go. In burying Sheila's secret she had made no terms; she had promised to be as good a wife to him as it lay in her power to be.

"I wonder if you'll be jealous of your son, Van?" she asked, when he came to sit beside her later that afternoon.

"I will be if you make a fool of yourself about him! He conceded promptly. "If you want him in our room, if you won't leave him nights, and spoil our trips worrying about him, I certainly will make a scene."

"I hope he's a girl," she said. "You'd not think a girl worth worrying about."

"I shall be very much disappointed if he is," Van stated firmly.

"Van, you're so silly!" she said with a week laugh.

"I'm not silly at all. I love my wife."

"Sheila dearest," wrote Gwen, "In October I will present Mr. B., as the Victorian ladies put it, with a pledge of my affections—"

Her pen stopped. The day was very hot; her hand was slippery as she wrote. She must be careful not to say anything indiscreet to Sheila. Sheila hadn't been at all enthusiastic over Van as a brother-in-law, and Van always managed to see Sheila's answers to Gwen's letters, sooner or later. Sometimes he read them before Gwen did, if one arrived while she was still asleep in the morning, or happened to come his way before she saw it.

"Lovely letter from Sheila," he would say. "You were asleep and I wanted the news before I went to the office. Mind if I read it?"

"Not at all, Van," The slightest deviation from gracious agreement meant a scene, and what was the use of scenes?"

Writing to Sheila was one of her luxuries, and now she was often tempted to write as often as twice a week. But some undefined, vague sense of loyalty to Van prevented her. Sheila must not suspect that she was lonely, that she had hours upon empty hours to fill. So instead Gwen went alone to the movies, took what walks her sudden languor and the oppressive spring heat made possible, stopped at the library for a talk with Polly Henderson, whom Van didn't like.

The Bakers had by this time happily established themselves in an apartment in Wardman Park in Washington. Sheila wrote detailed descriptions of it, and at their first social contacts in the enchanting capital. They had dined with a congressman and his wife at Chevy Chase; they had met Senator Milgrim and Justice Martin; they were just back from the White House reception.

"Gwen, it seems too much happiness," Sheila's letters said. "It's so thrilling here, everyone so interesting and so fine, tea at the legations and embassies, and ourselves really in it, really belonging here! We both simply adore it, and Grace is the most wonderful cook of all time, and Millie wonderful with my Fanny. Deep snow always thrills me too, going about to afternoon parties with Link over real white cottony snow, wearing my new furs, having everyone so nice to me! Do get Van to run for something and we'll do everything together!"

Gwen's face was sometimes sober and wistful as she read; she was not in the best of health and spirits these days. But she made her answers resolutely cheerful. In the letter telling of her own coming motherhood she congratulated Sheila upon the birth of a son.

"And tell your Peter that he will soon have a little western cousin," she wrote. "Oh, Sheila, if I could be with you these days! What fun to see your tiny new one, and remind my adored Fanny of her Aunt Gwen! My own baby — it sounds so strange! And yet I've always wanted him, and ought to take him in my stride as it were.

"I call him 'him' because Van of course wants a son. Having a daughter, he naturally feels more interested in the opposite sex. And what an opposite sex it is, my darling sister!

"Mather of course will want me to come home for the baby, or she will want to come here. The doctor and Van and the nurse all say firmly that the sensible thing is for her to stay at home and not agitate herself and me at the finish. But it's all so far ahead that I'm not worrying. I'd love to be with Mother, of course, and I'd like to have her here. But anything would be better than to have to keep the peace between Mother and Van while I was lying in a hospital bed."

"Isn't it funny, Sheila," she wrote in another letter, "that for years and years I thought money trouble was not only the worst in the world but I thought the Washburtons were elected never to get away from it. And here you and I are talking about our cooks and our babies and what we hope to do in the summer as calm as you please! I keep very tight on my budget, but almost every night Van brings me home a present. Night before last it was six darling handkerchiefs with 'Honey' embroidered on them; he calls me that sometimes. Peter came up for another night and Van was simply darling to him, so I have no trouble at all except this murderous hot weather that makes me feel as limp as a rag."

Sheila, her own life one series of fresh joys and satisfactions, read between the lines of these letters and worried about them.

"Link, she's already regretting that she married that—that bully," said Sheila. "He wants a son, does he? And he and Mother don't keep the peace? And money trouble isn't the worst in the world; how does she know that? and 'what an opposite sex it is!'I tell you, Link, she's already regretting that she married Van. I know it! She was always in love with Dick Latimer. And I'll never know why, and I'll never forgive her for throwing herself away on a man like Van! Mother hates him. She says he makes her feel uncomfortable. Now look at this, Link," Sheila went on, looking up from a second reading of the letter. "'Van was simply darling to Peter!' What does that indicate? Why, that she was afraid he wouldn't be darling to Peter. And why shouldn't he be?"

"It was her own choice, Sheila," Link said. His own life was so brimming with content that it was hard for him to imagine any trouble at all in this mirculous relationship that brought a beautiful loving woman into a man's life.

Those who could, fled from the town when the hot weather came, but Gwen stayed because her house was comparatively cool, and she felt too lazy to make the effort to go away. She and Van went to Tahoe for one week end, a week end of cool swimming and cool meals and general bliss for Gwen.

July seemed endless. August came in on a blast of heat. Gwen longed for her mother, longed with a physical ache for Sheila, for a few hours of the old laughing freedom, for the days when she had walked downtown in Kenthill feeling that there were wings on her feet, with the sweet cool fogs of midsummer drifting in and out among the trees, shutting away the sun.

Sometimes she cried, she hardly knew why, but there was never any trace of tears when Van came home. He would be jealous even of her tears, and she could give him no reason for them that would reassure him.

"Whew! It's hot," she said aloud every little while. The days blended into each other; their only break was Sunday, when she and Van always tried to plan something cool. But he was working on a case for a San Francisco firm—now—a case important to him because he suspected that they were going to ask him to come in with them as a partner some day, and often he worked all day Sunday at the office or in the law library.

When the case was finished they hoped to get away for a fortnight to Huntington Lake, in the cool high Sierras, but on the burning August Tuesday when at last he sent the results of his research to San Francisco Van came home early with news for Gwen.

"I'm off for the Lone Star Mine tonight, my dear. They want me there. It's your patent again. I'm flying at six."

"Van, you'll spend more than we get, telephoning and going to them!"

"Well, let's hope not. Anyway, I've just wired Moore I'll go tonight. I'm catching the Overland. I'll be back as soon as I can."

It was almost the first time Gwen had been alone since her marriage. The house, the world, her soul were filled with peace.

"I wish," she thought half aloud, "I could see Mother while Van's gone,' She had not seen her mother for weeks.

Van was to be gone for at least ten days. Her mother—her home—were only seventy miles away. On the following morning, in the blazing heat of eleven o'clock, Gwen started for Kenthill, her packed bag beside her, her heart singing.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 30 —(AP)— The buying side was the most popular in today's stock market and leading issues were lifted fractions to a point or so. Gains and activity were at the best in the forenoon. There was some let-down both in volume and prices near the fourth hour.

Stocks in front at one time or another included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, U.S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Union Carbide, Kennecott, American Smelting, Western Union, Santa Fe, Westinghouse, Timken - Detroit Axle, Owens-Illinois and U.S. Gypsum.

Canadian Pacific, Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagram advanced fractions. Other Canadian issues were inactive.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 30—(CP) — Gold and industrial issues posted minor losses on Toronto exchange today. Base metals and Western Oils held firm. Trading was light with 105,000 shares trading.

Ford A turned heavy and sold off 3-8 to 14 3-4 and losses of a point or more came through for Bell Telephone, Consumers Gas and Canada Malting.

Preston, off 15 cents to 3.35, was a soft spot in Golds. East Malartic, Upper Canada and Naybob weakened moderately and Pickle Crow, Francoeur and Wright-Hargreaves were stronger. Preston firmed 2 to 1.53.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, December 30.—(CP)—Cattle trade was slow on the livestock market here up to mid-session today with prices about steady. Veal salves, lambs and sheep were firm. No price was established for hogs. All cattle were sold last week.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing service were—Cattle, 2,520, calves 460, hogs 1,150, sheep and lambs 280.

Prices in the cattle section were—butcher steers and heifers $6 to $8.25; a few weighty steers $7 to $9; butcher cows $4.50 to $6; canners and cutters $3 to $4; butcher bulls $5.40 to $6 bologna bulls $4.75 to $5.25; fed calves $9.00 to $10.

Calves sold at $11 to $11.50 for choice with a few tops at $12 and common light vealers selling downward to $6. Grass calves sold at $5.50.

Lambs sold at $11 for good ewes and wethers and $7.50 to $10 for other grades.

Sheep sold at $2.50 to $6.

Hogs sold previously at $11 dressedweight and $8.25 liveweight.

Montreal, Dec. 30 —(CP)— Prices held barely steady on Montreal livestock markets today, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Hogs and calves were firm, lambs a shade easier and cattle trading was draggy.

Receipts: Cattle 711, calves 506, hogs 1,263, sheep and lambs 1,035.

Good steers brought $8-$8.50, medium $6.75-$8 and common $5-$6.75. Heifers were $4-$7, good cows $5.50-$5.75, mediums $4.50-$5.25 and common $3.75-$4.50. Canners and cutters mostly $3-$3.50. Bulls ranged from $3.75-$6; good ones were $5-$6 and commons $4-$4.50.

Calves were steady, quality considered. Good quality veals brought $11.50-$12, mediums $10.50-$11 and common light down to $9. Drinkers were $5.50-$8.50 and grassers $4.50-$5, averaging close to $4.75.

COMMUTING

breaks in the services on the immediate line and connecting lines. Only eight or ten entries usually cover the early morning situation, but this time the signals are against us. Somewhere nearby some debris of the night has not yet been cleared away. Both district and Picadilly Lines are tied up. They may be running in an hour or two but we cannot wait.

So, instead, we are herded on an emergency bus for Marble Arch, beyond which point the subway is running, so the bus loader says.

No Planes Then.

It may be just as well we didn't catch the Picadilly Line back at Hammersmith today. That ride means a short bus ride at the office end and it was just the other day that slow movement in the tunnel made me miss a bus I sometimes take. A bomb caught it messily a few minutes later.

The day is sunny and bracing. I am rather glad to be on the bus. There are no planes in sight, nor any sound of them. If they are in the area they must be at a distant end of it. I decide, when I reach Marble Arch, to take another surface bus to the office to enjoy the morning and avoid three blocks of walking.

I wait beside a shoe store, which still has plenty of plate glass windows, for the right bus. It seems slow coming. Then, suddenly, out of the upper blue, comes a swelling scream, a whoose, a jarring explosion. A second one follows. The sound of planes overhead reaches me. Though the bombs have fallen two blacks away something takes the appeal out of the nipping air and sunshine and I walk briskly up the street and duck into the dismal bowels of the earth, content to ride the tunnel 100 feet down and later grab a steel-domed taxi for that three blocks to the office. And so arrive, on time in spite of it all.

This is just a true picture of a Londoner going to work. My case is different from that of many of my friends only because I have more choices to make, more cards to play. During the blitz so far I have used all the six available routes and various combinations of them.

I congratulate myself that the trip which normally takes 25 minutes has never yet taken more than 90.

I also knock wood at this point.

Confusion Reigns In Butter Prices

Pegging of wholesale butter prices as of December 12 last, as a wartime measure, has caused confusion among customers, dealers and producers in the Belleville district. Today (Monday) merchants are still charging from 38c to 40c per pound for No. 1 creamery butter, stating that so far there had been no change in price due to the pegged levels. It was expected however that prices would be adjusted to the new level sometime this week.

The wholesale price of No. 1 butter to the retailer dropped to 36c from the high of 37 1-2c which was effective last week, but this is still 1 1-2c higher than the price as of December 12th, when butter was wholesaling at 34 1-2c. Creamery heads stated today that the pegged price of 34 1-2c was to come effective on December 28.

Just how the price pegging will affect the farmer and the producer has still not been determined. One prominent dairymen was heard stating on Saturday that the pegging of wholesale butter would mean the dealers would have to pay less for butter fat and that this in turn might cause a slight falling off in production. A merchant was heard explaining that the reduction of price would not get the desired result as consumers would not be tempted to conserve butter as they would were it more expensive.

Dairy butter sold at two pounds for 75c on the city market Saturday morning, but vendors were of the opinion that the pegged price would result in the price being reduced to at least 35c per pound.

Butter Dealers Await Clarification on Price

Toronto, Dec. 30 —(CP)— Wholesale butter trade was at a standstill here today the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Dealers have not yet determined exactly what effect the pegging of butter prices will have on all branches of the trade, it was stated here. Pending their determination of this, they are remaining out of the market.

Toronto—Toronto's butter market languished in a state of near-chaos Saturday as local dealers waited in vain for some enlightenment as to the operation of Ottawa's new price control.

Stunned by the suddenness of the Government's decision to peg the wholesale price of butter at the maximum level which prevailed last Dec. 12, brokers were at a loss to know how to carry on their business. Biggest question mark bothering the trade was what the Government meant by "wholesale price." Nobody seemed to know which was to be fixed, the price paid by wholesalers to producers for creamery solids or the price paid by retailers to wholesalers on creamery prints.

Most dealers assumed that it was the solids price that was to be pegged. But buyers and sellers alike declined to make a move until the situation was clarified. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board had announced on Friday that the new order was to take effect on Saturday, but the week-end arrived without any individual Toronto dealer receiving written notice of the decree or instructions as to how to make it effective. Consequently, no solids were sold on the Toronto market all day Saturday, and no quotations on them were available.

Canada Packers sold a few boxes of first-grade creamery prints at 38c to 38½c on Saturday. The company announced, however, that on Monday the price on prints would range from 36½c to 37c.

There was confusion, too, between retail storekeepers and customers. Some consumers went shopping with the expectation that butter prices would be down 3 cents on Saturday. Retailers, who had bought butter from wholesalers at high prices, had no intention, of course, of selling their stock to the consumer at a loss, and the price to the public remained unchanged.

Eggs were steady. Trading was quiet, with buyers displaying caution. Sales were mainly in small quantities. New, large current-make cheese was also unchanged on the wholesale market at a nominal range of 15¼c to 15¼c. No cheese sales were reported.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, Dec. 29—(CP)—Produce market prices here Saturday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter—Unquoted. Receipts for the week 6,163 boxes, compared with 2,207 a year ago.

Eggs—Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price: A-large, 33c; A-medium, 31c; A-pullets, 28c. Receipts for the week 4,598 cases, compared with 5,022 a year ago.

NO ATTEMPT MADE

St. Paul's, menaced before by delayed-action bombs and fires was saved when firemen, working through a hail of explosives which killed some of their number, prevented flames from spreading from neighboring buildings.

Damage was expected to run into millions of pounds Sterling. Casualties in the hard-hit financial centre of London were said to be few, but the toll throughout the entire London area was unestimated.

Four Stories Burned Away

A communique declared that "damage was done to many famous buildings" and said these included the Guildhall, scene of colorful civic ceremonial functions of the City of London.

Fires started by three bombs which struck the roof of The Canadian Press Building, located between Fleet Street and the Thames River, burned away the top four stories of the five-storey brick building.

Every fireman in London, aided by thousands of volunteers, fought through the hail of explosives before midnight and then on past the red dawn against the flames.

The communique described their efforts as "heroic". It declared:

Deliberate Attempt

"Last night the enemy dropped a large number of incendiary bombs on the City of London in a deliberate attempt to set fire to it. . . There was nowhere any attempt o single out targets of military importance".

The raid which followed a day of only scattered air acitvity over Britain started soon after nightfall. From then until the all clear signal just before midnight hardly a minute passed without the crackle of gunfire, the bark of anti-aircraft or the thunder of explosions.

Two whole waves of bombers apparently laden with only incendiary bombs swept across London, dumping single fire bombs and huge "Molotoff Breadbaskets" which spewed 50 to 100 incendiary bombs over entire districts.

Explosives by the Ton

Fires broke out in the centre of London, through business and commercial districts and in outlying areas.

Then, as the fires spread, hundreds of more raiders roared over with explosives by the ton to dump by the wavering light of flames reflected back, blood-red, from clouds high overhead.

With the first explosive fury of the assault thousands of Londoners dashed for subway and basement refuges, thousands more took shelter in their backyard Anderson "doghouses"—the little steel shelters furnished by the Government.

But despite the intensity of the attack thousands remained where they could look on, and many joined in the risky work of pumping water onto the flames or smothering fires with sand.

Only once did the anti-aircraft barrage by London's guardian guns stop.

That was when, at the height of the attack, Royal Air Force fliers took off for aerial battles with the raiders.

Squadron after squadron of Spitfires and Hurricane fighters clashed with the raiders in dogfights by the eerie light of the flames below.

Watchers from the ground said the bombers dodged to cover in the clouds.

Offensive Operations Slight

London's fire spotters were unsung heroes of the night of horror. Through the shower of explosives they remained at their rooftop posts, watching for the bursts of fire bombs and directing firemen to the scene of each new outbreak.

Many of them were believed killed or injured during the night.

Casualties also were feared high at a trench shelter reported hit squarely by a bomb after a large number of persons took shelter there.

It was believed that bad weather conditions might have been a factor in the failure of the Nazi raiders to continue the attack after midnight.

Authoritative sources said weather conditions over the continent became so bad late last night that offensive operations of the R.A.F. were held to a small scale.

British bombing squadrons were said to have ranged over German-occupied territory but found visibility in most places too poor for accurate bombing.

Londoners who went to work before daybreak groped through streets littered with burned timbers and hose lines and running with water. The air was filled with smoke.

Eighty horses were killed by one huge bomb which struck a brewery.

Four hundred persons were taken safely from a shelter in a church which was struck by a bomb.

In Temporary Quarters

The top four stories of the five-storey building were burned away and the remainder of the building was rendered useless by water.

The CP and AP staffs transferred to temporary quarters and continued operations.

Three bombs hit the roof early in the concentrated Sunday night raid by the Nazi Air force.

Members of the news staffs ran up the stairs and attempted to extinguish the flames.

Flames started by the incendiary missiles gained headway rapidly and within ten minutes the top of the building was a mass of fire.

The staffs were forced out.

The London offices of The Canadian and The Associated Press were located at 20 Tudor Street, between Fleet Street, and the River Thames, short distance from Blackfriars Bridge.

Earlier in the war a bomb exploded in the street outside the building, blasting a crater over the width of the street. The building was shaken again by a bomb explosion Friday night.

EXPRESSES FAITH

"In a military sense Great Britain and the British Empire are today the spearhead of resistance to world conquest and they are putting up a fight which will live forever in the story of human gallantry."

Speaking with great seriousness, he said the British people battling the Axis were fighting "an unholy alliance of power and pelf" which seeks "to dominate and enslave the human race." He went on: "Our own future security is greatly dependent on the outcome of that fight. Our ability to keep out of war is going to be affected by that outcome.

"For us this is an emergency as serious as war itself. We must apply ourselves to our task with the same resolution the same sense of urgency, the same spirit of patriotism and sacrifice as we would show were we at war".

"All our present efforts are not enough", he asserted at another point. "We must have more ships, more guns, more planes—more of everything. This can only be accomplished if we discard the notion of 'business as usual'. This job cannot be done merely by superimposing on the existing productive facilities the added requirements for defence".

Mr. Roosevelt coupled his call for virtual wartime munitions production with the pledge of increasing assistance for Britain and a stern arraignment of what he defined as the Axis philosophy of government.

"The Axis", he charged, "not merely admits but the Axis proclaims that there can be no ultimate peace between their philosophy of government and our philosophy of government".

The president touched on the following major points:—

1.—Greatly accelerated munitions production was imperative, even at the sacrifice of luxury goods and non-essentials.

2.—A steady flow of increasing aid would continue to Britain, as a vital part of the U.S. defence program, regardless of "threats from dictators".

3.—"Our national policy is not directed toward war. Its sole purpose is to keep war away from our country and our people", by helping make possible British victory. Talk of plan for a present day U.S. expeditionary force was an "untruth".

British Strength Growing

4.—There would be no appeasement and no United States efforts, under present circumstances, to bring about a "negotiated peace".

5.—British strength was growing. "I believe that the Axis powers are not going to win this war".

6.—"Military necessities" would indicate the volume of future aid to Britain—an assertion some thought presaged upward revision of the present 50-50 formula.

7.—"The nation expects our defence industries to continue operation without interruption by strikes or lockouts, with management and worker adjusting any difference by voluntary or legal means".

8.—"Evil forces . . . are already within our own gates" seeking to foment dissension, sometimes with the unwitting help of American citizens.

Immediate congressional reaction to the chief executive's address ranged from unqualified applause to sharp criticism. Democrats, with few exceptions, gave it their endorsement, but comment did not follow strict partisan lines, several Republicans voicing similar approval. Other legislators spoke favorably of the speech with reservations, while a third group found fault for various reasons.

Acknowledged Potential Hazard

Mr. Roosevelt acknowledged the potential hazard of the aid policy.

"If we are to be completely honest with ourselves, we must admit there is risk in any course we may take, he said, underlining the word 'any'. "But I deeply believe that the great majority of our people agree that the course that I advocate involves the least risk now and the greatest hope for world peace in the future.

"The people of Europe who are defending themselves do not ask us to do their fighting. They ask us for the implements of war, the planes, the tanks, the guns, the freighters which will enable them to fight for their liberty and for our security . . . ."

He voiced confidence that America could do the tremendous job ahead.

'We have the men—the skill—the wealth—and above all, the will".

Powerful, Logical Indictment.

London, Dec. 30 (AP).—Official circles said today they welcomed President Roosevelt's fireside chat of last night "as further proof of the courage and realism" of the United States attitude toward the war.

A spokesman described it as "one of the most powerful, logical indictments ever spoken."

He said that Mr. Roosevelt's "recognition of the futility of appeasement was noted with especial satisfaction".

The spokesman added that a definition of the United States role as an arsenal for democracy and the expression of belief in the ultimate defeat of the axis would "be a source of inspiration and courage to the leaders and people of Great Britain."

The Evening Standard, published by Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, said "We bend to our task with new defiance and faith".

"President Roosevelt hurled his message with the fury of a thunderbolt," it said. "He required no rhetoric. His aim was to hunt illusion to its lair, wherever it might be found, and stab it to the heart so that all the world might know.

"He slew complacency which still believes the seas can protect America if some other power but Britain rules them. He murdered appeasement with a last, sure-handed cut. . . . He said two things plainly enough for every child to understand. There was danger ahead. It could only be averted if America made herself the great arsenal of democracy."

Published Full Address.

Madrid, Dec. 30 (AP).—The only newspaper published in Madrid on Monday morning, the Monday official bulletin, prominently displayed today an account of President Roosevelt's broadcast, but made no editorial comment.

Reaction Favorable.

Vichy, France, Dec. 30 (AP).—Official Vichy comment on President Roosevelt's fireside chat sought today to minimize its significance with assertions that he failed to give statistics on United States defence production to prove that "America's bite would equal her bark".

The broadcast was the main topic of conversation in political circles and reaction generally was favorable.

Some official sources described Mr. Roosevelt's speech as "sensational".

Up to a late hour this morning newspapers had not even a summary of the talk, but it was announced that a brief official version would be prepared for inclusion in afternoon papers. Publication of the full text was not permitted.

GREEKS SHELLING

Three more small villages along the line of the Greek advance were reported occupied. Operations were restricted, however, because of a new spell of intense cold and a heavy snow which piled in drifts six feet deep in the mountains.

Italians were said to be clinging to some heights in the vicinity of Tepeleni, road junction town on the way north to Valona, but the Greeks said the road beyond Tepeleni was under their machine-gun fire.

Driven From Positions

At Klisura, which commands a parallel road 12 to 15 miles east of Tepeleni, the Italians were reported driven from important hilltop defences and thrust back to a last line of trenches.

Even those trenches were said to be under heavy fire by Greek mountain batteries.

The spokesman said counter-attacks by the Italians at Klisura and on the snow clogged northern front near the Yugoslav frontier failed to halt Greek advances.

British Royal Air Force fliers reported yesterday another raid on the frequently-bombed seaport of Valona, and the Greek Ministry of Home Security said Italian bombers attacked the Islands of Corfu and Levkas and the port of Preveza.

Casualties Show Decrease

The Ministry's summary of air raid casualties during the second month of the war with Italy showed a great decrease from the figures for the first month of the war.

During the second month, from Nov. 29 to Dec. 29, 88 persons including 12 women and 25 children were reported killed, and 296 wounded. Sixty houses and a church were reported wrecked.

For the first month, 604 were listed as killed, with 8,070 wounded and 1,200 homes destroyed.

MASS MOVEMENT

Informed quarters said Bulgaria probably would permit passage of German forces only under protest, recognizing the "futility" of armed resistance, if the Nazis attempted such a movement.

German troops moving to aid Italy in Albania might go through Bulgaria.

Boris Confers With Cabinet

King Boris III of Bulgaria was reported Saturday to have informed Hitler on a recent visit in Berlin that he would abdicate before permitting German troops to pass through his country.

King Boris conferred with Premier Bogdan Philoff yesterday and political circles speculated on the possibility of a government crisis. Interior Minister Peter Gabrovosky, former leader of the small Bulgarian Nazi Party, was mentioned as a possible head of a new government should the existing moderate regime fall.

At Giurgiu, Rumania, across the Danube River from Ruschuk, Bulgaria, German soldiers could be seen carrying equipment, taking up positions and occupying barracks.

Big Guns Transported

Hungarians reported that big guns of the type used in shelling Britain's Dover coast from across the English Channel were included in the German equipment being transported.

Bulgaria has withdrawn most of her soldiers from the Greek border and most of some 100,000 Bulgars now under arms are at the Turkish frontier, since Sofia is reported to hold that a German march into Bulgaria would be considered a provocative act by Turkey, a British ally, and a step likely to involve Turkey in war.

'Greatest Effort of His Career' Says N.Y. Herald Tribune Of the President's Speech

New York, Dec. 30 (CP)—The New York Herald Tribune, saying President Roosevelt's address last night constituted a "high call to action" to the United States to obtain "more of everything," today termed the address "one of the greatest efforts of his career."

"This newspaper is convinced that if the President can implement leadership of this quality with the practical steps necessary to translate it into action, he will find the people of the United States unanimous in support of every step he may take to fulfill these great ends," it added.

The New York Times said the President, by announcing that he regards the anti-aggression pact signed by Germany, Italy and Japan as directed against the United States, "has put all three countries on notice that he regards them as potential if not actual enemies."

It added: "Such a notice will be futile unless it is supported by an unmistakable acceleration of our own defence program. This has now become the nation's central task."

Other comment:-

Washington Post—"The burden of Mr. Roosevelt's address was a total mobilization call upon our productive resources . . . There are those who would have welcomed a specific wartime plan for, say, shipbuilding. No doubt, however, acts will follow quickly upon words. For in no previous speech has the President made such a clear and unequivocal identification between our national interest and a Nazi defeat."

Rochester, N.Y., Democrat and Chronicle—"The speech was a defiant speech; but it put into words nothing the Axis powers have not known or should not have known, since the war extended. They are not likely to be dissuaded from their intentions by the President's words. What will impress them will be the speed and temper of defence acceleration which will ensue to put its admonitions into effect. On that task the American people now should bend their effort, reassured by the President's pledge that the aid we give to keep the oceans in the hands of our friends is not to be followed by actual involvement."

Boston Post—"The President's address was as frank and effective a delineation of national policy as that of Lincoln's first inaugural speech . . . Only one point was not carried far enough. The President declared that no expeditionary force will be sent overseas. As he uttered these words, many of us wondered if that includes the navy. Is it possible that our navy might be used for convoys and the like, and actual defence of the British Isles?"

The Raleigh, N.C., News and Observer—"The speech of the President contained no new policy for this nation. But it was a ringing statement of policies to which the overwhelming majority of the American people are already committed, and it contained assurance for the world that those policies will be pursued vigorously. The response of the people will be the unity of action and unity of purpose for which the President appealed."

Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch—"Never until last night has a responsible official of our government defined the issues of this war so unmistakably, and spoken out so categorically in denunciation of the totalitarians. And Mr. Roosevelt did so without saying anything or recommending anything, which the Axis can point to as a belligerent act . . . Some will wish, perhaps, that Mr. Roosevelt had drawn attention to the specific methods by which the United States can greatly increase its aid to Britain . . . Presumably that will come in his message to Congress this week."

Worcester (Mass.) Telegram — "The President's address was a clear defiance of the Axis powers—a defiance which will thrill Americans and which will give heart to the British and those who are fighting on their side. The United States is going to increase its aid to Britain, and nothing that any totalitarian dictator says or can say will swerve the United States from its course."

Newark, N.J. Star-Ledger — "The President weighed the recent intimidating utterances of the Axis spokesmen and told them off in vigorous style."

U.S. Arms Production Totals 700 Planes, 2,400 Engines And 100 Tanks a Month

Contracts Approved Call for Spending of Ten Billions in Armaments

A SHIP EVERY 12TH DAY

Washington, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The United States Defence Commission reported today that arms output was up to 2,400 aircraft engines, 700 planes, more thtan 10,000 semi-automatic rifles and 100 tanks a month.

The defence program, the Commission said, already had put 1,000,000 persons to work in the last two months, and "several million more will be needed by next November".

The agency reported that it had approved contracts totalling more than $10,000,000,000 and that the army and navy had awarded nine tenths of these, including $3,300,000,000 for ships, $1,500,000,000 for factory expansion and housing, $1,500,000,000 for planes and parts, $600,000,000 for ammunition, $500,000,000 for guns and $400,000,000 for trucks and tanks.

These contracts, plus those placed by Great Britain and other nations, commit United States industry to produce 50,000 airplanes and 130,000 airplane engines; 9,200 tanks; 2,055,000 guns of all kinds and their ammunition; 380 navy ships; 200 mercantile ships; 210 camps and cantonments; clothing and equipment for 1,200,000 men; 50,000 trucks.

Also under contract are 40 government factories, among them the first mass-production tank factory in the world, five explosive plants, six ammunition plants, five machine gun plants.

Gun contracts embrace 400,000 automatic rifles, 1,300,000 regular rifles, 17,000 heavy guns, 25,000 light guns 13,000 trench mortars, 300,000 machine guns. Other contracts call for 33,000,000 loaded shells.

Another item was that a new fighting ship slides down the ways every twelve days to join the navy.

The report, designed to give the public a summary of the commission's work since its formation last May, was released not many hours after President Roosevelt informed the nation last night that armament production to date was 'not enough' to meet the heavy demands and that "more of everything" was needed fast.

I RECENTLY explained how to adjust the Turn Damper of your furnace to reduce Chimney Loss to a minimum, by leaving it as nearly closed as possible. Now the Turn Damper should be left in this position throughout the burning season.

Do not use it to regulate your fire from day to day.

CHECK DAMPER
ASH PIT DAMPER

The only time you should ever move the Turn Damper, after finding the ideal position for it, is at the beginning of the very cold season and again at the beginning of the very mild season—to take care of extreme changes in outside temperature.

For daily regulation of the fire—to speed up or slow down the rate at which the fire burns—rely on the Ashpit Damper and Check Damper entirely. (8)

ARMY OFFICER KILLS FRIEND

Tragedy Occurs in Barracks at Niagara Falls; Thought Gun Not Loaded

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 28 (CP)—Two officers were joking about their "quickness on the draw" and decided on a contest. They faced each other across their barracks room, drew their revolvers, levelled them and pulled the triggers. One gun was loaded and Lt. John Woodburn Osborne was shot and killed by his best friend, Lt. R. D. Charteris White.

That was the story that Lt. White told to a coroner's jury here last night. The jury found the shooting last December 22 was "purely accidental." It had occurred in Chippewa Barracks here.

Osborne, son of Col. and Mrs. Bolin Osborne of Hamilton, Ont., and White were officers in the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, and, according to the evidence of fellow officers, they had been inseparable since the regiment was mobilized six months ago. They had shared joint quarters both at camp and in barracks.

White testified that he and his friend had joked about their handling of revolvers and when the contest had been decided on he had emptied Osborne's revolver. He had been sure at the time his own was not loaded as he never left cartridges in it.

The officers stood at opposite ends of the room and after a "one, two, three—draw," each reached for his holster, drew his revolver, levelled it at his friend and pulled the trigger.

Lt. White said that just as he heard the hammer of his revolver strike and realized that it was discharging a bullet, he heard the click of his friend's gun.

The bullet, according to medical evidence, entered Osborne's face at the lower left jaw, penetrated the vertebrae and severed the spinal cord, causing instant death.

Five years ago Mrs. Drake brought the note to the attention of the federal bureau of investigation where experts determined that the note was in the dead woman's handwriting.

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett Accepts $136,000 For Spitfire Fund

Kettering, England, Dec. 28 (CP).—Hon. R. B. Bennett, accepting twelve cheques totalling $30,570 (about $136,000) for seven Spitfires, from mayors and council chairmen of twelve towns in this area, described the contribution as "a magnificent achievement, ranking with the greatest in this kingdom."

"I know no community with a population so small that has raised as much money as you have done for the Spitfire fund," said the former Canadian prime minister who accepted the money on behalf of the Ministry of Aircraft Production, where he is working with Lord Beaverbrook.

The collections were organized by the Northamptonshire Evening Telegraph which serves an area where the towns are located.

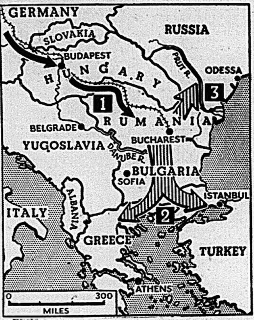
Diplomats Watch German Troop Movements



With the vanguard of a new German expedition estimated at 300,000 troops beginning to move across Hungary to Rumania (black arrows—1), diplomatic sources at Budapest believe that perhaps Germany at last was planning action against Turkey and Greece (shaded arrows—2) through Bulgaria, or preparing for a showdown with Soviet Russia (shaded area—3), or simply strengthening military forces in Rumania to assure civil order, or sparring for position against Russia.

Shipping Losses Show Decrease

(By the Canadian Press)

Only meagre reports were received of enemy action against merchant shipping in the week ended Dec. 27 and these were not conclusive.

Four British vessels, the 12,823-ton Waiotira, the 5,222-ton Everleigh, the 4,980-ton Ardanbhan and the 2,473-ton Sarastone sent wireless messages that they were being attacked by U.boats, but in no case was there any word as to the final fate of the vessels.

The British Admiralty's summary for the week ended Dec. 15 showed a total of 41,476 tons lost in the period, two-fifths of the previous week's losses and some 20,000 tons under the weekly average of the war.

ITALIAN WAR CARGO SHIP REPORTED SUNK

FASCIST TROOP CONCENTRATIONS ATTACKED

Entire Battalion Taken in Ambush By Quick Strategy

Greeks Gain Ground Despite Recent Heavy Reinforcements of Fascists

Athens, Dec. 31 (AP)—Improved weather conditions are speeding up Greek advances against Italian positions in Albania, dispatches from the front said today.

Greek artillery and aviation were reported to be active, and in the north sector a Greek bomber was said to have blown up an Italian ammunition dump and attacked troop concentrations.

The dispatches said important heights were captured in the central sector and many new prisoners taken. Greek fighter planes were reported to have shot down two Italian bombers, overtaken while returning from a raid in Greece.

Fighting Intensive

The fighting in the Tepeleni, Klisura and North Chimara sectors was described as intensive. An observer at the front said the battle in the North Chimara coastal area was "one of the major battles of the war." It has been going on day and night for five days, even though a heavy snowstorm raged part of the time.

A Royal Air Force communique said a British plane shot down an Italian seaplane in the Leskas Prevesa area.

More than 1,000 Italian prisoners were reported on their way back from the front.

Greek sources reported the prisoners included an entire battalion with all its officers and said their own forces smashed strong Italian counter-attacks.

The high command's communique on the warfront situation late last night declared the Greeks gained in "local successful operations" despite recent heavy reinforcement of the Fascists.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Comet weather! Since the Cunningham Comet's tail may switch the earth and even envelop it, what effect may it have on the weather or the atmosphere? In 1910 our earth spent two hours in the tail of Halley's Comet: some people noticed coronas around both sun and moon caused by comet dust in the upper atmosphere. The tail of a comet, although a million or more miles long, is so light that it may be lifted with one hand. The effect of our encounter with the comet then may not be noticeable, or there may be a slight overcast or a peculiar luminous glow. So the effect will be entirely optical

German Press to Give Hitler's Reply to Roosevelt's Address

Berlin, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Nazi sources said today that Hitler's reply to President Roosevelt's Sunday night speech will be given for the present by the German Press.

And the Press, they added, will seek to represent Mr. Roosevelt's fire-side talk as "undignified in tone, weak in argument and not convincing".

In addition, it was said, the talk would be characterized as "an appeal to the lowest instincts of the American people".

The Press will also use the argument that the President's speech is uninteresting because "American support of England, no matter in what form it comes, cannot delay—much less prevent —Britain's defeat".

Press to go to Work

The German Press at Hitler's behest, it was learned, will accuse the president of taking certain of the words from Hitler's address on Dec. 10 out of their "Socio-political context".

The Press will argue that there exists no utterance of Hitler supporting the hypothesis of a desire or attempt to dominate the world. Germany, the German Press has been instructed to argue, merely desires that living space which every nation of her size and culture has a right to possess.

The German Press, acting on precise instructions, will further express astonishment that United States officialdom on the one hand allegedly always tells the American people that Britain as an island is protected and impregnable, yet President Roosevelt "conjures up" German danger to the United States though an ocean separates the two nations.

HITLER BOASTFUL AS HE ADDRESSES REICH SOLDIERS

Made No Mention of President Roosevelt's Speech on Sunday Night

ALL RANKS THANKED

Messages by Goering, Von Brauchitsch and Admiral Raeder Delivered

Berlin, Dec. 31 —(AP)— In a boastfully-worded year-end order of the day, Hitler today declared that "the year 1941 will bring completion of the greatest victory of our history."

Victory will come , the Fuehrer declared, because Germany stands "armed as never before."

"It is the will of the democratic war inciters and their Jewish- capitalistic wirepullers that the war must be continued," he asserted.

Hitler made no mention in his message of President Roosevelt's Sunday night speech calling for increased war aid to Britain.

In an impassioned New Year's message to National Socialists (Nazis), Hitler said Germany fights for her rights against a vast coalition of democracies, capitalists and Jews who seek to destroy the Reich.

He said "Providence, in a year of extraordinary accomplishment, shielded Germany from a conspiracy of scorn and hatred".

Hitler denied that Germany or Italy would attempt to conquer the world. On the contrary, "world-conquering nations declared war on Germany", he said.

The message to the army was issued in the form of an order of the day, which follows:

Britons Urged to Eat More Potatoes, Less Meat and Cheese

London, Dec. 31. — (CP)—Lord Woolton, Food Minister, in a broadcast today urged Britons to eat more home-grown potatoes and warned that "we shall have to do with less meat in 1941".

Lord Woolton appealed to housewives to "go easy with the can opener" and said he was dependent on the public's voluntary abstinence to prevent the need of rationing cheese.

"The enemy is making a direct attack on our foodships and is sinking quite a number of them and the danger is much worse than it was in the last war", the Food Minister declared.

He offered this further advice to householders: "We can do with less pastry . . . don't buy cheese unless you need it. Don't use it as an extra. . . . Go easy with the can opener and regard all your canned foods as an iron ration in case supplies break down at any time in your district".

Crawls into Massive Stone Coffin And 'Slumbers Like a Bloomin' Log'

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 31 (CP)—When the sirens warn the nightly arrival of Hitler's bombers over London, Mike O'Connor, a laboring man who loves his sleep, crawls into a massive stone coffin—otherwise unoccupied—and, in his own words "slumbers like a bloomin' log."

The coffin is 400 years old. It is in the crypt of Christ Church in the Spitalfields section of poorer London. When the O'Connor's East End home was flattened by a bomb three months ago the family moved into the crypt shelter along with a score of others.

There are three of the great coffins, hewn out of solid rock. Mike removed the heavy lid from one coffin, cleaned out the dust that had collected through the years and called it home.

The O'Connors salvaged two mattresses, bed clothing, a few cooking utensils and dishes from their wrecked home. All have been moved to the crypt. Mrs. O'Connor, who takes a dark view of the coffin sleeps beside it on one mattress, along with her 15-year-old son

On workdays Mrs. O'Connor wakes Mike with a cup of tea, made on a small petrol stove. Then off to the warehouse he goes to be met by such friendly wisecracks as: "Back from the dead again, Mike?"

Very Heartbeat of Empire Heard In Speeches of Prime Minister Churchill

By H. M. PETERS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The very beat of an Empire fighting for freedom can be heard in Winston Churchill's speeches since he took office last May 10 as Prime Minister.

• • •

Listen: May 13 announcing his cabinet to the House of Common: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat. Come then, let us go forward together with our united strength."

June 4. The Belgians had surrendered. Britain saved 335,000 men from Dunkerque. "House of Commons": "Our thankfulness at the escape of our army must not blind us to the fact that what has happened in France and Belgium is a colossal military disaster."

The same speech, proclaiming Britain's indomitable spirit: "We shall not flag nor fail. We shall go on to the end. We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be.

"We shall fight on the beaches. We shall fight on the landing grounds. We shall fight in the fields and streets and in the hills. We shall never surrender. And even if which I do not for a moment believe this is tax or ever a part of it is subjugated and starving, then our Empire across the seas, armed and guarded by the British fleet, will carry on the struggle until in God's good time the New World in all its strength and might sets forth to the rescue and liberation of the old."

June 18. France had Fallen. There was some demand in Britain for an inquiry into the conduct of recent governments (House of Commons) : "In this I am quite sure, that if we open a quarrel between the past and the present we shall find that we have lost the future."

July 14. The British Fleet had attacked the French fleet at Oran. "A Broadcast": "When you have a friend and comrade at whose side you have faced tremendous struggles and your friend is smitten down by a stunning blow it may be necessary to make sure that the weapon that has fallen from his hands shall not be added to the resources of your common enemy but you need not be alarmed because of you friend's cry of delirium and gesture of agency.

The same speech. The invasion threat had grown. "We, fighting by ourselves alone, but we are not fighting for ourselves alone. We would rather see London laid in ruins and ashes than that it should be tamely taken and enslaved."

August 20. A report on the war to the House of Commons: "Our offensive springs are being slowly compressed, and we must resolutely and methodically prepare ourselves for the campaigns of 1941 and 1942."

The same speech on the air war: "British airmen are turning the tide. Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

• • •

October 21. A fireside chat to the people of France: "The British seek only to beat the life and soul out of Hitler. That alone, that all the time. This evil man, this abortion of hatred and defeat has resolved on nothing less than the complete wiping out of the French nation."

Defeat of Mass Daylight Bombing Outstanding

By HAROLD FAIR,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 31 — (CP Cable)— Defeat of the mass daylight bombing raids was described as the outstanding feature of the air war in 1940 by a high Royal Air Force source today.

"There is no doubt that 1940 has given the day bomber a sensibly diminished horizon," the source asserted in reviewing a year in which British fighters triumphed over immense odds as the Germans beat at the island.

Looking ahead he saw the Empire Air Scheme producing impressive results. The policy has been to transform many graduates into instructors. He pointed out that if the R.A.F. took graduates from Canada immediately they completed the course it would mean a bigger Air Force for a few months but no permanent ascendancy. Therefore the authorities have followed the policy of "putting back the profit into the business so the business will expand."

Dunkerque, he said, was the first check on the German bombers which had had things their own way in Poland and Holland once the defenders were overwhelmed. The breathing space following Dunkerque enabled Britain to replenish losses suffered there. When the battle of Britain started, the defenders were ready.

The officer described as "entirely incorrect" the assertion of Ralph Ingersoll, New York editor, that the British fighter force was stretched almost to the breaking point during the Battle of Britain. He admitted that no air force could have fought such a decisive battle without losses.

"But at the end of that period we had expanded our fighting force," he added. "We had more squadrons operating in the line at the end of the battle of Britain than at the beginning."

Moreover, although the R.A.F. had to draw on reserves during the battle, the reserves were actually larger during October than at the beginning of the fighting.

TURN IN FORTUNE OF WAR CAUSES CHANGES IN ITALY

Renato Ricci Becomes Absolute Dictator Over Raw Materials

APPORTION MATERIALS

Rationing of Industrial Products, Excepting Food, Authorized

Rome, Dec. 31 (AP)—Renato Ricci, Minister of Guilds, became dictator over Italy's industry today with absolute control over the handling and distribution of all raw materials.

A law issued last Saturday made Giuseppe Tassinari, Minister of Agriculture, dictator of food with control over production and consumption, exports and imports, and distribution to both civilians and the armed forces alike.

Both changes were made as a result of the change in Italy's fortunes in the war.

The decree giving Ricci new powers was published in the official Gazette today. His ministry will apportion raw materials among industrial concerns according to the nation's war needs and will determine which products are to be turned over to the army and which may be left for civilian consumption.

JAPANESE FACE SHORTAGE OF RAW MATERIALS

Survey Indicates Japs Already Restricted to $200,000,000 Purchases Yearly

FACES EMBARGO

Washington, Dec. 31—(AP)—Japan faces increasingly severe difficulties in purchasing vitally needed raw materials and supplies abroad in 1941, according to a survey of its financial status after the strain of 43 months of war in China.

Japanese purchasing power in the United States, the survey indicated today, already has been restricted to about $200,000,000 annually—a sum which represents most of the money derived from sales of Japanese goods and their newly mined gold.

The extent of future Japanese buying in the United States will depend, trade experts here believe, on the volume of Japanese-made goods sold to the American market and also on the extent Japan is able to increase its gold production.

Commerce Department figures for the first ten months of 1940 show imports from Japan amounted to $122,667,000, a slight decrease from the $123,312,000 worth of silk and other products purchased by Americans in the equivalent period in 1939.

Vessel Torpedoed By British Warship, Belgrade Hears

Transport With War Materials for Albania Said to Have Sunk Off Yugoslav Port

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 31 (AP) —Reports reaching Belgrade said that an Italian transport vessel loaded with war materials for Albania was torpedoed by a British warship in the Adriatic Sea today and went down off the Yugoslav port of Bar.

Bar (Antivari) is approximately twenty miles up the coast from the Yugoslav-Albanian border.

The transport was said to have gone down before a Yugoslav vessel could reach her.

Most of the transport's crew were reported rescued, however.

Britishers Asked To Form Civil Defence Home Guard

London, Dec. 31 —(CP) —Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, called on British men and women today to form a "civil defence home guard" to defeat the "menace" of incendiary bombs.

"We must quickly get to the point of organization and readiness where not a single incendiary bomb, wherever it falls, has a chance to take a firm hold," the Minister said in a radio address.

The regular firemen, he declared, must be left free to fight the big fires while householders should take turns during raids watching for fire bombs. Employers in shops, offices and factories likewise should heed his call, Mr. Morrison said.

"Not a single house or building in our towns must be left uncared for," he said. "It is dangerous. Every group of houses and business premises must have its fire-watching party; every party must guard its own group of buildings."

New Arrests Made In Rumanian Capital

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 31 (AP)—Reports from Bucharest today said many new arrests had been made in the Rumanian capital and that the authorities there had announced discovery of several communist organizations, especially among railway employees.

A statement by Premier Ion Antonescu declaring Rumania now was guaranteed by "the most powerful nation" in the world was interpreted in diplomatic circles as an indirect warning to Soviet Russia not to attempt to carry out a reported plan of seizing the mouths of the Danube and moving into Moldavia.

German troops and war materials still moved into Rumania through Hungary.

Atty. Gen. Conant Appeals for Care On New Year's Eve

Following is an appeal by Hon. Gordon Conant, addressed to all motorists:

The traffic accidents in Ontario over the Christmas holiday, and particularly the number of fatalities, were shocking and, I believe, quite unnecessary. We mustn't allow this to happen again at New Year's. That, however, depends upon every citizen in the Province, both motorists and pedestrians.

The Provincial Police, including specials, reserves and Ontario voluntary constabulary, are undertaking an intensive campaign by concentrating on the more heavily travelled highways. Punishment is not the purpose of this exceptional effort — it is to prevent accidents and of course to punish those who break the law, thereby causing accidents.

Please do not operate a motor vehicle if for any reason you are not fit to drive, use other means of transportation or hire a driver at nominal cost. Please remember that others have the same rights on the highways as you have. Please do not speed. A minute or two saved may imperil your life and the lives of many others without any corresponding advantage to you.

I appeal to every citizen in Ontario, pedestrians and motorists, to exercise the utmost care over New Year's. Let everybody realize his serious responsibility. Let us all, particularly at this holiday season, remember the biblical injunction: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." Let us ALL enjoy a happy New Year—free from accidents, free from fatalities, free from anything that would cause unhappiness to our fellow citizens.

AIR CHIEF MARSHAL

Ottawa, Dec. 31—(CP)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding, former chief of the British fighter command, had a word of praise today for two squadrons of Canadian airmen who helped turn back the Nazi daylight raids last summer under his command.

"I am proud of those fellows," he said. "They have done nobly and gallantly."

Sir Hugh was speaking to newspapermen of the Canadian squadron of the Royal Air Force, which was "one of the finest squadrons in my command," and No. 1 fighter squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Force which "fought with the utmost gallantry and success."

Patients in Coventry Hospital Endured Hours of Terror in Raid

London, Dec. 31.—(CP)— Hours of terror and horror endured by hospital patients on that moonlight night when German bombers laid in waste a large section of Coventry are described in a routine report by the House Governor.

Two big fires enveloped part of the building housing the hospital shortly after the raid started, said the report, made public in an appeal for rebuilding funds. The emergency and main dressing quarters were ablaze within seconds and incendiary bombs still were dropping.

From then until nearly daylight it was a battle against bombs and fires; a fight to save the lives of patients too ill to leave their beds. But "miraculously", there were no casualties among patients or staff, said the report, which added:—

"The one operating theatre in use could not cope with the large number of cases transferred from the reception hall and casualties covered almost every foot of floor space in the lower rooms and corridors. The nursing staff moved about in the dim light of hurricane lamps, comforting the injured and giving small drinks of water. (Water was at a premium because of broken mains.). . . .

"In one ward, badly shattered by a high explosive bomb less than 20 yards away, patients who could not be moved were lying in their beds and watching the planes in the sky, which was aglow from fires all over the city.

McCARTHY THEATRE MANAGEMENT GIVES NEWSBOYS A TREAT

Crowds of delighted Ontario Intelligencer newsboys enjoyed the hospitality of the McCarthy Theatre on Monday night when they were the guests of Manager Vincent Freeman, and the management, as a 1940 appreciation of their loyal services. The boys conducted themselves like gentlemen and thoroughly appreciated the foresight and thoughtfulness of the theatre in extending its generosity to them.

They sat in appreciative silence as the famous sleuth character, "Ellery Queen, Detective," flashed his deductive wiles across the silver sheet, in a performance that was outstanding. Later the lads expressed their thanks to the management.

Gardiner Duff Inducted as Pres. Of Kinsmen Club

President Gardiner Duff was inducted into office as the chief executive of the Kinsmen Club at their final meeting of 1940 held at the Queen's Hotel last evening. Other executive members and club chairmen for 1941 were also named and appointed.

In concluding the year's business retiring president Jeff Marvell reviewed the club's activities for 1940 and assured the members present the 1940 "Kiddies' Christmas" entertainment party had seen the largest number of children entertained in the history of Kinsmen in Belleville. He also thanked the club members for the hearty co-operation in 1940 and referred to the number of club members who had enlisted in His Majesty's forces during the same period before he relinquished the chief executive's reigns into the hands of President Duff, who in turn presented Past President Marvell with a past president Kinsmen gold lapel pin.

Kinsmen Harry Knott reported as to the result of the recent Kinsmen Club bingo enterprise, the revenue from which was reverted into the club's eye clinic and war service fund. Treasurer Kin. "Buster" LaBarr gave his annual financial statement.

The 1941 officers of the Kinsmen Club were named as follows:

President—Gardiner Duff; Vice-Pres., J. Marvell; Secretary, Tom Colden; Treasurer, Elmer LaBarr; Registrar, James Lafferty; Eye Clinic, Dr. Earl McDonald. Other executives named: Sunshine, Mac Bonter, chairman, Don Roe; Entertainment, Court Miller, chairman, Phil. Huddleston, Ken Colling; Membership, Cleo Colling, chairman, Jeff Marvell, Norm Garbutt, Carl Sills; War Service, Harry Rollins, chairman, Harry Knott, Newt. Wilbur, Orliff Lloyd; Property, Bernard Lovis, chairman, Cleo Colling; Dances, John Bean, chairman, Jim Fraser, Newt. Wilbur; Spokes Club, Ken Colling, chairman, Phil Huddleston, Court Miller.

C.N.R. YARD FOREMAN DIES

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 31—(CP)—The funeral will be held Thursday of Joseph Hipwell Groves, 57, yard foreman here for the Canadian National Railways, who died after a brief illness this morning.

He was born at Detroit, and entered the Grand Trunk Railway service in 1900. He resided here 23 years.

His widow, formerly Lillian Thomas, Huntsville, survives, with one son and two daughters, including Mrs. Arthur Cruji, Kingston. A brother, Robert Groves, resides at Lindsay.

No Basketball Team In League Because Players Writing Exams

Mr. Ed. Shortt, program manager of the local "Y" claims that he was misquoted in the sporting column of Saturday's issue when it was reported that Pete Beach, physical director of Albert College, stated that he had been reliably informed that the reason Belleville was not included in the district basketball setup along with Peterboro, Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Airforce, Albert College and Picton, was because the local "Y" "did not wish to sponsor a team in that group".

The real reason for Belleville not entering a team in the group was that with the exception of one player, all of last year's Belleville Intermediate basketball team are connected with the militia and are busy writing military exams. It was the players themselves who wished not to play because of their exams and studies and it was owing to their request that Belleville was not represented in the group.

Stolen Articles Await Owners At Police Station

Two flashlights, a "V. P. C." camera, a devotional text-book and a "Humidguide," the latter package containing a Christmas gift card, are awaiting their owners at the police station, Chief Alex. Kidd stated this morning. The articles constitute the main part of loot taken by a member of the light-fingered fraternity whom police allege, made a systematic survey of parked automobiles while a dance was in progress last Friday night at the Trianon Ballroom.

The man was apprehended on Saturday and was formally charged with theft at a subsequent hearing. He was remanded until Monday next.

Celebrated Too Well

A local resident apparently got his dates mixed last night and celebrated his New Year well but not wisely. A call from a Front St. restaurant brought police officers who later arrested the man on a charge of intoxication. Restaurant managers charged the man had created a disturbance.

A young lad residing on George Street reported to police the loss of a string of pearls on Front St. last week.

Many Parties and Dances To Usher in the New Year

Celebrations Will Probably be Less Boisterous Than Other Years, Being Tempered by Thought of War

With perhaps less traditional whoopee blowing of horns and other noise-making paraphernalia, Belleville will usher in the New Year in what pre-party predictions point to being one tempered with the shadow of war.

There will be "sounds of revelry by night" but Belleville's beauty and manhood will greet the 1941 year-child with perhaps a note of seriousness that was missing in former years. There will be dinners and dances, private parties and public ones; the tails and ties of the genteel will join with the business blue of the "other fellow" in a pageant of revelry that will bring in a year, that despite party gayety, it is the prayer of all, which will see the Dove of Peace cast the shadow of its wings over a war-shattered world.

Elaborate preparations for gala celebration have been underway for several days. Highlighting the social events will be the Belleville Club dance. The Trianon Ballroom will be the scene of glorious whoopee in a parade of revelry that is promised to last well into the morning. Across the street the Aajmaa Club will add its musical and gayety to the occasion. At Shannonville residents of that district will pool their celebrative equipment in a dance. In Trenton, Stirling, Wellington and Picton, grand celebrations have been arranged.

Dance at Armouries

The military of the city and district will lend their color to the general celebration with a dance at the Armouries.

Many private parties will welcome the new year in apartment and house. Restaurants have made elaborate preparations for the New Year's Eve crowd as well as hotels. Seasonal dinners will be served tonight and tomorrow.

Theatres Prepared

Theatres of the city have, also, arranged gala parties for what is expected to be capacity houses. The various managements have not only provided outstanding entertainment, but also the conventional horns, rattlers, and favors for their patrons. There will be community singing, and the 1941 Cherub will be ushered in in all its festive glory.

A number of young people's parties have also been arranged and many a future "Clark Gable" and "Hedy Lamarr" will blossom forth in their first "soup and fish" and evening gown.

All-in-all the fun promises to be one that is outstanding but beneath all its gayety, glitter and promise of five or more hours of unrestrained enjoyment, there sounds a note of warning.

Warning Issued

Police officials have already made mention of the fact that highways will be patrolled at an early hour and no official "mercy" will be shown to those celebrants who break the laws.

As one officer puts it: "If you can't hold your liquor, don't hold a wheel." The officers are in no way attempting to dictate to the celebrants as to what to do but they are fully within their rights when warning potential law-breakers of the consequences.

A moment's forgetfulness may bring a lifetime of regret. A careless slip may mean the maiming or the actual cost of the life of a human being. A few hours' celebration is not worth years of remorse. If one must drive, then don't drink, and if you must drink, don't drive. One can have a fine time, without a fine.

Belleville Hospital Crowded to Capacity

Sceptics who disdained the thought of incurring expenses for the erection of a new wing for the Belleville General Hospital,—and others who have since more or less scoffed at efforts of those people who unheralded and unsung, work diligently for the betterment of the institution, may well mark, learn and inwardly digest the fact that today the institution is crowded to capacity.

One hundred and seventy-five patients, an all-time record for the hospital, are now receiving treatment from a staff the efficiency of which is well able to meet any requirements which emergencies may force.

A sudden influx of patients "brought down" by a sudden blitzkrieg of the "flu" established a new patient record, but a staff undaunted by the emergency, went to work and today the hospital's wheels are functioning smoothly.

Never before, since the handsome new wing was erected, has the institution been called upon to furnish all its capacity for the alleviation of the suffering. Its efforts today vindicate the urgent need for extension of rooms and equipment brought out some time ago, by those who had foresight to predict the needs of the community, and doubted by many who did not perhaps realize or foresee the good that could be done "by so few for so many."

OBITUARY

LATE EARL ROLLINS

Queensboro, (Special) The funeral of the late Earl Rollins was held on Thursday afternoon at one o'clock from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rollins, Queensboro, to Cooper United Church, where the service was conducted by Rev. E. D. Snelgrove. A very large crowd of neighbors, relatives and friends gathered to offer sympathy to the family in their sudden bereavement.

During the service Mrs. Calvin Tanner rendered the hymn "Wonderful Love" as a solo.

The bearers were Messrs. Cecil Genereaux, Roy and Harold Tokley, Vincent Courneyea, Leonard Summers and Lorne Holmes.

Interment was made in Cooper Cemetery.

Friends from Sudbury who attended the funeral were Messrs. Cecil Genereaux, Bruno and Vincent Courneyeau, Martin Quinn, Walter Tobin, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Genereaux, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Genereaux and family and Miss Hilda Courneyea.

LATE DENNIS CAVANAGH
(Point Anne)

Monday morning, December 30th., the funeral of Dennis Cavanagh, residence Point Anne, took place from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, to the Church of St. Anthony of Padua at Centreville, Ontario, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father J. Ryan, who said also the committal prayers at the graveside in Centreville Cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. Thomas Bennett, John Bennett, B. DeForge, Felix Genereau, James Doyle and Francis Cavanagh

ROBERT SCOTT

Marmora, (Special) — Robert Scott of Havelock, passed away suddenly while at his work at Deloro about 8.15 a.m. on Monday. He mentioned to follow employees that he was not feeling well and shortly afterwards expired. Deceased had been in the employ of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited for two periods which gave him an aggregate of service of several years. Of a courteous nature, he was highly esteemed by all with whom he had dealings and his sudden demise is widely and deeply regretted. He is survived by his widow and three daughters, his mother, Mrs. James Scott and one brother, Clifford, of Havelock, one brother, Harry of Preneveau and one sister Sara of Deloro. In religion the late Mr. Scott was a Presbyterian. The funeral service will be held in Havelock Presbyterian Church on Wednesday afternoon.

"Faith is a Fortress for the Future"

When I look back and see the days that close behind me lie,
I hang my head in bitter pain and close my weary eye,
But still the vision penetrates my hot and fevered lids
And though I would dismiss the scene, my tortured soul forbids.

Could I but rise in this last hour, and, rushing through the street,
Tear down the ramparts of the past and crush them at my feet,
Burst through the gates that skirt the town and mount the highest hill
Where I could view the conquered foe that's subject to my will —

Then would my tongue be loosed to sing, my soul be loosed to pray,
My heart be free to palpitate and beat its rhythmned sway,
My voice would speak in steady tones, my eye see crystal-clear,
And I could face the morrow's fight without a doubt or fear!

But here I falter in my sin and hear the voice of fate
Whisper low within my ear, "Ah, friend, it is too late!"
I cannot seem to break the spell that binds me with its will,
It numbs my brain, it floods my head, it makes my heart stand still!

Fast fleeting hours: Oh, the pain that pulses in my breast
Bequeathing me no peace of mind, no comfort, and no rest;
How can I see these hours race to end a year so vain
While I brood helpless o'er my thoughts that torture me with pain!

Stir up O man! Disperse the gloom that hangs about your head,
Take courage in a common faith—"the world is not yet dead".
Awake your ears to hear the sound that echoes round the earth—
Rejoicing are the blessed bells! Another Year has birth!

Come, rise with faith and face the morn, salute it with a song,
Remember that within the New the Old does not belong:
Here is a page on which to write the things that are to be,
God bless the Future that it may bring Happiness to thee.

Babson Predicts Canadian Business Will Scale New Heights in 1941

1941 Business and Financial Outlook for Canada

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park, Mass., Dec. 31, 1940 — Canadian business will scale new heights during 1941. Never before in the Dominion's history have workers, farmers, salesmen, merchants, manufacturers, and investors faced such a boom. General business in 1940 sky-rocketed to levels nearly 30% over 1939. 1941 will see still another gain, not so large perhaps in percentage but equally dazzling in effect. I am convinced that Canadian business will average from 5% to 10% higher in 1941 than in 1940. If there are reactions in the coming year they will be extremely brief and I frankly do not look for any.

EXCELLENT CANADIAN WAR EFFORT

World War II has forced Canada onto a war basis. No country in the world is better geared to participate in the manufacture of munitions and the defence of democratic principles. Perhaps 10% of United States industry during 1941 will be attributable to the Defense Program. The percentage of Canadian industry devoted to defence will be far greater. This means that the Dominion is already producing at close to top speed in this connection, while it has taken the United States far longer to realize the threat to the North American republics.

Canada faces 1941 with all the confidence in the world. There is no reason why she should not. She is, naturally, proud to contribute to the defence of the mother country, the world's greatest empire, in her hour of need. Every line of industry will feel the effects of this policy. It will mean the elimination of practically all unemployment in the provinces, while industrial expansion and war needs force the great up-surge in building activity.

AGRICULTURE AND THE WAR

I expect about the same farm income during the coming year. There may be some gains in grain prices, but I do not think they will be sizeable until the rehabilitation of Europe is in prospect. I do, however, look for better crops next year. 1940 was good, with approximately 547,000,000 bushels of wheat, but the cycle seems to point to the possibility of a greater output this coming season. I cannot, however, see any larger demand for wheat unless the blockade is loosened or English crops are destroyed by German arsenic, by fire, or otherwise.

While apple imports by Great Britain have slowed up and by Europe have almost stopped, restriction of certain farm imports, of fruits or vegetables from the United States to keep the Canadian dollar high for war purchases will help domestic producers. It is probable that during 1941 further import restrictions may be announced, with the United States most seriously affected. This is a move necessitated by war conditions and, therefore, will be received in a friendly spirit by the neighbors south of the border.

BUILDING WILL PUSH HIGHER

After the depression, construction was fairly slow to recover compared with other major lines. Since that time, however, there has been a gradual piling up of building activity throughout the land. This push is only the beginning. I expect in 1941 to see Canadian building totals average 25% above 1940. The residential field may contribute only about 5% of this. The important factors will be engineering, plant extension, modernization, and general industrial work.

For several months during 1940, newsprint output was highest in Canada's history. During the last couple of months of record it has moved mildly off from this peak but appears to be heading upward once more. I do not see any reason why production in 1941 should not cap 1940 totals by 5% to 10%. This is a big order, but I feel very confident.

OUTLOOK FOR AUTO PRODUCTION

Now that automobiles made in the United States can no longer be imported into Canada, the domestic outlook for the sale of passenger cars is not very good. The tax on cars and increased income taxes are also factors. The truck business, however, may see quite a boom. I would not be surprised to see a larger increase over 1940 levels in this field. Production of trucks will be much more important in the year ahead than it has usually been in the past.

Naturally, tire production will push higher as well. Because of superior supplies, output of pneumatic casings may not move ahead quite so rapidly. An advance of 10% would not be impossible over the next 12 months. The importation of rubber will be the crux of further tire output. As I see it, it will depend largely upon the number of ships available for carrying the raw material from the Far East.

HEAVY INDUSTRIES EXPANDING RAPIDLY

With an unprecedented demand for heavy materials, production of iron and steel is close to capacity. Output of steel has worked upward to levels far above those of 1929. 1940 has drawn to a close with new peaks. 1941 will see even higher levels. An increase of as much as 25% is possible if sufficient new furnace capacity is installed. Naturally, this depends upon a continuation of the European war, but there is no likelihood of a cessation of hostilities at least until the late fall of 1941.

Iron production is at the highs of 1928 and 1929. There will be fresh gains during the year ahead carrying the volume of pig iron produced to all-time levels. Although figures on iron and steel imports are being kept secret for the duration, it looks to me as though there would be a steady improvement during the next 12 months.

Meanwhile, war contracts are in far greater volume than at any previous time. My guess is that total Canadian and British Government war orders allocated in the Dominion will be well above the billion-dollar mark before 1941 is very old. Aircraft manufacture will be one of the leading items in armament production in 1941. Arrangements are completed for additional factories in a number of cities, while output of planes has already been stepped up in excellent fashion.

TEXTILES MOUNTING

War orders for uniforms, tents, knapsacks, and similar products have stimulated the textile industry in many sections. The majority of plants are already at capacity. There is every reason to believe that there may be as much as a 10% improvement during 1941.

Meat packing has been working slowly higher. For the whole industry during the coming year, there may be a 10% improvement over 1940. This will probably be due, for the most part, to the current step-up in hog slaughter accompanied by a somewhat lesser increase in the slaughter of cattle and calves. The former may amount to 15% for 1941, the latter to between 5% and 10%. Sheep slaughter may move sidewise. Milling of flour will continue to grow slowly in volume. When the year totals are tallied, wheat flour production for 1941 will probably stand about 10% above that for 1940.

ALL MINERALS LOOKING UPWARD

Since all of the major mineral statistics, with the exception of coal and gold, are being withheld from public scrutiny for the duration of the war, it is difficult to give more than an approximation of future prospects as compared with 1940. Nevertheless, I look for definitely higher levels in coal output, possibly reaching 15%. Gold production has surged steadily ahead. Another 5% improvement is distinctly possible in 1941.

Nickel output is at the highest point in history and has by no means reached its ceiling. All of the other metals will feel the repercussions of the war program. Silver, copper, zinc, and lead will all seek higher levels during the 12 months ahead. My guess is that zinc production may be 10% greater.

FOREIGN TRADE VOLUME

The exports of these various metals to Great Britain will depend upon the number of convoys available to be assigned to merchant vessels. On this, however, I believe the United States can be depended upon to help if needed. Native production of petroleum is on a sound commercial basis and the Alberta fields will eventually be of tremendous value to the Empire. Real strides in this connection may be expected over coming months. Self-sufficiency for the Dominion in petroleum output is not yet here. Therefore, crude petroleum imports will undoubtedly swell somewhat during 1941. If Germany blasts English crops next summer with arsenic dropped from air planes, Great Britain will need arsenic from Canada in order to retaliate.

During 1940 there were real gains in tobacco manufactures, with a push to the highest point in history. In spite of these high levels, 1941 may easily press some 5% upward. Lumber operations have already started up for the season and a record cut is expected in many sections of the country. Exports of planks and boards may be improved by as much as 15%. I look for definite gains in wood pulp exports which amounted to about $50,000,000 for 1940 compared with about $28,000,000 for 1939.

Foreign trade volume may well expand during 1941. The extent of this expansion is going to be controlled by the ability of ships to complete their voyages safely during these hazardous times. Commodity prices may move gently higher. I do not anticipate any mad flight of prices. If 1941 averages less than 10% above 1940 in this regard, as I feel it will, there is little to fear.

CANADIAN LABOR OUTLOOK

Both employment and pay rolls have already surpassed all previous highs for Canadian industry. 1941 is bound to see further absorption of excess labor through expansion of industry as well as through induction of many men into the armed forces.

The cost of living has increased only about 6% since Canada declared war on Germany. This is not an exorbitant rise in living expenses. The Government will undoubtedly make every effort to prevent excessive price advances in any field. The similar attitude of the Administration in the United States will make it easier for the Dominion to achieve a stability of prices.

Strikes affecting National Defense will be frowned upon on both sides of the border in 1941. An attempt will be made to strike a happy medium, leaving as much power in the hands of the labor unions as they seem to deserve. There have, of course, been sporadic walk-outs in coal mining and other lines correlated with the war program. From now out strike activity will be kept at a minimum, with resort to legislative means if necessary. Wages will move mostly sidewise. Whatever gains there are will be awarded by Government agencies.

OUTLOOK FOR SECURITIES

The strategic position of gold shares is the keynote in Canada's 1941 security outlook. General manufacturing for export has been somewhat curtailed. Foreign trade has been unsettled. Cash is badly needed to pay for huge armament purchases south of the border. Gold is the answer. Gold production will receive every possible encouragement. Shares in this field have recovered all of the break of last May and a further moderate improvement of the stronger producers in 1941 is possible.

Industrial shares may be held back by a heavier tax burden. War means real sacrifices. In some cases capacity operations will not be able to entirely offset the higher tax levy. Only in carefully-selected industries will substantial stock price gains be evident. High-grade bonds have probably seen their best levels and, as money firms, they may tend somewhat lower. Medium-grade and short-term issues, I expect, will maintain relatively stable prices on the average.

GOOD AND BAD FOR 1941

The foregoing is my prophecy for the coming year. As far as activity is concerned, the picture is bright. Treacherous world conditions, however, mean that there will be many sacrifices of all sorts. In terms of volume, 1941 is bound to be the best business year in Canada's entire history. Make the most of the opportunities. Keep both feet on the ground and do not be discouraged at any dark shadows which may pass over during the coming year. I have every confidence, as I have always had, that Canada's future is a sound and brilliant one. I further believe that the destruction and suffering abroad will lead to a great spiritual awakening which is the only solution to the world's troubles.

Walter Reeves, Internationally Known Dog Judge, Appointed To Important Insurance Post

Will Act as District Agent for Canada Life Assurance Co. in Hamilton

SPORTS ENTHUSIAST

Dogdom in this part of Ontario will lose one of its most ardent supporters and enthusiasts on January 3rd, when Mr. Walter Reeves, popular district supervisor of the Canada Life Assurance Company here who has been transferred to the Hamilton district, will take up residence in Waterdown Ont., seven miles from the western Ontario city. Mr. Reeves will act as district agent for his company in the Central Ontario region.

Amiable and possessed of a disposition that attracts immediately, Mr. Reeves has enjoyed the popularity of a large number of associates in not only his own sphere of activities but in sport, social and other circles. He married the former Miss Kathleen Elliott, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott of this city, and has resided here for the past seventeen years. He has one daughter, Kathleen Innes Reeves.

Mr. Reeves was born in England and lived there prior to his coming to Belleville. He is a living exemplification of the sturdy Englishman and possesses all the admirable traits of an old country gentleman.

One of Humane Society Founders

Recognized in many countries as an outstanding authority on dogs, horses and cattle, Mr. Reeves did not waste any time after his arrival here to interest himself in his four-footed friends. He inaugurated the Belleville branch of the Humane Society and was elected its President.

Traditional love of the Englishman for his dog, brought Mr. Reeves in contact with many kennel clubs and associations. He is the vice-president of the Canadian Kennel Club and has acted in a judging capacity in many cities both in North America and Europe. He figures that he has looked over the members of canine royalty fully eleven hundred times. Besides his interest in dogs, Mr. Reeves is an ardent shooting enthusiast.

Services in Demand

He has an inherent love for horses and cattle and has acted as judge in many outstanding exhibitions both in America as well as many parts of the British Empire. His services are in demand and he has already accepted many invitations to act as judge at leading American shows for 1941.

A natural sports devotee, Mr. Reeves confines his activities along these lines generally to the royal and ancient game and is a popular member of the Belleville Golf Club. An Anglican, he is a member of St. Thomas Church.

Mr. Reeves will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends in the city and district and all wish for Mrs. Reeves and himself much happiness in their new home.

OBITUARY

MRS. NANCY A. SHOEBRIDGE, (Wellington).

Mrs. Nancy Ann Shoebridge, widow of Finley Shoebridge, died at her residence in Wellington, Prince Edward County, on Christmas Day in her 78th year. For many years she resided in Sidney Township and later took up residence at Wellington. She possessed many fine traits of character and in the communities where she lived she was highly esteemed.

Surviving her are two daughters, Mrs. Charles E. Moore, Montreal and Mrs. F. R. Row, Toronto, one son, Mr. H. R. Shoebridge, Belleville.

The funeral took place on Friday, Dec. 27th.

WANTS TO CONTRIBUTE

Regina, Dec. 31 (CP)—A North Dakota rancher is anxious to help Canada's war cause to the extent of $30 a month and has written the Regina postmaster, Leo Labelle, for information on how he can turn the money over to the Federal Minister of Finance.

The rancher, Angus Kennedy of the T-U Ranch, Watford City district, said: "My sympathy with the British cause in this war would be futile without doing something howeevr small, to bolster that cause.

"I wish to contribute to the Canadian war loan to the amount of $30 per month."

The letter is being sent to Ottawa.

Music Enjoyed By Rotary Club

Members of the Belleville Rotary Club wound up their 1940 meetings in a blaze of musical glory which was a fitting aftermath to the turkey dinner which marked their regular weekly meeting at the Hotel Quinte yesterday.

Heading a special musical program that fairly scintillated with talent, the superb voice of John Deacon, was heard in "Danny Boy" and the "McGregors' Gathering". The popular Belleville tenor received well-merited acclaim of his fellow clubmen after a fine performance.

Recognized as one of the outstanding cornet virtuosos in this part of Ontario, Mr. Jack Green offered "Rule Brittania" and variations. He was heard in a duet with youthful Ronnie Moorman, who is rapidly forging to the front as an artist of ability. Later in the program, Messrs. Green and Moorman and Cyril Smith offered a tuneful trumpet trio. Another Rotarian possessed of musical ability was Dr. Arthur Locke, who gave a melodic selection on the violin. All artists were accompanied on the piano by Mr. Alec Gordon, well-known city musician.

Various reports were given by chairmen of committees while President Percy McGuire told the club that Rotarian Clare Morgan had driven a small girl and her mother to Toronto where the former had received treatment at the Sick Children's Hospital. Rotarian Ed. Bernstein told the gathering that approximately fifty per cent. of the members had co-operated in the hospitality movement with respect to Sunday entertainment for members of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

A NEW YEAR DAWNS

The world looks out on the new year with hope after a year of great trials, most of them peculiar to the time of war. That the coming year will bring victories over the enemies who have brought this curse upon the world through their greed and love of violence is rightly the dominant hope and mood of the people at this time.

The coming of a new year always provides the opportunity for expressing the highest ambitions and the fondest hopes and prayers. On this occasion every person will hope and pray for victory of British arms and ideals over the barbarism of Nazis and Fascists. Steeled by sixteen months of war to the gigantic task of fighting for the maintenance of freedom the British people at home and throughout the Empire will carry on heroically. The subjugated lands overrun by Hitler and the still free democracies look forward confidently across the months of this year that, whatever the trials, the right will prevail over the dictators.

May in very truth this be a happy new year bringing the triumph of justice and freedom over tyranny and aggression.

A LEADER OF DEMOCRACY SPEAKS

There was no ranting, no wild declamation about President Roosevelt's broadcast on Sunday evening when the most outspoken utterance of his career showed how resolutely he faces the menace of the Axis threat and how the United States would continue with increasing flow of aid to Great Britain in her fight for the democracy of the world against the Axis Powers, Germany and Italy. The speech was quiet and full of facts, on which the people's minds were focussed. How quiet was this appeal of the President to his free people who know liberty as compared with the frenzied appeal in a speech by the German Nazi leader or of the Fascist Italian Duce, full of high-sounding fury and little else but the firing of men's minds to hate the world outside of the Axis! In his quiet way Mr. Roosevelt said that the Axis Powers would not win the war. He showed the world where the heart of the United States is when he said that the United States would be the arsenal for democracy. The reaction to his speech was gratifying, one report saying that messages received after the speech were in favor of the President's views 100 to 1.

The President made it clear that the American way of life was threatened by the Axis Powers, aiming at world control.

No appeasement is possible with the Axis Powers and the United States will not under present circumstances make any effort to bring about a negotiated peace.

"We are planning our own defence with the utmost urgency; and in its vast scale we must integrate the war needs of Britain the other free nations resisting aggression."

His policy he said was one of defence of the United States.

He said that there would be "no bottlenecks in our determination to aid Britain, that no dictator, no combination of dictators, will weaken that determination by threats of how they will construe that determination.

"We have furnished the British great material support and will furnish far more in the future."

No finer praise could have been given the British people than the words Mr. Roosevelt uttered, "In a military sense the British people and the British Empire are today the spearhead of resistance to world conquest and they are putting up a fight which will live forever in the story of human gallantry." The Axis he boldly declared is "an unholy alliance of power and pelf seeking to dominate and enslave the human race."

"Military measures will dictate the volume of future aid to Britain and the American nation expects our defence industries to continue operation without interruption by strikes or lockouts, with management and worker adjusting any difference by voluntary or legal means."

The President paid a tribute to Britain's fight for the security of the world. "The people who are defending themselves do not ask us to do their fighting. They ask us for the implements of war, the planes, the tanks, the guns, the freighters, which will enable them to fight for their liberty and our security." He expressed his confidence in the people of the United States to do a tremendous job for "we have the men, the skill, the wealth, and, above all, the will."

AS 1940 ENDS AND 1941 BEGINS

As a new year comes, one of the most momentous in history has drawn to a close, a year in which the dominating events have been of course the events associated with the war. While no one can know the future, it seems clear that it will be more easy to predict the course of events in a general way than was possible at the end of 1939 to forecast the year 1940. What looked like a war along the Maginot Line for a great part of the present struggle became in 1940 a war of invasion when the Nazis threw treaties and pledges into the discard as they have always done and invaded Denmark, Norway, and the Low Countries, and through the latter countries managed to get behind the Maginot Line and soon to put France out of the conflict. Then happened one of the most famous events of all time, the British evacuation at Dunkirk, one of the most glorious feats in British history, to be followed by a resistance of the finest heroism by armed forces and civilians as Britain fought back the Hun raids by air. Hitler was foiled. Italy's entrance into the war on the Axis side seemed a dark spot and yet as the covetous Duce made a grab at Greece, the Greeks put up a war not of defence but of offensive against the would-be invader, chasing him out of Greece and driving him backward through Fascist-held Albania.

The British have hurled the Duce's legions out of Egypt back into Libya, itself invaded after tens of thousands fell prisoner to the smaller forces and won naval and air victories over the Italians.

Today the way ahead seems more clearly defined. The German leader failed in 1940 to subjugate Britain. Italy is in a bad way. The Nazis threaten Britain with invasion plans but the British are ready.

There is assurance of steadily increasing aid in supplies to Britain from the United States because the year 1941 is recognized as a crucial year, which, there is confidence, will see the British and their Allies having the mastery over the Germans and Italians.

Britain has shown her heroism in the air, in the field, on the sea and in the air-raided centres; her people have shown the greatest valor of any people in history. They have given a demonstration of what they will do to the Hun if he tries to invade. The Hun, true to form, has interfered in the Balkans as every one believed he would. But the British blockade is a year older than it was, the Nazis are in greater straits than they were when 1940 opened. The growth of the British armies and air force, the approach to the peak in British and Empire production of implements and munitions or war, are the chief factors of increasing British strength.

Britain too has the good will of all the democratic nations, while Germany has the good will of none, not even of Italy, for Fascist and Nazi dare not trust one another. The Germans are the lone wolf and the Fascist ally is called the jackal. The world knows it and they have no friends.

A remark of Prime Minister Churchill's the other day is worth remembering, that in 1940 Britain, half armed, was fighting a totally armed Germany and that in 1941 Britain will be fully armed and that great developments may follow. President Roosevelt on Sunday evening said he believed "The Nazis will not win the war," and based this belief on "accurate information."

The year 1941 comes with great responsibilities and possibilities but also with an assurance that Britain, doing her utmost, will give so good an account of herself that the world and she will be cheered and greatly encouraged. But it will also be a time of trial which will call for the supreme proof of war effort of the Empire. That supreme effort will be made with confidence by Britain.

F. D. R.'s Prophecy Of British Victory Heartens the World

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, Dec. 31 — Amid a welter of speculation over impending German moves to come to final grips with Britain, President Roosevelt has sounded a note of New Year prophecy that drowns out the din of the immediate conflict overseas.

"I believe that the Axis powers are not going to win this war," he told a world radio audience. "I base that belief on the latest and best information."

The significance of the prophecy springs from the citation of its factual foundation. There can be no doubt that "the latest and best information" available to the President is extensive, both in regard to Britain's ability to meet any new German assault and United States' ability to furnish her the means of final victory.

Weeks ago British Cabinet spokesmen told Parliament that they were making "a clean breast" to Washington of Britain's war resources, military, economic and financial.

A complete pattern of Britain's war status has been woven for the President. It well may include full information as to exactly how, if not when, the London Government expects to turn the tables on its Axis foes and carry the fighting to them on all fronts.

Discourages "Peace" Talk.

Against that background of information, the Roosevelt prophecy is far more than a word of New Year good cheer to bomb-battered Britain. It rpresents a consensus of Washington officialdom that Britain has already turned the corner in her fight for survival.

It is clearly to supply her with the means of taking the offensive that the President has invoked his countrymen to a supreme effort. His words must be considered against the background of recent British intimations that the new year, 1941, would see the possibility of complete and final victory over Nazidom, given the all-out material aid Mr. Roosevelt has now pledged.

That expression of American policy and determination repudiated utterly a stalemate end of the war. It banned American encouragement of peace talk as without "right or reason" until the day comes "when there is a clear intention on the part of the aggressor nations to abandon all thought of dominating or conquering the world." That means until both Hitler and Mussolini and their regimes have been destroyed.

There was another obvious purpose in the President's mind. On information and belief he shares the London view that Italian morale, never keyed for participation in the war or for the Rome-Berlin fellowship, has been badly shaken by the defeats the Fascist troops have suffered at Greek and British hands.

Spoke to Vichy, Too.

Mr. Roosevelt's words were relayed in Italian by the British Broadcasting Corporation. His assertion that the Italian people, "forced to become accomplices of the Nazis," do not know "how soon they will be embraced to death by their allies" touches closely a developing internal situation confronting Mussolini.

There was no mention of France by the President, except to list it among German-conquered nations of the continent. Yet by implication and timing his words were aimed as much at Vichy as at Rome. They were calculated to stiffen resistance of the Petain regime to any German demands for French aid against Britain. They were hardly less calculated to stimulate French colonial leanings toward the Free French cause.

Official reaction in Berlin or Rome to the Roosevelt address deserves less attention that its possible effect upon French opinion, or upon Bulgarian. Yugoslav and Turkish elements of the seething Balkan situation, or perhaps most of all, upon Russia. The President's prophecy of Axis defeat in view of his intimate knowledge of Britain's situation could deeply influence any or all of them, and the trend of the war in the East.

1.—Name the three metals that are the best conductors of electricity.

2.—By what means did Demosthenes seek to cure himself of stammering?

3.—If you had first gone to the land of Lilliput and then to the land of Brobdingnag, with whom would you have been travelling?

4.—Which is the only nation in the world to occupy an entire continent?

5.—From what source did Samuel Langhorne Clemons adopt his pen-name?

6.—Called by his enemies the "Young Pretender", he was known to his followers as "Bonnie Prince Charlie". Who was he?

7.—The title "Cabbages and Kings" brings to mind a book by O. Henry. Can you tell from what poem he selected the phrase?

Answers

1.—Copper, silver and gold. Because of its comparative cheapness, copper is put to far greater use than the two more precious metals.

2.—By filling his mouth with pebbles and then talking slowly and clearly.

3.—Gulliver.

4.—Australia.

5.—When a Mississippi River boatman called out to his captain to indicate that the depth of the water over which they were passing was "by the mark, two fathoms", he would say "Mark Twain".

6.—Charles Edward Stuart grandson of James II of England.

7.—From "The Walrus and the Carpenter", by Lewis Carrol. It is part of the stanza that reads:

"The time has come", the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things;
"Of shoes . . . and . . . ships . . . and sealing-wax . . .
"Of cabbages and kings . . ."

Father Pens Tribute To His Son

The author of this heart-stirring tribute to our flyers is a well-known English author of short stories, who writes regularly for such journals as the Daily Mail and Daily Sketch. His son, who met death in a flying accident in Canada, was Wing Commander Grenville H. Shaw, R. A. F., who came to this country last January to assist in the training of the Empire airmen. He was killed with Flying Officer Donald Young, R. C. A. F., of St. John, N. B., when a training plane crashed near Ottawa on September 27.

(By Captain Frank H. Shaw)

I have lost my son. He did not die in the heat of a hard-fought battle against the Hun as he often expressed the wish to die, if death were to be his lot in this war. But he died for Britain none the less, testing an aeroplane in Canada to prove its value against the wanton slayers of our fellow-countrymen and women — children, too. He was anxious to perfect a plane to add to our supremacy in the air and cut through enemy formations, as he said, like a knife through butter. He crashed—but his experiments have blazed a trail to victory. It was only the other day the news came—starkly and suddenly; as bad news so often does strike.

We were very happy that day; a golden day, brimmed with good news of our air successes. We'd taken a long country ramble, to see beautiful things which we might describe to this lad-pride of our elderly hearts; for, far away, he greatly desired to know how England stood — that England to which he had devoted his young manhood. We returned home, brimful of fitness and beauty—and got the news. "The air ministry regrets . . ."

To all parents who have lost their first-born I, who have known pain, extend profound sympathy, and claim them as my kin. My first reaction was: "What a pity he didn't die in action!" Callous? I don't think so; that would have been a man's death; a hero's death; something to gild his memory with high pride. To have been able to think: "He died that men might live!" would have been gratifying; in some sort a reward for the care bestowed in his formative years.

Here we have seen much rare beauty destroyed by enemy viciousness; and watching shattered ruins of loveliness, I have said: "Right—our sons will avenge these crimes!" Well, though one is dead, there are others alive, itching to do the work denied to me.

I remember how my son said, in September, 1938: "We have our targets taped—if he starts funny business, he'll get it in the neck!" He then commanded Wellington bombers, to which Berlin was an easy target, and he was definitely disappointed when false peace came. He expressed his disappointment by applying added zeal to the training of the very many young pilots that earlier crisis sent flocking into the R. A. F. And as a result of that intensive training, he was a fearless pilot, known throughout the service as "one with plenty of nerve"—his trainees made not such a bad job of the first raid on Kiel—his pupils dealt that blow and proved to the Hun that all his bombast and bounce couldn't keep Britain down.

He wasn't leading them that night. Specialist in aero engineering as he was, they took him from his squadron on war's outbreak and appointed him engineering officer to the northern group—where his scope was widened. He had trained men, now he must discover infallible machines and improve even on them.

• • • •

I doubt if I can mourn him, now the first effect of shock is easing. He has crowded into his bare 33 years adventure, excitement, life, such as comes the way of few octogenarians. He lived every minute of his life, for his capacity for happiness was immeasurable—so that others were happy, too.

It hurts to remember back through the years though. I remember when I first saw him; the thought in my mind was: "By God's good grace, that kid shall have everything I didn't have to make him glad." He should, I determined, be spared the hardships and the early struggles. We were good pals — with a crisp understanding of each other—our strengths and our weaknesses, we were infinitely tolerant of each other.

Many of his pupils died gloriously in hot action; he fretted that they would think he had deserted them in crisis, forgetting that he was a cog in a vast machine to be used to the nation's best advantage. His work endured, though his presence went away. How they adored him, those boys of heroic spirit. He could have led them blindfold through hell and out the other side, for he was a leader, though little more than a boy in years himself — a gay, laughter-loving knight-errant, but in his business as serious as an alchemist!

And then, as if determined to safeguard his qualities still more, authority sent him to Canada to take a big part in the Empire air training scheme. He went with a scowl—a crusader being sent to a close sanctuary when the war trumpets were sounding their most clamorous.

And there he died.

• • • •

I worked hard to fulfil his destiny. I was able to give him much—and I delighted in that ability. It meant harder work, but it was cheerfully done. I went to watch him fly—in pageants and the like—doing astounding acrobatics; I delighted to hear his fellows say: "Shaw can fly." He had a permanent commission in no time. His future was assured—he'd found his bent. Promotion came quickly. — he went out to India as the youngest flight-lieutenant in the service; and he did well out there, in action against the frontier tribes. He wrote curt, happy letters.

He was no literary stylist; merely a man of action in his real element. Presently he came home to become the youngest of squadron-leaders. All my rosiest dreams were being fulfilled. Personal vanity claimed him as my own son; had I not been the youngest extra-master of my generation?

There were no peaks he should not climb—and he was still our son, although he had collected a wife in his leisure! "The future air-chief marshal," we hoped. Why not? He had the qualities.

He concentrated on Wellingtons. His outstanding desire was to drop a bomb on Hitler. Wellingtons could do it. And when ambition approached fulfilment he was switched away to work of a more universal importance. Made a wing-commander at his age, he went to Canada to try to find a solution to cold-weather engine trouble. He flew up into Hudson Bay country to do that.

• • • •

So he died. Not in the hot fury of action; not yet aware of the ultimate victory sure to grow from his labours. I hope it was quick—he deserved that from Fate. I think—I trust—that he looked on death as did John Buchan when he called it "the trivial business of dying."

So a young airman died — one of hundreds one of the thousands who must die—each one a sacrifice — that order and decency may be restored to earth. Thousands of parents feel and will feel as I feel to-day. I claim no sympathy, I share a wholesale sorrow. The boy died well, and if he'd lived he might have existed in shattered torment, a broken man. He was spared that. But—and every bereaved father will understand — why, why should a youngster like this be taken while I, old, no longer useful, am left?

Two Prayers at New Year's

Dedicated to Their Majesties, our well-beloved King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, in grateful memory of their visit to Canada.

AN EMPIRE KNEELING

O Lord, another year has gone
And still the war drum beats —
Grant us, O Christ, the courage, high,
That flames in London streets.

O Son of Mary and Thy Saints,
We humbly call to Thee
To arm and guard our fighting men —
On land, in sky and sea.

Jehovah, God of Israel,
Thy chosen ones implore
That Thou wilt be their God of Hosts
Amid the battle's roar.

And we, who name Thee other Names —
At other altars bow —
Our millions pray in many tongues,
God keep our Empire now.

Our noble allies, Lord, uphold
Throughout the Hitler night;
And may their Spartan spirit, fine,
Inspire our Empire's might.

And we at home in lesser ways,
Whate'er our tasks may be —
God make us kind and strong and brave
To strive for Victory.

God save our King — our statesmen guide,
Our men and women bless
As we rededicate our lands
To Thee and righteousness. Amen.

IN TRANQUIL DAYS

O Lord, the old year is no more,
Its sullied page is turned;
With flying foot the entities
The dear dead year has spurned.

The passing bell of midnight peals,
With humble hearts we hear
The clanging tongues ring wide the news,
The birth of another year.

No survey of our faltering,
No memory of each fall
Will cancel their unworthiness!
They have passed beyond recall.

Again, we gird our armour on,
Intent our fight to win
In this clean, unlived twelvemonth, new,
That Time has ushered in.

So, with Thy kindly aid, O God,
We face the coming days,
And trust that in the paths of right
Thine arm wilt guide our ways.

From lack of Christian charity,
The unkind thought or word,
From all these petty little sins—
Deliver us, O Lord. Amen.

—S. RUPERT BROADFOOT, K.C., Ottawa.

A Bright New Year

By ARTHUR L. BURKE

The year has gone with all its train
Of darkened clouds, let's bid adieu
To every thought the old year brought,
That would defile or mar the new.

Let's look ahead with purpose true,
Forgetting all that's gone before,
Let's wage the fight, for truth and right,
A bright new year is at the door.

Begin it right, our will to win,
Our worth is measured by the fray,
We must not fail to blaze the trail,
That other feet may find the way.

With noble deeds our hearts inspire
With others share a word of cheer,
If we so live, there's nought can give,
Such promise for a glad new year.

Then may the new year just begun,
Dispel the fears that now appall,
Start bells to ring and men to sing
Of peace on earth to nations all.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, January 1
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE NEW YEAR may come in under rather conflicting auspices, with a few surprising and unforeseen complications of a rather singular as well as serious nature. These might arise from impulsive, turbulent and dangerous or reckless behavior causing a fall from grace with elders or the feminine element. However, keenly stimulated ability to see strategic means of conciliation and shrewdly putting such openings into decisive action is likely to result in unexpected and enduring benefit, possibly with dramatic sidelights.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which the element of surprise, the curious and unexpected, with unusual if not dramatic adventures may dominate. Of paramount importance may be the opposition of estrangement of elders, superiors or women, but luckily the issues of peculiar, reckless, impetuous or eccentric conduct may be negatived by a keen ability to employ sagacity, tact or deep stratagem in efforts to compromise and placate. And this cleverness or shrewdness may enjoy surprising returns of a substantial and lasting nature, as there is hint of bequest, gift, and increased possessions.

A child born on this day, although impulsive, temperamental and possibly eccentric, fundamentally should have sound and serious qualities, with much ability.

For Thursday, January 2

AN UNUSUALLY favorable, propitious and happy chain of planetary aspects may be expected to greatly accelerate all activities and interests to high levels of productiveness and gratification. Old as well as new matters may be under very expansive and stimulating vibrations, with the promise of steady as well as spectacular growth and stability. Labor, employments, writings, publicity, as well as finance, enjoy increase and security. The mind will be particularly keyed to new ideas and noble achievement.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a year of accomplishments, with the faculties tuned up to new and great productive capacity, with many ambitious projects reaching most expansive and gratifying levels. Finance, possessions, industry and mentality, as well as personal popularity and prestige, should be assured outstanding recognition and security with the happiest reactions of the private life and its associations. Under such astral equipment it is a time for pushing to high goals and lofty aspirations.

A child born on this day may be richly endowed with faculties and abilities to attain conspicuous success in any number of productive channels or occupations. Its mentality is high, its ambitions sound and its personality of outstanding warmth and assured prestige and popularity.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

The Discovery of the Self

In my student days there was no such department as psychiatry —the study and treatment of behavior. There was a department of nervous diseases which took up the study of alterations in the structure of the brain, spinal cords and nerves of the body. We looked only for eye symptoms, staggering gait, knee jerks and other symptoms. An individual was either sane or insane as far as his behavior was concerned. If he behaved badly but could not be called insane, his minister or priest was consulted.

All this is now changed and the psychiatrist, in fact practically all physicians, today make an actual study of the patient's behavior, the greatest part of which is spent in questioning the patient himself. The physician now recognizes that just as the stomach or heart can be disturbed the man can be disturbed also. And to find what is disturbing the mind, the physician investigates just as patiently and thoroughly as when investigating disturbances of other organs.

The physician also realizes that if the patient who is disturbed mentally consults him early, he can usually prevent him becoming a real mental patient who will require treatment in a mental institution. Physicians know that the difference between insanity and minor emotional disturbances is only one of degree. The emotionally upset individual certainly behaves "queerly" and if the cause of his emotion is not explained to him and removed, he is likely to act queerly all the time and so not be fit to mix with those whose behavior is normal.

Sanity means being able to mix with others, giving and taking in a fair and sensible manner. Insanity means being unable to do this.

The causes behind emotional disturbances and queer behavior that make the individual odd, queer, or different, may be fear, worry, anxiety, envy, mistrust jealousy, hatred or other emotion.

A little booklet, "The Discovery of the Self" issued by the Institute of Psychoanalysis, Chicago, points out that the successful treatment of these early symptoms of mental disturbance is based on a confidential relationship between patient and physician in which the physician assumes the role, not of a judge, but of a sympathetic observer.

"The patient thus is willing to talk freely which enables the physician to locate the cause of the disturbance, bring it to light and explain how it causes the symptoms".

Present Attendance Prizes at Annual Christmas Concert

Thomasburg—The annual Christmas entertainments for the Anglican Sunday School was held on Monday evening. Lantern slides were shown and all enjoyed the singing of Christmas carols. The rector, Rev. F. C. Beazer gave a short talk and gifts from a nicely decorated Christmas Tree were distributed to the pupils and their teachers. At the commencement of the year the superintendent offered prizes to the pupils of the two younger classes for attendance and punctuality. Masters Kenneth Carleton and Clare Geen were successful in winning this prize. This is the third year for Kenneth to receive the prize, he having been on time every Sunday, while this is the second year for Clare to win the prize.

Service was held in the Anglican Church at nine o'clock on Christmas morning. The rector, Rev. F. C. Beazer, was in charge and there was a good attendance. The church was attractively decorated with evergreens and lights.

Fit Manicure To the Hands

Ginny Simms has lovely, well-shaped nails.

By HELEN FOLLETT

HOW THE finger nails are to be shaped when the filing goes on depends upon the length of the fingers and the contour of the hands. Bright colored nail veneer calls attention to the outlines of feminine talons, and one might as well know the rules. Shaping can make or unmake pleasing proportions.

Long nails on slender fingers require a modified point. We're dead against scratchy looking claws displayed by girls who want to be arty. Appear too much like weapons of defense; the kind of weapons that the noble house cat has and uses.

More Eave for Better Lines

The square nail calls for an elongated eave of neat oval contour, as does the short round nail. More eave gives better lines These types can stand a bit of down-filing at the sides, though one must be careful not to cut into the surrounding flesh. Finger shells treated in this manner make chubby fingers look longer and more slender.

When hands are large masculine looking, with oversized nails, it is a mistake to use a vivid polish which calls attention to them. Attractive veneers can be found that are pink-creamy and opalescent. They furnish a charming glow and finish, and are a relief from the blyeeding heart tints that have flourished for lo' these many years.

x x x

Have you ever thought about the effect of colors on your mental outlook? Interesting. Red is warm and exciting; grand to wear when you are sorrowful, feathers trailing in the dust. Yellow is cheerful, like sunshine. Green is cool, blue is tranquil. Violet and mauve are neutral. Purple is dignified, impressive, queenly.

The right colors can do much to make a woman's personality more vivid. They have a psychological effect too. Mournful draperies affect the wearer unfavorably; gay ones put her on her toes, and make her want to dance.

Italian Press Reaction to Roosevelt's Speech

New York, Dec. 31 (AP)—The Rome radio in a broadcast heard here today gave summary of Italian press reaction to President Roosevelt's aid-to-Britain speech, the gist of which, it said "emphasized that he is repeating himself too frequently."

"To think that Germany and Italy intended to attack the United States shows such naivete as can be believed and formulated only by a man who wants to help Britain at all costs."

Referring to what it said was the United States' intention to "break the counter-blockade of the Axis powers and send United States ships to Eire," Ill Messagero commented:

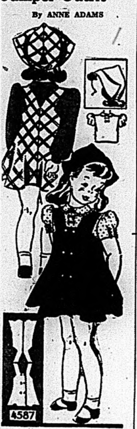
"If the United States should carry through this intention then their ships would be exposed to serious risks. The Axis powers at any rate are not willing to tolerate that obstacles be put in their way to victory, which must be total victory."

La Stampa, according to the broadcast, said:

"Since the British Empire is the obstacle in the way of justly distributing riches and labor, Germany and Italy inevitably had to storm this main obstacle . . . In order to be free and independent, Americans had not to fight against Germany and Italy, but against their British oppressors."

Three-Piece Jumper Outfit

By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4587

Mr. George Huffman has carried on in the office of Secretary-Treasurer for the school section for a period of twenty years and is to be commended on his efficiency and obliging manner in fulfilling that office.

Mr. Bobby Elgie, Toronto, will be a holiday visitor at his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McHenry.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth VanCott and Mr. and Mrs. Eric Edwards and Mr. Oliver Edwards were present at Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morden's Christmas Day party.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Edwards and Mr. Oliver Edwards were at Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Bird's, Bowermans, the day following Christmas at a dinner party. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cave, Bloomfield and Miss Rosella Cave, Toronto, were also present.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Burr, Pauline and Rodney and Mr. and Mrs. Will Soble were tea hour guests at Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Munroe's, Crofton, on Friday evening.

A Christmas school concert of outstanding merit was presented at the Orange Hall, Allisonville, Thursday evening, the nineteenth, when the pupils of Bowerman's school and the pupils of Burr's school displayed the result of careful training and of much talent in a varied and very entertaining program. Miss Norma Harris and Mrs. Clare Campbell are to be heartily congratulated on the success of the performance of their pupils. Mr. Chas. McFaul, Bowermans and Mr. Gerald Brooks, Burrs, extended a vote of thanks to them. Mr. Murney Parks was the capable chairman and Santa Claus was very well acted by Mr. Claude Maxwell. Many were heard to say that it was the best entertainment of its kind that they had ever attended. Proceeds amounted to over nineteen dollars.

Mrs. Herb Brason in company with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Caughey and Dorothy, Crofton, spent Christmas with her daughter, Mrs. Percy Carnrite and Mr. Carnrite, Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Huffman and Floyd were Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Campbell and Miss Annie Campbell, Hillier.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burkitt and Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Harns and Douglas spent Christmas Day with Mr. and Mrs. Will Burkitt and family, Mountain View.

Mr. and Mrs. Val Squire spent the Christmas noon hour with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Purtelle, Crofton.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Burr were at home to a family gathering at a dinner Christmas night, entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Will Soble, Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. Val Squire and Mrs. Geo. Valleau and Mr. Grant Valleau, Melville.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Duncan and Jean spent Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Cook, Bloomfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spencer spent Christmas with their daughter and family Mr. and Mrs. Percy Parliament and Ralph, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brooks, May and Glen joined the family Christmas gathering at the home of Mr. Brooks' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Brooks, Melville.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrritt Adams were Christmas host and hostess to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Noxon, Christian Street and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Blakely and Doris.

Mr. and Mrs. Blakely and Doris were Christmas evening guests at the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Blakely's, Consecon.

There was an attendance of over twenty five at the Christmas Sunday service. Rev. Parsons chose the basis for his Christmas address from Matthew's gospel story of the Saviour's birth. His text being "Where is He?", Matt. 2-2. The Christian's joy is that he has a hope that looks beyond the present Armageddon. At the time of the Saviour's birth there was the terrible slaughter of the innocents, ordered by Herod, yet with all its horror and terror it could not stop God's great plan so today's hour of trial will pass and God's purpose will be revealed. It was an especial privilege this year to have the opportunity to attend a service in memory of the Saviour's birth when we stop to realize to how many this privilege was denied in many lands this year. Familiar Christmas hymns were sung.

Mrs. Albert Werden, Cleveland, and son Albert, were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr, Ronald and Master Alan Werden. Alan will return on Monday with his mother and brother to Cleveland, after being over a year with his uncle and aunt. He has made many friends and will be much missed. In company with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr they were present at the family Christmas party at Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden's, Christian Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hubbs and children were entertained at the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Henry, Christmas Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Carter also entertained a family party on Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Carter spent Christmas at her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Hicks', Gilead.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vincent were at her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thomas', Mount Pleasant for Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Spencer, Buffalo, were Tuesday evening callers at Mr. Ross Burrs'. Mrs. J. E. Moran accompanied them to the home of her sister Mrs. Elwood Spencer, Centre. They were all guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Spencer on Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs Will Soble were Thursday afternoon callers at Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burrs.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Bird were Friday afternoon callers at Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McHenry's.

Several in the neighborhood are suffering from severe colds.

Mr. Warren Chase, Consecon, a former Prince Edward County Young People's President gave a splendid address recently at the Y.P.U. Allisonville.

FERRY SERVICE DISCONTINUED

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 31 (CP)—Ferry service between Brockville and Morristown, N.Y., across the St. Lawrence River, has been suspended because of reduced traffic. The service, maintained for more than 100 years, previously had been discontinued only when ice conditions made its operation impossible. Operators of the ferry blame border crossing restrictions for reduction in business.

Had Bad Stomach; Backache Dizzy Spells and Headaches

Suffered Five Years, Was Surprised at Quick Relief Syntona Gave Him. "It is Years Since I felt so Well at This Season," He Says.

"I don't know when I felt so well at this season before, and I attribute it to the fact that I have just taken a treatment of Syntona" said Mr. Herbert Faulkner, 611 Dundas Street, London, Ontario, in a recent statement.

"For fully five years I suffered with stomach troubles, headaches, dizzy spells and backache. Food just seemed to sour in my stomach and scalding, sour liquids would rise right up into my throat. In recent months the pains and lameness in my back was so bad I could hardly straighten up and I thought I would have to stop working altogether. I tried all kinds of kidney medicines, but nothing helped me until I began taking Syntona.

"Before I had finished the first bottle of Syntona my stomach felt better and the pains in my back were not so bad. Now, after taking a few more bottles the pains have left me entirely. I am free of headaches and dizzy spells, my food digests well and my whole system feels more healthy and energetic."

Syntona is a splendid medicine for anyone to take at this season. Each spoonful is loaded with the finest medicinal herbs to improve the action of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and to rid the system of excess acids and irritating waste matter. Syntona is pleasant to take and will not harm even the most delicate constitution.

If you live in Belleville or vicinity go to Dolan the Druggist and find out about this pure herbal tonic that is doing so much good here. Remember the name, Syntona, and avoid disappointment.

Canadiens Now Being Touted As "Team of the Future" by Experts Around NHL Circuit

Habitants Can Tie for Fourth Place by Defeating Americans

ROOKIES HELPING

Demers, Reardon and Quilty Stepping Like Veterans in Pro Ranks

(By The Canadian Press)

There was a striking parallel today between Coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens and the man who drew nothing but laughs when he first sat down at the piano.

The other National Hockey League moguls, of course, gave nothing but encouragement when Dick set out this season to mold a hockey team from a bunch of youngsters and the bare framework of a worn-out machine. But it all was given in a sort of "show me" attitude.

Well, just as Irvin predicted, the Canadiens failed to set the league on fire in the early weeks but, again according to Irvin's forecast, they started to travel recently at a rate that caused more than a little eye-brow raising. In their last five games, the club has won four of them and already are being touted as "the team of the future."

It was fourth place that Irvin predicted for his Habitants before the season got under way. That position, or at least a tie for it, is within Montreal's grasp as they prepare to meet the Americans in New York tonight.

In sixth position, the Canadiens are just two points behind the fourth-place Chicago Black Hawks and a victory over Americans tonight could lift them into a tie with the idle Hawks. The only way it could be spoiled would be for New York Rangers to win in their meeting with the Bruins at Boston meanwhile.

The Rangers are one point ahead of the Canadiens and, with Captain Art Coulter and Alex Shibicky returned to the lineup after a long absence, are nobody's set ups right now. The split in their two-game series with Toronto Maple Leafs during the week-end may well have been the signal that the New York club is ready to step.

The main figures in Montreal's recent drive have been those rookies whom many of the experts thought would need a year's seasoning before stepping into the big time. Tony Demers, who played a few games toward the end of last season, is setting the pace with a total of seven goals and five assists while Defenceman Ken Reardon and Centre Johnny Quilty, a pair of 19-year-olds playing their first season in the pro ranks, are stepping like veterans.

All of the other rookies are living up to Irvin's fondest hopes and the main "disappointment has come from a man who many thought would be the mian cog. Winger Toe Blake, twice in the last two years picked on the Canadian Press all-star team, has been able to punch home only two goals in 18 games.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

Chicago—Carl Vinciquerra, 191, Omaha, Neb., knocked out Frank Greene, 182 1-2, Chicago (2).

New York—Vince Dell 'Orto, 125 1-2, Italy, outpointed Al Mancini, 130 1-4, Providence, R.I., (8).

REMEMBER WHEN—Georges Vezina, one of hockey's greatest goalkeepers played his first professional game—with the Montreal Canadiens—thirty years ago today. His valedictory was November 28, 1925, when illness forced him to quit after playing one period at Montreal against Pittsburg. He died in his home town, Chicoutimi, Quebec, March 28, 1926.

VERDUN TEAM TO CONTINUE IN HOCKEY LOOP

Executive Asks and Receives Financial Help for Others Clubs in League

Montreal, Dec. 31—(CP) — Art Therrien, coach and manager of Verdun Red Devils told the executive of the Quebec Senior Hockey League last night that Red Devils would remain in the league.

The announcement was made at a special meeting of the executive after the Verdun Club had asked and received financial support from several other teams in the loop.

Red Devils were guaranteed their expenses on all games outside Montreal. They still have one trip to make to Ottawa, one to Cornwall, and two to Quebec. In addition, Sylvia Mantha of Concordias offered Verdun half of Concordia's share of the gate receipts when the Civics meet the Red Devils at the forum here.

It had appeared likely that Verdun would be dropping out of the league because of poor support in their home games. Deficit of the club was placed at $3,000 for the season to date, with little prospect of any improvement.

Therrien told the league executive that there had been a re-arrangement of directors and that the club would carry on until the end of the season with the help offered by the other teams.

Under the arrangement, Quebec will give $150 to Verdun on each trip Red Devil's make to Quebec, Ottawa will pay $160 and Cornwall $75. At the end of the season Verdun will reimburse the other clubs from its share of the play-off pool in which all teams share.

Cornwall and Quebec at first declined to offer any financial assistance, but Jimmy McCaffrey of Ottawa led a movement that finally won over the other teams.

G. Miron of Cornwall said Flyers' objection was one of 'principle only" because Verdun had twice been late for games, keeping Cornwall fans waiting in the rink. Later, a motion was passed imposing a fine of $100 on any team not showing up on time for a game.

NIAGARA BRIGHTS IN FIRST PLACE OF SENIOR LOOP

Defeated Hamilton 5-2 Right in Ambitious City to Take Coveted Place

G-MEN WIN

Oshawa Secures Fourth Place Tie by Downing London Streamliners

(By the Canadian Press)

Niagara Falls Brights are back on top of the senior "A" series of the Ontario Hockey Association today. That is where loop experts said in pre-season analyses they should be, yet the way the standings have been shifting these past few weeks, any of five other teams may be in top spot within ten days.

Brights won the toughest game of the night, a 3-2 victory over Hamilton Dofascos in Hamilton to haul the Dofascos back into second place. Meanwhile Toronto Marlboros moved into undisputed possession of third spot with a 4-2 victory over Port Colborne at Port Colborne and Oshawa Generals hopped into a fourth-place tie with St., Catharines' by beating London Streamliners 8-4 on Oshawa ice.

Three thousand fans watched Niagara Falls run up a two-goal margin early in the first period at Hamilton then beat off Dofascos best efforts in the remainder of the exciting contest. McQuade scored first for Brights, from McAndrew, then Hal Cooper slipped home a pass from Blink Bellinger before Clarence Shillington netted Hamilton's first on a double assist from Dillion, Brady and Doug Pritz.

Shamlock, McNamara, Johnston and Inglis scored for Marlboros at Port Colborne in a game dominated almost entirely by the Toronto Club. Leitch and Allen counted for Port Colborne.

Roy Covert was the biggest scorer in the goal-getting spree at Oshawa. Covert got three of Generals goals, with Carr-Harris and Peters getting two each. Cooper got the other. Kowalski, Stapleford, Allen and Stoddart scored for London.

Brights are one point in front of Hamilton, and two ahead of Marlboros. Tied another couple of points back are St. Catharines and Oshawa, with Port Colborne sixth and London seventh and last.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ,

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 31—(AP)—Don't let this jar you, but Jarrin' John Kimbrough will demand 25 grand to play pro football. . . . Anything to those yarns the big broadcasting chains will not accept baseball broadcasting contracts next season? . . . . Cubs may be stuck with Billy Herman? Reason: $20,000 salary.

Nixson Denton, sports editor of the Cincinnati Times-Star, crashed our "guest star" corner oftener than any other sports writer in 1940. . . . And Col. Elmer Salter of Auburn grabbed off more space than any other college press agent. . . . Come in, boys, and pick up your prizes—tickets to the first "honest wrestling" show put on by Madison Square Garden.

A Minneapolis High School had to forfeit 17 football victories when the draft disclosed one of its stars was over age. . . . Sammy Snead, a native Virginian, has been called a West Virginian so much he is beginning to believe it himself. . . Two Brooklyn pubs offered Lee Grissom a bartender's job during the winter, but Lee turned 'em down—on the advice of the front office.

Boucher Tells N. H. L. Clubs To Beware Montreal Canadiens

Coach of Rangers Thinks Dick Irvin's Squad Will be in First Three at End of Season

Toronto, Dec. 31 (CP)—Listen to the warning (for this time of the season) that Frank Boucher sounds to the National Hockey League.

It's not, as you might expect, to fear his own New York Rangers, the Powerhouse Boston Bruins, or the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs. It's none of that. It's a warning to beware of Montreal Canadiens.

Boucher spoke of hockey, and the Canadiens in particular, in the hour before his club met Toronto here Saturday night. He brushed lightly over the Rangers' recent failures that have left the Stanley Cup champions off the pace, then brought his listeners up sharply with:—

"This might sound like a screwy statement but I think the Canadiens will finish in the first three."

He gave unstinted credit to Dick Irvin for the coaching job on the half-dozen youngsters leading the Montreal club's drive, and to Paul Haynes for the scouting that snaf-except Americans, might wind up in the second spot behind the Leafs in the next two weeks. The Leafs got such a long early lead that it'll fied Ken Reardon for Canadiens' defence and other youngsters for the seasons to come.

No Duds Among Them

"There are a half-dozen kids practically all brand new to the N.H.L. with the Canadiens and there isn't a dud among them," Boucher said. "They're full of fight, they're good now and they'll get better steadily. In my books Canadiens are the club of the future—they'll be right near the top when it's all over."

It followed, of course, that he thought Canadiens the most-improved team in the league, but he added there wasn't a set-up all down the line.

"The power is so evenly distributed that any one of the teams, be a long time before they're overhauled, if at all."

Boucher holds no worries about the Rangers, who have slumped badly after going unbeaten in their first four games.

"Injuries to Art Coulter, Alex Shibicky and Dutch Hiller have weakened the club a lot. But it's too good a club to keep down and when Shibicky and Coulter are right again, we'll get going again. But remember what I said. Canadiens will be in the first three."

TOPS IN TENNIS

Don McNeill, the Oklahoma City youngster who surprised the tennis world by winning the U.S. championship from Bobby Riggs last summer, has been placed number one on the tennis ratings just released by the United States Lawn Tennis association.

KEEPS R.B.I. CROWN

Johnny Mize, St. Louis' Cardinals' first baseman, lost his National league batting championship last season, but official averages just released show that he remained the circuit's leading slugger for the third consecutive season. He also batted in the most runs.

HOCKEY ON WAY TO BIG SEASON IN CANADA, U.S.

Possibly Will be Better Than in 1939, the Best in History of Game

CALDER ENTHUSED

Chicago Leads All Clubs for Home Attendance Averaging 13,700 a Game

New York, Dec. 31 — (CP) — Hockey, "the fastest game on earth," passes another milestone tonight still in the van as the indoor sport with the highest customer interest.

Unofficial attendance figures compiled to the close of 1940 show that the National Hockey League is on its way to a big season possibly bettering that of 1939-40 which President Frank Calder termed "the best in the league's history."

With a little more than one-third of the season completed, attendance in the six N.H.L. cities shows an increase over the corresponding period of last year. In 69 games, favorite teams battle it out on the 719,469 fans have watched their ice, an average of 10,428 a game. In the same period last year, some 655,000 fans passed through the turnstiles.

Toronto Third

Chicago Black Hawks amply demonstrate that a team doesn't need to lead the league to hold customer interest. At home the Hawks lead the circuit in home-attendance figures—136,099 in ten games for an average of 13,700 a game. Second in that category are New York Rangers, 118,664 for ten games. In third place is Toronto with 118,382 for ten.

On the road the color, daring and speed of the Maple Leafs—and the fact that they have led the league most of the season — has made them the best drawing team in the N.H.L. A total of 129,470 fans have watched the Leafs play away from home, an average of 11,861 for the eleven away games.

The rough Boston Bruins run well behind the Leafs in attracting "away" crowds—125,955 in 11 games.

Amerks a Surprise

The lowly New York Americans, who have been fighting to keep out of the cellar all season, are the surprise of the league in drawing crowds on the road. In third place in this division, they attracted 110,194 fans in enemy territory, an average of 10,018 a game.

Following are the attendance figures up to and including games of Dec. 29, showing the number of games played, with "away" figures in brackets:

Chicago, 10 136,999, (10, 91,094); Rangers, 10, 118,664, (9, 101,779); Toronto, 10, 118,382, (11, 129,470); Detroit, 12, 100,668, (8, 72,365); Boston, 8, 91,000, (11, 125,935); Americans, 10, 88,043, (11, 110,194); Montreal, 9, 65,713, (9, 88,621).

Jockeys Tied For Top Honors On Last Day

Los Angeles, Dec. 31—(AP)—In a photo-finish, jockeys Earl Dew and Walter Lee Taylor neared the wire today in their red hot race for the 1940 riding championship.

As the bugles sounded in parks 3,000 miles apart, the two boys were deadlocked with 286 winners apiece at leading American and Mexican racetracks during the year.

Separated for weeks by but a few triumphs, Dew threw the race into a tie with two firsts Sunday at Agua Caliente, Mex. Taylor went ahead briefly yesterday with a winner at Florida's Tropical Park, but Dew tied it up again a few hours later with a single victory at Santa Anita here.

Numerically, Dew opened today's program with an advantage. He was down for six mounts in eight races, Taylor for four.

Handicappers looked favorably upon all their entries.

HI everybody!

Ken J. Colling

(By ROY PEACOCK)

Rural hockey has been suggested by the regular sports columnist as the topic for today's column, but as unsuitable weather, among other things, has had a rather softening effect on the great winter pastime and so far this season hockey among the rural lads is pretty much of an unknown quantity. By enlarging on the subject here, adding a resume and incorporating something else there, we might get by; anyway, here goes.

At the present time it seems that there is only one honest-to-goodness rural hockey league that is definitely sure of operating in the precincts of Belleville this season and that is the Central Hastings Rural Loop which has all its games played in the Stirling arena. This loop was started several years ago in order to give the rural lads an opportunity to play Canada's great national pastime and for a number of years operated in just that capacity. Gradually, however, the personnel of the league took on a foreign aspect as lads from a distance were taken on by the various clubs in order to bolster their lineups, and just as gradually the interest of the fans faded. With the institution of a set of rules definitely barring city and town boys from the league, the loop, during the past two years has "went rural again", imports are barred, and the league is slowly regaining repute in the eyes of rural fans.

Five teams have signified their intention of playing in the Central loop this season, being Glen Ross, almost perennial champions of the league, Evergreen, Zion Hill, Foxboro and one new entry, Centenary. Entries come and go in this popular rural league and Glen Ross is possibly the only team that have played every season since the loop's inception. Zion Hill and Evergreen have been in and outers, some years not sponsoring teams, but Foxboro has played every year since they joined the ranks some three or four years ago. West Huntingdon, Ivanhoe, Cannifton and the Lower Fourth in Sidney Township have at one time or the other sponsored teams in the league and this year sees Centenary, an unknown quantity, enter the league for the first time. The schedule was to have gotten under way last Friday evening in Stirling but the old weather man played a nasty trick on the boys and the games were called off. Weather permitting, the lid will be pried off this evening with Zion Hill stacking up against Glen Ross and Centenary will see their initial action against Evergreen.

Hockey activity out Frankford way seems to be a rather indefinite quantity up to the date of this writing and it is uncertain whether the Frankford and District Hockey League will operate as usual or whether the sponge has already been thrown in. Military training is affecting the personnel of the various teams, it is claimed by the managers, with the Wallbridge entrant definitely "not interested". Glen Miller and Wooler would undoubtedly put in a team if the league were to operate again this season, but as things stand, the prospects don't look too rosy. It is reported that Bata are seeking a berth in the Trent Valley League again and rumor has it there are several classy puck chasers among the plant's workers. So, in case the F. and D. L. folds up for this season there will at least be hockey in Frankford.

Bryan Hextall, sturdy right winger for the New York Rangers picked up another goal over the week-end in the Rangers-Maple Leaf game at Toronto and the native son of Grenfell, Sask., now leads all N.H.L. players in goals scored with a total of 13. At that pace he is well ahead of his last year's scoring tempo and that was fast enough to head the whole loop on the season's play with a total of 24 counters. Hextall, now in his fourth season with the Rangers, was picked for the right wing position on last year's all-star team and the speed with which he has been travelling this season makes him a logical contender for the same post this campaign. A remarkable feature of his scoring feats is that he is a left hand shot, although he patrols the right boards. He has always been a consistent high scorer. In his last season with Vancouver before coming east, Hextall found the net on 27 occasions. He played a season with the Philadelphia Ramblers and rang the bell 29 times. His first year with the Rangers found him scoring 17 times; in 1938-39 he ran the season's total to 20 and last season he added four more to lead the loop with an even two dozen markers.

According to the files of the Stirling News Argus it is now exactly twenty years since the Trent Valley Hockey League was first organized. The meeting of delegates from the northern villages, which ultimately saw the inception of the T.V.L., took place in Marmora on the 14th December, 1920, with representatives from Stirling, Marmora, and Tweed present. W. J. (Bill) Whitty, of Stirling, was chosen as the league's first president, with Hugh Wiggins, Marmora, as 1st vice; Felix Rashotte, Tweed, 2nd vice and H. Soanes of Tweed as secretary-treasurer. The seed which was sown in Marmora twenty years ago fell on fertile ground however, and the league soon expanded to include other towns and villages along the Trent. Madoc, Campbellford and Frankford were soon admitted to the league which saw its heydey a little more than a decade ago. Local fans will remember the Hume Arena being packed to the rafters by rabid fans from the north when Campbellord and Stirling ought it out for the championship in 1929. Shortly after that hectic series the league fell into a decline and disbanded for a number of years. The last few years have seen its rejuvenation however and last year the once popular Trent Valley League saw another successful season.

Down Texas way they tell some tall tales about Johnnie Kimbrough, Texas A. and M. All-American fullback, and his powerful ability as a strongman. One of them bears repeating and happened after Kimbrough had concluded his freshman year and was looking for laborious employment to get himself in condition for the following fall season of pigskin chasing. After much effort he approached the foreman of a steel construction job.

Noticing four men grunting and groaning as they labored to pick up a large girder, Kimbrough brushed them aside—tucked the girder under one arm, another of equal size under the other, and then walked around the block. He came wading back, knee-deep in asphalt and the foreman hired him.

A couple of days later he was unloading girders from a barge on the canal and slipped into the water. He hollered for help when he came up the first time, but onlookers were just spell-bound and didn't move. When he came up again he yelled: "If some of you don't throw me a rope pretty quick I'm going to drop these damn girders."

WINDSORS OFFICIATE AT RED CROSS POLO GAME

AS TORONTO MAPLE LEAFS OUTSCORED NEW YORK RANGERS

New York Rangers effectively jam their goal mouth as Gordon Drillon of Toronto Maple Leafs vainly attempts to ram the puck home. Metz (15) and Apps (10) can be seen just back of Drillon. The Leafs were more fortunate in some of their other rushes and came from behind to beat last year's Stanley Cup winners by a score of 3-2. More than 13,000 saw the game which was played in Toronto.

PREFER TO STARVE OUT ITALIANS

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 31.— (AP)— The British Middle East command announced today that the Italian troops in besieged Bardia "continue passively to await events".

Indications still were lacking of an early move to storm the Libyan port, under siege for two weeks.

It was believed here the British forces would refrain from a costly assault, preferring instead to starve out the Italians.

Grace McDonald, Broadway musical comedy star, makes her screen debut in Paramount's "Dancing on a Dime," which opens New Year's Eve and continues with daily matinee at the Capitol Theatre. Also featured in the cast are Robert Paige, Virginia Dale, Peter Hayes, Lillian Cornell and William Frawley. The added attraction "Girl From Havana," features Claire Carletonand Dennis O'Keefe.

New Year's Eve Frolic

Tonight at 11.30 p.m. the McCarthy Theatre's gala New Year's Eve frolic will start. On the screen will be presented the comedy feature made for laughing purposes only "The Sky's the Limit" starring Jack Buchanan. Also the following novelty subjects "The Spook Speaks" an all-star laugh-packed comedy, an amusing all technicolor merrie melody cartune "Goodnight Elmer" and an excellent screen vaudeville treat entitled "Just a Cute Kid"

Community singing with Mr. Fred Jobson as master of ceremonies also hats, horns and noisemakers of all description and sizes will be given each patron and the McCarthy Theatre management promises that the whole frolic in every way has been made up to make it the gayest party you ever attended. Seats are now on sale at box-office and ticket holders will not have to wait in line, but will be admitted at 10.45 p.m.

The regular show, for the evening "Ellery Queen Master Detective" featuring Ralph Beldamy, Margaret Lindsay and Charley Grapewin will be presented at the usual evening times and nothing that is presented at these performances will be shown at the special frolic show. You can come to the early show and stay as well for the frolic if you desire and both programs will be entirely different. The special frolic tickets will be gathered by theatre attendants.

"Arizona"

For New Year's Day another new show comes to the McCarthy Theatre screen, Wesley Ruggles magnificent production "Arizona" starring Jean Arthur with William Holden, Warren William, Porter Hall and a supporting cast of thousands. "Arizona" is based on the Saturday Evening Post story by Clarence Budington Kelland and is rated to be the mightiest and most beautiful outdoor production to ever come out of Hollywood.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma got mad this afternoon and told me not to leave the house till she gave me permission to, on account of me having had a idea to make a fortune by investing a new kind of tooth paste, so I got a saucer and mixed up some of every kind of tooth stuff in the medicine chest, ma not minding me wasting the tooth powder and stuff as much as she minded me dropping the saucer on the bathroom floor, and about a half an hour later I was in her room taking things out of one drawer and putting them in another, and I was listening to the fellows yelling and arguing and having fun outside, and I said, Hay ma?

Whatever you're going to ask, my answer is no if you expect it to be yes, ma said.

Me thinking, Heck, gosh shang the luck.

And I started to walk out of the room slow, saying, Oh well, I think I'll do a little useful work around the house.

Well that's unusual and unexpected news I must say, ma said. Just a minute, please, just what useful work are you bound for? she said, and I said, Well, I thought I'd make my room look better by painting a few neet red stripes on different things.

Well now will you tell me how you came to have such a barbaric idea as that? ma said, and I said, I came to have it because I've got a little red paint in the bottom of a can, just enough to make some thin stripes with but not enough to really cover anything with.

Well perish the thought no matter how you came to have it, ma said, and I said, Well then how would it be for a useful idea if I got the oil can and pop's screw driver and took all the hinges off of things and oiled them and put them back again?

Oh for land sakes out of one frying pan into another, ma said. If you're so anxious to employ your time to the best advantage why dont you go out and get some fresh air and healthy exercize? she said.

Wich I hurry up did feeling lucky.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Dancing on a Dime"

Jack Karr of the Toronto Daily Star says:

"Dancing on a Dime"—Paramount release of an A. M. Botsford production; directed by Joseph Santley.

The players: Robert Paige, Grace McDonald, Peter Hayes, Eddie Quillan, Frank Jenks, Virginia Dale, Carol Adams, Lillian Cornell, William Frawley, Phillip Terry, Tom Collins, George Meader, Charles Lane, Arthur Aylsworth, Wanda McKay and Fay Helm.

At the Capitol, starting New Year's Eve at 11.30 p.m. and continuing Wednesday Foto-Nite and Thursday with a daily matinee at 2.30

Grace McDonald

Lacking the fanfare usually accorded a first-run picture, "Dancing on a Dime" is to be found a nevertheless very entertaining musical comedy. You might call this deliberately hiding a peppy little picture when it deserves a spot in the sun. "Dancing" is not an important picture; and it has no box office names; it has not been expensively produced. But it has this in its favor: It is refreshing; it has a group of enthusiastic but little-known young people with personality-plus; and it has four or five very singable songs.

Grace McDonald, the feminine lead, is a real screen "find", and if Paramount doesn't take steps immediately to cast her in bigger and better musical shows than this one is, there is something amiss on the film coast.

Robert Paige, who plays opposite her, is a personable young gent, too, and should develop equally rapidly as time marches on.

The story surroundng these newcomers is highly theatrical in more ways than one . . . concerns the hardships of a group of WPA actors and actresses who see their show closed down just before opening night when the government decided to abolish the federal theatre project. Somewhat discouraged by this step, the youngsters decide to produce without the aid of the government—but with the aid of some bogus money.

Most of the film's footage is given over to musical numbers, capably performed by Paige and Miss McDonald, assisted by Peter Hayes, Frank Jenks, and the perennial screen juvenile, Eddie Quillan. Numbers include "I Hear Music", "Manana", "Debutante No. 1", and the title song—all of which are easy on the ear.

The added attraction "Girl From Havana" featuring Claire Carleton and Dennis O'Keefe gives you adventure, music and thrills in the South American way.

SAILOR TELLS OF BOOM IN ICELAND

Baltimore, Dec. 31.—(AP)— A business boom in Iceland—an island guarded now by 80,000 British and Canadian soldiers—was reported today by Seaman aboard the Hekla, tiny steamship here with a cargo of fish meal and tales of war-inspired prosperity back home.

Not an able-bodied man among the estimated 130,000 native Icelanders is out of work, they said, and Reykjavik, the capital and the Hekla's home port of 330,000 persons, has taken on a metropolitan air with crowded streets and bustling traffic.

A record-setting catch of herring last summer coincided with a greatly-increased demand in Britain for fish, and hundreds of Islanders moved to normally tiny fishing villages along the north coast to handle the catch.

AT THE BELLE

"Arise My Love"

With a story as modern as today's headlines; with Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland brilliantly enacting the starring roles; and with famed Mitchell Leisen at the directorial helm, an evening of rousing entertainment is promised in Paramount's new romantic comedy hit, "Arise My Love", which opens New Year's Day at the Belle Theatre.

Its heroine is a hard-hitting girl reporter who has cancelled off love because it stands in the way of her career. Its hero, an insouciant flying fool, who stakes his life on ideals. The scene the hectic, crowded canvas of Europe today!

The picture swoops into action from the first with Claudette snatching Milland from a firing squad death in Spain, flying with him over into France, with army planes in pursuit. It blossoms into a love story in the delightfully directed sequence in Paris, culminating in a hilarious episode in which Claudette locks her shoes in a safe to prevent Milland's walking away with her heart.

The breaking of the war finds them madly in love with each other, anxious to flee to the safety of America. But their ship is sunk and Claudette and Ray land on the Irish shore with the bitter determination to join in the fray.

The rest of the picture is devoted to showing how their love changes in the crucible of the war, and builds up gradually to the intensely emotional climax in which they decide to return to America. This time, however, it is not to escape, but to strengthen their country for the crisis that is arising.

Produced by Arthur Hornblow, "Arise My Love' was adapted from a screen story by Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder. Walter Abel is featured in the principal supporting role.

Phil Spitalny and "His Moments of Charm" orchestra, in a smart technicolor musical revue, and "Snobbed by a Snob" a funny color cartoon comedy will be exhibited on the same program.

New Year's Frolic

Tickets are selling fast for the Belle Theatre New Year's Eve frolic commencing tonight at 11.30 p.m. Hats, noisemakers and favours for all will be the order with community singing and a Scotch Pipe Band to welcome in 1941 with a whirl.

After five weeks at the Eglinton Theatre, Toronto, the uproarious comedy thrill hit, "Night Train to Munich" starring Margaret Lockwood, Rex Harrison and the two cricketing comics Basil Radford and Naunton Wayne will be the feature offering. Listed among the season's big hits this feature attraction has that rare combination of breathless excitement and side-splitting comedy which literally has you on the edge of your seat one minute and rocking in it the next.

George Murphy and Judy Garland as the young lovers of "Little Nellie Kelly," George M. Cohan's glorious musical play, now on the Belle screen.

RECORDS BROKEN BY WAR ORDERS

17-Billion Dollar Arms Drive by U.S. and War Machines for Britain Expand U.S. Manufacturing

By FRANK MACMILLEN

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Dec. 31 (AP)—United States industrial and business records toppled like ten-pins in 1940 as Mars bowled the war ball.

Behind his arm was the might of a $17,000,000,000 arms drive by the United States and the steady push of embattled Britain for machines of war.

Steel production reached 66,500,000 tons. The previous top was 1929's 61,432,000 tons.

Manufacturers of machine tools, the machines that make the machines of war, turned out $400,000,000 of lathes, drill presses and the like. The best previous was the $200,000,000 of 1939.

Fabulous Orders For Planes

Airplane makers, with fabulous orders on their books, managed to turn out $625,000,000 worth of goods, nearly three times the previous record of $225,000,000 in 1939.

Cotton, and its younger cousin, rayon, industrial as well as clothing fabrics, were consumed at a greater rate than in any year in the history of the country.

With automobile sales near the 1929 peak and with more cars and trucks on the roads than ever before, gasoline consumption and crude oil production rose to historic highs.

America in 1940 bought or produced more radio sets, aluminum, oil burners, coal stokers, cigarettes, paper, manufactured foods, dairy products, electrical appliances and printed matter than ever before.

More Goods Per Individual Turned Out In 1940

More goods of all kinds were turned out in 1940 for each man, woman and child in the United States than was achieved even in the golden era of the late '20's.

The Federal Reserve Board index of industrial production, when adjusted to take account the growth of population from year to year, shows 1940's score at 119.4 per cent of the 1935-39 average, while 1929, allowing for its smaller population, stands at 117.3.

Deputy Minister Of Air May Return To Massey-Harris Co.

Ottawa, Dec. 31—(CP)—James S. Duncan of Toronto, acting Deputy Minister for Air, probably will find it necessary to relinquish that post at the end of January to return to Massey-Harris Co., Ltd., of which he is Vice-President and Managing Director, an Air Ministry spokesman said last night.

Death of T. A. Russell, President of the Company, in Toronto Sunday night was almost certain to mean Mr. Duncan would be unable to accept another extension of his term as Deputy Minister, it was said.

Mr. Duncan has maintained his position with the company since last April when as a "dollar-a-year" man he became Deputy Minister to help organize the British Commonwealth Air Training plan.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

DEADLINE EXTENDED UNTIL JANUARY 15TH

The announcement made by Department of Highways which came through last night stating that an extension of the deadline for 1941 markers from 31st December to 15th of January, 1941, had little effect on local motorists. This morning, the last day which old markers were to have been permitted on autos, saw another long line of persons waiting to get their new licences before the new year.

According to Mr. Vermilyea, local issuer of motor licenses, yesterday (Monday) saw the greatest crush of motorists waiting to get their markers. From early morning until the offices closed it was one continual stream of persons standing in line from the street door to the counters where three clerks worked at top speed to issue plates. This morning was a repitition of yesterday, with many persons waiting when the doors were opened at 8.30.

OFFICE HOURS AT THE POST OFFICE

Street letter carriers will take a holiday on New Year's Day and Belleville residents will therefore be without their usual morning and afternoon deliveries of mail. The post office will be open for regular business however and all wickets will be open from 8.00 a.m. until 12 noon. The lobby will be open from 6.30 a.m. until 6.00 p.m.

Mails will be despatched from the office and received as usual, while special delivery and air mail service will receive the usual consideration. There will be one street letter box collection in the evening.

"Y" GIRLS ENJOY BOWLING, DANCE

The first social event of the Intermediate Girls' Group at the Y for the season took the form of a Bowling Party and Dance. The girls, whose ages run between 16 and 21 years, have been taking Gym and Swim classes regularly at the Y all season, and finally decided to hold a Christmas Party, which turned out so successfully that it will likely become a forerunner of many other delightful evenings in the future. Arrangements were in the hands of Misses Isabelle Delong, Dorothy Wonnacott, and Betty Redfern, and were excellent. A number of young men from the R.C.A.F. Station at Trenton, were among the male guests for the evening. The supper tables were set in a "U" shape with the guests seated around the outside only, and were decorated with the traditional Christmas colors of Red and Green against white cloths. Red and green candles lit the room and the decoration was centred by a miniature Christmas Tree, about a foot and a half high and lit with tiny lights. Dancing on the Gym floor completed the evening which was voted a great success by all who attended.

Rainfall for 1940 In Belleville Area Totals 31.93 Inches

From the standpoint of the agriculturist the year 1940 was much more favorable than 1939. According to data kept at the Belleville Purification Plant there were exactly 3.57 more inches of precipitation during 1940 than for the preceding twelve-month period.

During 1940 there were 20.55 inches of rain with a fall of 113.8 inches of snow being recorded with a total precipitation of 31.93 inches as compared with 18.71 inches of rain in 1939, a snowfall of 96.5 inches and a total precipitation of 28.36 inches. Thus it shows that there were 1.84 inches more rain and 17.3 inches more snow in 1940 than in 1939.

The month of December 1940 also showed a considerable increase in precipitation over the same month last year. During the present month 2.32 inches of rain fell and a record fall of 18.5 inches of snow was recorded making a total precipitation of 4.14 inches as compared with 1.96 inches of rain, 6.5 inches of snow or a total precipitation of 2.61 inches for 1939.

C.N.R. War Veterans Complete Activities For War Effort

At a recent meeting of the Canadian National Railways War Veterans' Association, Belleville unit, the following officers were elected for the year 1941: President, J. T. Walden; Vice-President, L. Amo; Sec. Treasurer, H. S. McElrath; Group Captains, C. Smith for Motive Power; E. Tennant for Station; F. Markle for Trainmen; W. G. L. Hart for Enginemen; J. Graham for Car Dept. and Rail Saw.

During the meeting a very complete report of the activities of the Cigarette Committee, who are responsible for sending cigarettes to C.N.R. employees or their sons overseas, was presented by Mr. A. H. Jones, showing that 22000 cigarettes have been sent overseas by this unit to 32 Belleville C.N.R. employees or their sons who are at present overseas, quite a number of whom belong to the H. & P. E. Regiment and judging from replies received these cigarettes are very very welcome. Moneys for cigarette fund are derived in part from the dues paid annually by the 80 members of the unit, in part from subscription boxes so placed that C. N.R. employees only have access to them and in part from the social activities of the unit. In this connection it should be noted that all net proceeds from social activities go to the cigarette fund.

GIRLS' DAY COMES ON THURSDAY

Every Thursday is Ladies' Day at the Y. But this particular Thursday, the first one in 1941, will be a special day. It will be one on which all the girl members, regardless of age may come to the Y and play all the games the boys play on their special days. Ping pong, bowling, checkers, crokinole, will be all going strong, and prizes will be given to the champions in each game. Of course, there is all kinds of chance that an abundance of New Year's turkey will make it hard for some of the girls to get out of bed before lunch time . . . but those who do will be rewarded with a heap of fun.

FRESH CARROTS DUG FROM GARDEN

At least on Belleville family will have carrot dug freshly from the garden on New Year's day. For today and the past few days Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Randle, 93 Lingham Street have enjoyed the vegetables which were found to be in excellent condition in their garden. Some of the carrots measured 8 1-2 inches in length and contained the same delicious flavor as those dug in season.

The vegetables showed no effects from or signs of frost. Mrs. Randle stated that the supply at present in their garden will last the family for some time.

Ninety-One Permits Issued in 1940

Ninety-one building permits were issued during 1940, it was revealed at the city hall offices of Charles Mott, city engineer, this morning, involving a total construction value of $145,440. Of the ninety-one permits issued twenty-four were for the construction of new residences with a value of $61,600 showing an average of approximately $2,500 each.

This compares with a total of 82 building permits issued during 1939 with a construction value of $251,396. The above total, however, includes the contract price of $112,000 for the construction of the new wing of the Belleville General Hospital in 1939 and with this amount subtracted from the 1940 total the balance in favor of the year just ending is approximately $6,000.

Only three permits were issued during the month of December, totalling $1,600, including alterations to Boyle's grocery story and a permit for the foundation of a molasses tank to be constructed at the Belleville waterfront at a cost of $500.

No large works project had been undertaken by the city during 1940, said Mr. Mott in a summary of the season's work, stating that maintenance work only had occupied the City Works Department. Building had went ahead, but works projects had been slowed considerably as a result of the war, stated Mr. Mott.

ARKROYALBOBSUP IN MANY PLACES, WORRIES ENEMY

Famous Air Plane Carrier Again and Again Shows She Wasn't 'Sunk' at All

New York, Dec. 31—(CP)—This is the saga of the Ark Royal, a hard-working unit of the Royal Navy which bobs up in unexpected places to show she really wasn't "sunk" after all.

The Germans "severely bombed" the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier in November, 1939, so they said. They wrote off the $15,000,000 vessel and her 60 planes as a total loss. Nightly for a month, German radio announcers taunted: "Where is the Ark Royal?

They found out Dec. 17. That was the day she put in at Rio De Janeiro to take on supplies.

Again, early in 1940, the Germans "sunk" the Ark Royal. The Admiralty said nothing until March 27 when a routine announcement showed she again was on duty after a wash and brushup at home. She had been roving the Atlantic between England and South America and South Africa.

Many Reports From Italians

On July 4 came an "interim report." The Ark Royal had provided planes for the engagement with French naval vessels at Oran, North Africa.

On July 11 the Italian High Command communique announced proudly she had received a direct hit from an Italian plane which dropped two large-calibre bombs squarely upon her in a battle July 9. The Italians said they had pictures to prove it, too.

A few days later Spanish observers at La Linea, opposite Gibraltar, saw "columns of smoke" arising from her at the naval base during an air raid.

However, the Ark Royal still was around July 16 for the Italian communique announced she had been hit on the "outer right part" of her flying bridge. Seven planes had been destroyed.

The Italian High Command said on July 22 it had been "learned with certainty" the Ark Royal had been seriously damaged. Crew losses were "considerable." The damage if any must have been slight for on Nov 11 planes from the carrier carried out bombing attacks on Cagliari, Sardinia.

'LAURIE' WRAY IS APPOINTED WING COMMANDER

Former Resident of Belleville Gives High Post in the R.C.A.F.

STATIONED IN WEST

Recognition of efficiency and ability in his chosen vocation, was given Squadron-Leader Laurence "Laurie" Wray, son of R. J. and the late Mrs. Wray of Belleville, whose promotion to Wing-Commander in the Royal Canadian Air Force was announced recently, according to information received by relatives here today.

Wing-Commander Wray, who is well-known in this city spent his early boyhood and youth here and was educated in its institutions. He joined the air force some years prior to the war and today is recognized as one of its outstanding pilots. He has been given command of a prominent airport in the Western Canada Air Command.

"Laurie", as he is popularly known to intimate friends and relatives, was selected to pilot machines which flew Canada's prominent air officials and government representatives on tours of inspection. Recently he flew Air-Marshal "Billy" Bishop, V. C., to Trenton where the Canadian air ace pinned the coveted wings on a group of pilot graduates.

Married a short time ago, he and Mrs. Wray found themselves dogged by a spectre of bad luck when their new home just completed at the air port where he is now stationed, was burned to the ground with all its contents. New furnishings, wedding gifts and other tokens of felicitations were completely destroyed.

Wing Commander Wray has been stationed at several important air points in Canada principal among which are Rockcliffe, Ottawa and Trenton. Mrs. Joseph Imlah and Mr. Harley Wray of this city are a sister and brother.

WILL ENLARGE TRAINING SCHOOL

Government Plans to Build Additional Barracks at Windsor Mills, Que.

Sherbrooke, Que., Dec. 31 (CP)—The Dominion government, in an attempt to speed up the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, has decided to enlarge the elementary training school at nearby Windsor Mills, it was announced today by J. P. Mullins, Liberal member of parliament for Richmond-Wolfe.

Ottawa, Dec. 31 (CP)—Additional barrack buildings being erected at the elementary flying training school at Windsor Mills, Que., are designed to provide living and messing accommodation for civilian employees of the school, an air ministry spokesman said today.

No increase in the number of students beyond the general-step-up in the capacity of all elementary flying training schools arranged last October is contemplated.

43,300 Tons Shipping Sunk by Enemy in Week Ending Dec. 22

London, Dec. 31 (CP).—The Admiralty announced today that 43,300 tons of merchant shipping was lost due to "enemy action" in the week ending Dec. 22. This was approximately the same figure as for the previous week and some 20,000 under the weekly average of the war.

Eighteen ships were lost of which fifteen totalling 32,849 tons were British and three with a tonnage of 10,451 were neutral.

Naval circles commented that the lowered rate of sinkings of the past two weeks indicated that countermeasures taken against submarines will succeed in reducing "materially" the effects of their attacks.

"So far," one informant commented, "the quantity of shipping destroyed by enemy raiders causes no undue alarm."

The average weekly loss during the war, excluding losses in the withdrawal from Dunkerque, was placed at 63,287 tons.

Sweden Declares No War Material Has Been Exported

Stockholm, Sweden, Dec. 31 (AP)—The Swedish foreign office, noting President Roosevelt's reference to Sweden in his Sunday night address declared today Sweden had refrained from exporting any kind of war material to any country at war, Finland excepted.

(The President, speaking of United States aid to Britain, said "it is no more unneutral" for the United States to send munitions and supplies abroad "than it is for Sweden, Russia and other nations near Germany to send steel and ore and oil and other war materials into Germany every day of the week.")

15 FREIGHT CARS DERAILED

Montreal, Dec. 31.—(CP)—Fifteen cars of a Canadian Pacific railway freight train were derailed near suburban Beaconsfield early today when the archbar on one of the trucks of a freight car broke. No one was injured.

Senator Wheeler Advocates United States Exert Effort For Immediate End of War

Washington, Dec. 31 (AP)—Senator Burton Wheeler (Dem-Montana), in disagreement with President Roosevelt today on the question of peace in Europe, urged that the United States exert every effort for an immediate end of the war.

He took direct issue with the President's defence broadcast statement that this nation had "no right or reason to encourage talk of peace" under existing circumstances.

Wheeler raised the peace question during a radio broadcast last night which was critical of much of the general policy which the President outlined Sunday.

A short time before the Wheeler address, Verne Marshall, chairman of the No Foreign War Committee, charged at a press conference that the Administration already had rebuffed one Nazi proffer of "honorable and just" peace terms. Despite this, he said a peace conference still could be arranged if the Government would approve.

Continued Commendation

Marshall's assertions were challenged almost immediately in a State Department announcement which said that no "feasible" peace proposals had been submitted to the United States Government.

In the opposite camp, meanwhile there was continued commendation for the policy outlined. The White House reported an extraordinary volume of favorable messages, and Mr. Roosevelt was described as "tremendously pleased" by the reception of his address.

Col. John H. Jouett, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, responding to Mr. Roosevelt's appeal for more planes quickly, promised steady production increases. "The aircraft industry," he said, "thoroughly understands the grave responsibilities facing it."

May Extend Aid to Greece

Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau indicated that the Administration's "lease-lend" war supply plan, if approved by Congress, would be extended to China and Greece, as soon as pressing British needs were met. China, it was said, would receive such surplus material as could be spared, meanwhile.

Mr. Roosevelt held a long conference with Arthur B. Purvis, British purchasing agent, and Morgenthau. Purvis said they had a "general talk on supply matters and the situation in London," but no fresh British requests had been presented.

Wheeler dismissed as "fantastic" any idea of a Nazi invasion of North America, and professed no fear "of wild boasts of American conquest by Stalin, Hitler or Mussolini."

Wheeler Outlines Plan

"I firmly believe the German people want peace just as any other people prefer peace to war—and the offer of a just, reasonable and generous peace will more quickly and effectively humble Hitlerism and break the morale of the German people than all the bombers that could be dispatched over Berlin.

"A working basis for a just peace might involve among other factors the following:—

"1. Restoration of Germany's 1914 boundaries with an autonomous Poland and Czecho-Slovakia.

"2. Restoration of independent France, Holland, Norway, Belgium and Denmark.

"3. Restoration of Alsace-Lorraine to France.

"4. Restoration of German colonies.

"5. Protection of all racial and religious minorities in all countries.

"6. Internationalization of the Suez Canal.

"7. No indemnities or reparations.

"8. Arms limitation throughout the world."

5 Simple Rules To Avoid Agony Of Hangovers

Toronto, Dec. 31. (CP)—Hangovers are not necessarily an integral part of New Year celebrations. Doctors here said today that people who feel they must drink to celebrate may avoid the more harrowing penalties by observing a few simple rules.

Here is the five-point program they offered for a happy and painless New Year:

1.—If you must drink, eat first and often.

2.—Drink in moderation.

3.—Don't mix your liquors. A cocktail may taste fine to the jaded tongue but the after effects may be terrific.

4.—If you have overdone it, as much water as you can hold or take a mild laxative before retiring. If the bed reels, prop yourself up and go to sleep sitting up.

5.—If you feel fuzzy waking up, reach for soda or an alkalizer, not a drink. An eye-opener may help at the time but the reaction will come sooner or later.

Junior Day at "Y" A Huge Success

Juniors are a little older and a little bigger than Preps, so, it was reasonable to expect a little more noise, even if no more enthusiasm, around the 'Y' building on Junior Day than there was on Prep Day a week ago.

Most of the regular attending members of the Junior Club (some being away from town on visits for the holidays) arrived at the 'Y' early Monday morning, and from then till supper time the place seemed to swarm with healthy youngsters in their early teens. The soft weather interfered with the plans for a hockey tournament in the afternoon, and a swim period had to be substituted, but outside of that everything went off as scheduled. Championships in Ping Pong, Checkers, Crokinole, Horse Shoes and Crokinole Pool brought out some very good play and close competition. This was particularly noted in Checkers where numerous draws had to be replayed before a player could advance into the next round. The championships were as follows: Ping Ping—Maurice Rollins; Checkers—Ron Moorman; Crokinole—Ron Moorman; Horse Shoes—Ron Moorman; Crokinole Pool—Maurice Rollins. Most of the boys brought their lunch with them and stayed right in the building for the entire program, and a good time was had by all. Tonight the same group will hold a New Year's Eve supper in the large auditorium, at which the guests will be the team which won the Christmas Card selling campaign, the food, service and dish-washing being provided by the other members. Following the supper the boys will try their hands at bowling before saying goodbye to the 'Y' until 1941.

Buildings, Organization Of Air Training Scheme To be Completed Eight Months Ahead

Toronto, Dec. 31 — (CP) — All buildings and organization work in connection with the Commonwealth Air Training Plan will be completed by September of 1941, James S. Duncan, "Deputy Minister of Defence for Air, said here today. This will be eight months ahead of the original schedule which called for completion of the work by the Spring of 1942.

CAPTAIN CAREFUL OF HIS SEA BATH

Was Torpedoed While Taking Bath and Dumped Into Sea During First Great War

An East Coast Canadian Port, Dec. 31 (CP)—An Englishman's home is his castle but a British captain approaches the status of a diety aboard his ship.

There's a British captain sailing a dingy tramp out of this port who was torpedoed while taking his bath during the First Great War and dumped into the icy North Sea with little or no clothing. This time he's making full use of his crew to prevent such a thing happening again.

Before he takes his daily tub at sea, all hands are piped on deck. A man is posted in the crow's nest and the rest are strung along the rails, below deck and along the passageway right up to the captain's door.

The last man's job is important. If the lookout sights a suspicious vessel the word is passed along to him and in no time the master is out of his bath and up on deck warmly clad in a sheep skin great coat and plenty of mufflers.

As the captain says: "You're not going to find me in the ruddy ocean again without proper protection."

Italian Plane, Drops Rubber Boat for Crew Canadian Pilot Downs

Athens, Dec. 31 —(AP)— A Canadian pilot serving with the Royal Air Force in Greece shot down an Italian seaplane over the Albanian coast today and described how he dropped a boat to rescue the Italian crew hanging onto the wreckage.

"We dropped our rubber dinghy and then returned home," he said.

The Canadian's name was not given.

POLICE SEEKING GIRL

Toronto, Dec. 31 —(CP)— Police today sought 17-year-old Leathia Patricia Nixon of suburban East York, reported missing from her home a week.

Trenton and District

Restaurant Owner Has Fine Collection Of Autographs

Trenton — (Special) — Collecting the signatures of famous Canadians and Americans who have joined the Royal Canadian Air Force is the hobby of Harry Brady of the Brady Restaurant in Trenton.

During the past year he has gathered hundreds of signatures of the airmen who stop off at his restaurant. Many of the Americans who hail from practically every state in the United States, have left excellent positions to join up with the R.C.A.F.

One of the most famous is Patrick Knowles, famous Hollywood actor who left recently for the West. Mr. Knowles was one of the stars in "Women and War," which is to appear at a local theatre in a few days.

Another American who has signed his autograph to the already famous book is Ken Tyler, Hollywood stunt flyer and veteran of the Spanish and China wars.

In signing his signature to the book, Sgt. Ed Wynn, (not the famous comedian), of Boston, Mass., wrote: "Good until the last drop."

Besides notable Americans, there have been many Canadian airmen who have signed the book.

ACCIDENT RECORD AT HAMILTON

Hamilton, Dec. 31 (CP)—Hamilton police totalled up accident records for the year 1940 today and announced that it had been the blackest 12 months record in the city's history.

A total of 26 persons were killed on the city streets, 693 injured in 905 accidents. This compares with 15 killed lats year, 590 injured and 795 accidents.

MINISTER CONCLUDES TOUR

Somewhere in England, Dec. 31.—(CP Cable)—Hon. J. L. Ralston, Canadian Minister of National Defence, today concluded his tour of the Canadian troops in Britain with a visit to holding units.

The Minister spoke to half a dozen groups of officers and men. He also visited the officers' cadet training unit.

TASS CORRESPONDENT EXPELLED

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 31 (AP)—Dispatches from Belgrade reported today that the correspondent for Tass, official Soviet News Agency, has been expelled from Yugoslavia on a charge he was "a spy for a foreign power."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 31—(CP)—Prices were irregular with the tone slightly improved for industrials and base metals in today's stock exchange.

Wright-Hargreaves recovered 20 of Monday's loss to close at 6.80. Gains showed also for Kerr-Addison, Preston, Beattie, East Malartic, Broulan and Pamour. The market was a bit soft for Teck Hughes, Lamaque, Little Long Lac, San Antonio and Upper Canada.

Steep Rock firmed a few to 1.63. Smelters added a small fraction and Noranda added a point but failed to hold. Nickel closed 1-4 down at 34 1-4.

Walkers common touched a new high for the year at 47 1-4 and dropped the gain while Canadian Industrial Alcohol A firmed a fraction to 2 3-8. Imperial Oil and Ford A improved.

Western Oils were dull with Home unchanged at 2.35 and British Dominion off 1-2 to 7 1-2.

WALL STREET

Savage arms jumped to a new 1940 top and support was accorded American Telephone, Dupont, General Electric, Johns Manville, Southern Railway, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft and J. C. Penney.

Occasional laggards included U.S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, International Harvester, Consolidated Edison, American Smelting, Boeing and Texas Corp.

Canadian issues slanting higher included Lake Shore Mines, McIntyre, Hiram Walker and Canadian Pacific. Dome Mines and Distillers Seagrams dipped small fractions.

Use of Patrol Cars Inaugurates New Plan To Safeguard Highways

Toronto, December 31 (Special)—A new plan, designed to facilitate the supervisional duties of provincial police highway patrol sergeants and, at the same time, give an added impetus to the present highway safety campaign, has been introduced by Hon. Gordon Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario.

Under this plan, five sergeants who have more than 100 highway patrol constables under their jurisdiction, will use cars instead of motorcycles to cover their respective territories.

News of the inauguration of this change was revealed in Queen's Park circles on Tuesday when five specially-equipped 1941 Chevrolet cars were delivered to the Attorney-General at the Parliament Buildings in Toronto. The five provincial sergeants who will operate the cars in their law-enforcement duties, were summoned to a conference with the Attorney-General and to take delivery of the vehicles.

The officers who have received the new police cars are Sergeants A. Witts, London; Sidney Hunter, Belleville; H. W. Howell, Toronto; J. Kay of Perth and D. H. Darby of Hamilton.

In a press interview, Mr. Conant explained that his plan had been adopted only after a careful survey had been made by W. H. Stringer, Commissioner of Provincial Police, and Inspector of Automobiles Edward Hales. "This survey shows," he continued, "that the supervisional duties of these highway patrol sergeants can be more efficiently discharged by the use of cars. These men are not only patrolling highways day in and day out, in good and bad weather, but they must cover practically the entire province. These cars should be of the greatest value in regulating traffic and preventing accidents and in effecting the apprehension of law-breakers."

The Attorney-General also revealed that the fullest use would be made of the vehicles in a still more vigorous drive against reckless and dangerous drivers, and to make the present highway safety campaign effective. In placing cars at the disposal of these provincial highway patrol sergeants, Mr. Conant stated that the question of economy as well as efficiency had been a factor.

At the same time, Mr. Conant indicated that he was considering the possibility of making use of the new cars in emergencies on highways similar to the Queen Elizabeth Way. The new coupes are sufficiently roomy to house an emergency cot. The Attorney-General also hinted that his plan might be extended to include Northern Ontario where motorcycles can be used for only part of the year for patrol work.

A brief ceremony in front of the Parliament Buildings today marked the delivery of the smart new vehicles which are Chevrolet coupes. The bodies are ivory, while the fenders are black. On both door panels, in black letters and arranged in circular sequence, are the words "Ontario Provincial Police," and below, "Highway Patrol Car No. X." Surmounting the wording on each panel is the coat of arms of the Province of Ontario.

Each coupe is equipped with a special exhaust whistle siren, and red police flasher lights, front and rear. The rear light, located on the trunk, has a "Police Stop" sign. Included as emergency equipment are a fireman's axe, a shovel, fire extinguisher, fifty feet of tow rope, bag of sand, red signal flares and a large first aid kit.

OBITUARY

JOHN SAUNDERS

The funeral of John Saunders took place from the Pinkston Funeral Home, 268 Church street, on Monday afternoon, Dec. 30. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by Mr. F. R. Peer of Bethel Hall.

TEN HOURS TO CARRY

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 31.—(CP)—For ten hours lumberjacks at Wells Brothers Lumber camp fought their way through desolate country at Lake Mazinaw, near Northbrook, 65 miles north of here in Frontenac County, to carry out the crushed body of 19-year-old Andrew Lloyd of Northbrook, killed by a falling tree.

Lloyd was killed late Monday and it was not until the early hours of today that his fellow workers reached Northbrook with the youth's body on an improvised litter.

Price Trend Of Butter Uncertain

Toronto — Trading on the local butter market experienced another blackout yesterday in the producer-to-wholesaler section. No sales of creamery solids were reported and quotations were unavailable. Dealers were still in doubt as to what branches of the trade would be affected by the pegging of butter prices.

Some wholesale houses sold creamery prints to retailers at prices ranging from 36 1-2c to 37 1-2c a pound on first-grade stock. This range would indicate a nominal solids price of about 35c to 35 1-2c, although none had definitely been established.

Egg prices declined. Receipts were in excess of demand and the market showed a decidedly lower trend. In the graded section, A-large eggs dropped to 29c, A-medium to 27c, A-pullet to a range of 24c to 25c and Grade C to 24c. Egg prices to retailers were unchanged.

Montreal Produce

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 36c-36 1-2c; first grade solids, jobbing price 35 1-2c-36c; other butter unquoted.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Dec. 31 (CP)—Dressedweight were up 10 cents at Brantford and Hull and prices were unchanged at Barrie and Stratford in bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Barrie $10.85, Brantford $10.50 plus transportation, Hull $10.60 plus transportation, Stratford $10.40 plus transportation.

Chatham later reported unchanged prices at: Liveweight $7.35, dressedweight $9.90. London prices $10.40 dressedweight were unchanged.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Dec. 31 (CP)—Prices held an even keel on Montreal livestock markets today, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Receipts: Cattle 65; sheep and lambs 52; calves 188; hogs 466.

Common butcher cows brought $3.75-$4.25. Canners and cutters made $2.75-$3.50 and common bulls $3.50-$4.50.

Veal calves ranged from $9-$12 with a choice sale reaching $12.50. Drinkers sold between $5.50-$8.50 and grassers between $4.50-$5, mostly $4.75.

Lambs, sold on a flat basis, made $8.50-$9 while sheep brought $4-$5.25.

Hogs traded at $11.35 for B-1 dressed, $8.50 for B-1 alive fed and watered. Grade A drew 1 premium with discounts made on off grades. Sows sold for $5.50-$6.50.

Toronto, Dec. 31 (CP)—The small supply of cattle was cleared out at steady prices up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. The veal calf market was firm. Hogs, sheep and lambs were steady. Unsold from Monday was 600 head of cattle.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 400, calves 210, hogs 880, sheep and lambs 60.

Prices in the cattle section were: Weighty steers $7-$9, butcher steers and heifers $6-$8.25, butcher cows $4.50-$6, canners and cutters $3-$4, a few bulls $4.75-6, fed calves $8.50-$10.25.

Demand Fire Watchers On London Rooftops

London, Dec. 31 —(CP)— Demolition crews continued today to dig through wreckage while on many sides demands arose that fire watchers be established on every London rooftop to prevent recurrence of such devastation as was caused by Sunday's German air raids.

Britain was free overnight from further attack, perhaps because of bad weather, and authorities utilised the lull to strengthen defensive resources against further fire raids.

The London Press, angrily viewing destruction of monuments and buildings that represented centuries of British history, charged "irresponsible property owners" had failed to take adequate precautions to meet the threat of incendiary bombs. Many fires which caused extensive damage could have been checked had they been spotted in time, some newspapers declared.

Demands Fire Watchers on Buildings

The Daily Mail, its own building struck but barely damaged by fire bombs, declared the city's business men were "largely responsible for their own losses." It demanded speedy government action to compel employment of fire watchers on all buildings.

The Times took a similar line, declaring: "If compulsion were extended to bring every roof under observation more than half the battle against fire raiders would be won in advance."

There was no immediate official response from government sources, but it was expected that the lesson taught by Sunday's raid, which left large areas in the heart of the old city a mass of fire blackened ruins, would be further driven home by the Minister of Home Security, Herbert Morrison, in a radio address tonight.

Prime Minister Visits Wrecked Area

What lead Mr. Morrison might get from his chief was not known but Prime Minister Churchill spent two hours yesterday walking and climbing among the still-smouldering wreckage of the city.

He saw damage wrought to such historic sites as the Guildhall and beautiful St. Bride's Church, the "newspaperman's" church, off Fleet Street. He saw damage such as London has not suffered since the days of the great fire which broke out on Sept. 2, 1666, and laid waste a large section of the city.

The Government accused the Germans of deliberate vandalism in its attack on the city which houses financial offices for the most part and cannot be considered a military objective in any sense of the word.

(Britain's Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding, now in Canada on official business, said last night at Ottawa that equipment now is being produced in Britain which would knock Germany's night raiders out of the sky at such a rate they would have to abandon that form of attack before spring.)

Bad weather was believed responsible for the inactivity of the Nazi Air Force last night. Not a single German raider was reported over Britain from dusk to dawn and the usual morning communique of the Ministries of Air and Home Security was limited to a laconic: "Nothing to report."

Britain Will Knock Germany's Night Raiders Out of the Skies By Equipment Being Produced

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 31 —(CP)— Equipment now is being produced in Britain which will knock Germany's night raiders out of the sky at such a rate the Nazis will have to abandon that method of attack before spring, Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding told a group of newspapermen here Monday.

The Germans turned to night bombing when they failed to gain command of the air in mass daylight attacks, said Sir Hugh, head of the British fighter command during the momentous battles over the British Isles last summer.

When they were forced to abandon night raids they probably would turn to more intensive attacks on shipping, he added. The Royal Air Force was making preparations to meet that threat, too.

"During the past autumn," Sir Hugh said, "a method has been found of dealing with this night bombing menace and equipment is being completed rapidly.

"I confidently believe it will not be very long before all the weight and sting has been taken out of these night bombing attacks.

Casualties Will be Reduced

"I don't mean to say that night bombing will cease entirely. The odd bomber may come, but the casualties from heavy and concentrated attacks will compel them to desist from night bombing just as they were compelled to give up their policy of crashing through in daylight in preparation for invasion."

He said he could not say whether it would be weeks or months before the new defence technique was in operation, but he was sure it would be before spring.

Sir Hugh thought there was a tendency to exaggerate the damage of German night raids to the British war production although he said it could not be dismissed lightly.

Reviewing the air arm, Sir Hugh said in August the Germans started their "blitzkrieg" on Britain when they sent over huge fleets of planes in an effort to batter down the Royal Air Force and pave the way for invasion.

"They did their utmost and they failed," he said. "They took terrific punishment before they gave up. Thanks to our fighters and to the coastal command and also the bomber command which attacked their airdromes we brought them to a standstill and one of the great battles of world history was won."

JAPANESE FACE

From time to time proposals have been made that the United States embargo the importation of Japanese silk—a major commodity in Japanese sales here—as a retaliatory measure against Japanese acts considered detrimental to American interests in the Far East. No such action, however, is believed imminent at the moment.

During the first ten months of 1940 Japan purchased American goods valued at $191,413,000, buying heavily in iron and steel, scrap metal and other vitally needed supplies which now require export licenses before they can be shipped to Japan.

With sales to the United States insufficient to meet this bill, Japan shipped gold valued at $86,291,000 during the first ten months of the year, and is continuing to make monthly shipments.

When the Sino-Japanese war started in July, 1937, the Bank of Japan reported its gold reserve at $463,000,000. Since that time Japan has shipped gold worth $675,000,000 here, but still claims a reserve of $164,000,000.

Japan's involved financial policy and the secrecy imposed on gold production figures make it impossible, officials explained, to do more than estimate Japanese gold reserves, with many unknown factors providing wide margins for error.

Japan has not disclosed its annual gold production since 1937 when it was estimated at $60,000,000 yearly.

Brass Bands Provided For Canadian Troops

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, Dec. 31 (CP)—Brass bands are going to be provided for the Canadian (Active) Army in England to cheer the men in the defence posts and in training.

Although practically every Highland regiment has its own pipe band, there have been only a few brass bands in the whole Canadian Force overseas. Now nine new bands have been authorized, and it is welcome news for the troops who for a long time have felt the need for music with their marches.

The bands will be established with the various holding units and will visit their regular battalions frequently, giving concerts and taking part in regimental parades and marches. Senior officers in some regiments indicated they would prefer the bands to be with the regular formations all the time, rather than based at the holding units, but the whole policy concerning brass bands probably will be worked out experimentally during the winter.

Most of the units brought bandsmen overseas with them as stretcher bearers.

Army officers believe new bands will contribute in large measure to continuation of good spirit among the men.

3,000 Troops Reportedly Leave England Daily For the Middle East

Boston, Dec. 31 (AP)—Eleven of the fifty United States destroyers traded to Great Britain in return for air and naval bases still are at Halifax and St. John's, Nfld., for lack of crews to take them across the ocean, the crew of the British freighter Dromore said today on arrival from those ports.

The Furness Line seamen, completing a voyage from Liverpool, said they saw seven of the "four-stackers" at Halifax and four more at St. John's. Others already are on convoy-escort duty in the Liverpool area, they said.

The men said both Liverpool and Manchester had been attacked heavily by air raiders, although Liverpool docks had suffered little damage, they added, because the port's anti-aircraft defences are among the best in the United Kingdom.

In one German raid, the men said 500 planes took part and an area within a half-mile radius from the centre of the city had to be evacuated.

The Dromore came here in the Boston-Liverpool service, replacing the Furness liner Newfoundland, which crew members said now is a hospital ship in the Middle East. The seamen declared that 3,000 troops are leaving Britain daily for the Middle East supposedly in preparation for a rumored offensive.

HITLER BOASTFUL

"In the year 1940 the National Socialist armed forces of the Greater German Reich won the most glorious victories of unparalleled greatness.

"With unequalled audacity the enemy was defeated on land, at sea, in the air.

"All tasks which I was compelled to demand of you were accomplished by your heroic courage and your soldierly ability.

"You have conquered the fighting forces of our opponents through the power of arms but conquered morally territories taken possession of by you through your proud conduct and exemplary discipline.

"Thus, thanks to your high soldierly qualities, we succeeded in a few months of world struggle in giving success supplementarily to the vain, heroic fight of the German armed forces in the world war, and definitely in eradicating the distance of oppression in Compiegne Forest.

Soldiers Thanked

"I thank you, my soldiers of the army, navy and air force, as your supreme commander, for your incomparable accomplishments. But I thank you also in the name of the entire German people.

"We remember the comrades who gave their lives in this struggle for the future of our people. We similarly think of the courageous soldiers of Allied Fascist Italy.

"It is the will of the democratic war inciters and their Jewish-capitalistic wirepullers that the war must be continued. Representatives of the shattering world hope perhaps in 1941 still to achieve what they failed to achieve in the past.

"We are ready.

"Armed as never before, we stand at the door of the New Year.

"I know everyone of you will do his duty. The Almighty, however, will not abandon those who, threatened by the world, determined with courageous hearts to help themselves.

"Soldiers of the National Socialist armed forces of the greater Reich, the year 1941 will bring completion of the greatest victory of our history."

Other Messages

Hitler's statement was followed by messages to their respective commands from Goering commander of the Air Force, Field Marshal Walter Van Brauchitsch, Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, Commander-in-Chief of the Navy.

Goering boasted that British bombing raids had caused no military damage in Germany and declared the German Air Force had "fulfilled" Hitler's pledge of "one-hundredfold retaliation."

"At present," he told the Nazi airmen, "you, besides our naval forces, are the main pillars of the direct fight against England."

Von Brauchitsch proclaimed faith of the army in Hitler and declared that "with this faith in him we shall also defeat the last remaining foe." He closed his message with the slogan: "Forward with God for Germany."

Raeder's message said the German fleet had "severely shaken England's position in the world." He expressed the conviction the navy would carry on "with all power and the highest courage to final victory in steadfast belief in the future of greater Germany."

Speaks to Socialist Party

Hitler's message to National Socialist party members said:—

"The mighty and unique developments of 1940 had for humanity revoluntionary significance, the full import of which will be realized only by later generations.... We who live in this time cannot but realize that Providence is stronger than individual men."

Hitler said that as far back as 1933 opponents employed every means to hinder Nazi aspirations.

"Infernal hate" was manifested not only against German goods, he added, but against the German people and "democratic papers even in the smallest lands" regarded it as their privilege "to scold the greatest middle European power, insult its leading men, ridicule its government and agitate for military violence against it."

Exploited by Plutocrats

Every effort on the part of Germany to be co-operative in the Society of Nations was "repulsed with cynicism," he said, and Germany was exploited by plutocrats.

"Characterless emigrants," Hitler went on, "joined with Jewish parasites who had left the Reich, cast suspicion on the German people and its leadership and thus helped generate a psychosis which sooner or later was bound to lead to war.

"For centuries some nations—headed by the English—have carried their wars over the world and robbed with force all they could gather, oppressed and impoverished great peoples totalling millions and, in such manner, built their so-called empires of blood and tears."

Denies 'Weakness'

Hitler recapitulated his "peace offer" to Britain and France of Oct. 6, 1939, and expressed scorn for "the practices of democratic war criminals" who, he said, labels any German peace move as "weakness."

Hitler asserted that Winston Churchill's "babbling revealed just in the right hour" that he had designs on Norway so that German counter-measures could be made promptly.

Hitler said that if the British contend that France stopped fighting unnecessarily, his report is that the first to give up the battle in the West were the British divisions.

"When we attacked, the British army had only one thought, which was to leave the continent as fast as possible, using the Hollanders, Belgians and French to cover their retreat," he asserted.

After [illegible]

again to Britain to "end this senseless war."

"A wave of anger swept through capitalistic war profiteers," he charged.

Refers to Italian Incidental Actions

Mentioning Italy he pronounced "childish" any British "hope for gains by incidental actions far removed from the central operations of the war."

He said Britain bombed German towns for three months in "criminal night attacks" before Germany retaliated.

He called the attacks a "Churchill policy" against which, he said, Germany issued repeated warnings and was taunted with statements that she was incapable of doing likewise.

"But since the middle of September," Hitler declared, "the idea may have penetrated that it was humanity which held us back so long.

"Now this war will be carried on to its ultimate consequence."

PRES. ROOSEVELT HIGHLY PLEASED

Messages Received by Chief Executive on Speech Favor Views by 100 to 1

Washington, Dec. 31—(AP)—President Roosevelt was described Monday as "tremendously pleased" by the reaction to his defense address in which he told the United States that it faced an emergency comparable only to war and that it must be "the great arsenal of democracy."

Stephen Early, White House Secretary, said the President was gratified that leaders of both parties had praised the speech, because he had called for national effort and realized that it could be "attained quicker and more effectively by unity."

Last night's address, Early said, brought a greater response than any other Mr. Roosevelt had made. Messages ran about one hundred to one in favor of the views expressed in it, he added, saying that the total was not yet available.

Lunches with Morgenthau and Purvis

As a possible follow-up to the address, which advocated even more aid to Britain Mr. Roosevelt had a luncheon engagement today with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and Arthur B. Purvis, chairman of the British Purchasing Mission.

He also scheduled conferences with Sumner Welles, Under-Secretary of State, and with Captain Allen Kirk, who has just returned from London, where he was naval attache at the American embassy.

Asked whether the President was likely to be more specific in future addresses than in the one last night, Early replied he did not think Mr. Roosevelt "will go into a statistical review."

22-Year-Old Motorist is Convicted of Attempt to Bribe Police Officer

Guelph, Ont., Dec. 31 —(CP) — Leonard Seifried, 22-year-old Ariss farmer was Mon., sentenced to six months in the Ontario Reformatory for attempting to bribe a Guelph police officer.

Constable John Derry of the Guelph force told the court that he had stopped accused for an infraction of the highway traffic act and that Seifried had pulled out his wallet and tendered a five-dollar bill "to forget about laying a charge."

The offer was made in the presence of two other officers, Constable Derry said.

Seifried was assessed $5 and costs or 10 days on a careless driving charge.

ENTIRE BATTALION

The Italians were said to be fighting with renewed intensity in an effort to regain positions wrested from them in steady Greek advanes.

The communique did not identify the sectors where the Greeks gained ground nor say where the new Italian captives were taken, along with field guns and other equipment.

It indicated, however, that some of the prisoners were Alpine ski troopers. Such troops, the high command said, attacked Greek advance forces but were put to flight. The troopers were said to have kicked off their skis and scattered.

Dispatches from the front said some Greek gains were made north of Chimara along the coastal road toward the port of Valona and that Italians suffered heavy casualties in counted attacks in the Klisura sector, northeast of Chimara.

"Our struggle will be hard," King George II told his people. Last night, "but our reserves of morale are inexhaustible . . ."

LOST SUNRISE
by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 21

It was all heavenly beyond her wildest hopes. Her mother's joy at finding her, her father's broad smile and the noisier welcomes of Peter and Kip began a time of sheer delight. To have her old place at the table, to sleep in her old room, with the familiar books and curtains and pear-tree shadow seeming to shut her in to the old safety and peace, was heaven. Gwen could not revel in it enough; she cross-examined them for all the news of Peter's girl, of Sheila, of little Fanny and Sheila's new baby boy.

She found at the house two letters from Scotland; their postal dates some months before. One was fat and bulky; that would be poor Dick's protest against being so summarily thrown over. The other was thin—a few lines at most. She read neither. There was a brush fire in the side yard one cool afternoon, and she carried the letters out to it and destroyed them unopened.

But they made her think of Dick. For one moment she had a dizzying vision of what it would mean to her or to any woman to be married to a man who was a comrade—a simple gentle unpretentious companion who lived his own hard life of service and labor and did not attempt to monopolize and control hers. A man who trusted his wife, who was sure of her as of himself.

She tried to put the dream from her, but for a distressing time it persisted. She was in the unknown streets of the Scottish city, going home to that snug little apartment up some dark, carpeted stairway, to find the fire burning cozily behind iron bars and the tea table set. She was sharing a holiday among the lakes and the heather with a square-built doctor in shabby tweeds; they were tramping along hand in hand, with the fresh air in their faces and the clouds racing overhead.

"This has to stop!" Gwen said. She put it behind her. She made herself think of Van and of her baby and of house hunting in San Francisco.

She had wired Dan of her plan to come home for a visit while he was away, but as the too-short days flew by and she did not hear from him she came perforce to the conclusion that the telegram had miscarried. His addresses were often uncertain things; he had even predicted that he might have to go on at once to Washington, so she waited to hear from him, planning to return to Sacramento at least two days in advance of his return, and have everything in the house in order.

Polly Henderson had come back to Kenthill for a visit, by lucky chance, and offered to drive back with Gwen; indeed, offered to do the actual driving and spare Gwen the strain. They arranged to start on Wednesday; Van's en days' absence would not expire until Friday, even if he were very prompt about getting back, but Gwen was beginning to get a little nervous about his silence now, and wanted to get home and see if there might be news of him.

"He must have missed my telegram Mother, and changed his hotel for some reason," she said a little anxiously. "He's been writing to the apartment, and the letters are probably piled up there, waiting. I've written twice to his hotel, and once to Mr. Moore, who's handling the thing here, but for all I know they both went right on to Washington. I know Van wanted to see some man in the patent office there."

It was a burning hot morning even for Kenthill. They were loitering at the breakfast table; there had been a lovely letter from Sheila to discuss; there had been snapshots of the new baby to pass from hand to hand.

Rapid steps came up from the sidewalk, the hall door was unceremoniously opened and Van was in the room. He looked hot and pale; his collar was marked with perspiration; he had not shaved. He gave them all a strained half-smile as he came in, but his look at Gwen was unsmiling.

"Well, I'm glad I found you!" he remarked coldly. He did not kiss her or otherwise greet her, as he sat down with a glance from her face to the other faces and the air of a man who expects an explanation.

"Van!" more than one voice said, with a well-simulated enthusiasm. Mrs. Washburton added, "Give him some coffee, dear."

"Polly, you know my husband? Miss Henderson, Van. Well! When did you get in?"

Van pushed aside his cup, looked straight at Gwen.

"I didn't know you were here," he said levelly, holding himself in. "How soon can you get started? I've got to be back in Sacramento at noon. I've just come in on the bus. I flew back, got home last last night."

"Why, I can—I can—It'll only take me a few minutes!" She could not meet their eyes, but she knew what her mother's and Polly's faces expressed. He would say anything, he would do anything in this mood. The only thing to do was to get him away as fast as possible, and let them all think what they would. "I'll pack. I was—going tomorrow, anyway," Gwen stammered. "Polly was going with me."

"Very sorry to interfere with your [illegible] said in a voice of til Sunday, Van," Gwen said, "she was going early to oblige me."

"I'm glad you were going eventually to come back," Van said with an icy politeness. Gwen laughed with a sinking spirit.

"Of course I was coming back! But I didn't expect you until Friday."

"I wrote you my plans."

"You're not going away today in all this heat; it wouldn't be a bit good for you!" Mrs. Washburton said hospitably. "You must be tired if you just got in yesterday. You take a good rest and have lunch, and then get off in the cool of the evening."

Van paid not the slightest attention to her. "How long will it take you?" he said briefly to his wife.

"Oh—three minutes. But I don't think there's any gas in the car, is there, Peter?"

"I'll take the car down. And I'll say good-bye to all of you now." Van said stiffly, getting to his feet. "I think someone might have informed me where my wife was; I've had no word since a week ago" he added.

"I'll go with you and get gas," said Pete. But although he followed Van out to the garage, when Gwen looked down from her bedroom window a few moments later she saw that Van was driving away alone.

"What on earth is the matter with the man?" her mother asked, helping her pack.

"Oh, nothing, Mother! He gets like that when he's tired and hot and thinks I've been trying to put something over on him. He'll be all right." Gwen spoke wearily, all her sparkle and vitality quenched as if by a breath of poison gas.

"Well, he may be all right," Mrs. Washburton said with spirit, "but I think it's perfectly outrageous for him to drag you with him over the country on a day like this!"

"The alterantive is too difficult, Mother," Gwen saic snapping a suitcase shut. "It means scenes and scenes. For the baby's sake, the quieter I keep the better."

Van had come back and was sitting in the parked car at the curb. Gwen kissed everyone, said what she could in explanation and excuse; managed a gallant smile, and tucked herself in the front seat beside the silent Van. They drove through the town in silence. She waited. "Upon my word you have an extraordinary idea of wifehood," he remarked at length. "I go East on your business. I write you every day, and I come home to a house full of dust and flies and heat. Why? Why, because the minute my back is turned you're off like a fire horse to see your mother, and your precious friends in Kenthill, and Dick Latimer too, I suppose. No word to me—what do you care what I'm going through—"

After a while, tired of the din of words she said mildly, "Please be reasonable, Van. As far as Dick Latimer goes, he's in Edinburgh, and you know it! It was burning hot at home, and I suddenly thought that it would be wonderful to see Mother and the others."

"So you took your friend Polly down with you? You thought of that! But you didn't think to tell me, a few hours earlier, what you were planning. And so I worry my heart out, cut my business short and come home to the damnedest, dirtiest house—everything silent — thermometer at one hundred and two—"

"Polly was there when I got there, Van. She was coming back with me tomorrow, but she went there by train."

"You're in a swell condition to drive around in this heat!"

"You're so silly to work yourself up this way. And I don't suppose it's the best thing in the world for me, either. All I did was go home to my people for a few days, thinking you'd be away until Friday."

"Were you going to tell me?"

"Van, don't be such an idiot!"

"I'm an idiot. All right. You run off, after the doctor told you to keep quiet, drive for hours, keep me in the dark about where you are...."

It went on for a long time, but gradually he quieted down, gradually began to take a note more aggrieved than angry, gradually came to grudging questions, criticizing comments.

They did not stop for lunch, but reached home at about one o'clock. Contrite, his tantrums over, Van helped her undress, got her between cool sheets, went to the kitchen and carried to her a tray of the most delicious hot tea, she said, the most welcome delicate tomato sandwiches she had ever tasted. Before he would touch his own lunch, which the Chinese boy had speedily prepared for him, he dashed off downtown, and when he came back it was to connect an electric fan with the floor plug in Gwen's room, and leave her drop off to delicious deep sleep with cool waves of freshened air blowing over her.

When she awakened it was lat afternoon. Van was sitting in the big chair looking at legal papers. He told her that he had to go to the office after supper but he had waited to tell her how sorry he was to have been so ungracious during the day. Only, darn it, to have his wife gone, and that big horse of a Polly grinning all over the place, an[illegible] hot weather, and being afr[illegible]mned doctor was hor[illegible]

Annual Concerts by Groups in West Huntingdon Well Attended

West Huntingdon — The 1940 Christmas will go down in history as one of the most beautiful and delightful that has been witnessed in many years. The weather man and Santa Claus were most kind. The school children entertained their parents and friends to a number of concerts, all of which were well attended. Most of the citizens here were being entertained in their friend's homes or were hosts to friends from a distance. And now as the holiday season is drawing to a close the regular routine work will be resumed.

Concert at Public School

Miss Margaret Wright, principal of the Public School, here, and her 36 scholars gave a very delightful Christmas concert in the auditorium of the school on Thursday evening. The 35 items on the program were announced by the chairman, Mr. Kenneth Stewart. Welcome, Recitation, by Muriel Ashley; Chorus by School, Good King Wenceslas; Chairman's Address; Recitation, Glen Wilson; Recitation, Gerald Cooke; Solo, Joyce Wallace; Dialogue, A Game of Letters; Mouthorgan selection, Geo. Dafoe; Recitation, Gerald Donnan; Recitation, Louis Emerson; Dialogue, The Shepherd's Children; Recitation, Jean Haggerty; Chorus, Santa Claus is Coming to Town; Recitation, Hanora McAvoy; Dialogue, Taking the Census; Recitation, Bernard Hunt; Boys' Chorus, The Mermaid and Carry On; Recitation, Joyce Wallace; Dialogue, Visiting the Sick; Solo, Margie Haggerty; Mouthorgan Selection, John Kerby; Recitation, Ileen McAvoy; Dialogue, Touch Tuning Radio; Chorus, by Audience and School, There'll Always be an England; Recitation, G. Post; Dialogue, The Vicious Circle; Recitation, Reta McAvoy; Recitation, George Cooke; Dialogue, Hoke and Poke; Star Drill; Dialogue, The Truth Telling Machine; Chorus, Farewell Christmas; Recitation, A. McAvoy; National Anthem; Santa Claus.

Endeavours' Class Meeting

The final meeting of the year of the Endeavours' Class was held on Tuesday evening at Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elliott's home. The worship service was supervised by Mrs. E. Post with all of the members of the class assisting in a Christmas service entitled "A Circle of Homage Around Christ Child." A duet was given by Mrs. Clifford Green and Mr. Elmer Post. Mary and Reginald Elliott also gave a duet. Readings were given by Mr. Clifford Elliott and Arthur Wilson. Mrs. Elmer Post gave a report of year's work.

The election and installation of officers was conducted by Arthur Wilson and those who will guide the destinies of the class for 1941 are President, Mrs. Clifford Elliott; 1st. Vice President, Mr. Clifford Green; Secretary Treasurer, Mrs. Clayton Wright. Following a Christmas hymn and benediction a lunch was served.

The pupils of Fuller public school presented a very entertaining Christmas program in the school on Friday afternoon. Mrs. M. Hayton directed her pupils in their various parts and Mr. Kenneth Stewart acted as chairman. A well ladened Christmas tree gladly yielded its lovely gifts to Santa Claus who passed them on to eager boys and girls. Many parents and friends of children took the opportunity to visit the school and enjoy the concert.

St. Andrew's Christmas Tree Concert

St. Andrew's Sunday School held a Christmas concert on Friday evening in the church. Rev. W. H. Walker was chairman and conducted a very impressive worship service including a Christmas story. Recitations were given by Joyce Wallace, Don Douglas, Jack Haggerty, Kathleen Douglas and Hanora McAvoy. Solos by Joyce Wallace, Arline Tummon, Margie Haggerty, a Star drill by seven girls, a duet by Donnie and Gerald Douglas and chorus by the School "Carry On."

Christmas Services on Sunday

All of the Christmas services on Sunday were well attended, a pleasing feature at St. Andrew's was the presentation of a beautiful book entitled "Memory Holds the Door", to Mr. Howard Ashley, in appreciation of his services to the Sunday school and church. Mrs. William Shaw representing the school spoke very highly of the faithfulness of Mr. Ashley down through the years as teacher and Sunday School superintendent. Miss Joyce Wallace made the presentation.

The United Church Sunday School held a concert on Monday evening when the junior members of the school gave recitations and songs and received many gifts from Santa Claus.

Y.P.U.

The Young People's Union of the United Church were guests on Friday evening of the Carmel Young People's Union. 21 members from here were present and a large congregation of the Carmel group. Mrs. Wilson, President of the Carmel group gave the Welcome address which was responded to by Mr. Harold Elliott.

The worship service was conducted by twelve members of the West Huntingdon Young People. The Misses Marion and Phyllis McGee, gave two songs. Mr. Kenneth Stewart gave the address, Bringing A Christmas Message. At the close lunch was served.

HITLER'S WORRIES

London New Statesman.

"I wonder", said a friend who should know, "if we are doing enough to exploit Hitler's perplexities and to make it clear that he has been hesitating for some time whether to sell France to Italy or Italy to France, and has lately been inclining to double-cross his Italian allies in the hopes of getting more out of France in the way of naval support? He is, in fact, at the present moment inclined to drop the prey for the shadow, as in the fable. In one way at least he is in an awkward position, because if he lets his Italian jackal collapse, his own reputation will collapse too. If, on the other hand, he revives the jackal, the jackal will then revive its claim on the carcass of France with which Hitler is trying to do a deal while being still uncertain how far to apply the butcher's knife. What, therefore, is he going to do? The only thing that can be safely said is that he simply must do the dirty somewhere."

It's a race across half the world before Ray Milland wins Claudette Colbert in "Arise, My Love," which comes to the Belle New Year's Day.
